"Yet, it has been charged that the trouble is due to the French clergy becoming members of the Royalist party, but, then, the fact that several joined one or other parties in France is exercising only a privilege like we have here of joining the Republican or Democratic party.

"There is no reason to believe the church would be better off under a monarchy than under the present form of government. The clergy have not been conspiring. Even cordial relations between the French church and Rome are not enjoined because the concordat subordinated these relations to the surveillance of the State. No bull, no announcement from Rome, no decree of a council, even of a general council, could be published in France, no nuncio legate, etc., could exercise his authority without authorization from the government.

"No bishop was allowed to journey to Rome or go outside his diocese unless he had first obtained permission to do so. How, then, could the bishops or priests meet and plan anything working toward the overthrow of government? That injustice will be righted before long."

The Rev. William H. Morgan, Grand Chaplain F. and A. M., of New Jersey, when asked for a statement concerning adverse criticism of Freemasons for mixing in the alleged interest in church torubles in France, said last night:

"I can say for New Jersey that the Masonic Grand Lodge, known as the Grand Orient of France, has not been recognized for more than a century as a regular Masonic organization."

Members of the Grand Orient were listed as clandestine Masons after the French Revolution of 1792.

Let There Be Light.

The installation of two arc gas lamps in front of Shirley & Johnston's store, in the Babcock building, lights up a particularly dark spot at night and is a great improvement. If two similar lamps could be located in front of the postoffice it would be a decided convenience to patrons of the office, it is said. The corner at Madison avenue and Front street has never been well lighted at night.

ARREST SUSPECT IN SLONIM HOLD-UP CASE

POLICE THINK NEWARK DETECTIVES GOT THE RIGHT MAN YESTERDAY.

In a young man arrested on suspicion by Newark detectives yesterday the police believe they have within reach the daring thief who snatched four rings from under the eyes of Leo Slonim last week, and escaped after shooting the jeweller and knocking down his wife. Slonim identified him this morning, and the police only await confirmation of the identification by Mrs. Slonim, who went to Newark this noon, to feel certain of their man.

The suspect was taken into custody at a jeweller's shop in Newark yesterday afternoon by two detectives of the Newark force. They had a description of the Slonim crook, and the suspect fitted it. When they saw him looking over $75 watches they decided he would bear investigation and placed him under arrest. He had 35 cents in his pockets. He had no weapon.

Word of the arrest was sent to Chief Kiely early last night, and he made arrangements at once to have Mr. Slonim go to Newark today and look the prisoner over. Slonim picked the suspect out of a mixed line at the Newark headquarters without hesitation. He said he was positive in the identification, but that he would like to have his wife confirm it. When he told Chief Kiely that the head sleuth had Mrs. Slonim prepare for a trip to Newark at once. She went on the next train.

Up to noon today the suspect was cool and uncommunicative. He refused to talk, and stubbornly resisted every effort to induce him to make a statement.

ANOTHER AFTERNOON TRAIN FROM TRENTON.

Reading's Service Bettered by Addition of a 4:50 Express Due Here at 5:40.

J. B. Betts, of North Plainfield, who is assistant to State Superintendent of Schools C. J. Baxter, at Trenton, has been successful in his efforts to secure better train service between Trenton and Plainfield. When a change was made in the time-table a few weeks ago, the Reading Railroad Company took off the stops of several fast trains at Trenton Junction and it was impossible to get in or out of the capitol city between the hours of 2 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Betts interested himself in the matter at once. He drafted a petition which was signed by every lawyer in Plainfield, asking for relief. As a result the Reading re-arranged its time-table and there is now a fast train which leaves Trenton at 4:50 in the afternoon, reaching Plainfield at 5:40. It is still impossible to reach Trenton from Plainfield in the afternoon between the hours mentioned.

DR. SCHENCK'S CONDITION REMAINS THE SAME.

Minister Is Helpless Since Stricken With Paralysis But His Mind is Clear.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who was so suddenly stricken with paralysis at his home on West Front street, early yesterday morning, remains in about the same condition. The distress which he experienced about the head at first has partially disappeared, and his mind is perfectly clear.

The entire right side, however, remains paralyzed, and he is in a helpless condition. His power of speech, which was much affected at first seems to be somewhat better. Dr. J. B. Probasco, the family physician, is in constant attendance, and the services of a trained nurse from New York have been obtained. She entered upon her duties last evening.

COLBY ON LIQUOR LAW

State Senator Says High License is the Most Effective Remedy at Hand.

REVIEWS LEGISLATION

Prohibition Is a Failure In His Opinion—Advocate Strict Supervision by the State.

In an address made at the anniversary exercises of a Newark hospital, last night, State Senator Everett Colby advocated high license and spoke on the liquor question generally:

"It is clear to my mind that the abuse of alcohol has become a public evil, and, therefore, subject to State regulation and control through the exercise of the police power. But what is the remedy at law? That the State has a right to enforce laws which regulate any traffic that is detrimental to the community, goes without saying, and this is not denied even by those who oppose excise legislation.

"All manner of legislation has been tried in this country, dating back to 1641, and from a study of the different classes of legislation I am convinced that State supervision, with high license and closing on Sunday, is most useful. Absolute prohibition has been a failure. Out of seventeen States that have tried prohibition only four retain the law on the statute books, and of those only one makes any pretense of enforcing it. Restriction and control seem, therefore, to be the only means of dealing with the question.

"In my opinion, however, no successful legislation will ever be enacted until we stop looking on the problem as an issue by itself, disconnected and dissociated from the other problems of society. It should be made but one phase of a movement toward legislation to remove, as far as possible, the causes which are found in our social order, and in the conditions under which we live.

"If the facts prove that the liquor traffic is a public evil, frame legislation that experience has proven to be the best to restrict and control it, and then enforce the law; but at the same time be careful that all legislation is such that those who obey a repressive statute have promise that obedience means equality under other laws that grant freedom and opportunity.

"To repress one class that the property of another class may be enhanced in value, is un-American. If this is done there is little encouragement among the poor to obey the law or restraint when they feel that in the increased wealth, order and decency which they may come to the community as a result of its enforcement, they are not given a fair interest. Every special privilege that is granted by State or municipality makes excise legislation an absurdity, while the President's policy, demanding absolute equality before the law, makes possible its enforcement.

"But whatever legislation is passed, you will not eradicate the evil effects of drink any more speedily than you will the evils of corporate greed. Both are diminished in proportion to the fairness with which the laws are enforced and the progress made in removing the cause. Enforce the liquor law to the limit, but make an equal effort to abolish special privilege and exemption; to shorten hours of labor; to enforce child labor laws and place fair liabilities on employers.

"When this is done, when you are working with equal enthusiasm for those upon whom fall the more heavily such laws of repression, then you need not feel ashamed of your opinion or fear to enforce the law."

HOPE FAIR DRAWS AGAIN.

Second Night's Attendance Very Good.

The second night of Hope chapel's fair passed off last night with success equal to the opening. The attendance was large and the subsequent profits from sales were gratifying to the committees. During the evening, vocal and instrumental selections were rendered by Mrs. L. R. Howard and Judge Runyon. There was also a basketball game in the gymnasium which attracted a good crowd.

The fair will close tonight and as a special feature, a supper will be served from 6 until 8 o'clock. A good programme of readings and music has already been provided.

IT'S TOLLES OR TYLER

One or the Other Likely to be Chosen President at Councilmanic Caucus Monday.

QUIET CAMPAIGNING

Councilman Gloak Has Issued Call for the Caucus—Tolles Likely to Be the Winner.

When the adjourned meeting of the Common Council on Monday night finishes its business, the city fathers will caucus for a president for the ensuing year. The call has been issued by Councilman William Loch Gloak, of the First ward, who has attended to the same matter for several years past. Of course, the deliberations will take place behind closed doors in the little side room where the real Council meetings are held monthly, while "Jake" stokes up the furnace in the basement and the reporters yawn for an hour over the six minutes (?) executive session.

President Ralph I. Tolles, who hails from the First ward, has heard the call for his Organization friends for a re-election and he will accept the job for another year provided the Independents do not land their favorite son in the high chair on the platform. This favorite son is none other than William S. Tyler, who was brevetted in the last campaign for meritorius service on the floor of the Councilmanic chamber. Mr. Tyler has not said that he is a candidate, but there is a well defined rumor that the Independents have gotten their heads together on the subject and are agreed that he's their man for the job.

Unless there is some break in the Organization's ranks—and there is a well defined rumor that the Independents have gotten their heads together on the subject and are agreed that he's their man for the job.

Unless there is some break in the Organization's ranks—and there sometimes is—Mr. Tolles will be chosen for president again. It is said that Councilman H. D. Hibbard, of the Second ward, is leading the Tyler forces. Councilman Gloak is said to be looking after Mr. Tolles interests. If Councilman Leslie M. Daniel would only take his old job back there would be a decided change in the situation. It is said that he would be able to win out "hands down," but it is not believed that he could be prevailed upon to leave the floor.

The make-up of the committees depends entirely upon the outcome of the contest for the presidency of the body. If Mr. Tolles remains in his present position, there will be little change. But if the Independents should win there will be a shake-up all round.

Mrs. Blackwell Buried.

Mrs. Emily Blackwell, wife of Stephen W. Blackwell, passed away in New York Thursday, after an illness of six weeks from typhoid fever. She was a daughter of J. Ross Lake, proprietor of the TenEyck House in Somerville, and before her illness had just returned from an extended trip in Europe. Mrs. Blackwell was twenty-four years old. The funeral was held this afternoon at the residence of her father-in-law, former Assemblyman Jonathan H. Blackwell, in Trenton. She had been married for six years, and had many friends in Somerville, Flemington, Plainfield and Pennington.

PLEADS FOR OUR ALIENS

Gov. Stokes Says It is Duty of State to Enlighten Foreigners Within Its Borders.

FOR SPECIAL SCHOOLS

Declares that Ignorant Given Opportunity Surpass Native in Earnestness of Effort.

Representatives from every county in the State of New Jersey were present at the banquet of the committee appointed last winter by Governor Stokes to investigate the condition of the foreign-born residents of the State, which was held at the Princeton Inn last night. After the banquet, which was a very elaborate function, several interesting speeches on the results of individual investigation were delivered.

Governor Stokes was the first to speak, followed by Justice Fort, of the Supreme Court, and Miss J. M. Campbell, the chairman of the commission. Inspector Walthorn, of Ellis Island, made an interesting address.

After referring to the fact that most of the immigrants come to this country ignorant of the English language and the laws of the United States, and that many of them represent the best blood of the old world, Governor Stokes said:

"It must not be forgotten that whatever may be the character of these new wards of ours, they represent the courage and daring of their race. It requires bravery of the highest type to leave the land of nativity to begin life anew in a foreign land. This very element of courage and ambition is worthy of the highest cultivation and training.

"The dangerous element in a community is always the ignorant class. As a member of the Court of Pardons I have learned that many of the crimes committed among the immigrant colonies in our State are due to ignorance of our laws and institutions. For this unfortunte condition a remedy must be found.

"It is our duty to prepare these wayfarers for the citizenship they crave by teaching them reverence for the principles of good government, by inculcating a spirit of pride in the preservation of American institutions. The unsuspecting are credulous, are often preyed upon by rogues and wronged and defrauded. They are thus given a false notion of American character and American life.

"Give the ignorant alien an opportunity to increase his knowledge, and he far surpasses our native population in earnestness of effort. He is eager to take advantage of education opportunities for his children. The percentage of illiterates of foreign-born parents is small, compared to that of the illiterate children of native parentage.

"New Jersey has a great opportunity and a great responsibility in this connection. Let her set an example for other States to follow by taking up the immigration problem in a rational and systematic way. The establishment of schools for the training of these new wards of ours in the duties of American citizenship, in the history of American institutions, cannot fail to produce a harvest of intelligence and patriotism that will redound to the credit of the State and the nation."

SURVEY ON TROLLEY LINE TO SOUTH PLAINFIELD

MOCK TRIAL WAS A PRONOUNCED SUCCESS

Y. M. C. A. BOYS DID WELL IN THEIR PRODUCTION.

All the success that Boys' Secretary Barrows and his youthful assistants hoped for attended the presentation of the mock trial by the Y. M. C. A. juniors last night. The production was humorous all the way through, and not a hitch attended its progress.

The audience was large and appreciative. There was much laughter and applause; even the performers giggled at times.

The cast was as follows:

Justice McWiseman, Hayden W. Barrows; clerk of court, Harold Robins; Simon Talker (plaintiff's attorney), Walter Caldwell; Claude Meeker (defendant's attorney), John Loizeaux; Mrs. Euphonia Slimdiet (plaintiff), Chas. Witnesses for defendant—Alfred Daintyfood, Stanley Robins; Count Pokerianno Pickemuppo, David Thickston; Dr. Threechances, Stanley Parsons; Alphonso de Bon Soir, Leslie Leland; J. Karner; Chung Lung, Sherwood Parsons; Bill Tufton's Son, Leslie Leland; James Welldone, Francis Wilcox; Hen Underthumb, Stanley Robins.

The production was well staged. Credit for its success belongs to Mr. Barrows, who coached the cast and did pretty much everything else to bring the trial into shape.

FLOSSY'S PLAYDAYS.

Delightful Child's Book By Mrs. Florence Howe Hall.

"Flossy's Playdays," a child's story, by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, is a recent publication by Dana Estes & Co., of Boston. It is the story of a small girl and written for small people, but grown-ups will find it interesting.

The child atmosphere is maintained on every page, and to older people the story is like a call to dormant memories. The book is very probably autobiographical. If it is, Mrs. Hall was a very human child. Flossy's playdays were in the time when small girls wore pantalettes and some of them had their hair "shingled." Pantalettes and shingling have passed from the ken of the juvenile mind, and the kind of young persons who wore the one and endured the other has passed away with them. The more mature youngsters of today will probably be vastly amused at the things that interested Flossy and her sister Julia, and at the things in which they found pleasure.

Jerusalem Lodge Election.

The annual communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., will be held Tuesday night, December 18, when officers will be elected. The installation ceremonies will be conducted by Right Worshipful Brother Theodore B. Townley, of Elizabeth.

Preparing to Build New School.

Frank J. Hubbard, civil engineer, has completed a survey of the lot on Darrow avenue, purchased by the Board of Education and upon which it is expected to erect a new public school to take the place of the Washington School property sold to St. Mary's church. The lot has a frontage of 210 feet on Darrow avenue and a frontage of 280 feet on Essex street. It is the intention of the board to commence the erection of the new school early in the spring.

Work Has Begun on Proposed New Route Between Plainfield and Bound Brook.

THROUGH NEW MARKET

Fast Freight and Passenger Service Proposed Between Bound Brook and Princeton.

Surveys were begun this week for a system of trolley lines which will eventually connect Bound Brook by the way of New Market and South Plainfield with Plainfield. Means of travel through this section has been needed for a long time. Another route selected is through Chimney Rock and Martinsville to Bernardsville. It is also proposed to have a line in operation from Bound Brook that will connect New Brunswick and Princeton, the idea being to have the road to Princeton built for fast service and both freight and express matter in addition to passengers will be carried.

The surveying is under the direction of Engineer N. G. Vreeland, who represents wealthy New York capitalists. They have no connection with the Public Service Corporation.

For a long time there has been a need of a trolley between this city, South Plainfield and New Market, and efforts have repeatedly been made to get the Public Service Corporation to build such a line. For various reason the company has never made a move to do anything toward improving this section of the State. Now independent capitalists intend to do something.

The exact route for the road from Bound Brook to Princeton has not been definitely settled upon. It will probably follow the Millstone river, through East Millstone, Blackwells, Griggstown and Rocky Hill, although there is a possibility the route from South Bound Brook through Middlebush and Franklin Park may be chosen.

As a bridge to cross the Raritan and the railroad tracks would be necessary if the latter route is selected, and as the cost of building such a bridge would be over $100,000, it is not thought this route will be selected. The exact route for the line from Bound Brook to New Market, South Plainfield and Plainfield has not yet been decided, but will be within a short time.

FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY OF ENDEAVOR SOCIETY.

Celebration of An Interesting Character at Seventh-Day Baptist Church.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was held this morning. Charles Neagle, president of the society, had charge of the services. Reports of the junior, intermediate and senior societies were read by the recording secretary, Miss Marie Rogers. The seniors reported an increase of five new members in the last year, making now a total of 105, including both active and honorary. Miss Mildred Green, superintendent of the intermediate society, reported that during the past year they have carried on their work with marked success. The report submitted by Miss Ida L. Spicer, superintendent of the junior society, showed that two of their members have been baptised and joined the church.

The Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of Dunellen, made an address. He took for his text a part of the third verse of the second chapter of Paul's first letter to Timothy: "As a good soldier of Jesus Christ." He showed that the qualities which characterize a good soldier in the army are also true of a good soldier of the cross. He compared them, saying they are strong; are volunteers; have stability and reliability, enthusiasm and endurance, and are watchful. He said that if every member of the societies would acquire these qualities, they would soon accomplish even better results than that for which they are striving, and be true soldiers of the Lord.

Ministers to Meet.

The Raritan Ministerial Association will hold a meeting in the chapel of the First Reformed church in Somerville on Monday morning. A paper will be read by Rev. Samuel Parry, of East Somerville, who was for over thirty years the pastor of the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin. His subject will be "The Imprecatory Element in the Psalms."

Car Shortage Is Serious.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—"This country," said Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, yesterday, "it threatened with a serious business congestion, due in large part to the lack of railroad cars for the transportation of its products. The scarcity of time money and the scarcity and high price of labor are other things working toward such a situation, and, while I would not care to predict trouble, I confess I regard the outlook with something like apprehension. If legislation would supply cars I should be glad to pass all the laws needed, but I cannot see how Congress can do anything to enable the railroads which have not the money to buy cars when the car builders already are two years behind their orders." Senator Elkins thus epitomized a situation to which many public men are giving anxious attention. The last two relief measures which Secretary Shaw has taken for the benefit of the money market were due largely to a similar appreciation of the country's condition. From every quarter evidence is coming to Washington which shows how serious the car shortage has affected the entire country and its business. Most startling of all is news from North Dakota that persons have frozen to death as a result of the failure of railroads to supply coal, because of the car shortage.

Maniac Chloroform-Proof.

New York, Dec. 15.—Screaming, praying, cursing and otherwise frightening the women passengers, a maniac, who proved to be Joseph Kvapil, of 426 East Seventy-third street, took complete possession of a crowded Columbus avenue car and held it from Seventy-eighth to 109th street Thursday. He was arrested after a fight, and the ambulance surgeon of the J. Hood Wright Hospital, which arrived as the police finished taking the man's pedigree, administered morphine in the hope that it would quiet him. It failed, and chloroform was tried. A full bottle was used with no visible effect on Kvapil, but Policemen Heidebach and Flannigan were rendered unconscious by the fumes. Only after a second bottle had been used up and Sergeant Devery and Policeman Tobin were called in to assist in the fight could the man be subdued. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

—The Board of Health will hold an adjourned meeting on Thursday, December 28, to close up the year's business.

—Calvin H. Rugg, who recently retired from business, dissolving the partnership of Kline & Rugg, will not re-engage in business before next spring.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In "His Honor, the Mayor," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, Julian Edwards has done some of the best work of his career. His two songs, "Magyar Maid" (Come Where the Wild Vines Clings) and "Sweet Tokay," are among the most beautiful ballads he has composed. Mr. Aarons' music, too, has won wide popularity, notably his "A Little Girl Like Me" and "I'll Travel the Links With You."

Miss Ethel Barrymore, who has made such a pronounced hit in "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," the new Barrie play in which she will appear at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night, has purchased a house on Murry Hill in New York and has followed her own artistic dictates in fitting it up. Up to the present time Miss Barrymore has occupied a pretty apartment in Central Park South, but now that she is the mistress of her own home with spacious rooms and cosy nooks galore it is not so easy to leave it if only for a few short weeks.

"A Romance of Coon Hollow," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, has some of the most exquisite scenery on the road. The first act reveals an autumn view of a typical southern plantation, with sunset and moonlight effects, and contains a splendid electrical display. The second act is a fac-simile of "Coon Hollow," a rugged glen in the Tennessee hills, painted from sketches made on the spot, and is made sensational by a strong and thrilling climax. The third act shows a wood landing on the Mississippi, and a night view of the famous Lee-Natchez steamboat race, the boats being lighted up and under full head of steam. The last act is given to an actual cotton compress in operation, and is thrillingly dramatic. The play will be given here with all the effects used in the original run at the Fourteenth Street theatre, New York. In the wood landing scene is introduced a rollicking melange of songs and dances by a troupe of colored boys and girls, including a splendid quartette of vocalists. The play is now in its twelfth successful season on the road and is one of the most popular entertainments travelling. A select company will interpret the strong characters.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Although the football season closed only two weeks ago, they are beginning to talk of next year's prospects at Annapolis and West Point. The navy football team will lose by graduation Capt. Spencer, right halfback; Fullback Ingram, Quarterback Norton, Left End Bernard and possibly Right Tackle Piersol. Those of the linesmen who remain are Slinghoff, centre; Wright and Meyer, guards; Northcroft, left tackle, and Dague, right end. Douglass will probably play fullback, while Harris, Ewing, Richardson and Lange showed quality last fall that may earn for them chances to fill the other vacancies in the back field. West Point loses fewer players than the navy. Capt. Hill, left halfback; Christy, right guard, and Sultan, centre, will be the only ones to graduate. The Army will have the services next year of Pullen, the great tackle, who could not play in the navy game, while Gardner, the Carlisle Indian end, will also be available when the new class enters.

Capt. Curtis, of the University of Michigan, who broke his leg in the last practice game just before the Pennsylvania-Michigan football contest, is expected to leave the hospital within a week or so. As soon as he is able to attend a meeting of the football players a captain for the Michigan eleven of 1907 will be elected.

At a meeting of the fifteen varsity football players of Leland Stanford University, William Koerner, of Oregon City, Ore., was elected captain of the Cardinal football team for 1907. Koerner played forward this year on the victorious Rugby team and last year he was an end on the team that defeated California by the score of 6 to 5.

Yale's soccer football team has cancelled its game with Harvard and Pennsylvania and disbanded. This action was taken at a meeting of the players, when it was decided that the present weather conditions would allow no more games this term, and furthermore it had been learned that Pennsylvania had quit playing for the season. Prior to disbanding the team elected H. C. Wick, Jr., '08, captain, and G. Howard, '07, president, of the association. Coach Birnbaum was reappointed. It was stated last night that the team had no intention of permanently disbanding and would reorganize just as soon as the weather would permit in the spring. Forty men came out this fall for the team. At the meeting of the players it was stated that several members had secured other college men, who had promised to report for practice when the call is issued in the spring, but who would not come out this fall for various reasons.

The seniors and sophomores of the college played a 4 to 4 game for the class football championship of Pennsylvania Thursday afternoon at Franklin Field upon a muddy gridiron. Toward the end of the second period, Talcott, for the "Sophs," scored a pretty field goal from the thirty-yard line and his team looked like an easy winner. With forty seconds more to play, Brown, the senior quarterback, tied the score on a similar play from the same mark. Talcott was the best performer of the day and bids fair to make good as a varsity halfback next fall. The tie will be played off today.

Glenn S. Warner, who has coached the Cornell baseball and football teams for the past three years, announced yesterday that he would sever his connections with Cornell and had accepted the position of general athletic director of the Carlisle Indian School at Carlisle, Pa., where for five years he held the same position. Warner's contract with Cornell expired on the day of the Cornell-Pennsylvania game at Philadelphia on Thanksgiving Day.

William G. White, '08, of Hoboken, has been elected manager of next year's Wesleyan football team and J. G. Paine, '09, of Columbus, Pa., assistant manager. Prof. Raymond Dodge was re-elected faculty director.

That football among the college teams is profitable is well-known. Each one of the big teams cleared several thousand dollars above all expenses this season. There has been some objection to this from certain sources, but the majority of opinion is in favor of the present method. College football games are very expensive and if they are to be maintained on the present high plane great sums of money must be received from the followers of the game.

An idea of the importance of football games from a commercial point of view can be gained from the statement that fifty-eight special trains were required to take the football crowd to and from Princeton this season when Yale was the opponent of the Tigers. The trains were handled quickly and so far as can be learned not a single accident occurred throughout the day in carrying the crowd.

A Cornell professor takes exception to the practice of newspapers in selecting All-American teams at the windup of the football season and suggests that a sub-committee of the rules committee should have the exclusive right to attend to this matter. The Cornell professor declares that coaches who make these selections are necessarily prejudiced, while newspaper critics are "influenced by ulterior motives." The rules committee has more important things to consider. All-American teams are to the real season as a toy to a child. Besides they are matters of opinion. Furthermore, a majority of the men who pick the teams for the newspapers are fully as competent to pass judgment on the best players as any member or members of the rules committee; more so, perhaps, because the scribes see more games.

The receipts of the intercollegiate Rugby football games between Stanford University and the University of California this fall were unexpectedly large, the gate receipts being $27,168, of which about $400 was expended for advertising, railroad fare and other incidentals. Stanford's share will probably be about $13,500. The total receipts from football last year, when the American game was played, were only $24,022, owing to the fact that many of the games were played for the first time on the Stanford campus, which necessitated long trips on the railroad, but in the preceding year the gross receipts reached a mark of over $30,000.

DIAMOND DUST.

The National League baseball men finished their annual meeting at the Victoria Hotel Thursday and went their various ways after a three days' powwow at which nothing startling developed and at which there were evidences of more friendly feeling among the antagonistic factions than had been the case. The new board of directors met Thursday and among other things recommended that the salaries of President Pulliam and Secretary-Treasurer Heydler be increased. This was done by unanimous vote of the league, which was not going to be outdone by the American League in hoisting the pay of its chief executive. To what figure the president's salary was increased none of the magnates would say. The constitution was amended to suit the action of the delegates in making the presidency and secretary-treasurership separate offices and vesting control of the umpires in the president and not the secretary. There was some discussion of the attitude of the Tri-State, also known as the outlaw, league. The Tri-State held out no olive branch, made no application for protection under the national agreement, but there was an expression of opinion from each of the National League clubs on its position in case application should be made. There was no disposition whatever to make any special concessions to the Tri-State to induce it to come into the fold of organized ball. No one favored ranking it higher than Class B. As the Tri-State also was independent it will doubtless continue without the pale for at least another year.

The new rule which compels all National League clubs to provide dressing rooms for visiting players not only does away with the practice of driving ball tossers in uniform to and from the grounds in open carriages but also deals President Murphy, of the Chicago club, a solid blow in the body. Murphy had planned to have gaudy horse blankets with "champions" emblazoned on them in big letters to be worn by the nags which dragged the Cubs from their hotel quarters to the different ball parks on the circuit, but under the new rule such circus tactics cannot be indulged in, unless the Chicago players ride in the carriages dressed in street clothes. The New York Nationals inaugurated this practice when they won the pennant two years ago, but owing to the fact that McGraw's men were mobbed in several cities while disporting themselves in public thoroughfares the league magnates decided to avoid further trouble.

American League fans are well satisfied with the news that Ban Johnson and Charley Comiskey have buried the hatchet. Their quarrel was the first bit of friction in the new organization which they worked so hard to form. Comiskey has often been referred to as one of the smartest men in baseball, while Johnson, a clever diplomat, has deserved all the praise he has received for making the American League what it is today. With Comiskey and Johnson pulling together baseball throughout the new circuit will probably boom even more successfully than last season, when the league prospered to the extent of an overflowing treasury and all the clubs on a paying basis.

EARNED, NOT BOUGHT.

Such is the Reputation of "The Little Conqueror" in Plainfield.

How hard it often is to earn and maintain a good reputation, and how easy it is to lose one. As with a man's reputation, so it is with other things in life. Some things achieve a reputation which stays with them. They are founded on instrinsic value. They face the public backed up by honesty, and work their way quietly but thoroughly. Plainfield people want no better proof of the merit than is contained in the following experience of a citizen:

Oliver H. Voorhees, job printer, living at 21 Stone street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was suffering from kidney weakness for a long time, due, probably, to my being compelled to be on my feet so much of the time. On arising in the morning, I would find myself very weak, and suffering from severe pain in the back and sides, accompanied with headache. The kidney secretions were of bad odor, and the desire to pass them was too frequent. I could not seem to find either a doctor to cure me, or a medicine that would help me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's pharmacy. Before I took three boxes I was relieved of my aches and pains, and my kidneys were well again."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE PEOPLE'S LOBBY.

The People's Lobby, which has been organized at Washington, D. C., has for its object the passage of laws of benefit to the people. At the same time the new bureau will keep tabs on the trusts lobbyists and will work to defeat any bill detrimental to the masses. In short, the Lobby is going to be the watch-dog of Congress and judging from the calibre of the men associated in the laudable enterprise it is going to be a great big success.

In the future, if you want to know just how Congressman Fowler or Senators Kean and Dryden voted during the discussion of any measure all you will have to do is to consult the People's Lobby. You won't have to wade through proceedings of Congress as contained in that dry old Record and neither will you have to accept the word of some more or less partisan newspaper. The Lobby will have all the facts down in black and white and all you will have to do is let your wishes be known to it. The records will speak for themselves.

In outlining the scope and objects of this unique lobby, Samuel Merwin says in the current number of "Success:"

"These records will be made up of facts, not of opinions. In so far as they will go to fix the full personal responsibility of Senators and Representatives for the work of Congress and its committees, the reports will be based wholly on their public acts. The People's Lobby is not interested in personal or political gossip. But every State and district has a right to scrutinize the work of its representatives in Congress, as has an employer to scrutinize the work of his employees. There is nothing in the slightest degree personal about this. No honest man can object to a record compiled thoroughly and accurately from official sources, of his public acts—of precisely what he has said and how he has voted on every question that has arisen during his term of office, all brought together in concise form and stated in uncompromisingly simple terms. It should be seen, from this, that the People's Lobby is starting out without the slightest feeling of antagonism for Congress. These records will be an inestimable help to the upright independent Congressman. As to the dishonest Congressman—and it is with regret that we employ the term—the records will probably hurt him."

OUR ALIEN WARDS.

Governor Stokes' plea for New Jersey's alien wards is one that will command an attention commensurate with the vast importance of the great work entrusted to the commission before whom he spoke. As he rightly says: "The dangerous element in a community is always the ignorant class." It is an accepted fact that to a very large degree this particular class is almost entirely composed of people of foreign birth and ideas. In some communities it represents a large percentage of the total population.

Given the opportunity to become enlightened on American institutions, laws and ideals, this class would undoubtedly make up a fine type of citizenship and therefore a very desirable element in a community. But "untaught and untrained, the atmosphere creates in them a spirit of rebellion against all forms of law and order." In their own darkness they do not know and do not understand.

So long as the State government holds out no chance for these people to become intelligent citizens it will not be doing its full duty. In fact, the State is partially to blame for offenses that such alien wards commit sheerly through ignorance. The solution of the grave condition of affairs is to be found only in education, and Governor Stokes sounds the keynote when he says:

"New Jersey has a great responsibility; let her set the example by taking up this problem systematically. The establishment of schools for the training of these new wards of ours in the duties of American citizenship cannot fail to produce a harvest of intelligence and patriotism that will redound to the credit of the State and the nation."

The sudden affliction of Dr. Schenck has given his host of friends and admirers much concern and throughout the entire city expressions of sympathy and hope for his restoration to health are heard.

"THE PEOPLE'S LOBBY" ORGANIZED IN NEWARK.

Plainfielders on Board of Governors to Influence Legislation.

Former Assemblyman Robert J. Fordyce has been elected president of "The People's Lobby," a non-partisan organization formed in Newark last night. Walter Linbarger, of the borough, was chosen as the Somerset county representative on the board of governors and eGorge Merwin, of this city, as one of the representatives from Union county.

The purpose of "The People's Lobby," is to use its efforts and influence for the passage of such legislation as will benefit the State and to discourage all legislations considered a detriment. "The People's Lobby" will be represented throughout the session of the Legislature by persons well acquainted with affairs at Trenton. Last night's meeting was attended by about sixty representative men from the Northern part of New Jersey.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The top dressing of stone which was recently put on Plainfield avenue, between Fred Lounsbury's farm and Chamberlin's corner, was greatly needed. Recently, after a heavy rainstorm, an automobile mired here, and had to be helped out by a team of horses. This part of the road is always in a bad condition, notwithstanding it receives attention twice a year.

Services will be held as usual in the Baptist church, Rev. A. C. T. Attlee officiating. The "Messiah" will be the theme of the morning discourse and for the evening the subject will be "The Dying Thief." Christian Endeavor will be held before the evening service, topic, "Truths from Our Lessons," led by Mrs. Oscar Thorne.

The local school is preparing for a fine Christmas entertainment to take place before the closing of school for the holidays. There will be dialogues, recitations and some good singing.

It is the law of the State that all public schools, institutions and asylums shall float the star spangled banner. So it is time our local school heeds the law.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Fiction at the Public Library.

"Wondrous strong are the spells of fiction."—Longfellow.

As long as some people read fiction all the time and all people read it some of the time, the circulation statistics of libraries are bound to show a preponderance in its favor. The popular demand last year was evidenced by a circulation of 47 per cent. of what has aptly been called the "small change of literature." Parenthetically it may be said that this is not a comparatively large percentage, in fact the proportion of non-fiction circulated in Plainfield is cause for congratulations to the serious minded. Yet it is evident that the bulk alone of this class of reading is in the nature of a problem, to every librarian, whose difficult duty it is to make each dollar do the work of ten.

There are probably few people now who think that a book goes direct from the shelves of the book store to those of a Public Library, though not many know, even yet, what is involved in the addition of each new title, or what might be called the life history of a library book. In the case of a book of fiction this life history is much shorter than that of any other class. There is first its selection, involving the reading of many critical reviews, the ordering, the cataloging and the various other necessary records, its examination after each issuing, its frequent repair, its temporary withdrawal for rebinding, its further repair when after much circulation the paste brush must be often applied, its final removal from circulation, when its condition warrants its honorable discharge from further duty. In its history it perhaps has been issued from about 75 to 200 times, the number depending both upon the quality of the paper and binding, and upon the care it received from borrowers. Then arises the question as to the wisdom of replacing. Is it of sufficient permanent value to warrant a replacing copy, or are the claims of a newer book stronger? Some writers like Marion Crawford, Canon Doyle, Mrs. Barr and to go farther back, Wilkie Collins, Charles Reade and others hold their own against the newer writers, and wear out with a regularity that is more pleasing to the publisher than to the librarian. These of course must be replaced as well as those of the standard story tellers as,—Thackeray, Scott, Dickens, Jane Austen, Trollope, George Elliot, etc. The demand for these is regular though not so frantic as for the "six best sellers." This summer considerably over 100 books were permanently withdrawn from the adult fiction, and about 75 from the juvenile departments because of their being literally dead and thumbed to pieces, and there are many more in both departments, which cannot last much longer. Among these are some of ephemeral interest, which are dismissed without regret and with no thought of replacing, others of Conan Doyle, Weyman, Crawford, Dickens, Mrs. Barr, Mrs. Oliphant, Thomas Hardy, etc., will need to be replaced. In the main the list of withdrawals occasioned by wearing out is very creditable to Plainfield readers.

The number of temporary withdrawals for rebinding is about double that of the permanent withdrawals. The highly glazed paper and poor binding used by most publishers, far more than careless handling by borrowers, or increase in cost of leathers and binding materials, is responsible for the increase in size of binding bills, which more and more curtail the book fund.

In the matter of replacements many of the library's friends have helped by giving from time to time the novel, the book of short stories or out-grown juvenile books to the library. Sometimes these are the newer books, but more often some of the older writers of which many duplicates are needed. The number of those who thus aid us is comparatively small, and so often people say "I did not know you cared for gifts of that kind," that we take this opportunity of letting more of our friends know of our needs in this direction. There are in almost every household, stories which have been read, but whose chief function now is to gather dust upon the shelves, why not turn these over to the Public Library, where they will be of use? Then in how many homes, where there are no longer children, are the books of childhood still kept. These are perhaps never touched except by the housemaid's duster, while if given to the Library they would make many a child happy and help the Library just so much in its work of providing wholesome reading for its growing circle of childreaders. Whether the gift is one volume or 100 it will be duly acknowledged. The librarian will be glad to give further particulars to any interested.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, Author of THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

meantime, they would continue to gather out of Babylon. During the late summer and fall many wagons arrived from the Missouri, so that by the beginning of winter their number was nearly 2,000. They lived rudely, a lucky few in the huts they had built; more in tents and wagon-boxes. Nor did they fail to thank Providence for the mild winter vouchsafed to them during this unprotected period, permitting them not only to survive, but to continue their labors—of logging, home-building, the making of rough furniture, and the repairing of wagons and tools.

When the early spring came they were again quickly at the land with their seeds. Over 5,000 acres were sown to needful produce. When this began to sprout with every promise of a full harvest, their joy was boundless; for their stock of breadstuffs and provisions had fallen low during the winter, and could not last later than harvest time, even with rigid economy.

But early in June, in the full flush of this springtide of promise, it appeared that the Lord was minded to chasten them. For into their broad, green fields came the ravenous crickets in wide, black streams down the mountain sides. Over the growing grain they spread as a pall, and the tender sprouts were consumed to the ground. In their track they left no stalk nor growing blade.

Starvation now faced the Saints. In their panic they sought to fight the all-devouring pest. While some went wildly through the fields killing the crickets, others ran trenches and tried to drown them. Still others beat them back with sticks and brooms, or burned them by fires set in the fields. But against the oncoming horde these efforts were unavailing. Where hundreds were destroyed hundreds of thousands appeared.

Despair seized the Saints, the bitter despair of a cheated, famished people—deluded even by their God. In their shorn fields they wept and cursed, knowing at last they could not stay the pest.

Then into the fields came Joel Rae, rebuking the frenzied men and women. The light of a high faith was upon him as he called out to them:

"Have I not preached to you all winter the way to salvation in times like this? Does faith mean one thing in my mouth and another thing here? Why waste yourselves with those foolish tricks of fire and water? They only make you forget Jehovah—you fools—you poor, blind fools—to palter so!"

He raised his voice, and the wondering group about him grew large.

"Down, down on your knees and pray—pray—pray! I tell you the Lord shall not suffer you to perish!"

They, as but one or two obeyed him—

"So your hearts have been hardened? Then my own prayer shall save you!"

Down he knelt in the midst of the group, while they instinctively drew back from him on all sides. But as his voice rose, a voice that had never failed to move them, they, too, began to kneel, at first those near him, then others back of them, until a hundred knelt about him.

He had not observed them, but with eyes closed he prayed on, pouring out his heart in penitent supplication.

As his words rang out, there had been quick, low, startled murmurs from the kneeling group about him; and now loud shouts interrupted his prayer. He opened his eyes. From off toward the lake great flocks of gulls had appeared, whitening the sky, and now dulling all other sounds with the beating of their wings and their high, plaintive cries. Quickly they settled upon the fields in swirling drifts, so that the land all about lay white as with snow.

A groan went up: "They will finish what the crickets have left."

He had risen to his feet, looking intently. Then he gave an exultant shout:

"No! No!—they are eating only the crickets! —the white birds are devouring the black pests; the hosts of heaven and hell have met, and the powers of light have triumphed once more over darkness! Pray—pray now with all your hearts in thanksgiving for this mercy!"

"Down, Down on Your Knees and Pray."

And again they knelt, many with streaming eyes, while he led them in a prayer of gratitude for this wondrous miracle.

All day long the white birds fed upon the crickets, and when they left at night the harvest had been saved. Thus had Heaven vouchsafed a second miracle to the Lute of the Holy Ghost. It is small wonder then if his views of the esteem in which he was held by that power were now greatly enlarged.

In August, thanks to the Heaven-sent gulls, they were able to celebrate with a feast their first "Harvest Home." In the center of the big stockade a bowery was built, and under its shade tables were spread and richly laden with the first fruits their labors had won from the desert—white bread and golden butter, green corn, watermelons, and many varieties of vegetables. Hoisted on poles for exhibition were immense sheaves of wheat, rye, barley, and oats, coaxed from the arid level with the water they had cunningly spread upon it.

There were prayers and public thanksgiving, songs and speeches and dancing. It was the flush of their first triumph over the desert. Until night fall the festival lasted, and at its close Elder Rae stood up to address them on the subject of their past trials and present blessings. The silence was instant, and the faces were all turned eagerly upon him, for it was beginning to be suspected that he had more than even priestly power.

When he was done many pressed forward to take his hand, the young and the old, for they had both learned to reverence him.

Near the outer edge of the throng was a red-lipped Juno, superbly rounded, who had gleaned in the fields until she was all a Gypsy brown, and her movements of a Gypsy grace in their freeness. She did not greet the young Elder as did the others, seeming, indeed, to be unconscious of his presence. Yet she lingered near as they scattered off into the dusk, in little groups or one by one; and still she stood there when all were gone, now venturing just a glance at him from deep gray eyes set under black brows, turning her splendid head a little to bring him into view. He saw the figure and came forward, peeringly.

"Mara Cavan—yes, yes, so it is!" He took her hand, somewhat timidly an observer would have said. "Your father is not able to be out? I shall walk down with you to see him—if you're ready now."

She had been standing much like a statue, in guarded restraint, but at his words and the touch of his hand she seemed to melt and flow into eager acquiescence, murmuring some hurried little words of thanks for her father, and stepping by his side with eyes down.

In words that were well-chosen but somewhat hurried, he proceeded to instruct her in the three-fold character of the Godhead. The voice at first was not like his own, but as he went on it grew steadier. After she drew her hand gently out of his, which she presently did, it seemed to regain its normal and calmness.

He saw her to the door of the cabin on the outskirts of the settlement and there he spoke a few words of cheer to her ailing father.

Then he was off into the desert, pacing swiftly into the grim, sandy solitude beyond the farthest cabin light and the bark of the outmost watch-dog. Feverishly he walked, and far, until at last, as if naught in himself could avail, he threw himself to the ground and prayed.

"Keep me good! Keep me to my vows! Help me till my own strength grows, for I am weak and wanting. Let me endure the pain until this wicked fire within me hath burned itself out. Keep me for her!"

Back where the houses were, in the shadow of one of them, was the flushed, full-breathing woman, hurt but dumb, wondering, in her bruised tenderness, why it must be so.

Still farther back, inside the stockade, where the gossiping group yet lingered, they were saying it was strange that Elder Rae waited so long to take him a wife or two.

CHAPTER XII.

A Fight for Life.

The stream of Saints to the Great Basin had become well-nigh continuous—Saints of all degrees of prosperity, from Parley Pratt, the Archer of Paradise, with his wealth of wives, wagons and cattle, to Barney Bigler, unblessed with wives or herds, who put his earthly goods on a wheelbarrow and, to the everlasting glory of God, trundled it from the Missouri river to the valley of the Great Salt Lake. Train after train set out for the new Zion with faith that God would drop manna before them.

One by one the trains worked down into the valley, the tired Saints making fresh their covenants by rebaptism as they came. In the waters of the River Jordan, Joel Rae made hundreds to be renewed in the Kingdom, swearing them to obey Brignam, the Lord's anointed, in all his orders, spiritual or temporal, and the priesthood or either of them, and all church authorities in like manner, to regard this obligation as superior to all laws of the United States and all earthly laws whatsoever; to cherish enmity against the government of the United States, that the blood of Joseph Smith and the Apostles slain in that generation might be avenged; and to keep the matter of this oath a profound secret then and forever. And from these waters of baptism the purified Saints went to their inheritances in Zion—took their humble places, and began to sweat and bleed in the upbuilding of the new Jerusalem.

From a high, tented wagon in one such train, creaking its rough way down Emigration canyon, with straining oxen and tired but eager people, there had leaped late one afternoon the girl whose eyes were to call to him so potently—incomparable eyes, large and deep, of a velvety grayness, under black brows splendidly bent. Nor had the eyes alone voiced that call to his starved senses. He had caught the free, fearless confidence in her leap over the wheel, and her graceful abandon as she stood there, finely erect and full-curved, her head with its Greek lines thrown well back, and her strong hands raised to readjust the dusky hair that tumbled about her head like a storm cloud.

Men from the train were all about, and others from the settlement, and these spoke to her, some in serious greeting, some with jesting words. She returned it all in good part without embarrassment—even the sally of the winking wag who called out: "Now, then, Mara Cavan! Here we are, and a girl like yourself ought to catch an Elder, at the very lowest."

She laughed with easy good nature, still fumbling in the dusk of blown hair at the back of her head, showing a full-lipped mouth, beautifully large, with strong-looking, white teeth. "I'll catch never a one myself, if you please, Nathan Tanner! I'll do no catching at all, now! I'm the one will have to be caught!"

Her voice was a contralto, with the little hint of roughness that made it warm and richly golden; that made it fall, indeed, upon the ears of the listening Elder like a cathedral chime calling him to forget all and worship—forget all but that he was five and twenty with the hot blood surging and crowding and crying out in his veins.

Now, having a little subdued the tossing storm cloud of hair, she stood with one hand upon her hip and the other shading her eyes, looking intently into the streets of the new settlement. And again there was bantering jest from the men about, and the ready, careless response from her, with gestures of an impishly reckless unconcern, of a full readiness to give and take in easy good fellowship. But then, in the very midst of a light response to one of the bantering men, her gray eyes met for the first time the very living look of the young Elder standing near. She was at once confused, breaking off her speech with an awkward laugh and looking down. But, his eyes keeping steadily upon her, she, as if defiantly, returned his look for a fluttering second, trying to make her eyes survey him slowly from head to foot with her late cool carelessness; but she had to let them fall again, and he saw the color come under the clear skin.

He knew by these tokens that he possessed a power over this splendid woman that none of the other men could wield—she had lowered her eyes to no other but him—and all the man in him sang exultantly under the knowledge. He greeted her father, the little Seumas Cavan, of indomitable spirit, fresh, for all his march of a thousand miles, and he welcomed them both to Zion. Again and again while he talked to them he caught quick glances from the wonderful eyes—glances of interest, of inquiry—now of half-hearted defiance, now of wondering submission.

The succeeding months had been a time of struggle with him—a struggle to maintain his character of Elder after the Order of Melchisedek in the full gaze of those velvety gray eyes, and in the light of her reckless, full-lipped smile; to present to the temptress a shield of austere piety which her softest glances should not avail to melt. For something in her manner told him that she divined all his weakness; that, if she acknowledged his power over her, she recognized her own power over him, a power equal to and justly balancing the other. Even when he discoursed from the pulpit, his glance would fasten upon hers, as if there were but the one face before him instead of a thousand, and he knew that she mocked him in her heart; knew she divined there was that within him which strongly would have had her and himself far away—alone.

Nor was the girl's own mind all of a piece. For, if she taunted herself before him, as if with an impish resolve to be his undoing, there were still times when he saved her by his words of fire, and by his high, determined stand in some circle to which she knew she could never mount. That night when he walked with her in the moonlight, she knew he had trembled on the edge of the gulf fixed so mysteriously between them. She had even felt herself leaning over to draw him down with her own warm arms; and then all at once he had strangely moved away, widening this mysterious gulf that always separated them, leaving her solitary, hurt, and wondering. She could not understand it. Life called through them so strongly. How could he breast the mighty rush? And why, why must it be so?

PITNEY TO RETIRE FROM THE BENCH

VICE-CHANCELLOR WILL RESIGN ON EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY.

It was announced in Newark yesterday that Vice Chancellor Henry C. Pitney, who will be eighty years old on January 19 next, is to retire from the bench next spring. The bench and bar of the State are arranging a dinner in honor of the jurist, to take place on the evening of his birthday, at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Vice Chancellor Pitney is now serving his third term. He was appointed in 1889 by Chancellor McGill, having acted as advisory master in chancery for many years before that. In 1896 he was appointed by Chancellor Magie to succeed himself, and upon the expiration of that term, in April, 1903, Chancellor Magie reappointed him. In April he will have been eighteen years on the bench.

The vice chancellor was born in Mendham in 1827. The Pitneys have lived in Morris county nearly two hundred years. His father was Mahlon Pitney, after whom Justice Mahlon Pitney, a son of the vice chancellor, was named. His grandfather was also Mahlon Pitney, a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Vice Chancellor Pitney was graduated from Princeton with the class of '48, and was admitted to the bar in 1851. In 1862 he was appointed prosecutor of the pleas of Morris county, in which position he served for five years.

BECAUSE HUSBAND TARRIED, WOMAN TOOK POISON.

Wife of Less Than Year Worried Because Promise of Return Was Broken.

Because her husband had not returned from a commercial trip as soon as expected Mrs. Nellie Gaillard, of West Hoboken, who was eighteen years old and had been married less than a year, took carbolic acid yesterday morning and died later in the North Hudson Hospital.

Mrs. Gaillard and her husband lived at No. 317 Elm street. The husband is a salesman. He left two weeks ago on a trip, saying that he would be home in a week. When he did not return at the stated time she wondered, because it was the first time he had failed to get back when he had promised.

As the days passed and he did not return she became greatly worried and at last in a fit of despondency decided to end her life. Soon after she had taken the poison the fact was discovered and she was hurried to the hospital. Everything possible was done to save her life, but she died two hours later.

Mrs. Etienne Givernaud, wife of the wealthy silk manufacturer, is an aunt of the dead woman.

WAR ON LUNCH WAGONS.

Effort to Have Them Classified as Buildings—Test Case Begun.

The authorities of Montclair are making an effort to abolish all owl lunch wagons in the town, and in order to accomplish the purpose have sought the aid of the courts to have the wagons declared "buildings," erected contrary to the local building code.

A test case was begun before Judge Ten Eyck in the Court of Common Pleas yesterday, but decision was reserved. Thomas Amend, the defendant, was not allowed to place has wagon on the street, and found no one willing to lease him a suitable site for it. He accomplished his purpose, however, by buying a building lot and placing his wagon thereon.

No Glasses For Engineers.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 15.—The question of the condition of the eyes of engine drivers on various railroads has come to the front in such a manner here that a strike is talked of. The engine drivers' organization—the Brotherhood—maintains that if a man's sight is affected in such a way that the defect may be cured by the use of glasses or medicine he should be rated as a first class man. Employers of the railways insist that engine drivers shall have first class eyesight and that if a man's eyes are diseased he must give up his post for the safety of lives and property. Officials of the companies declare that wearing eyeglasses by engine drivers would interfere with their sight if the cab should be filled with steam at any time.

BROKE THE RECORD IN TOURNAMENT OPENING

TWO MEN PASS Y. M. C. A. MARK FOR STANDING BROAD JUMP.

The all-around championship athletic tournament had a great start at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Two men broke the record in the standing broad jump, the event run off, one equalled it, and four went over last year's mark.

W. P. Banks won the event by 9 feet 5¼ inches, a good jump in any company. F. O. Bristol, who hung up the mark in 1898, made 9 feet 1 inch. Last night, Burgess, the second man, jumped 9 feet 3½ inches, and Lueder equalled Bristol's mark.

Viebrock, Ramsey, Slocum and Watrous passed last year's mark of 8 feet 5 inches, a poor mark and one that deserved quick oblivion.

The entrants last night numbered seventeen. There are nineteen men entered for the two standing broad jumps, which will be run off next Thursday night. The standing of the three leaders is as follows: Banks, 82 points; Burgess, 79; Lueder, 74.

TWO TEAMS COMPETE IN BOWLING TOURNEY

SICKNESS OF ONE MAN CAUSES POSTPONEMENT OF OTHER MATCH.

But four teams took part in the tourney at McLaughlin's last night, one of the other bowlers being sick causing the postponement of one match. In those rolled, Conklin and Mullen lost three straight to Woolston and Cunningham and McLaughlin and Causebrook went down in defeat three times at the hands of Maltby and Theirs. High score, 210, was made by Sam Cunningham, while John McLaughlin turned the lowest, 125. The bowling of Mullen and Conklin was disappointing as they are classed high, despite the fact that they are the youngest of the competitors. Both got splits repeately and frequently missed good chances for spares:

The scores:

Conklin	157	148	145
Mullen	146	137	160
Cunningham	154	167	210
Woolston	194	171	177
	348	338	387
McLaughlin	133	125	150
Causebrook	218	180	185
vs.
Maltby	214	185	165
Thiers	451	139	185
	365	324	350

FARMERS OPPOSE DRYDEN

Somerset Board of Agriculture Requests County Representatives to Vote Against Him

THEY PASS RESOLUTION

Wm. H. Rogers Fathered Resolution Which Went Through Unanimously—Why They Are Against Him.

Farmers from every township and borough of Somerset county gathered in the east chapel of the First Reformed church in Somerville Saturday morning and afternoon to attend the fifteenth annual meeting of the Somerset County Board of Agriculture, which was pronounced one of the most interesting sessions held in years. Judge Louis H. Schenck, the president, was in charge. He called the meeting to order and the reports of the secretary and treasurer was read. It indicated that the organization is in excellent standing. A balance of $65.54 was in the treasury.

At this point there was a general discussion on topics of interest, a question box being used for better effect. Adjournment was then taken until 2 p. m. No board dinner was served this year.

At the afternoon session the association got after U. S. Senator John F. Dryden with a sharp stick and without a great amount of discussion the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, Hon. John F. Dryden by his vote in opposition to the bill imposing a tax on oleomargerine which is sold in opposition to butter, in spite of the request from numerous agricultural societies that he should support said bill, and his opposition to the free alcohol bill, has shown his lack of interest in the welfare of the farmers; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Senator and Member of Assembly from this county be and are hereby requested to vote against the re-election of Hon. John F. Dryden to the United States Senate." This resolution was introduced by W. H. Rogers, of Warren township.

President Schenck delivered his annual address and officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows:

President, Abram A. Cortelyou; vice president, Bernhard Meyer; secretary and treasurer, Arthur P. Sutphin. Board of directors—Bedminster, C. Martyn Wyckoff, William C. Lane; Bernards, George S. Voorhees; Frederick S. Sutro; Branchburg, S. D. Opie and James H. VanDyke; Bridgewater, John F. Schmadeke, Bernhard Meyer; Franklin, A. V. D. Polhemus, George B. Randolph; Hillsborough, John Groendyke, Jacob D. Quick; Montgomery, Charles H. Cook, Heuston Labaw; North Plainfield, Charles F. Debele, Hubert P. Phillips; Warren, W. H. Rogers, Mark Stultz.

Representatives to the State Horticultural society, Arthur F. Randolph and William J. Logan (two years).

Mr. Cortelyou, the new president, was escorted to the chair. He made a speech in which he said he would do everything possible to promote the interests of the agriculturist. Mr. Cortelyou is the president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America and one of the leading breeders of that kind of cattle in this country. His home is in Somerville and his farm near Neshanic.

The chief address of the afternoon was delivered by Prof. Edward B. Voorhees, of the State Agricultural Experiment Stations, who had for his topic, "Does Farming Pay?" If Not, Why Not?" He declared that it is his belief that farming does pay. He declared that agricultural pursuits could be made more successful than they really are by education, and said that every farmer should send his boy to New Brunswick to take the short courses in agriculture.

F. H. Castner, of Changewater, who was to speak on "Poultry Raising," was unable to be present.

ANOTHER SMOKER FOR COLLEGE MEN

EXPECTED THAT 350 WILL GATHER AT AFFAIR TO BE HELD JAN. 24.

The insistence on the part of college graduates as well as undergraduates in this city for another "university smoker," similar to the one conducted a year ago, has been so strong that plans are now underway for the second smoker to be held at the Casino on Thursday night, January 24. Of course, every college man in the city is expected to be present and whoop it up for his Alma Mater. Last year's affair was considered a success, but the committee expects to make the one in January more elaborate and earnestly requests the support of every college man in Plainfield and North Plainfield.

There were at the time of the last smoker 450 college men in Plainfield, representing fifty-seven colleges and universities, and 225 men attended the affair. The committee is counting on at least 350 men at the coming smoker and is making preparations for that number.

The entertainment will include several vaudeville sketches, while not the least enjoyable will be the singing of college songs by a quartette from Yale and another one from Princeton. Artists from New York will furnish the vaudeville part of the entertainment.

Everyone agreed last year that the smoker was one of the best things ever held in Plainfield, bringing together as it did a bunch of jolly good fellows, and all those who were present then are looking forward with much pleasure to the second event. There were at least fifty college men unable to attend the first smoker, who have signified their intention to be at the forthcoming one.

Return postal cards were sent out on Saturday and the committee hopes that every man who receives one will be prompt to answer. If there should be a college man in town who does not receive a card he is requested to communicate with any member of the committee, which is composed of S. St. John McCutchen, William N. Runyon, Joseph M. Shellabarger, Owen H. Fleming, William L. Saunders, Dr. F. C. Ard, Harry L. Hall, William C. Kinney and Archibald Cox.

The Casino will again be decorated with the various college colors and in other ways be made attractive. Last year colors from every college represented were displayed with excellent taste and it is proposed to do the same thing at the next smoker.

HE WAS TWENTY-THREE.

So Frederick Liewald's Friends Came To Cheer Him Up.

Frederick Liewald, of Cushing road, became twenty-three years old Saturday. To detract his mind from the gloom attached to the figure, friends to the number of thirty-five "dropped in" on him suddenly Saturday night and filled the house with joyful noises. The treatment was successful.

Cards and round games were played, and a number of handsome prizes were won. Refreshments were served. Miss Emma Liewald arranged the affair.

EVENING RECEPTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gow Mark the Former's Birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gow, of Lee place, formally entertained on Saturday night in honor of the former's birthday. The guests numbered twenty-five. Mrs. George Whitley assisted the hostess in receiving. The dining room and library were decorated in red and green.

Military whist was the feature of the evening. Supper was served after the play.

Bound Brook School Tax.

According to County School Superintendent H. C. Krebs, Bound Brook Borough raised $12.66 per each school child this year. As the total number of pupils is placed at 537, the total sum raised amounts to $6,800. In other tables it is shown that each person there pays .53 per $100 district school tax and that the amount received from the State this year for each pupil enrolled at the public school there will be $1.29.

Democratic Primaries.

Democratic primaries for the election of one county committeeman for each election district of Plainfield, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. All of the wards excepting the Second will meet at the Grocers' Protective Association, and the Second will be held at the Bryant Public School. Polls will be open from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

WORK FOR LEGISLATURE

Senator Colby Sees Promise of Much Good in Bi-Partisan Law-Making Body.

MUM ON SENATORSHIP

He Will Urge Formation of Legislative Reference Department—Favors Civil Service in New Jersey.

State Senator Everett Colby yesterday issued the following statement of what he believed would be the principal tasks for the New Jersey Legislature to carry out at the coming session:

The composition of the next Legislature is such as to warrant the hope that much good legislation may be passed, and it undoubtedly will be, if partisanship does not play too conspicuous a part. If both parties claim that which is not their due and endeavor to discredit the motives of the other, a splendid opportunity to establish a high water mark for advanced and sound legislation will be lost to the people of the State. Barren results from the Legislature of 1907 due to partisan politics and petty jealousies would be a calamity the public would have every reason to resent, and it would, therefore, seem the part of wisdom for us, when we settle down to work, to remember that we represent the whole State, and not a party or faction.

The danger with the present complexion of the Legislature is not so much that good legislation will not pass as in the probability that what is passed will lack uniformity and consistency; and in this connection it would be well, I think, if greater pains were taken to draw all bills along lines consistent with the general principles of government based upon accurate knowledge of the subject under discussion. Many of the bills we pass are drawn hastily, to meet political contingencies or by corporation attorneys for their clients, and not 1 per cent. of the bills are actually drawn by the members themselves.

Just at this time, when legislation of the most radical character is so often suggested as a remedy for this or that evil, it would seem unwise to advance measures that were not thoroughly understood by the members of the Legislature themselves, and for which no one could be held directly responsible by the people. To correct this tendency and place directly upon the representatives themselves the responsibility for legislation, I believe a "legislative reference department" should be created along the lines of the one in the State Capitol of Wisconsin. It is the duty of those in charge of the department to accumulate data on all public questions, so that, when the constituency of a representative requests him to introduce a bill, he does not have to get some friend or attorney, inexperienced perhaps in this particular line of work, to draft it for him, but goes directly to the reference bureau, finds the history of all such legislation, what the law on the subject is in every State and what its effect has been. Working out his own ideas in the provisions of the bill, it is, if he so desires, put into correct form by the bureau. Legislation is this way is drawn along broad lines and has some semblance of a scholarly and scientific basis. I shall try to get the Legislature to authorize the formation of such a department.

I shall seek also to have the Legislature pass the Civil Service bill, which places under Civil Service regulations all public officials in State, county and city, except those elected by the people, those appointed by the Governor with confirmation by the Senate, school superintendents and principals, election officers of cities and counties. This measure, to my mind, is most important as a companion bill to the direct primary, for, while the convention lends itself readily to the manipulation of party bosses, its removal from politics will be a great step toward popular government; yet even the direct primary can be used by the leaders of reform movements, which experience has taught do not remain politically immaculate for more than a few years, and who soon learn to make use of the very methods they condemned. The officeholder, being the first to feel the pressure of political influence should therefore be protected in the fulfillment of his duty by law.

There seems reason to believe that a bill providing for the expression of popular choice for the party candidate for United States Senator will pass this winter. There is probably no question before the people of the country which is meeting with such favorable response. As is well known, the House of Representatives have five times passed a resolution in favor of a change, and once the measure has been reported by a Senate committee. Thirty-one States have passed resolutions calling for the

WHEN'S A WAGON NOT A WAGON, EH?

CORPORATION COUNSEL MAY BE CALLED UPON TO TELL COUNCIL.

When Corporation Counsel Marsh's attention was called today to the litigation in Montclair over lunch-wagons being classed as buildings, he declined to express any opinion. He said that he would prefer to express no opinion at this time inasmuch as there might be a possibility of a similar situation of affairs occurring here. "It would not be proper for me to give my views in this way, when there is any likelihood that the city may seek advice on the subject," said he.

Montclair's recorder held not long since that a lunch-wagon on private property, whether it was on wheels or not so long as it was in a permanent location, was a building. The case was argued on appeal in the Essex county court on Saturday and a decision will be given by Judge Ten-Eyck within a few days. The corporation counsel of Montclair in his argument claimed that the wheels on the structure were only a subterfuge to defeat the building regulations and inasmuch as the vehicle was fitted up and used as a store or restaurant it should be classed as real estate. The object is have the "wagons" removed.

Building Inspector Doane said today that the outcome of the Montclair case would be of interest here. He added that he had never been called upon to act against the lunch-wagons and that should he be summoned to act he would be guided by the advice of the corporation counsel. He thinks that there is much merit in the contention made by the Montclair authorities.

CRUSADE AGAINST CITY STORING GROUNDS

STREET COMMISSIONER GAVETT WILL HAVE THEM TIDIED UP.

Street Commissioner Gavett has inaugurated a crusade against the unsightly city storing grounds and before the first or the year the two that have been used principally for a long time will be in presentable shape. They are located at Sixth street and Arlington avenue and Plainfield avenue and West Third street. The former is to be abandoned entirely and the lot that has been an eyesore for years through piles of stone, pipe and whatnot, will be a credit to the neighborhood.

The lot at Third street and Plainfield avenue will not be given up but a gang of men will work on it until it has been made as spick and span as is possible under the circumstances. The material taken from these places will be stored well down in the West End and on Randolph road near where the new southside sewer pumping station is to be built. Another municipal storing site, located on the north side of Midway avenue, is also to receive attention and as long as it is used will be kept in good shape. Mr. Gavett has wanted to undertake just such a cleaning up for many months but has been prevented because of having no place to put the material.

The city dumping grounds are receiving the joint attention of the Board of Health and Mr. Gavett and hereafter will be carefully watched. Several of the smaller ones are to be discontinued and notices warning people not to use them will be posted. One of these notices is to be put up at Arlington avenue and Sixth street to make sure that no slips in a lot of refuse after the city gets the present lot out.

VALUABLE DOGS POISONED IN NETHERWOOD SECTION.

Families, Wrought Up, Call Police Into the Case and Developments Are Expected.

Six dogs, all owned by wealthy men in the Netherwood section, were fatally poisoned Saturday night. They were found all about the neighborhood of Belvidere and South avenues. Two of them lay in the yard of George Tygard, on South avenue, where his own dog was chained, unharmed.

The poisonings were reported to the police, and Chief Kiely put Patrolman McCarthy on the case yesterday. The detective was still at work on it this morning, following a trail that led to a well known Netherwood resident. Chief Kiely said, in speaking of the case, that a sensation might develope in it before long.

IROQUOIS APPEAL HEARD

County Board Reserves Decision on Protested Valuation of Hotel.

PROPERTIES COMPARED

Hotel Man's Counsel Cites Assessments On Marsh and Codington Buildings to Show Alleged Discrimination.

The appeal of J. A. Staats, owner of the Hotel Iroquois, from the assessment on he property, was heard by the Union County Board of Taxation this morning. After listening to arguments by W. L. Hetfield, Jr., counsel for Mr. Staats, the board reserved decision.

For the purpose of showing how the property had been discriminated against, Mr. Hetfield made comparisons between it and nearby holdings. The Iroquois property is assessed at $35,000, of which $18,000 is placed on the building.

Mr. Hetfield argued that the building itself was erected fifty years ago, and is not up-to-date; and, further, that the income derived from it was not by any means 10 per cent. of the valuation.

In comparison, Mr. Hetfield cited the Marsh building and the Codington building. They were modern in construction, Mr. Hetfield pointed out, and neither of them had been valued in proportion to the Iroquois. Mr. Hetfield submitted the fact that Mr. Staats had only $8,500 insurance on the building, and that was all he could recover if it burned down.

Continuing, Mr. Hetfield cited previous assessments, which had reached $18,000. Of this, $5,000 had been taken off by the commissioners of appeal. Now the valuation had been more than double.

The Board asked Mr. Hetfield about the hotel stable. It was explained that the building was only a frame shed, covered with corrugated iron.

The Board made formal announcement that the appeal would be taken under advisement. The city's side of the case was submitted by Corporation Counsel Marsh last Monday. Mr. Marsh is the owner of one of the buildings cited in comparison by Mr. Hetfield. He stated to the Board, and repeated after the meeting, that the comparisons were not made for the purpose of intimating that the other properties should be advanced, but merely as the line of argument called for under the law, which provided for such comparison to show whereon the appellant based his claim for reduction.

No Xmas Entertainment.

On account of the serious illness of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, the Christmas entertainment of the Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church which was to have been held on Thursday night, December 27, has been given up. The exercises of the Primary and Junior departments which were planned for next Sunday night have also been abandoned. The regular Christmas service in the morning and evening with special music by the choir and orchestra will take place as usual. A sermon at the morning service and an address to the school at the evening service will be delivered by one of the city pastors. Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis has consented to take charge of the morning service.

In Dr. Schenck's Pulpit.

Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, who occupied Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck's pulpit in Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning and evening, delivered two strong sermons. In the morning he dwelt on the subject of God making everything beautiful, the theme being suggested in Ecclesiastes 3-11. At the evening service Mr. Shaw delivered an equally interesting sermon on the conversion of St. Paul, as described in the twenty-second chapter of Acts and a part of the tenth verse, "What Shall I Do, Lord." His recital from memory of the Scripture lessons, Isiah 52 and Acts 26, at both services, was both remarkable and effective.

Will Build New Addition.

The non-sectarian Sunday-school in the southern part of the city conducted by the Christian Endeavor Union has been so largely attended that more room must be provided at once, and the committee in charge, consisting of U. B. Crane and W. C. Leek, expects to build a sixty-foot addition this week. The present room belongs to the Home Real Estate Company and is only fifteen feet square. At the last session, over thirty persons were crowded into the room. A meeting to decide about the improvement will be held tonight.

PLANTING AND REAPING IN SPIRITUAL WORLD

DR. MORGAN TELLS OF THE STRONG LAW OF REPRODUCTION.

Speaking on the theme, "As Ye Sow," Rev. Dr. W. H. Morgan, of the Central Methodist church, Newark, told the audience at the Y. M. C. A. theatre meeting yesterday, with dramatic emphasis, that the natural law that like produces like was as strong in the spiritual world as it was in the physical.

The men who said the law did not apply in the spiritual world, Dr. Morgan said, did not know what they were talking about. If there was any difference in the force of the application of that law in the two realms, he believed it was more supreme, more imperial, in the spiritual than in the physical world.

Pardon did not take away the results of sin, continued the speaker. "Whatsoever ye sow, that also shall ye reap," was always carried out. Pardon, to apply on oneself in a future life, came from the wide mercy of God, of His one great law went on just the same, and the consequences of seed-time were found at the harvest-time as inevitably in the spiritual world as in the physical world.

No young man should be allowed to sow wild oats, said Dr. Morgan. Wild oats could only bring a crop of wild oats. Evil deeds always brought evil results. The illness of the French State was the result of the immutable law. In the days of the Terror the people had sought to pluck God from His heaven, they had put a premium on atheism and unbelief. They had sown damnation and they reaped destruction, and were reaping it yet.

It was pleasant, the speaker said in closing, to turn to the other side of the shield. The law worked as inevitably for good as for evil. Sow kindness and receives kindness, sow justice and receive justice, sow brotherly love and receive brotherly love. "He that soweth for the spirit shall reap life everlasting."

The meeting was well attended considering the weather. E. R. Ackerman presided and the Crescent Avenue church choir sang.

TICKETS SELL RAPIDLY FOR THE CHARITY BALL.

Signs Point to a Great Rush in Business and Committee Is Elated.

Tickets for the charity ball and entertainment are selling rapidly and the prospects are that there will be a full house at the theatre and at the Casino on New Year's eve. Word was received today from her manager, that Miss May Irwin will bring the cast and scenery now on at the Bijou, where "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" is doing an immense business. The committee is much elated over the way the tickets are selling.

Just as soon as the performance is over, the scene of the festivity will be transferred to the Casino, where the ball will be held. Austin's full orchestra will furnish the music. Already, Major Maze Edwards, the Casino's manager, is making plans for the decorations which promise to be unusually elaborate. The supper will be served at midnight.

The price of tickets is but $5, admitting the bearers to the theatre, the Casino and the dining halls.

The executive committee has made the request that returns for tickets be made as promptly as possible. By so doing matters will be greatly expedited in several ways, especially in the theatre end, as after December 22 the tickets for "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" must go on sale as usual. The committee has made special arrangements for the carriage service, both at the theatre before and after the performance, and also at the Casino. Frank Hedden and a corps of men will exercise supervision and the former has a plan whereby from four to six carriages can be taken care of at once.

Funeral of Justice Mosher.

The funeral of Justice Joseph Elias Mosher was held at the home of his son, William B. Mosher, of New street, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, and was largely attended. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being Edward Mosher, of Rutherford; Henry Mosher, Charles Dunham, Arthur Mosher, William B. Mosher and Joseph Hawkins.

PICKED SUSPECT IN FIVE

Mrs. Slonim Corroborates Her Husband's Identification of Man Wanted.

SO DOES STORE PORTER

Prisoner Brought Here From Newark Under Charges—Chief Kiely Sure He Is the Hold-Up Man.

Charged with grand larceny and felonious assault, the young man identified by Leo Slonim at Newark police headquarters on Saturday as the crook who robbed and shot him in his jewelry store two weeks ago, was arraigned before Judge Runyon, sitting as a State magistrate, in the city court, this morning. He pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until tomorrow morning, pending further investigation by the police.

Chief Kiely is convinced that he has the right man. Mrs. Slonim confirmed her husband's identification yesterday morning, as did the store porter, by picking the suspect unhesitatingly from a line of young men carefully chosen for their general resemblance to a man answering the description of the crook furnished by the Slonims.

The suspect was brought here from Newark Saturday night, by Patrolman McCarthy. He was handcuffed to the officer and made no trouble on the journey.

He was put on the rack by Chief Kiely yesterday morning. Denying all knowledge of things criminal, he evaded every trap set for him and steadfastly clung to his avowal of innocence. He said his name was George Saeger, and gave Boone, Ia., as the place of his birth. He is about twenty-three years old. He declared that he was in a Bowery lodging house the night of the robbery. He said he had no trade, and made his living as a dish-washer or waiter in restaurants.

Before the examination Detective McCarthy gathered nine young men who might have answered the description of the crook and lined them up at headquarters. Saeger was told to take any place he desired in the line. He stepped into the middle. Mrs. Slonim and the porter, both of whom were in the store the night of the robbery and had become familiar with the thief's features, were brought in separately and told to pick out the crook if he was in the line. Both unhesitatingly pointed to the prisoner.

Saeger received the developement with composure. He took his arrest cooly in the first place, and has given no sign of undue worriment since.

Evidence that he is not truthful has been gathered by Chief Kiely. When searched at Newark headquarters a card bearing the name of Detective Butler, of the New York central office, was found on him. He said he met the detective in a New York pawn shop. Chief Kiely called up Butler and asked him about the alleged meeting. Butler said Saeger was a liar. The young man came to him on the Bowery, he said, and reported a mythical robbery in which he was supposed to have lost $150.

Saeger had only thirty-five cents in his pockets when arrested. Chief Kiely asked him to explain why, with only that sum in his possession, he went into a jewelry store to look over $175 watches. Saeger said he heard a bartender in a Plank road saloon say he wanted to buy a watch, and he was trying to frame up a deal whereby he might get a percentage from the jeweller.

Chief Kiely has a mute witness against the prisoner in the slouch hat dropped by the robber in his flight. The hat fits the suspect perfectly. He had the same sort of hat on when arrested.

Christmas Tree at "Home."

The Christmas committee of the Children's Home asks for the "tree," gifts for twenty-two children ranging from three to thirteen years—twelve girls and ten boys. Many handkerchiefs, gloves and mittens, knee pants for the boys from four to eleven years, gingham and outing flannel, books, toys and games suggest themselves to all lovers of children. Money or checks may be sent to Miss Serrell, 122 Plainfield avenue, or to Mrs. Horace Kimball, 326 Central avenue. All the articles to the Home, which is located at Jackson and Westervelt avenues.

Plans for New Club.

The committee having in charge the drafting of the plan upon which Plainfield's new club is to be formed, will meet at the Casino Wednesday night, when preliminary steps will be taken. As soon as the plan is decided upon the subscription committee will be informed concerning it, and efforts will then be made to secure the necessary funds. After the holidays there will be a general meeting of those interested to complete the organization.

Open Every Evening Until Christmas.

DELIGHTFUL SPOTS

So Says Miss Mary C. Burrows in the Current Number of Jersey Central's Monthly Magazine.

Such a mite of a place is Fanwood—only a glimpse of a pretty park, a house or two and many trees as one flashes by in the Plainfield express. Substitute facts for fleeting impressions, however, and Fanwood is found to be a village of some fifty inhabitants scattered among uncounted trees, trees that are the pride of teh inhabitants and the admiration of all; a post office and library, housed in a handsome edifice, and the station which is also the telegraph and express office. The one general store of the place hides discreetly beyond the track in the shadow of a bridge.

There isn't a pretentious house in Fanwood, but nether is there a shabby one. They are all comfortable, pretty, homelike houses, with stretches of lawn, and the trees so thick, even at the station, that one seems to be always in the woods. The town shares in the best water supply in the State of New Jersey, piped down from the crystal springs of Netherwood, less than two miles distant, and modern science has provided most satisfactory for the disposition of isolated house sewerage. There is gas and electric light service, likewise the service of the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker for those desiring candles from Plainfield.

Fanwood is situated on high, rolling ground and is at all seasons of the year a beautiful and healthful place of residence. The woods that surround the town afford an effective wind break in winter and the locality is still further protected from cold northern and westerly winds by the ridge forming part of the Watchung mountains, that lies about a mile and a half distant from the town. Nestling at the foot of this ridge and about a mile from Fanwood, with which it is connected by a broad, level highway, is the ancient and picturesque village of Scotch Plains. The first settlement was made here in 1684 by Scotch pioneers.

The residents of Fanwood and Scotch Plains attend the same churches, send their children to the same school and use the same railroad station. Fanwood is directly on the line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and is preferred as a place of residence by the commuter who wishes to live within five minutes walk of the station. Others, tempted by the lower rents that prevail in Scotch Plains locate there, finding the fifteen minutes walk between home and station an agreeable form of exercise in pleasant weather and on unpleasant days availing themselves of the trolley that passes through Scotch Plains and which in ten minutes puts one down at the railroad station of Plainfield where fast expresses make the run to New York in fifty minutes.

For the New York business man, tired of flat life, who wishes to secure for himself and family the comforts and economies of a suburban home with ample grounds for flower beds and kitchen gardens, Fanwood and Scotch Plains afford opportunities unsurpassed by any towns within an hour's ride of New York. In addition to the natural advantages and the municipal improvements already mentioned—water, gas, electric lights, ample fire and police protection, good schools, library, churches, etc.—this locality possesses many attractions in the way of picturesque resorts of easy access, that make it a delightful place of residence. There stretch in every direction miles of perfect roads for pedestrians, auto enthusiast and lovers of horses. There is plenty of tennis close at hand, and within easy reach good golf links and other country club privileges. Best of all, from the commuter's point of view, there are plenty of fast trains to and from the city every day.

Year by year increasing numbers of people, weary of New York's hurry and noise, are finding that a real country home is an easy and delightful possibility among these same Watchung mountains, homes with charming glimpses of hills and valleys, quite as alluring as the tempting farms offered in the more distant New England country, yet so near Wall street and the shopping district that the trip affords barely time for the perusal of the daily paper.

Knew Seventy Languages.

Bristol, Vt., Dec. 17.—Jeremiah Curtin, of the Bureau of Ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, foremost among American linquists, with a world-wide reputation in philology, died here Friday of Bright's disease. Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—President Roosevelt has received a cable message from Emanuel Nobel, of St. Petersburg, congratulating him on receiving the Nobel peace prize from the Norwegian Parliament in recognition of his work in bringing about peace between Russia and Japan. The message, which was sent from Paris, reads: "Please permit me, as the elder head of the Nobel family, to participate specially in the universal joy that the peace prize has been awarded to you. The Norwegian Storthing never made a more happy decision, for no allotment was ever made which was more in accord with the real intentions of my deceased uncle, who desired that this prize should only be awarded for a work of immeasurable and real benefit to humanity, and what is there greater than the peace concluded between those two nations, the credit for which is due to your initiative?"

Miss Jennie Anderson, of Somerville, who has been visiting here, has returned home.

Bars Catholic In Will.

New York, Dec. 17.—In the Surrogate's office Saturday the will of Mrs. Ursula E. Menair, who died at No. 417 West 145th street, was filed for probate. In the petition the estate is valued at $10,000 in personal property and $10,000 in realty, but it is believed to be worth much more. After a few minor bequests the will directs that the residue of the estate be constituted a trust fund, of which the income and rental are to be paid to Mrs. Menair's son, Francis C. Menair, quarterly during his lifetime and to his heirs upon his death. "Should my son, Francis E. Menair," says the testatrix, "marry a member of the Roman Catholic church, then the entire residue and remainder of my estate I bequeath in equal shares to my sisters."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Elisha Kennedy, of the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club, made some stirring remarks on the need of encouraging the game among the juniors at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association on Tuesday night. Unlike some of the Western amateurs, he holds that the juniors should all be encouraged to enter the tournaments and also that the M. G. A. might offer a special cup for the boys, which would become a junior championship.

An opening for such an action is in the somewhat unstaple foundation of the annual New York interscholastic tournament. In the first years of this tournament Cutler School gave the prizes and managed the competition. After a lapse of a year the tournament began again under the direction of St. Paul's School of Garden City, which still guides the contest. The tournament is open to all schoolboys, but it would without doubt have a greater entry if the managers were not affiliated with any one of the schools. To have the M. G. A. take hold of the schoolboy tournament would add to its stability and dignity, besides giving to the boys the direct encouragement suggested by Kennedy. No fault may be found in the management of present or past interscholastic tournaments, or with the high class of the golfers to be developed at these competitions, but in the opinion of many at the meeting the game would be benefited by the M. G. A. taking direct charge of schoolboys' championship golf.

Although temporarily sidetracked by the instruction to the committee to discover if there is a sentiment among the associations interested in the establishing of an annual Eastern open championship, there is little fear that the M. G. A. open championship will be passed over. All the debate on the value of the local open championship came over the amendment to increase the dues from $10 to $15. It seemed to be taken for granted that the increase was to provide funds for the open tournaments held were possible by the generosity of the Fox Hills Golf Club and the Hollywood Golf Club in providing the prizes as well as the links. The open championship had but two opponents at the meeting, while those to speak in support of the competition and the good golf it brings out included J. B. C. Tappan, Devereaux Emmett, J. G. Batterson, J. J. O'Donohue and Walter T. Stein. The vote to raise the dues was almost unanimous, and, as Secretary Calkins said, the M. G. A. will now have a surplus fund from which the open championship prizes may be taken in whole or part.

Both the Nassau Country Club and the Baltusrol Golf Club asked for the M. G. A. amateur championship. Selection of a links was left to the committee, and while this does not imply the selection of Baltusrol or Nassau the two will lead in the running. There was a vote to hold the competition in the third week of May, the same dates as last year. Votes of thanks were many. The members gave formal acknowledgement in this way to President Chauncey and the retiring officers; to Chauncey also for his gift of a new championship trophy. The handicappers, Calkins, Menzies and Phillips, were also honored, and also the St. Andrews and Hollywood clubs, holders of the amateur and open championships.

When Secretary Calkins in his report told of the winning for the second year of the Lesley cup in the intercity matches by the M. G. A. team the handsome silver cup was displayed on the president's table, and it stood there throughout the meeting. There was a special round of applause for the trophy and a vote of thanks to Capt. Travis and the team.

LUNCH-WAGONS.

Over in Montclair the authorities are trying to solve the problem of when a wagon is not a wagon or in other words when a vehicle becomes a piece of real estate. The dispute has been carried up from the recorder's court to the Court of Common Pleas and Judge TenEyck is expected to hand down his decision in a few days. The whole trouble is over one of those unsightly looking "owl" lunch wagons.

The Recorder decided that the wagon, resting in one spot, was a fixture and to all intents and purposes a building. Being built of inflammable material and located within the fire limits of the town, the restaurant, although on wheels, he ruled, was a distinct violation of the ordinance.

The man was ordered to remove his vehicular "building" within ten days. Instead of doing so, however, he retained a lawyer to fight the case for him, and Saturday it came up on appeal.

Plainfield is afflicted with several of these eyesores and consequently the outcome of the case in Essex county will be of interest here.

WHERE'S OUR CONFRESSMAN?

The spanking that the Fifth district Republican voters gave Congressman Fowler recently when James E. Martine "peached" on him for playing "hookey," seems to have been deserved. The Congressman, however, is back at his old tricks it appears from reports from Washington. On Saturday he did not answer roll call and according to a news dispatch he "was absent as usual" when the vote was taken on the salary increase bill.

THE FORUM.

The Lions of the Lord.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I am much interested in your serial story telling the adventures of the Mormons after being forced out of Nauvoo, Illinois, in the winter of 1845-6. The author has followed the Mormon authorities quite closely but has occasionally dropped into obvious error. For instance,e he says, in chapter xi, "the sun-baked earth was so hard that it broke their plows when they tried to turn it. Not until they had spread water upon it from the river they had named Jordan could the plows be used." The fact is, as stated by their principal historian, that the camp was pitched on City Creek, which flowed down from the mountains, not far from the site of the present Hotel Knutsford, and from that stream they first used the water to soften the soil on July 23, 1847, the day before Brigham Young arrived, and thereby inaugurated a system of irrigation which has since been converted the valley of Great Salt Lake into a veritable garden. The Jordan River is in the valley much lower down and had they used it ,the water would have been brought up hill. City Creek is still the city's principal water supply.

The story of the Mormon settlement of Utah is far stranger than fiction, and as I have many friends among the Mormon people I hope those who read "The Lions of the Lord" may become interested in the actual history of their trials in reaching their Zion and founding the city by the lake.

Yours truly,
ALEX. MILLAR.

OLD HOTEL MAINTAINS TWO-CENTURY RECORD

BOAST OF "NEVER CLOSED" IS KEPT GOOD WHILE BUILDING IS MOVED.

The Somerset Hotel, in Somerville, one of the oldest and most famous hosteleries in New Jersey, which is credited with doing business for nearly 200 years without ever closing its doors, fully sustained its reputation in this line during last week by continuing in operation while it was raised from its foundations and moved 300 feet up the street.

The process of running the hotel while it was elevated on stilts was unique. Colonel "Bill" Early, the proprietor, threw a gangplank from the barroom door to the street, and the liquid refreshment end of his business never flagged for an hour, despite the fact that it was considered dangerous to walk the plank under all conditions.

One hundred years ago this ancient inn was famous as a halfway house on the Old York road, between New York City and Easton, Pa., and was known to the traveler as the "stage house." It was a noted gathering place for politicians and statesmen, and it has been the scene of many historical banquets.

George Fritts, once proprietor of the hotel, who still lives here, states that at a great political gathering at the hotel, the late John I. Blair, who was a Republican candidate for Governor, handed over $40,000 to a political leader to carry the district for him.

Very little of this money, it is said, got into circulation, and Blair was defeated. When Blair visited the town some time later he pointed knowingly to a big business building which had been erected by the politician to whom he had intrusted the $40,000, and remarked: "Fritts, there is one of the monuments to my late political folly."

POLITICAL NOTES.

A caucus of the Republican members of the Senate will be held at Trenton some time between Christmas and New Year's probably on December 27, at which officers for the upper house of the next Legislature will be chosen. The indications point to a much livelier caucus than usual, as there is a sharp contest on for the presidency between Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris county, representing the northern end of the State, and Bloomfield H. Minch, of Cumberland county, representing the southern end. Mr. Hillery was Republican leader in the last Senate, and according to precedent, should be the next presiding officer. The contest is extremely close, with the chances in favor of Hillery. Another fact that will help make the caucus interesting is the great demand for places in the Senate, caused by the loss of fifty or more jobs in the Assembly to the Democrats.

Mayor Fagan, of Jersey City, chairman of the tentative Hudson County organization of New Idea Republicans, has sent out a call for a meeting to be held next Wednesday night, at which the Central Republican Committee will be formed, officers elected and a call for primaries issued. The Fagan men have cut loose from the Dickenson machine, saying it is impossible to get anything like a square deal at the hands of Colonel Dickinson and his followers.

A large delegation of saloonkeepers from every city in the State will meet at Atlantic City tomorrow to fix a plan of attack on the Bishops' law at the next session of the Legislature. It is said that the repeal of the law will be demanded by the liquor dealers, and, if this is impossible, they will insist on its most drastic provisions being amended.

The latest candidate in the field for the chairmanship of the Essex County Republican Committee is ex-Assemblyman William Mungle. Mr. Mungle has taken a prominent part in the Colby movement since its inception, and his selection would plase the New Idea men. He has a good many friends among the regulars, and those advocating his election say he would have little difficulty in bringing about a united Republican party in Essex.

Burning Fences and Barns.

Mangum, Okla., Dec. 17.—A coal famine is now prevailing in this part of Oklahoma, the supply both here and at Granite being exhausted. Many farmers were burning fences and outbuildings. The weather is cold. Coal in transit is confiscated by the railroads, and apparently there is no relief in sight. Fifty farmers went to the Rock Island station today and took charge of the only car of coal. Unless relief comes shortly all public works will be closed and many families will suffer.

Killed In Flight From Bride.

Culpeper, Va., Dec. 17.—Attempting to desert his bride on his wedding night, W. F. Bywaters, prominent and popular in Virginia society circles, a well known horseman and breeder of high jumps, was shot to death early yesterday morning, by James and Philip Strothers, the brothers of the girl he had just wed, as he tried to leap from the porch of her home. He had been forced to wed the girl by the brothers, who learned of the couple's relations.

IN MEMORIAM.

At a meeting the Plainfield Typographical Union, held December 12, 1906, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The Divine Master in His infinite wisdom has entered our union and taken our highly esteemed and beloved brother, William C. Marchant, and thus broken a link in our fraternal chain; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of William C. Marchant, we lose one of our most valuable members, faithful in all things, a good worker, true to his convictions and endeared to all who knew him; and be it further

Resolved, That we cherish a fond remembrance of our brother and extend to the bereaved family the heartfelt sympathy of the union.

Claims Chinese Throne.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 17.—A Manchu Banner woman, married to an English officer of Gordon's army, yesterday announced that she has made claim to the throne of China. The woman, unwilling to make public her name lest relatives be assassinated at Pekin, has addressed petitions to the British government asking that her claim be taken up with China. he says she is the direct lineal descendant of the third Duke of Chou, and as such asserts she has a right to the throne of China prior to that of the Empress Dowager. With her husband and family the woman has been living in Victoria for twenty-one years since she came from Pekin, where a younger brother, who she says, is next in line to herself to the Chinese thorne, is now living.

"His Honor" Delivered the Goods.

"His Honor, the Mayor," played a return date at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night and again pleased two large audiences. The show is one of the best musical comedies that has ever visited the city and with excruciating funny Harry Kelly it is a "scream" from start to finish. The cast was practically the same as when it was seen here before and the nimble pony ballet was again very much in evidence.

Drought In Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 17.—The "drought" in Kentucky continus to spread and there are now ninety-four totally "dry" counties out of 119. There were eighty-two dry counties two months ago, but since then many precinct and county elections have been held, and twelve more counties have gone dry. The only victory gained by the "wets" was to carry the town of Cloverport in Breckinridge county.

popular election of this branch of Congress. Of the thirty vacancies which will occur in the Senate of 1907 fifteen had in September last already been filled by methods similar to the one proposed in my bill of last winter. Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia has either a direct primary or a party rule for the nomination of Senators. Idahoe, South Dakota and Nebraska will have candidates nominated in conventions, while in New Jersey, Iowa, Washington and Maryland movements are being conducted in the interest of some law providing for a popular choice. So it would seem that within the next ten or fifteen years fully 50 per cent. of the Senators of the United States will be chosen by the people.

I shall stand also for the local assessment of the main stem property of railroads, the law which would provide for the taxation of franchises at their value, and a lobby bill similar to that introduced last year. The law providing for the appointment of county tax boards will undoubtedly receive careful consideration and be amended to meet the defects that were found to exist.

To Investigate High Lumber.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—That an investigation of the high price of lumber will reveal close association among the manufacturers of lumber is the belief of Representative Miller, of Kansas, who has introduced in the House a resolution calling upon the Department of Commerce and Labor to investigate the industry. Mr. Miller has made an investigation of the lumber business from Pennsylvania to the Pacifis coast, and believes that he has found about the same conditions prevailing everywhere, all resulting in the arbitrary fixing of the price of lumber by the so-called lumber associations. Not only does he assert that the price of lumber has doubled and trebled in certain instances, but he declares that the lowest grade of lumber is sold today for a higher price than the best grade commended a few years ago.

Lack Engines, Not Cars.

Kansas City, Dec. 17.—With coal selling in Tonopah at $60 a ton and the Northwest unable to get fuel at any price, because the railroads say there is a shortage of cars, there are more than four thousand empty cars standing on side tracks in Kansas City alone. Reports from various railroad division points in Missouri and Kansas indicate that cars are plenty in both States. Lack of motive power is at the bottom of the truble in the Middle West. In Kansas City there are half as many loaded cars as empties, many of which have been standing on sidetracks for two or three weeks. The railroads simply have not the locomotives to handle the traffic.

Winter Home for Squirrels.

New York, Dec. 17.—As the result of an appeal to Park Commissioner Herrman by the women and children living in the neighborhood of Central Park, and particularly those in Central Park West, the squirrels will not suffer from the cold this winter, but will have comfortable little houses to shelter them from the stormy blasts. They are made of pieces of branches, artistically put together. The largest, to be placed near Eighty-second street, on the west side, has three compartments, with a door leading into each from the side, and will house twenty squirrels comfortably.

POLITICAL PUBLICITY NEW LOBBY'S OBJECT

DRAFT OF CONSTITUTION READ AT ORGANIZATION MEETING IN NEWARK.

The organization meeting of "The People's Lobby of New Jersey," held Friday night at Achtel-Stetter's, in Newark, brought together men of all parties and men who never had a party. A constitution was adopted and officers elected to serve for the coming year. Edwin G. Adams presided, and E. A. Whittier acted as secretary. The Rev. Adolph Roeder, of the New Jersey State Civic Federation, sat at the right of the presiding officer.

After the constitution was adopted the following were elected officers: Colonel Alexander R. Fordyce, of Middlesex, president; Henry H. Dawson, of Essex, treasurer; Edwin Whittier, secretary. Governing committee: Adolph Roeder, Simon Northrup, Herman B. Walker, Edwin G. Adams and Henry Hines, of Essex; Albert Howe and Job H. Lippincott, of Hudson; James A. Blauveut, of Passaic; Walter Linberger, of Somerset, and Samuel Merwin, W. M. Atkinson, Thomas M. Debevoise, William J. Wood, C. VanWhitbek and W. F. Groves, of Union.

Alden Freeman, as chairman of the committee on constitution, submitted a draft of the document, which was adopted with a few amendments.

The first article states the name as "The People's Lobby of New Jersey." The second article reads:

"The functions of the People's Lobby shall include:

"The collection and dissemination of information regarding legislation and the attitude of members of the Legislature thereon.

2. The keeping of an accurate record of the official acts and votes of members of the State Legislature, together with other information pertinent to their official records; and from time to time the making public of these records, and securing for them the widest possible publicity.

3. The initiation and support of legislation in the interests of the people and opposition to legislation inimical to the interest of the people.

Article III. provides that the membership shall consist of a general committee composed of citizens of New Jersey acceptable to the governing committee, which shall have power to expel members and make standing rules. The latter committee, by Article IV., hereafter shall be elected by the members from each county and shall control the Lobby. By Article V., the members from each county shall compose a county branch. Article VI. provides for the officers. Article VII. vests the management of the Lobby's work in an executive committee, consisting of the president and the secretary of the governing committee as ex-officio members, and of five others, who shall be elected from and by the governing committee.

Article VIII. provides for nominations for offices and fixes the annual meeting for the second Thursday in December of each year. Article IX. provides for amendments and Article X. the annual dues at $3.

After the adoption of the constitution, the president-elect spoke briefly, saying: "I am not unmindful of the honor or the responsibility the position involves, and am grateful for the honor. The time has arrived when the political history of the State should be laid before the people and information of the work done by their representatives given to them. The People's Lobby is in existence to see that no vicious legislation is passed. The time when the politicians look to a boss for instructions has passed and the word of the people must be respected."

MORE PAY FOR THE POSTOFFICE EMPLOYES.

Postmaster-General Recommends Increase—Estimates for Congress.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Postmaster-General Cortelyou, in his report to the President for the fiscal year ending June 30 last, urgently recommends better pay for postal employes. He says that estimates for increased compensation will be submitted to Congress. He recommends also that provision be made for a deputy postmaster-general, who shall be a general manager of the postal service, with a permanent place.

The department needs to be modernized, he says, and suggests that a commission of expert statisticians and accountants be authorized. He renews his recommendation that he be allowed to detail three experienced officials to study European postal systems, and asks for an appropriation. He wants, also, a field supervision like that of the railway mail service.

The deficit underwant a substantial reduction the past year—from $14,594,387.12 in 1905 to $10,542,941.76 in 1906. The receipts for the year were $167,932,782.95, as against $152,826,585.10 in 1905. The expenditures were $178,449,778.89, as against $167,339,169.23 the previous year. Based on a population of 82,000,000, the postal service was an expense of about 12 cents to every person. Mr. Cortelyou says he is less concerned about the deficit than about efficiency of administration, which, he says, has been in many respects remarkable.

The estimates for the coming year's service foot up $206,662,190, an increase of about $15,000,000 over last year's appropriation, the principal increases being in compensation of postmasters, carriers, clerks and for mail transportation.

On the work of the department in railway frauds and swindles, the postmaster-general says:

"In the two years closed June 30, 1906, the fraud orders numbered 630, exceeding by 71 the otal number issued in the four years immeriately preceding. The schemes suppressed represented almost every conceivable variety of fraud, all of which upon examination proved to be mere traps for the credulous."

The number of robberies of postoffices reported during the last year was 1,802—a notable increase over the 1,581 reported the year before.

On the subject of railway mail service, the postmaster-general says the service now numbers 13,598 officers and employes. All-steel cars should displace the present wood and steel construction. Faster mail service has been obtained between New York and San Francisco, and through the Southwest. As to the foreign mail service the report says that the total cost for transportation last year was $3,137,349.57. The aggregate weight of mails handled was 14,121,887 pcpnds. It is vitally important, the report says, that legislation for the development of our commercial shipping be secured, as the department is largely dependent on steamers sailing under a foreign flag.

Gamblers Resume; Bingham Alert.

New York, Dec. 17.—As if reassured by some general proclamation to all the city, the poolroom men and the gambling house keepers in almost every district in Manhattan opened their establishments for business Saturday afternoon and evening after a fortnight's idleness. Almost at the same time there appeared in the city from Washington a squad of picked men, hired by Police Commissioner Bingham to investigate gambling and police conditions generally. For the first time in some years, perhaps, outside word that the city was "opening up" was received with equanimity by the highest authorities. It will afford the new men a chance to work against policemen and the gamblers in the joint fight the District Attorney and the Police Commissioner are making under the Dowling law. There will be more evidence for them to use when the time comes to strike, and the blow, it is thought, will be the heavier.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

During the winter that now came upon them, it became even a greater wonder to her; for it was common suffering—a time of dark days which she felt they might have lightened for each other, and a time when she knew that more than ever she drew him.

For hardly had the feast of the Harvest Home gone by when food once more became scarce. The heaven-sent gulls had, after all, saved but half a crop. Drought and early frost had diminished this; and those who came in from the east came all too trustingly with empty meal sacks.

By the beginning of winter there were 5,000 people in the valley to be fed with miraculous loaves and fishes. Half of these were without decent shelter, dwelling under wagon covers or in flimsy tents, and forced much of the time to be without fuel; for wood had to be hauled through the snow from the distant canyons, and so was precious stuff. For three months the cutting winds came down from the north, and the pitiless winter snows raged about them. An inventory was early taken of the foodstuffs, and thereafter rations were issued alike to all, whether rich or poor. Otherwise many of the latter must have perished. It was a time of hard expedients, such as men are content to face only for the love of God: They ranged the hills and benches to dig sego and thistle roots, and in the last days of winter many took the rawhides from their roofs, boiling and eating them. When spring came, they watched hungrily for the first green vegetation, which they gathered and cooked. Truly it seemed they had stopped in a desert as cruel in its way as the human foes from whom they had fled.

It was now that the genius of their leader showed. He was no longer Brigham Young, the preacher, but a father in Israel to his starving children.

The efforts of Brigham to put heart into the people were ably seconded by Joel Rae. He was loved like Brigham, but not feared. He preached like

She Had Lowered Her Eyes to No Other But Him.

Brigham submission to the divine will as interpreted by the priesthood, but he was more extravagant than Brigham in his promises of blessings in store for them. He never resorted to vagueness in his pictures of what the Lord was about to do for them. He was literal and circumstantial to a degree that made Brigham and the older men in authority sometimes writhe in public and chide him in private. They were appalled at the sweeping victories he promised the Saints over the hated Gentiles at an early day. They suggested, too, that the Lord might withhold an abundance from them for a few years until he had more thoroughly tried them. But their counsel seemed only to inflame him to fresh absurdities. In the very days of their greatest scarcity that winter, when almost every man was dressed in skins, and the daily fare was thistle roots, he declared to them at a Sunday service:

"A time of plenty is at hand—of great plenty. I cannot tell you how I know these things. I do not know how they come to me. I pray—and they come to life in my spirit; that is how I have found this fact; in less than a year states goods of all needed kinds will be sold here cheaper than they can be bought in eastern cities. You shall have an abundance at prices that will amaze you."

And the people thrilled to hear him, partaking of his faith, remembering the gulls that ate the crickets, and the rain and wind that came to save the pioneer train from fire. To the leaders such prophesying was merely reckless, inviting further chastisements from heaven, and calculated to cause a loss of faith in the priesthood.

And yet, wild as it was, they saw this latter prophecy fulfilled; for now, so soon after the birth of this new empire, while it suffered and grew weak and bade fair to perish in its cradle of faith, there was made for it a golden spoon of plenty.

Over across the mountains the year before, on the decayed granite bedrock of the tail race at the mill of one Sutter, a man had picked up a few particles of gold, the largest as big as grains of wheat. The news of the wonder had spread to the east, and now came frenzied hordes of gold seekers. The valley of the mountains where the Saints had hoped to hide was directly in their path, and there they stopped their richly laden trains to rest and to renew their supplies.

The harvest of '49 was bountiful in all the valley; and thus was the wild prophecy of Joel Rae made sober truth. Many of the gold seekers had loaded their wagons with merchandise for the mining camps; but in their haste to be at the golden hills, they now sold it at a sacrifice in order to lighten their loads. The movement across the Sierras became a wild race; clothing, provisions, tools and arms—things most needful to the half-clad, half-starved community on the shores of the lake—were bartered to them at less than half-price for fresh horses and light wagons. Where a $25 pack-mule was sold for $200, a set of joiner's tools that had cost $100 back in St. Louis would be bought for $25.

The next year the gain to the Saints was even greater, as the tide of gold seekers rose. Early that summer they sold flour to the oncoming legions for a dollar a pound, taking their pay in the supplies they most needed on almost their own terms.

This passing of the gold seekers was not, however, a blessing without drawbacks. For the Saints had hoped to wax strong unobserved, unmolested, forgotten, in this mountain retreat. But now obscurity could no longer be their lot. The hated Gentiles had again to be reckoned with.

First, the United States had expanded on the west to include their territory—the fruit of the Mexican war—the poor bleak desert they were making to blossom. Next, the government at Washington had sent to construe and administer their laws men who were aliens from the Commonwealth of Israel. True, Millard Fillmore had appointed Brigham governor of the new territory—but there were chief justices and associate justices, secretaries, attorneys, marshals, Indian agents from the wicked and benighted East; men who frankly disbelieved that the voice of Brigham was as the voice of God, and who did not hesitate to let their heresy be known. A stream of these came and went—trouble-mongers who despised and insulted the Saints, and returned to Washington with calumnies on their lips. It was true that Brigham had continued, as was right, to be the only power in the territory; but the narrow-minded appointees of the federal government persisted in misconstruing this circumstance; refusing to look upon it as the just mark of Heaven's favor, and declaring it to be the arrogance of a mere civil usurper.

Under such provocation Joel Rae longed more than ever to be a Lion of the Lord, for those above him in the church endured too easily, he considered, the indignities that were put upon them by these evil-minded Gentile politicians. He would have rejected them forthwith, as he believed the Lord would have had them do,—nay, as he believed the Lord would sooner or later punish them for not doing. He would have thrust them into the desert, and called upon the Lord for strength to meet the storm that would doubtless be raised by such a course. He was impatient when the older men cautioned moderation and the petty wiles of diplomacy. Yet he was not altogether discouraged; for even they lost patience at times, and were almost as outspoken as he could have wished.

Miss Ethel Barrymore, in her greatest success, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The supporting cast will be just the same as when the play was seen in New York, including Bruce McRae.

One, to be transported among the most romantic Southern scenes, has only to see the production of "A Romance of Coon Hollow," which will hold the stage at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. Here, mirrored by nature, in beauty and quaintness, are given pictures of life in old Tennessee. It is a story of love and jealousy, told in a graceful way, and given realism by stage effects that are reflections of every-day life in the South. Among the scenes are a plantation cotton compress in operation, and a moonlight revelation of the famous glen, Coon Hollow, with electric and limelight effects in which the firebugs flit through the trees and the night birds sing among the branches; another, a night view, depicts the historic Mississippi River boat race between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez, both brilliantly lighted and under full steam. On the levee a groupe of darkey boys and girls troop down to see the great boat race, and also the boats pass, and while waiting, indulge in jubilee singing, and some wonderful buck dancing. A well selected company and a splendid quartette will appear in the production, now in its twelfth season of success. The production this year is entirely new and very elegant.

Bowling and General Sports

BOWLING.

Tomorrow night the Park Club bowling team will roll the Elizabeth team at Elizabeth, in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament. At the same time Cranford will roll at Westfield and Roselle at Newark Bay. There will be no more games until January 3.

The following teams will compete tomorrow night in the tourney at McLaughlin's: Woolston and Cunningham against Maltby and Thiers; Radin and Ackor against Blatz and VanEmburgh; Sheelen and Alberts against Day and Gahagan.

The fans are all sorry that "Willie" Mullen and John Conklin lost their first three games in the tourney. Both were out of form but they have the happy faculty of getting back in shape quickly and they have since been doing it. As the tourney will run until April the "pony" team may yet be heard from.

Splits have been all the fashion since the tourney opened. Chief Kiely got nine in his three games and several of the other contestants were unlucky enough to be tagged by four, five, six and seven.

BASKETBALL.

The Plainfield High School basketball team will play a game with the Montclair High School team on the local court Saturday afternoon at the usual hour.

SOMERSET STREET TAILOR PUT GASOLENE IN FIRE.

And Then Felix Powlik Had to Beat It for the Street to Escape Getting Burned.

In an effort to hurry up his fire at 9:30 this morning, Felix Powlik, a Somerset street tailor, empteied a generous supply of gasolene in the stove. A burst of flame followed that drove Felix from the shop and made him think Paine's pyrotechnics had been transferred from Manhattan Beach. He rushed to the street yelling "fire" and an obliging citizen turned in an alarm from box 12.

A good part of the city fire department was on hand in a few minutes but the men found nothing to do. Chief Doane took occasion, however, to give Felix a few first grade lessons on fire building that he wont forget in a hurry. He had a narrow escape from getting severely burned by the flames that spread around the room. There was no damage.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS AT SOLEMN VESPER SERVICE.

Conducted at St. Mary's Church Last Night by Rev. Father Smith, of Elizabeth.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, attired in full regalia, and Division No. 4, A. O. H., attended a solemn vesper service at St. Mary's church last night. It was celebrated by Rev. Father Smith, of Holy Rosary church, Elizabeth, assisted by Rev. Father Charles Smith, of Westfield, as deacon, and Rev. Father Delehanty, of St. Mary's, as sub-deacon. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Corcoran, of St. Patrick's church, Elizabeth.

The service was an impressive one and was attended by many people beside the organization members. An augmented choir rendered vesper psalms and during the solemn benediction the congregation and chancel choir of twenty-eight boys rendered benediction hymns.

HOPE FAIR CLOSES.

Net Proceeds Will Probably Reach a Total of $250.

The three-night fair conducted by the members of Hope chapel in the Sunday-school rooms came to a successful close Saturday night. Nearly all the articles on the various tables were disposed of and those that remained were auctioned off by David Bowden. Between the hours of 6 and 8 a supper was served by the women and it was enjoyed by a large number of diners. The proceeds from the affair will probably reach $250 and the amount will be added to the organ fund, the instrument to be installed as a memorial to Henry C. Squires.

The executive committee which arranged and had charge of the affair comprised Mrs. Robert Hangliter, Mrs. M. W. Clarke, Mrs. L. R. Howard, Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse, Miss Laura Hangliter, David Bowden and Robert Slorah.

Audacious Hunters.

For reply, the men shot over the heads of the boys and also hurled stones at them. The matter was reported to Mr. Arnold and his employes and they started to look for them but fortunately for the hunters, they had disappeared from the neigrborhood.

MR. BURDICK TELLS OF FOREIGN LANDS

INFANTRYMAN ADDRESSES SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST MEN'S CLUB.

The first regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held in the church parlor last night was addressed by Albert Burdick, regimental sergeant- major of the First U. S. Infantry, who gave an instructive talk on the soldier's life in foreign ports. He also referred to the life and customs of the people in cities at which he stopped on a trip from New York to Manila and back by way of San Francisco.

The first port at which Mr. Burdick landed was Gibraltar. In a comprehensive manner he explained the situation of the batteries and showed why it is such a superb fortification. In Malta Mr. Burdick visited the famous St. John's cathedral, which contains priceless tapestry woven of silver and golden threads in the sixteenth, fifteenth and some even as far back as the fourteenth century. Port Said, declared Mr. Burdick, far surpasses any city he has ever seen for its filthiness and wickedness.

From there he described his journey to Aden and Colombo, where at the latter place he found cinnaman groves in profusion. The modern European tea houses, he said, were in strong contrast to the ancient and picturesque temples which strangers were forbidden to enter.

After a brief account of Singapore and Manila the speaker told of the novel way in which natives unload coal at Nagasaki, Japan. They form two parallel lines, one men and women, the other children, some of whom are not over five years old. Baskets of coal are sent from the ship down the line, passed from one to another, emptied at the foot, and the empty baskets sent back on the children's line. This, he said, is kept up night and day until the work is accomplished and it is surprising how short a time it takes. The most pleasing sight Mr. Burdick saw while on the trip, he said, was the thick fog that greeted him as they passed in at the Golden Gate at San Francisco.

After Mr. Burdick's talk progressive jack straws was played for a short time. Starr A. Burdick, president of the club, succeeded in winning the prize. Refreshments were served.

Extraordinary Trial.

Harrisonburg, Va., Dec. 17.—For unusual features no murder trial in this State ever equalled that which closed with the conviction of Thomas L. Lam here Saturday night for the death of Frank P. Hensley. The punishment was fixed at sixteen years' imprisonment. During the trial two of the witnesses, both relatives of the defendant's wife, were married in court. Mrs. Lam's father, the Rev. Stephen Hensley, in an effort to shield the husband of one daughter testified to the bad character of another daughter. Brothers of the prisoner's wife also testified to the same effect. During the trial Hensley's stepmother became paralyzed and she gave testimony from a cot. Finally the husband of Mrs. Lam's sister became a raving maniac while the trial was in progress as the result of the combined attacks on the character of his wife. One witness, Jackson Wyany, a man eighty years old, was stricken with paralysis while attending the court.

Infant Has No Bones.

New York, Dec. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Teissini, of Caroline street and Castleton avenue, West New Brighton, Staten Island, are parents of a child born Saturday morning which is a freak of nature. The child's limbs are lacking of bone tissue and hang limp and lifeless when the infant is lifted. The limbs at any part can be placed in any position without apparent pain to the child. There is no bone in any joint, and physicians who have examined the babe say it is doubtful if there will be any. Its fingers can be put in any position and will remain so until released. The child's head is abnormally large, yet well shaped. Dr. Frederick Connley, the family physician, said that there is every reason to believe that the child will live, although it is doubtful if it will ever have the use of its limbs. There is not a bone in the limbs nor any tissue that might later form bone, he said. The infant is a boy.

Choir Singer a Bigamist.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Dec. 17.—John Francis Clark, a member of St. Agnes' church choir, at No. 141 East Forty-third street, New York city, was arrested last night as he was returning home from church on a warrant charging him with bigamy. Susan Clark, of No. 97 Ninth avenue, New York city, is the complainant, and alleges that she married the tenor seventeen years ago in Ireland, and that on November 5 he married Miss Bessie Hoctor, of Mount Vernon, without obtaining a divorce. Clark was taken into custody at the entrance of his home by Detective Sergeant Atwell. "Don't tell my wife, for it would break her heart," he said. Although Clark was arrested as he was unlocking the front door of his home, his second wife does not know of his arrest.

Mrs. Waldo Richards Entertains.

Mrs. Waldo Richards, of Boston, appeared before a large assemblage of society people Saturday night at the home of Mrs. J. E. Corlies, of Central avenue, giving a number of her best recitations. OPPOSE CONSOLIDATION

Some City Fathers Against Merger of Municipalities Without Co. Line Change.

POWERS ENLARGED

Commissioners Instructed to Investigate Subject With Annexation As Well As Consolidation.

The first official opposition to the proposed consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield on the part of the Common Council was evidenced last night, when Councilman Daniel put himself on record as against the plan unless it provides for a change of the county lines. The matter has been held in abeyance for some time. North Plainfield, at the suggestion of the Board of Trade, made the first move toward consolidation, and then the Common Council followed suit.

Mr. Daniel was not present at some of the earlier meetings when the matter was discussed, and he took the opportunity last night to put himself on record as against the proposition without a change of county lines. It was not until his amendment, giving the joint committee the power to thoroughly investigate the proposed act of consolidation with a view to changing county lines that the resolution offered by Mr. Buxton was adopted.

At a previous meeting former Mayor Alexander Gilbert communicated with the Common Council on the subject, he having been selected as one of the commissioners to act for Plainfield. At that time he cited the fact that he believed that the commission should have full power to investigate the subject, and he said that if the Common Council would consent to give the commission the desired authority he would agree to serve, otherwise he would not.

It was with a view to giving the commission the authority asked for that Mr. Buxton introduced a resolution, which was adopted after amended by Mr. Daniel. The latter member said that he believed Mr. Gilbert must have had in mind the somewhat limited powers accorded the commission when he wrote to the Common Council and his desire must have been for more authority.

Mr. Tyler expressed himself in accord with Mr. Daniel's views and objected to adopting the resolution in its original form. After much discussion, more or less of a technical character, and during which Mr. Daniel asked to have read all the resolutions and communications bearing on the subject, which were previously presented, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, At the suggestion of the Board of Trade a committee, consisting of representatives from the Board of Trade, from the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, and from the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, was appointed to consider the subject of the consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield under one municipal government, and

"Whereas, Resolutions and recommendations adopted by the said committee were received by this Council and the recommendations of the committee were adopted, and

Whereas, Messrs. Alexander Gilbert and Floyd T. Woodhull were appointed commissioners on consolidation, and

"Whereas, Mr. Gilbert under date of October the 22d has expressed his willingness to serve as commissioner provided the powers expressed in the resolutions appointing said commissioners be enlarged as hereinafter provided;

"Resolved, That this Council does hereby authorize and request the commissioners appointed as aforesaid to fully inquire into and examine into the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed consolidation in accordance with the recommendations of the joint commission of the Board of Trade, the Mayor and Common Council of North Plainfield and the Common Council, of Plainfield, or otherwise and with or without change of county lines; and the plans and methods by which such consolidation might be brought about and to report thereon, with their opinion in the premises as soon as convenient may be."

Lewis Ward.

Lewis Ward, aged seventy-five years, died suddenly Sunday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. V. P. Davis, of Richmond street. He formerly resided on Norwood avenue, but the family moved to Connecticut, returning to Plainfield last summer. Mr. Ward leaves a wife, who is critically ill. The funeral will be held at Mrs. Davis' home tonight at 8 o'clock and interment will be at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Dr. Sydney Titsworth, of Bridgeport, Conn., has returned after spending a few days with his mother on Linden avenue.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BOARD DISCUSSES HEAT MATTERS

ROOMS IN TWO BUILDINGS HAVE BEEN AFFECTED BY THE COLD.

The question of proper heating in both the Watchung and Somerset street schools, occupied the attention of the borough Board of Education for the greater part of the meeting last night. It was reported by Mr. Townsend that rooms 23 and 24 in the old part of the Somerset structure could not be kept at the proper temperature in cold weather and declared that two more radiators should be installed. On motion it was decided to have them put in at a cost of $100. The heating in the building otherwise, that is, the original part, is to undergo a thorough inspection by a competent man.

Mr. Townsend also reported that two rooms in the Watchung school, located on the north and west sides of the building, could not be kept warm even under a forced draught that consumed a half a ton of coal a day. He suggested as a remedy that double windows be installed and the board accepted the proposition. Fourteen such windows will be needed and a carpenter will be secured to furnish estimates.

Mr. Miller, for the finance committee, reported that after paying the past month's warrants, there would be a balance of $7,200 and he made a motion that notes of the board amounting to $6,700 be taken up. The members voted favorably. Mr. Miller also explained that another installment of $17,000 from taxes would be received at the first of the year and that the board would not be cramped.

The report of the building and grounds committee relative to additional lavatories in the Somerset street building was received and discussed at some length.

PROFESSOR HARPER ON SAINTE-BEUVE

TELLS MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB HOW HE OUTGREW ROMANTICISM.

Prof. George McLean Harper, of Princeton University, again ectured before the Monday Afternoon Club yesterday, at the Casino. For a better understanding of Hugo and other leaders of the French romantic school, and of the laws governing the ideal in art, he spoke on the "safe and sane" attitude of Sainte-Beuve, (1804-1869). a French critic and near-poet.

The lecturer devoted some time to reducing the somewhat conflicting ideas of the authorities on the subject as to what was really meant by the terms "classical and "romantic." Having voiced the conclusion that the classic, broadly speaking, was anything of established and recognized excellent in Art, Prof. Harper sketched Staine-Beuve's recantation of the tenets of romanticism and his adoption of the classicists' views. He had seen the dangers and the excessiveness of the romantic school, and became the sanest critic of his day. Sainte-Beuve, the lecturer said, was not personally rancorous in his criticisms, nor jealous, as had sometimes been charged. He developed after leaving journalism to enter the scholastic life, to take a Catholic view of the whole subject. He became completely cured of romanticism, and came to see how his contemporary literary wrkers of that school had wasted their toil and their talents on useless and extravagantly builded works. He felt that they should have striven for fewer and grander works.

SOMERSET CLUB'S BIG AFFAIR STARTS TONIGHT.

House warming Will Open in a Blaze of Glory, So the Press Agent Says.

The Somerset Club's greatest undertaking, a "housewarming" that will last a week, is due to open tonight. Press Agent Dave Carney says it will start off in a "blaze of glory" and will continue blazing in lurid fashion until next Saturday night. A decorative committee has been busy at the club's headquarters, Somerset street and Manning avenue, for the past week and it has been transformed into a veritable fairyland. Without stretching the imagination any, it would be hard to find rooms that have been fixed up prettier.

There will be something doing at the club every night and all manner of attractive features. Those who attend will have an opportunity to secure useful things all the way from a horse to a coal hod for a small outlay. The Four H Quartette will be a feature of the entertainment and something new has been promised for each night.

BUSH OUT OF FIRE DEPT.

Common Council Accepts Resignation of Fireman Injured While Driving Hose Wagon.

COUNCILMANIC ROUTINE

Request For a Change Made in Building Ordinance—Warrant of $78,183.04 For County and State Tax.

Harry C. Bush, who was seriously injured several months ago, while driving to a fire, tendered his resignation as a regular member of the fire department at the meeting of the Common Council, last night, and it was accepted. Mr. Bush's injuries were of such a character that at one time it was thought he would not recover. While his condition is much improved he is not physically strong enough to return to duty and probably never will be.

Tax Collector J. W. Murray presented a renewal of his bond and it was ordered filed.

D. S. Alpaugh, of East Sixth and Sycamore streets, renewed his request of a year ago for electric lights on Sycamore street, and it took the same course as in the first instance, being referred to the incoming Common Council.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company notified the Common Council that two hydrants had been located as directed, one at College place and West Eighth street and the other at College place and West Ninth street.

C. M. Meeker, who has a contract with the city for macadamizing certain streets, and being unable to complete the job on time, asked for an extension of time until April 30, 1907, and it was granted in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported that eleven sewer permits were granted during the past month and the amount together with a sum previously received, making $28.50, had been deposited with the city treasurer.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution authorizing City Treasurer W. F. Arnold to draw a warrant for $78,183.04, Plainfield's share of the State and county tax, and the resolution was adopted.

Mr. Gloak moved that the checks of Warren B. Travell and Peter Morgan, successful bidders for sewer extension work here, be returned to them, as their bonds have been filed with the city clerk. The motion was adopted.

Councilman Frank Randolph presented a letter for Councilman Mellick, who is detained at home by illness, which the latter has received from W. R. Codington, Esq., representing several builders in the city. The letter complained of the stringent rules of the building ordinance which compel builders to secure permission from the Common Council to use cement blocks with an air space. They desire that the building inspector be given power to grant permission for its use. The matter was referred to the incoming Common Council.

The bill of Geo. J. Tobin amounting to $170 for work done at the Industrial Home and which was held up at a previous meeting until it could be investigated, was reported correct by Councilman C. C. Randolph and latter was ordered paid. Mr. Hibbard, chairman of the light committee, reported that the Public Service Corporation had located four lights as ordered.

On the motion of Mr. Gloak the southside sanitary sewer ordinance was adopted on third reading.

As is customary at this time the chairman of each committee referred petitions in his possession to the incoming Common Council, later to be referred to the proper committees. The Common Council will hold a special meeting probably on Friday night, December 28, when the year's business will be closed, preparatory to the new Common Council meeting on New Year's night to organize for 1907.

Before the ball, the possessor of a ticket may see May Irwin in "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" at the theatre, and after the dance—or while it is going on—he may enjoy a delightful supper. If he doesn't dance, the ticketholder will find the dance a show place well worth a visit and a stay.

Elopers Not Here.

The Flemington police called up Chief Kiely yesterday morning and asked him to look for traces of Mahlon Hoagland and Jennie Polhemus, young people of Flemington, who were alleged to have eloped the night before. Chief Hand, of Flemington, thought they might have been married here. Chief Kiely could find no record of their marriage here.

RULE FOR FREEHOLDERS

County Board Must Be Organized on Jan. 1 Under New Law.

CODINGTON'S OPINION

Special Meeting On December 27—Director King Is Likely to Succeed Himself.

Major Benjamin King, director of the Board of Freeholder, said yesterday that beginning next year there would be a new system followed in the organization of the Board in accordance with a law passed at the last Legislature. This law provides for the organization of certain bodies at the beginning of the year, and County Attorney W. R. Codington, of this city, has construed the law to include the Board of Freeholders.

There will be a special meeting of the Board of Freeholders held probably on the last Thursday of this month, December 27, to wind up the affairs of the year, and to listen to a report from County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt. On January 1, 1907, the Board will meet to organize.

Heretofore the firscal year of the Board of Freeholders ended in May, and at that time the county collector made his annual report, and the new board was organized. Now the fiscal year will end on the last day in December and the board will organize the first day in January. Mr. Leavitt will have a semi-annual report to make this time, as six months ago the late County Collector, Edward M. Wood, made his annual report.

The only thing to be done at the meeting January 1, will be the election of a director, and the regular routine of organization. Then the meeting will be adjourned to the first Thursday in January. The indications are that Director King will succeed himself as the head of the county board.

When the law regulating the time of meeting of various bodies came up for consideration, there was a difference of opinion as to whether the Board of Freeholders would be included, and would have to change their periods of meeting and their fiscal year. The question came to County Attorney Codington. It was his oral opinion that the board was included. He will submit a written report on the subject to the board.

AN ODD FATALITY FOLLOWS A FAMILY

THREE GENERATIONS KILLED IN RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

Robert J. Pierson, of Somerville, employed as a bridge builder on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was struck by a Blue Line flyer on the Newark Bay drawbridge at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. His body was hurled into the bay.

This makes the seventh man killed on the drawbridge during the work of construction. The Pierson family has experienced a strange fatality, as three generations have been killed on the railroad.

Pierson's grandfather, Henry Pierson, a farmer, was killed a few years ago while crossing the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks at South Somerville in his carriage. John Pierson, the father of the dead man, while engaged in constructing the block system of the Central Railroad of New Jersey five years ago, was riding on a handcar which was run down by a fast freight. All the men on the car escaped but Pierson, who was instantly killed.

The dead man belonged to the carpenter gang bossed by Enoch Giles, of this city.

Judgments On Proof.

Two judgments on proof were obtained in the district court this morning. William Hunrath, of New York, was awarded $23 in a contract action against the Craig Manufacturing Co. F. J. Blatz appeared for the plaintiff. Porter & Kaufman, who sued Barrett & Stires, on contract, were awarded $73.

A BRIDE AWAITED HIM

Young Lusardi Takes as His Wife Girl Whose Father Demanded $10,000.

MARRIED BY SQUIRE

Miss Emery Came From Newark to Wed—Lusardi Had Been Arrested On Capias.

When Antonio Lusardi, Jr., returned to his fruit store last night, from a trip to New York for Christmas trees, he found a bride awaiting him. Miss Ethel Emery, of Newark, whose father instituted a suit for $10,000 against Mr. Lusardi, for an alleged breach of promise, last week, was there. Mr. Lusardi, who has declared all along that he was desirous of marrying Miss Emery, made good his declaration without delay. Miss Emery having declared formally that she was eighteen years old, which her father has claimed she is not, Mr. Lusardi took her to Justice Hezekiah Hand's home, where they were wedded.

In bringing the suit against Mr. Lusardi, the girl's father acted vigorously. He had a capias issued by a Newark Supreme Court commissioner, and on that Mr. Lusardi was arrested here, and placed under bonds for $4,000, to appear in defense of the action.

Mr. Lusardi said this morning that he made no arrangements with Miss Emery for a meeting yesterday. She came of her own volition, it was said, because she had faith in his declaration that he desired to marry her. She arrived in Plainfield in the afternoon, after Lusardi had gone to the city. She was welcomed by her fiancee's mother, and, chaperoned by the latter, she met him at his place of business when he returned shortly after 9 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Lusardi urged her to marry him immediately if her age was not a bar to the step. She said she had passed her eighteenth birthday, and, fortified by legal advice, Mr. Lusardi took Miss Emery to Justice Hand's house, on East Sixth street, at once. Before the ceremony Miss Emery made formal declaration to the justice that she was of legal age. The marriage was witnessed by Richard Higgins and Miss Pauline Sutterline, friends of the young people. After the ceremony Mr. Lusardi took his bride to his home, in the Voehl flats, East Front street, where they will live, with his mother.

At his place of business this morning, Mr. Lusardi looked as happy as a bridegroom is supposed to be.

"I always intended to marry my wife," he said, "and I am delighted that I have been able to win her. She is the handsomest and finest little girl in the world. Not that I like her, you understand," he protested ingenuously; "anybody would say so." He beamed with conscious pride.

The marriage of Miss Emery to Mr. Lusardi cuts the basis from under the suit, if the bride's declaration as to her age is not disproved. A girl of eighteen can marry without the consent of her parents.

DANIEL W. APPLEGATE DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS.

Passed Away at His Home This Morning From Effects of Pleuro-Pneumonia.

Following an illness of about five days with pleuro-pneumonia, Daniel W. Applegate died at his home on East Fifth street, early this morning. He was fifty-four years old and had lived in Plainfield since a year ago last October, coming here from New Brunswick, where he was widely known. He owned and conducted the large sale and exchange stables on Somerset street, established by Stonewall Jackson, and also had two meat markets, one on Somerset street and the other on South Second street. During his local residence he had made a host of friends and his death came as a great surprise.

Mr. Applegate leaves a wife, three daughters and three sons. All reside in Plainfield with the exception of Mrs. George Schisler, of Trenton, and Alburtis Applegate, of Bound Brook. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

Trinity Commandery Will Attend.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will attend a stated conclave of Jersey Commandery, No. 19, K. T., at East Orange, Friday night, when Washington Commandery, No. 1, of Hartford, Conn., will confer the Order of Malta on Governor Edward C. Stokes. The Women's Club building at East Orange has been secured for the occasion. The members of Trinity Commandery will leave Plainfield Friday night on the 5:53 train. Sir Knight W. A. Pinto is chairman of the committee of arrangements for the trip. The Order of Malta will be conferred in full form.

MAYOR-ELECT ADDRESSING COMMON COUNCIL SOUNDS KEYNOTE OF HIS ADMINISTRATION

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES FOR CO. COMMITTEEMEN

NINE NEW MEMBERS CHOSEN LAST NIGHT WITHOUT ANY OPPOSITION.

Democratic primaries were held last night for the purpose of selecting one member of the Democratic county committee from each election district in the city. This action was necessary because the representatives were not chosen at the time the primaries were held in the fall. At the request of the chairman of the county committee the date for the primaries were fixed for last night.

The First, Third and Fourth wards met at the rooms of the Grocers' Protective Association at Park and North avenue, and the Second ward primary was held at the Bryant Public School. The result follows:

First ward—First district, John P. Owens; Second district, Walter L. Hetfield.

Second ward—First district, Joseph Harrigan; Second district, J. V. F. Dilts.

Third ward—First district, Albert H. Atterbury; Second district, Michael D. O'Keefe.

Fourth ward—First district, Stephen H. Schleif; Second district, Edward J. McCue; Third district, George E. Firstbrook.

MARTINE NOT OUT FOR GOVERNORSHIP

SAYS HE'S THROUGH WITH JOB OF RUNNING FOR OFFICE.

James E. Martine is not a candidate for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination and he does not sanction the booms given him by the press about the State. This fact he made plain in a talk with a Daily Press reporter today. The "farmer-orator" tells the same old story; he has had enough of chasing rain-bows and is through with it. The gubernatorial chair has no attractions for him, he says, although he confesses that he always had a hankering after the Congressional berth.

"As I have repeatedly said," declared Mr. Martine, "it has been the ambition of my life to go to Washington. As for the Governorship, I have no special liking for the office. In the convention which nominated Mr. Seymour four years ago my name was presented by my friends in Union county, but of course I had no show of getting the nomination. I cannot say that I would care for the position even if it were offered me. I have spent my life fighting for Democracy and have been defeated in many battles. But my devotion has never been altered by defeat. I expect to work on the rest of my days for the success of my party's principles; principles which are my religion. As for running for office again, I never expect to do it."

Mr. Martine's boom for the gubernatorial nomination was really started in a letter written by former United States Senator Rufus Blodgett on the occasion of the "farmer-orator's" dinner to the newspaper men of the Fifth Congressional district. Since then it has been taken up by several newspapers and one or two papers have endorsed him.

GETS HIS COMMISSION.

Jury Finds For the Agent In Real Estate Case.

William Grannatt's suit for commission, on the sale of a house on West Fourth street, against Bertha Allegaire, was tried before a jury of twelve men, of which former Sheriff Coriell was foreman, in the district court this morning. The jury awarded the plaintiff full commission, amounting to $61.

The defendant claimed that the sale was not brought about by the real estate man, but by herself. The plaintiff brought forward proof that he consummated the sale. F. J. Blatz conducted his case.

Case, organist, will have charge, assisted by E. J. Fitzhugh, of New York. No cards of admission will be required.

Mr. Fisk Tells Them They Represent No Faction ane Must Have No Cliques.

OFFERS SUGGESTIONS

"Don't Let Us Have a 'Big Six,'" He Declares—Advises As to Some Needful Committees.

By an unanimous vote of the members, Mayor-elect Charles Joel Fisk appeared on the floor of the Common Council chamber to address that body last night. In a very short space of time, Mr. Fisk outlined his policies as the chief executive during the coming year. He bluntly told the city fathers what he would expect from them and what they could expect from him. In addition he offered several suggestions regarding needed committees in the Common Council. Mr. Fisk's remarks follow:

"I thank you for the courtesy extended to address you as members of the incoming Common Council. There are one or two things that come to me now and of which I would like to speak to you. No man is here to represent any particular faction, we have all been elected on the same ticket and are expected to represent the citizens of Plainfield. I trust that no petty jealousy will interfere with you in organizing for the city's best interests.

"There are certain committees of long standing, the finance, street and sewer, fire and building, lights and trees, alms and public affairs, all of which are important. The license committee is to care for the licenses, and in the main its business is of short duration. I would suggest that that committee be consolidated with the police committee.

"I would also suggest that you straighten out our assessments and taxes which are far from being equalized. There is a great deal of dissatisfaction in this respect and I think that the matter should be thoroughly investigated. When we know that we are right, we can make others do right. The county and State boards of taxation are with us in this matter. They will join with us and help us in getting the right amount of county taxes.

"We don't want any society or the Plainfield Protective Association to come and tell us what we ought to do, and I would suggest that we have a committee to look into the assessment and tax matter which might be called a 'tax committee.' Another committee is needed. From time to time things are creeping into legislation affecting the various cities. The State constitution does not allow special legislation, the laws being intended to affect all cities of the certain class alike. Some one with an axe to grind slips in a bill and later it 'pops' up and we find that we must act in accordance with it. I would appoint a committee to be known as a 'legislative committee,' or 'laws and ordinance committee,' to watch all State legislation and city affairs, and I would suggest co-operation with the corporation counsel. He is always willing to render assistance, but cannot be expected to look after every little detail. If we call his attention to various things as they reach us he will gladly give assistance.

"Another suggestion I would make is that the finance committee, which has no provision for a board of estimate, it always being the rule for each committee to get all that it can in the way of appropriation, be composed of the chairmen of the street, police, fire and building, light and trees, with the chairman of the finance committee, to co-operate in securing a fair apportionment of the moneys to be divided, and I would also suggest that the Mayor and city treasurer be members ex-officio of that committee, to aid in making up the estimate.

"In the organization of the Common Council you know your business and I do not wish to suggest to you who your president shall be or even the chairman of the various committees. Of course, the president appoints his committees, but in your caucus don't say 'I'll vote for your chairman if you will vote for mine.' Don't tie the president down. Trust your president, and if you feel that you cannot do so, put some one in the chair that you can trust.

"There are many important mat-

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BOWLING.

A baseball player has his peculiar motions, his poses, his thousand virtues and his thousand and one faults, so has the devotee of the bowling alley. If you don't believe it just take a "drop in" on Warry McLaughlin's alleys when the balls are rolling and the pins are falling.

Chief of Police Kiely, for instance, although handicapped by a surplus of avoirdupois, is all there when it comes to banging the pins over. The local Sherlock Holmes, despite his over supply of tissue, is one of the most graceful bowlers to be seen in operation. He has a bend when he stars the ball down the alley—of just the angle that May Irwin would give up a fortune to possess. The ball released, he recovers himself and stands in an erect position. If all the pins go down he smiles, takes his seat, and resumes operations on a fat cigar. If a single pin stands after a timely swat, he simply unloads a frown, of the third degree variety, and says "darn it," and tries for a spare. If the No. 7 and 10 pins are left standing he generally responds by "what do you think of that," but never does he say what he really thinks. The Chief is rated as one of the best bowlers in town, and it is something unusual for him to roll anything less than 200, except perhaps when there is a national champion around, like Johnny Voorheis, for instance.

Then there is his partner in the two-man tourney, City Judge Runyon. The Judge is considered as one of the local experts in pin shooting. He has no special frills, nor is he a fancy roller. The Judge takes bowling as a serious matter and when he assumes his place on the alleys for execution his genial smile is lost. A spirit of a peculiar sort of solemnity hovers over his moves. He poses like an amateur elocutionist who recites "Asleep at the Switch"—it is a very impressive scene; then he shoots the ball for the right hand pocket. His aim is generally accurate, as his numerous high scores attest. He shares his hard luck as well as the rest of the craft, but he never complains. For instance, he never exhibits his "60-day wife-beating" feeling when it falls to his lot to land a split. He doesn't show his anger, but simply passes the matter off by biting his lips, without telling anybody of it of course. Summing it all up, the Judge, as a bowler in action, indulges in his favorite winter pastime, on the same lines as one will find a sentimental female reading Longfellow's Evangeline — not a smile—no never.

Despite the fact that the town 'squire is classified as a serious bowler, he never is known to make any serious breaks on the alleys, such as rolling poddles. Just one more characteristic of the "squire," he is a bully score keeper, and likes to attend to the job while waiting for his turn.

"Sam" Cunningham, late of Philadelphia, but now ticket distributor at "Billy" Counihan's playhouse, features his bowling with an electric sprint before delivering the ball and several of the local pin knight brigade have vainly tried to emulate this stunt. According to Sam, this trick was invented by Dunbar, the Philadelphia champion, and is used with success by Eddie Horan and Bill Trucks, other Philadelphia bowlers of national reputation. Well to get down to Sam's ability as a pin smasher he is developing into the "pippin" class. His ball is a beauty, a sort of a cross alley affair, and when it finds the right spot the pins invariably go down like chaff before the wind. When the pins drop Sam is happy, but when splits appear he becomes very disconsolate.

A SQUARE-DEAL MAYOR.

His frank and welcome address before the Common Council last night will win for Mayor-elect Fisk nothing but words of praise and will insure for him the reasonable confidence of the people that he will discharge the duties of his office with fidelity and to the very best of his ability. In his own peculiar way he briefly outlined what he would expect from the city fathers and what they could expect from him. When he had finished, the conviction was brought home to every man within the range of his voice, no matter what his factional tendencies might be, that the new Mayor is most sincere in his purpose to be guided in his public acts solely by what he considers the best for all the people.

That Mr. Fisk will have nothing to do with petty jealousies or narrow self-seeking interests, he demonstrated most clearly. He made it plain that while he desired the support of the Common Council, under no circumstances would he look with favor upon any "Big Six" or majority clique. Each member of that body in his opinion should aim to serve the people as a whole and neither he nor they should at any time pick plums for others than those whom they deem to be essentially qualified. As he stated, there are many important matters to come up next year and a good working Council is absolutely necessary.

The suggestions made that the Common Council create two new committees, one to watch the bills introduced at Trenton and the other to properly adjust assessments and equalize taxes, should meet with popular approval. Frequently measures are introduced in the Legislature that seriously affect Plainfield and on one or two occasions the city fathers have found themselves embarrassed by their passage. To avoid such unexpected troubles, the proposed committee is suggested. The purpose of the other committee is to correct the present unsatisfactory conditions in tax matters, something of great need just at this time.

Mr. Fisk is out for "the square deal" and we feel confident that the taxpayers will get it under his administration.

What are you going to do about the overhead wires about the centre of the city, Mr. Fisk? Don't you regard the large one at Second street and Park avenue, carrying the trolley feed wires, as both ugly and dangerous?

FISK ADDRESSES COUNCIL

ters to come up next year and I want a good working council, a friendly one. I don't expect every member of the Common Council to think alike, but the worst thing that could happen to the city would be a '6 to 5' combination. Don't let us have a 'Big Six.' I will give you of my time and let us carry on the business of the city right and to the best interest of it. I am not here to pull anyone's political chestnuts out of the fire and I will not do it at any time. After you organize I will be ready to do all that I can to help you."

"Rip Van Winkle" Tonight.

Admirers of the late Joseph Jefferson,—and their name is legion—should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear Mr. George Kiernan read the play made famous by the great actor, "Rip VanWinkle," at the Casino tonight. Mr. Kiernan received the highest praise from Mr. Jefferson for his artistic and truthful interpretation of the several characters of the play and in the title role, "coached" him to a point of perfection. Those who heard Mr. Kiernan in "The Rivals" last week were highly impressed by his excellence as a dramatic reader, and will be more than repaid by attendance tonight.

CENTRAL BOOSTS ITS PRICE.

Charges Westfield $1,904.04 for $733 Storm Sewer.

Westfield, Dec. 18.—The Town Council assembled Monday night with the expectation of transacting routine business. So far as known nothing out of the ordinary was scheduled to take place, but each member of the board gazed in wonderment as the clerk read a bill from the Central Railroad Company for $1,914.04, for constructing a storm sewer. The company had agreed to construct the sewer for $733, and the Town Fathers have not yet awakened from their surprise.

The contract with the Central for a storm sewer near Broad street, which was to drain Clark street and vicinity, was entered into on March 21, and was to be 24-inch sewer. The price of construction was $733. The matter was referred to the finance committee, Engineer Edward Vars and the Council's attorney.

MILITARY WEDDING.

Miss Elizabeth Kenny Marries Edmund Dieter in Westfield.

Westfield, Dec. 18.—The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Mildred Kenny and Edmund Dieter took place yesterday at the home of the bride's father, Albert J. Kenny, 63 South Broad street. Miss Mary Kenny, twin sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Edmund Kenny, a brother of the bride, acted as groomsman. The Rev. C. B. Johnes, of ewark, cousin of the bride's mother, performed the ceremony, according to the Episcopal service.

The bride wore white satin and the bridegroom wore the uniform of a first lieutenant of the United States Marine Corps. About 150 guests were present from Newark, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, New York and Westfield. After a wedding trip the groom will join his command in Cuba.

Protected Theatre Patrons.

Exercising his usual foresight, Manager Counihan had a large canopy before the New Plainfield theatre last night for the protection of patrons passing to and from carriages. It was greatly appreciated by the attendants as it was stormy before and after the performance. NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

There has been a great demand for houses during the past week. If some enterprising builder would erect eighteen or twenty houses they could be easily rented, and from prices ranging from $12 to $15 per month. Every house in the village is occupied, and several families had to seek houses elsewhere.

Four more days and school will close for the Christmas holidays. The children have prepared a fine programme, appropriate to the season, and will entertain the parents and friends of the school in a most pleasing manner.

Prayer service as usual this evening at 7:45, led by the pastor, Rev. A. C. T. Attlee. The nineteenth Psalm will be the theme for consideration.

The warm rain of yesterday has put an end to the skating and if the weather continues there will be no skating Christmas.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT AT THE IRVING SCHOOL.

Pupils Will Present a Cantata and Other Appropriate Selections.

Miss Petrie, principal of the Irving School, has prepared an elaborate Christmas entertainment to be given in the assembly hall Thursday night, at 7:45 o'clock. The cantata "Santa's Substitutes," the chief feature of the programme, which will be as follows:

Chorus, "Christmas Bells," pupils of the fourth and fifth grades; recitation, "Welcome," Mary Smith; chorus, "Spirit of Christmas;" exercise and song, "Santa's Home," pupils of Third A. Cantata—"Mrs. Santa Claus," in part one, Anna Lotz; in part two, Mabel Hunter; rainbow fairies, twelve pupils of fourth and fifth grades; "Christmas Candles," six pupils of fourth year A; exercise and son, "We're Good as Good Can Be," given by pupils of second C and fourth C grades.

Part second—Song, "Lullaby," pupils of fourth B grade; chorus by all the fairies, "None More Welcome than Santa;" recitation and song, "Mrs. Santa Claus," Ella Kline; chorus by pupils of fourth C and fairies; song, "Little Nurses," pupils of third B grade; duet, "Never Too Old for Christmas," assisted by chorus; exercise and song, "We'er Waiter Boys," pupils of fourth C and fifth A grades; chorus, "Sleighbell Song," school; "Mr. Santa Claus," Bradford Willard; "A Sweet Good Night to All."

BOTH Y. M. C. A. TEAMS LOSE TO ST. GEORGES.

Rounded almost into form from the crippled shape of a month ago, the Y. M. C. A. basketball five came within an ace of defeating the fast St. George team, of New York, last night. The score was 34 to 30. The game was played at the local gymnasium.

The second team also lost, 30 to 25, and the story of one game is that of the other. Both contests were fast and pretty. The visitors were just a trifle too fast for the home players, and aggravatingly able to pull away just enough from the overhauling that threatened at every stage. Several times the first team had a chance to salt the game away, but at critical stages the visitors always showed a margin of superiority sufficient to hold the home players down.

SUSPECT COMMITTED.

Alleged Hold-Up Man Faces Conviction, Police Chief Says.

George Saeger, charged with being the hold-up man who robbed and shot Leo Slonim, was committed to the county jail, this morning, by Judge Runyon, to await the action of the grand jury. He repeated his declaration of his innocence and waived examination.

Chief Kiely has strengthened his case against the suspect, and is confident of convicting him. Saeger will be taken to the Elizabeth jail this afternoon. He says he has no money for a lawyer and will ask the court to assign one.

Council's Caucus Postponed.

After twenty minutes discussion, the members of the Common Council last night postponed their caucus without agreeing upon a candidate for president of that body. The majority of the members desired to have Councilman G. P. Mellick present when the selection is made and for that reason another call will be issued when Mr. Mellick is able to attend. It is understood that Mr. Tyley is not a candidate and Mr. Tolles is likely to have little opposition for re-election. He says he will accept, provided no promises are exacted from him.

Miss Barrymore Finds Favor.

A large and fashionable audience greeted Miss Ethel Barrymore on the occasion of her first visit to this city at the New Plainfield theatre last night. She was presented by Charles Frohman in J. M. Barrie's delightful play, "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" and both production and star found favor with the select gathering. Miss Barrymore's acting reflects the genius that was possessed by her talented father and mother, Maurice Barrymore and Georgie Drew, and surrounded by a very efficient company that included Bruce McRae, the drama proved one of the season's most acceptable offerings.

Baxter To Go.

Rumor has it today that Governor Stokes will not reappoint Prof. Charles J. Baxter, formerly of North Plainfield, as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, when his term expires this winter, and that a general shake-up of the State Board of Education will follow, it being generally alleged that the department has not been up to the standard for some time. No one has yet been selected for Mr. Baxter's place. No specific changes have been decided on among the board members, but radical changes will be made.

Vigilant Cop.

The family of Jacob Cose, of Grant avenue, went to bed last night without locking up the house. Patrolman Stillwell, vigilant and careful, detected the lockless state of the house at midnight and aroused the sleepers. Then Mr. Cose locked up.

Dr. Schenck's Condition.

The condition of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck remains about the same. He had a poor night but is resting comfortably today.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, Author of The Spenders

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

The spring of '56 found them again digging roots and resorting to all the old pitiful makeshifts of famine.

"This," declared Joel Rae, to the starving people, "is a judgment of Heaven upon us for permitting Gentile aggression. It is meant to clench into our minds the God's truth that we must stand by our faith with the arms of war if need be."

"Brother Rae is just a little mite soul-proud," Brigham thereupon confided to his counsellors, "and I wouldn't wonder if the Lord would be glad to see some of it taken out of him. Anyway, I've got a job for him that will just about do it."

Brigham sent for him the next day and did him the honor to entrust to him an important mission. He was to go back to the Missouri river and bring on one of the hand-cart parties that were to leave there that summer. The three years of famine had left the Saints in the valley poor, so that the immigration fund was depleted. The oncoming Saints, therefore, who were not able to pay their own way, were this summer, instead of riding in ox-carts, to walk across the plains and mountains, and push their belongings before them in hand-carts. It had become Brigham's pet scheme, and the Lord had revealed to him that it would work out auspiciously. Joel prepared to obey, though it was not without aversion that he went again to the edge of the Gentile country.

He was full of bitterness while he was obliged to tarry on the banks of the Missouri. The hatred of those who had persecuted him and his people, bred into him from boyhood, flashed up in his heart with more fire than ever. Even when a late comer from Nauvoo told him that Prudence Corson had married Capt. Girnway of the Carthage Grays, two years after the exodus from Nauvoo, his first feeling was one of blazing anger against the mobocrats rather than regret for his lost love.

"They moved down to Jackson county, Missouri, too," concluded his informant, thus adding to the flame. They had gone to set up their home in the very Zion that the Gentiles with so much bloodshed had wrested from the Saints.

Even when the first anger cooled and he could face the thing calmly in all its deeper aspects, he was still very bitter. While he had stanchly kept himself for her, cherishing with a single heart all the old memories of her dearness, she had been a wife these seven years,—the wife, moreover, of a mob-leader whose minions had put them out of their home, and then wantonly tossed his father like a dead branch into the waters. She had loved this uniformed murderer—his little Prue—perhaps borne him children, while he, Joel Rae, had been all too scrupulously true to her memory, fighting against even the pleased look at a woman; fighting—only the One above could know with what desperate valor—against the warm-hearted girl with the gray eyes and the red lips, who laughed in her knowledge that she drew him—fighting her away for a sentimental figment, until she had married another.

Now when he might have let himself turn to her, his heart freed of the image of that yellow-haired girl so long cherished, this other was the wife of Elder Pixley—the fifth wife—and an unloving wife as he knew.

She had sought him before the marriage, and there had been some wholly frank and simple talk between them. It had ended by his advising her to marry Elder Pixley so that she might be saved into the Kingdom, and by her replying, with the old reckless laugh, a little dry and strained, and with the wonderful gray eyes full upon him,—"Oh, I'll marry him! Small difference to me what man of them I marry at all,—now!"

And while he, by a mighty effort, had held down his arms and let her turn away, the woman for whose memory he did it was the wife of an enemy, caring nothing for his fidelity, sure to feel not more than amused pity for him should she ever know of it. Surely, it had been a brave struggle—for nothing.

But again the saving thought came that he was being tried for a purpose, for some great work. And now it seemed that the time of it must be near. As to what it was there could be little question: it must be to free his people forever from Gentile aggression or interference. Everything pointed to that. He was to be entrusted with great powers, and be made a Lion of the Lord to lead them to their rightful glory.

CHAPTER XIII.

How the Saints Were Brought to Repentance.

He put his torch to the tinder of irreligion at the first Sunday meeting after his return. There were no premonitions, no warnings, no signs.

A few of the Elders had preceded him to rejoice at the escape of the last hand-cart party from death in the mountains; and Brigham, after giving the newcomers some practical hints about their shelter during the winter now upon them, had invited Elder Rae to address the congregation.

He arose and came uncertainly forward, apparently weak, able hardly to stand without leaning upon the desk in front of him; his face waxen and drawn, hollowed at the cheeks and temples, his long hands thin to transparency. Life was betrayed in him only by the eyes. These burned darkly, far back under his brows, and flashed fiercely, as his glance darted swiftly from side to side.

At first he spoke weakly and slowly, his opening words almost inaudible, so that the throng of people before him leaned forward in sympathetic intentness, and silence became absolute in the great hall except for the high quavering of his tones. But then came a miracle of reinvigoration. Little by little his voice swelled until it was full, sonorous, richly warm and compelling, the words pouring from him with a fluency that enchained. Little by little his leaning, drooping posture of weakness became one of towering strength, the head flung back, the gestures free and potent. Little by little his burning eyes seemed to send their flash and glow through all his body, so that he became a creature of life and fire.

They heard each word now, but still they leaned forward as when he spoke at first, inaudibly—caught thrilled and breathless in his spell, even to the Elders, Priests, and Apostles sitting near him. Nor was his manner alone impressive. His words were new. He was calling them sinners and covenant-breakers, guilty of pride, covetousness, contention, lying, stealing, moral uncleanness—and launching upon them the curse of Israel's God unless they should repent.

Such was the opening gun in what became known as the "reformation." The conditions had been ripe for it, and in that very moment a fever of repentance spread through the 2,000 people who had cowered under his words. Alike with the people below, the leaders about him had been fired with his spirit, and when he sat down each of them arose in turn and echoed his words, denouncing the people for their sins and exhorting them to repentance.

After another hour of this excitement, priests and people became alike demoralized, and the meeting broke up in a confusion of terror.

As the doors of the tabernacle flew open, and the Saints pushed out of that stifling atmosphere of denunciation, a cry came to the lips of the dozen that first escaped:

"To the river—the waters of baptism!"

The words were being taken up by others until the cry had run back through the crowd to the leaders, still talking in excited groups about the pulpit. These comprehended when they heard it, and straightway a line of conscience-stricken Saints was headed toward the river:

There in the icy Jordan, on that chill December afternoon, when the snows lay thick on the ground, the leaders stood and buried the sinful ones anew in the cleansing waters. From the sinners themselves came cries of self-accusation; from the crowd on the banks came the strains of hymns to fortify them for the icy ordeal and the public confession.

A comedy entering upon its twelfth successive season must have merit. The New York Herald had the following, concerning "A Romance of Coon Hollow" when it was produced at the Fourteenth Street Theatre in September, 1894: "It is styled a romantic comedy, but it has a melodramatic flavor, being provided with thrilling incidents and exciting situations, and embracing some very realistic mechanical effects which served to enthuse the spectators. The piece was well staged, with every attention paid to detail. The scenes representing 'Coon Hollow,' the steamboat race, and the cotton compress in operation were very realistic, and elicited merited applause, while the negro dances and choruses in the third act awoke the audience to enthusiasm. Some very beautiful and novel electrical effects were introduced." "Coon Hollow," with the original New York scenery, including a troupe of colored dancers and singers, is announced for appearance at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Regarding "A Night in Town," which plays at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, Mr. Ashton Stevens, dramatic editor of the San Francisco "Examiner," has this to say: "A farce comedy from the Italian is a new wrinkle, so far as the name goes, and that's what appeared at the Columbia last night before a huge audience and with unmistakable success. It is called 'A Night in Town,' and it makes people laugh." Italy, through the apt adaptation of Joseph W. Standish, has supplied a role that fits closer than a wig. The character is named David Scarem, and the cigarette habit has gone to his pate. He is constantly pursued or attended by a Dutch dialectician and doctor, who gives him treatment via the hypnotic eye. For free and easy idiocy, this Roman farce comedy captures the asylum. It is delightfully grotesque.

The free play of honest hearts in the great West, always a rich source of good plays, has been drawn on for "Big Hearted Jim," the successful comedy drama that Klimt & Gazzolo will bring to the New Plainfield theatre December 24. Jim Samon, sheriff of Medecine Lodge, Montana, in the '80's, is the leading part and the sort to hold the sympathy and interest of an audience. He is a bluff, honest, fearless, kind-hearted westerner. There is much humor and many strong scenes abound throughout the play.

"I have known cases where the possession of a Life Insurance policy helped young men to credit for many times the amount of the value of the policy because of what the possesession of the policy meant to those who gave them credit. And I have known instances where the whole question of giving young men credit turned on the fact that they carried insurance policies."

FOWLER DRAFTED BILL

Fifth District's Congressman Father of Measure Providing for Elastic Currency.

AMENDED OF COURSE

Agreement Reached Yesterday By Committee On Banking and Currency On Credit Currency Bill.

The House committee on banking and currency, after a long session at Washington yesterday, reached an agreement on a form of bill which is intended to provide an elastic currency. The measure can hardly be said to conform to the ideas advanced by Secretary Shaw in his hearing before the committee. It may be introduce today. It is based largely upon the recommendations of the Bankers' Association, which the Secretary of the Treasury declared unscientific and insufficient and which, in his opinion, would not meet the situation.

The measure was originally drafted by Chairman Charles N. Fowler, of the Fifth, New Jersey, Congressional District, but has been amended. The principal change made is one imposing a tax of 3 per cent instead of 2½ per cent., upon the issue of credit notes.

The commission also changed the last section, where the limitation was entirely removed, and it is now provided in the bill that the banks which are desirous of taking out new circulation may reduce their present bond secured circulation to 62½ per cent. of their capital.

The bill provides that any national banking association which has been in business one year and has a surplus fund equal to20 per cent. of its capital may take out for issue and circulation without deposit of government bonds notes to be known as "national bank guaranteed credit notes." The amount may be equal to 40 per cent. of the amount of its national bank notes at any time outstanding, but shall not exceed 25 per cent. of the bank's capital. The tax imposed is 1½ per cent. each half year.

Under the terms of the bill national banks may take out a further amount of credit notes equal to 12½ per cent. of their capital, but shall pay an annual tax of 5 per cent. upon the average amount of such notes in circulation. The tax imposed is to be used as a guarantee fund to redeem the noes of failed banks.

The total amount of notes issued by any banking association, including guaranteed credit notes, shall not exceed the amount of paid up capital. The comptroller is to designate certain convenient cities for current daily redemption of credit notes.

The last section of the bill provides that a bank "desiring to take out national guaranteed credit notes and having notes outstanding in excess of 62½ per cent. of its paid up capital, to secure the payment of which United States bonds have been deposited may upon the deposit of lawful money redeem such excess without reference to the limitation of $3,000,000 each month, as prescribed in the existing National Bank law."

Justice Mundy's Court.

The Natural Carbonic Gas Company, of New York, secured a verdict of $82.40 against the Plainfield Spring Water Company, in Justice Mundy's court yesterday, on a note. Preparations had been made for a stubborn defense, but the defendant's lawyers learned at the last minute that the plaintiff's case was too strong to be fought and abandoned the battle. H. C. Runyon was the plaintiff's lawyer.

LAWYERS EXCHANGE THRUSTS IN CIVIL COURT

JUDGE NEWCORN RAPS FOR ORDER AND ENFORCES PEACE.

Sharp passagers between the lawyers marked the trial of the contract case of Louis C. Morel against Charles E. Drake, in the District Court yesterday afternoon. It was one of the liveliest hearings of the court's short history.

Morel sued to recover for plumbing work done on Drake's house, West Fourth street. John P. Owens, lawyer for Morel, expected only a straight contract defense, and he was put out when W. L. Hetfield, Jr., counsel for the defendant, put in a claim for recoupment as an offset. Drake contended that Morel's work was so faulty as to damage the house and put him to expense.

Mr. Hetfield withdrew the recoupment claim after a passage at arms, but later on in the case Judge Newcorn suggested that the case would be cleared up better if the claim were allowed to remain in. Against Mr. Owens' protest, the claim was again incorporated in the defense. Mr. Owens took exception to the court's ruling, and the exception was granted.

The exchange of shafts over the return of the recoupment claim into the case was warm.

"The whole trouble with you," observed Mr. Hetfield pleasantly, "is that the recoupment surprised you, and you yelled like a stuck pig."

"Well, we'll go on with the case," retorted Mr. Owens with a snort, "and I'll yell louder."

The scandalized court rapped for order, and there was peace for a while. A few minutes later the clashing attorneys brought another judicial rebuke on themselves by arguing questions of evidence over their table.

"Gentlemen," said the judge softly, "you might submit those questions to the court." Sudden peace again fell.

The hearing was long and exhaustive. Judge Newcorn reserved his decision.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS THE HOUSE WARMING

SOMERSET CLUB'S AFFAIR STARTS OFF WITH EVERY ELEMENT OF SUCCESS.

With a blaze of lights and plenty of good music and congeniality, the Somerset Club's housewarming opened last night. It is being conducted in the organization's rooms at Somerset street and Manning avenue and will continue until Saturday night. Visitors were plentiful and the affair started off with every element of success.

An executive committee composed of John Schroope, Captain William C. Smith, Fred Kohler and Peter Emmons, together with a corps of assistants "received" the guests and made them feel at home. They found lots to hold their interest, not the least of which are the handsome decorations, which have transformed the main room into a veritable fairyland. Suhr's orchestra dispensed popular airs all evening and there were several informal vocal solos and speeches.

The basement of the building has been made into a "rathskeller" and it did a thriving business in the retailing of sweet cider and soft drinks. There are articles displayed for sale upstairs and in some respects the housewarming resembles a fair. Various entertainment features are to be given for the remainder of the nights.

Beside the executive committee, the members of the club who are in charge are the following: Finance committee, H. M. Cook, E. P. T. Smith, Henry Zimmerman; house committee, Robert Trewin, W. Juillard, George Ball and L. C. Kline; advertising, W. L. Smalley, Jr., John Wirth; music, Grover Schuck, John Doud and William McCullough.

Rush in Tax Office.

During the past few days Tax Collector John W. Murray, Jr., has been enjoying a regular holiday rush that would cheer the heart of any merchant in the city. Everybody is anxious to pay his or her taxes before they become delinquent, which will be after 12 o'clock midnight tomorrow. On Monday the receipts amounted to $40,000 and it is believed that today's returns will exceed them by $10,000. Tomorrow will be a very heavy day at the tax office and Mr. Murray has arranged to have it open until late in the evening to give everyone a chance to settle.

PLANS FOR TROLLEY DEFERS 'BUS SCHEME

STAGE LINE IN MEANTIME BETWEEN PLAINFIELD AND SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Persistent reports that trolley lines are to be constructed for service between South Plainfield and this city have given pause to the promoters of the proposed automobile 'bus line between the two points. The promoters, who live in South Plainfield, have heard that land is actually being surveyed for a line to run through Bound Brook, New Market, Simptown, South Plainfield, Metuchen and Plainfield, and they are beginning to hope again that the 'bus line will be unnecessary.

Whether trolley or automobile line, some change from exisiting conditions is certainly necessary, the South Plainfielders protest. The route followed by South Plainfield school children in getting to school in Plainfield is instanced in connection with the agitation for better facilities. The children travel by the Lehigh Railroad to Bound Brook, and change there to the Central Railroad for the second stage of a backward journey to Plainfield. They travel a distance of sixteen miles by railroad to reach a city only two and a half miles away in a direct line.

It is reported that a stage line will be run between the two places during the winter, to furnished some sort of transportation facilities until it developes whether the people are to have a trolley line or a motor line.

Hold-up Man Out on Bail.

Jesse Tyrell, of South Plainfield, who was accused of holding up George Beckes and Robert Kyle, also of South Plainfield, on Park avenue, early in December, was arraigned in the Union County Court this morning. Through the efforts of his counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., Tyrell was released on $500 bail. At the time of the holdup Tyrell got sixteen cents from Kyle. A few days later Tyrell was arrested on East Front street, admitted the charge and was sent to Elizabeth.

BIG LAND BOOM HELD UP

Reclaimers of Hackensack Meadows Cannot Secure Necessary Riparian Rights.

A MARSHY TRACT NOW

Riparian Leasehold Not Enough, Says Wilbur C. Fisk—What Improvement Would Mean.

Unless there is a decided change in the present attitude regarding riparian rights and privileges in New Jersey, the immediate development of hundreds of acres of marshy wastes, now unfit for any purpose whatever and consequently of no practical value, may have to be postponed if not altogether abandoned, according to the men who have invested capital in the big real estate operation on the Hackensack meadows. The tract in question covers more than 3,500 acres; principally between the Hackensack and Passaic rivers. It is more than four miles in length from north to south and is three miles wide in one part. Were the authorities to grant the promoters of the huge real estate undertaking the riparian rights which they seek, the claim is made that it would mean much for the interests of Northern Jersey. On the other hand, should these rights be withheld, the men interested declare that a good part of this great territory may remain unclaimed for many years to come.

Some four or five years ago, the first steps were taken towards the development of the meadows. Since the N. J. Terminal Dock and Improvement Co. came into the control of this property, for which they planned a great future, the work has been going on steadily. Thousands of dollars have been expended in filling in the sunken lands. Naturally the progress has been slow for the work is attended with many difficulties. Up to the present time, however, approximately 150 acres have been reclaimed. This leaves 3,350 yet to be filled in. The work is now at a standstill, the energies of those interested being bent at present in the direction of obtaining what they claim to be but proper recognition from the State Riparian Commission and the riparian investigators. Wilbur C. Fisk, a director of the company, appeared before the riparian probers at Trenton the other day and outlined in detail the purposes of the promoters. He declared among other things that the present attitude of the State in withholding the grant of riparian rights has placed an almost insurmountable difficulty to his firm and that unless such rights could be purchased it would be almost impossible to bring the tract to the use for which it is intended when reclaimed. A riparian leasehold, he argued, would be of little benefit. In his opinion, he said, it was necessary for the owners to acquire legal title in order to realize success for their big undertaking.

The plan is to make the entire marshy meadows available for factory sites. It is claimed that as such they would have almost unsurpassable advantage and in a very short time would be entirely occupied by industrial plants. Seventy-five per cent. of the trunk line traffic to and from New York pass over these meadows. The Erie, the Lackawanna, the Pennsylvania and the Jersey Central all have lines running across them. Fuel and other supplies could be had by boat, which would make the location doubly attractive. The water front on the Passaic extends approximately two miles and on the Hackensack almost four miles. At the present time, the meadows are two feet below high water mark. But when the land is reclaimed, its surface will be three feet above that water mark. Up to the present time, the dirt used for refilling purposes has been brought largely from Bay Ridge. A part, however, has come from a basin which the developers found necessary to dig in the Passaic river.

To a Daily Press man, Wilbur Fisk yesterday explained what the improvement would mean to the State and why in his opinion so much importance is attached to the riparian rights. He declared that while he had the utmost faith in the riparian board and the investigators, he believed it is unjust to his firm and to the people at large to tie up the work by delay in passing the riparian titles.

"In their present condition," said Mr. Fisk, "the meadows are of very little value. They cannot be used for any purpose that would increase the revenues of the State or furnish employment to the people. In fact they are a menace to health and a decided drawback to material progress. Should we be accorded the privilege of buying the necessary riparian rights and thus be able to make the section marketable for the purpose for which we intend it, within but a

REAR END TRAIN CRASH

Empty West Bound Coaler Strikes Local Freight Opposite Netherwood Station.

ENGINEER AT FAULT

Mistook Signals Displayed for Another Track For Those of His Own—No One Hurt.

Mistaking the signals set for another track for those of his own, Engineer Anthony Henry, of the New Jersey Central, sent a heavy coal train at high speed into the rear of the local freight train opposite the Netherwood station at 5:10 this morning. A crash followed that aroused slumbering residents blocks away and beside badly wrecking Henry's engine, demolished two loaded freight cars and five steel gondolas. They were hurled in all directions, tearing up the main west bound track for a distance of 150 feet and blocked the west bound freight track. Although the wrecking crew with a steam derrick was quickly on the scene it was after 12 o'clock this noon before regular traffic was resumed.

Henry had charged of a west bound coal train but contrary to his custom, was instructed to take the west bound passenger track. He was following the local freight, known as No. 69, which was also on the passenger track and which stopped near the Herckman street yard entrance to cross over after the morning mail train had passed. The latter train always takes the outside track so that it can leave off baggage cars at the Plainfield station.

Henry was watching the block signals from his engine, one of the big hog type and numbered 462, but somehow or other conceived the idea that he was on the outside track. The lights gave a clear path for it and he was bowling along unconscious of the fact that he should have taken the warning signal displayed for the inside track. He did not realize his danger until almost upon the stalled freight, when the flagman waved his lantern and yelled at him to stop. He reversed his lever and stuck to his post in an effort to avoid the collision but without result. The caboose of the head train was crushed like an egg shell and the two freights next to it were reduced to kindling wood. They were filled with bales of goods that were tossed down the embankment.

Henry escaped harm as the front of the engine took almost the entire shock. The impact badly wrecked the boiler and lifted the huge affair from the rails, forcing the rear end down into the tender. It remained upright, however, and was gotten into condition for hauling to the repair shop after several hours' work.

All west bound trains were held up for an hour after the accident but by 7 o'clock they were running around with only slight delay. The New York morning trains used the east bound freight track and they were gotten through on schedule time. It required the services of several of the company's expert dispatchers to handle the rush on the two tracks but it was accomplished without any great inconvenience to the commuters.

A Lingering Jag.

Michel Petuto, a laborer, who lives at 39 Watchung avenue, loaded up on malt and vinous beverages yesterday, and made a scandalous show of himself on the streets until Officers Payne and O'Gorman conveyed him to the station house. Michel was still woozy when arraigned in the city court this morning, but he paused in eagle swoops long enough before the bar to express penitence. Petuto looked as if he needed fresh air treatment, and sentence was suspended.

Left Large Estate.

Mrs. Sarah A. Crane, formerly of this city, but who, for the last few years, had spent the winter months in Jersey City and the summer months at Asbury Park, died on Monday, December 3, at Jersey City. Van Winkle, of this city, are named as executors.

TROLLEY HITS VAN; ONE MAN INJURED

BROOKLYN MAN HURLED FROM SEAT OF WAGON IS SENT TO HOSPITAL.

The main line trolley car leaving the Watchung avenue stand at 8 o'clock, last night, in charge of Motorman Isaac Bellowitz and Conductor Tony Parquett, collided with a furniture van belonging to John H. King, of Bound Brook, at West Front street and Lafayette place. The driver, Joseph McDonald, was thrown off his seat receiving slight cuts about the face and head. He was removed to the hospital and attended by Dr. Albert Pittis. He was able to leave the institution today. His home is at 168 Butler street, Brooklyn.

Who was to blame for the accident has not been determined, but it is evident that the company does not hold the motorman responsible for he is at work today. He claims that no light was displayed on the rear of the van. The place of the accident is on a down grade and very dark, and the motorman did not see the van until too close to prevent a collision. The damage to the car and van was slight and the horses were uninjured.

FINE IMPERSONATION OF JOE JEFFERSON

KIERNAN'S RECITAL OF RIP VAN WINKLE CONSIDERED EXCELLENT.

The story of Rip Van Winkle by Washington Irving, dramatized by Dion Boncicault and one scene by Jefferson himself, has always appealed to the artistic temperament, and in the hands of Joseph Jefferson became an idealized picture of human weakness linked to human kindliness, so that in spite of failings, everybody says, "Poor, dear old Rip!"

To recall the great actor in this famous role was the difficult task undertaken by George Kiernan last night at the Casino in the second recital of the Jefferson Cycle. Joseph Jefferson had won for himself such unbounded love and admiration by his dramatic art that no one can attempt reproduction without challenging criticism. That Mr. Kiernan gained for himself the sympathy and interest of his audience is evidence of his own dramatic instincts and possibilities.

From the open scene of Gretchen's fault-finding to the close of the drama, where after twenty years' sleep Rip admitted to his own family comes into possession of his own estates, Mr. Kiernan held the close attention of his audience. The grasping hardness of Derrick Von Beekman, was graphically depicted, the complaints of Rip's wife, the love of his daughter, the misery of his being driven from home and the pathos of his awakening were given with the deft touches that won fame for Jefferson.

Among the scenes particularly impressive were Rip's encounter with Derrick Von Beekman, who urges him to ignorantly sign the paper that would convey away his estates, his disposal of the paper in his pocket with his frequent rejoinder "I'll think about it;" the demonstration of Herrick Vedder that he could read writing, thus giving to Rip a knowledge of the fraud intended him; the mountain storm with Hendrick Hudson's crew and his interview with the dwarf, and the final climax of dramatic skill when Rip brings from his pocket the unsigned paper put away twenty years before.

We have to thank Mr. Kiernan in this recital and reproduction of the Jefferson dramas for the characterization of a mythical being, more real in his frailty and kindness than many men who have actually played their parts on the world's stage.

In the case of William Osgoodby against J. A. Smith, in a trial of right of property, in the District Court, yesterday, Judge Newcorn instructed the jury of six men to render a verdict for the plaintiff. Hetfield, Jr., was his lawyer.

MAN AND WIFE KILLED

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Dunn Meet Death at the Lehigh Crossing.

HIT BY A "WILDCAT"

Woman's Cousin Killed On Same Spot a Few Years Ago—Her Brother-in-Law Killed in Westfield Wreck.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Dunn, residing at Stelton and well-known in this city, were killed on the Stelton crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad, about 10 o'clock, last night, while returning to their home from prayer-meeting at the Stelton Baptist church. They were driving, and when the crossing was reached an eastbound freight train held them up for a few minutes. Believing that everything was all right they started to cross the tracks and when part way over an engine and caboose bore down on them without any warning. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn were killed instantly. The horse was cut loose from the wagon, which was completely wrecked.

The crew on the engine and caboose stopped and was assisting in removing the mangled body of Mrs. Dunn from the tracks, when a fast express came along and striking Mr. Dunn's body scattered it in all directions. It was almost impossible to find the different parts. After Mrs. Dunn's body was removed, the authorities and the relatives of the dead couple were notified.
the relatives of the dead couple.

The crossing has always been considered one of the most dangerous in that section and has been the scene of many fatalities, and it was but a few years ago that Miss Giles, of Stelton, a cousin of Mrs. Dunn and a sister of Mefford Giles, of this city, was killed there.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunn were married a little over two years ago at the home of Mrs. Dunn's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Giles, who then lived on Grove street. She was Miss Elizabeth Runyon and a sister of Mrs. Thomas Cuming, whose husband was killed four years ago next January in the memorable Westfield wreck. Immediately after their marriage they made their home at what was known as the Dunbar homestead, Stelton, which Mr. Dunn purchased.

Mr. Dunn was one of the wealthiest farmers in that section of the State and was prominent as a worker in the Stelton Baptist church, where he was a trustee. Last night he and his wife planned to attend prayer-meeting. After the service a meeting of the trustees was held and Mr. Dunn started on the fatal ride.

Previous to her marriage Mrs. Dunn was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church, a teacher in the Sunday-school and identified with all the interests of the church. She was a most estimable woman and enjoyed a large acquaintance both here and at Stelton. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Runyon who lived at Stelton practically all their lives, and both Mrs. Dunn and her sister, Mrs. Cuming spent their early years there. Mr. Dunn is a cousin of Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed yet.

A short time will elapse between December 28 and the time for the new Common Council to organize on Monday night, January 1.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BOWLING.

J. Percival Hall is hitting the pins in hard luck this season. Jack is known as the "cyclone southpaw," getting this sobriquet from a performance last winter, when he hoisted a pin against the ceiling. This season Jack has bowled all the way from 90 to 248. One day he reached the perfect mark, 300 pins, by making a score of 150 in two consecutive games. When Jack starts to deliver the ball he has a "Terrible Terry" look in his eyes—in striking contrast to that gentle and confiding expression that escapes from his countenance on the floor of a ballroom or at Boynton Beach, in the good old summer time, when pretty girls are around. Jack throws a ball down the alley in the same old way that Larry Lajoie swipes at a baseball for a home run. But the pins are breaking hard for Jack this season, but he hopes to improve before the robins herald the approach of springtime.

Billy Leland, who is now a veteran at the game, is one of the hardest men to beat when his left hook ball is working correctly. Billy learned the game on the old Hope chapel single alley, which is now doing service for the rising generation, some of whom were spending their nights in cradles, when Billy struck out as a bowler. Billy's "left hook" ball is an invention of his own, he having dug up the idea twenty years ago while bowling on Neil Taylor's alleys in Dunellen. Its a corker; they all like it; but Billy won't give up the secret. It starts on the right side of the alley, the "hook" going into effect ten feet distant from the head pins, when it swerves gently to the left, bending into the left pocket, losing itself in the general mixup of the pins. When matters are faring badly for Billy he can take the prize in putting out terrible tales, telling why the pins don't fall for him. This proves a sort of a solace for Billy, until his "left hook" ball is once again under the mysterious spell, and it is then when Billy is a happy fellow. He recently remarked that he could live on a bowling alley, and would rather be putting up 225 scores than sticking bricks together with mortar.

IMMENSITY OF SCYSCRAPERS.

Judging by the rate at which the huge and towering office buildings are shooting up in the lower part of Manhattan, it will not be many years before the streets in that section of Gotham will truly become canyons. Hardly a week passes but some substantial looking structure is razed to make room for one of these "scyscrapers" and long before the work is completed, tenants are filling them up from the sub-cellars to the 'steenth story.

To gain some sense of their proportion it is only necessary to compare the average "scyscraper" to the ordinary residential building. It is estimated that 750 good sized houses could be built on the space occupied by seventeen of those most recently erected. The floor space of these same seventeen would cover forty-six and a half acres and if the structures were placed one upon another, the total number of stories would be nearly 400. One million people, it is said, could stand within these seventeen buildings. In other words approximately one-half of the entire population of New Jersey could get beneath their roofs.

They are in fact truly wondrous feats of engineering, but are becoming so numerous that the average man no longer marvels at them.

MR. TOLLES' POSITION.

The Mayor-elect's speech before the Common Council the other night must have made the ambitious politician squirm a bit. Mr. Fisk evidently believes that there is something more important for a city father to do than to spend his time seeking for choice committeeships and his words should be an encouragement to Mr. Tolles, who has thus far refused to barter such appointments for the presidency of that body.

THE ABSENTEE'S DEBT.

From a dusty statute book, a Representative from Tennessee has produced a law "docking" Congressmen $13.50 for each day they are not present at a session. The only excuse under this act, passed in 1856 and never repealed, is sickness.

Query—how much does Charles Newell Fowler owe the Government?

Has a Tiny Automobile.

Newport, R. I., Dec. 19.—Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt has presented to his five-year-old son William an electric automobile about the size of a goat cart. The toy has batteries, levers, speed notches and bells. It was made to order for Mr. Vanderbilt and arrived here yesterday morning. It is just big enough for Master Vanderbilt to ride in. Master Vanderbilt, like his ancestors, is extremely interested in railroads. In his father's large inclosed horse training quarters there is being fitted up for the boy a complete railroad, with cars of all kinds, locomotives, tracks, switches and depots.

SITE OF 1784 CONGRESS HALL FOUND IN TRENTON

CONTINENTAL LAWMAKERS MET IN A HOUSE THAT RENTED FOR £150.

Dr. Carlos E. Godfrey, of the Adjutant General's office at Trenton, has notified Gov. Stokes that he is ready to prove that he has discovered the site of the building in which the Continental Congress sat in Trenton. Mr. Godfrey states that the site is now occupied by the building of the Mechanics' National Bank, of which, oddly enough, Gov. Stokes is president.

The Continental Congress sat in Trenton from Nov. 1 to Dec. 24, 1784, but there has long been a dispute as to the building in which the sessions were held. Various historians have differed absolutely, the old Court House, the present site of the Trenton Banking Company, the Blazing Star Tavern, also known as Witt's City Tavern, being mentioned. In Trenton there has always been much debate among old residents as to the location of what was really the early seat of the National Capital. Now, Dr. Godfrey asserts in writing to Gov. Stokes that he has the original lease of the building and papers to verify all his contentions. He suggests that if Gov. Stokes is too busy to give personal attention to the matter, an officer of the bank be appointed to go over the papers, so that arrangements may be made for the erection of a commemorative tablet.

Dr. Godfrey says that he had great difficulty in locating the site. Authorities differed on many points, and much of the research he indulged in led him nowhere. Finally he ascertained that Samuel Henry owned and lived in a house that afterward became the City Tavern, situated on the southwest corner of State and Warren streets. An announcement in an old newspaper that Jacob Bergen was to open a tavern in the house owned by Henry, and the will of Henry, who died shortly afterward, led him in the right direction, and he discovered the lease.

The three men mentioned in the lease were the committee appointed to arrange for the reception of the Continental Congress. Lafayette took his final farewell of Congress in the house indicated on Dec. 14, 1784, and Washington held a reception there in 1789, while en route to New York to take the oath of office as President.

few years employment would be given to thousands of men. In addition to taxes on the factories, a considerable sum would go to the State every year in the shape of taxes on the houses and other buildings which would necessarily have to be erected. Communities would spring up and with them would come a prosperity of no mean proportion.

"Consequently, I argue," continued Mr. Fisk, "that it would redound to the benefit of the whole State to treat us fairly; it would mean something from nothing. For what the State would grant us now, ultimately it would get a thousand fold return. The possible receipts from riparian leases would be trifling in comparison with the taxes which would flow into its coffers from the new-born manufacturing district. New Jersey is becoming more populous every day, yet there in its Hackensack meadows it has a waste land. This land can be reclaimed and put to substantial purpose, provided the State does only what is right and just by the men who are willing to develop it. We do not want any leaseholds for they would detract from the marketable quality of our property. A manufacturer will not locate where he will constantly be subjected to the necessity of bidding for renewal of his riparian lease. When such an agreement with the State should expire, he might find that more money is exacted for a renewal than he can afford to pay, or that another has put in a higher bid for such privileges. The factory owner wants to be secured from any such risks when he gets his deed to the property just as much as we do when we put our money into its development. I hope that the riparian board will look at the matter in this light and see its way clear to sell us what we must have and what we are willing to pay for—riparian rights to our own property."

Roof Wards.

New York, Dec. 19. — "Roof wards," which represent the latest advance which medical science has made in the treatment of pneumonia and typhoid fever, are shortly to be opened on the top of the main building of the Presbyterian Hospital. The structures, railings and various appliances are the gift of a patron of the institution, who made the donation simply as "A Friend." It is expected that they will be partly used, at least for the benefit of patients by the middle of next month. Two other hospitals, whose superintendents have inspected the new roof wards of the Presbyterian, are making arrangements to install a similar equipment.

—The two-standing broad-jump event will be run off in the all-around athletic championship at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night.

BULL DOG CAUSES A PANIC AT CRANFORD.

Bites Boy and Girl and Is Finally Beaten to Death by Two Men.

Seventy-five pupils of the Sherman Public School, Lincoln avenue, Cranford, were thrown into a panic yesterday afternoon by a bull terrier which was running mad about the town and was not subdued until two children were bitten. Henry M. Rosedale, the janitor, finally appeared on the scene, and with William Trimble, literally beat the animal to death.

The victims of the dog's attacks were Vreda Viehlke, twelve years old; Tony Russo, an Italian, the same age. Previous to this the dog had attacked Mollie Droescher and Reba Denman, who were on their way to the Grant School. In this case the animal tore the clothing off the Doerscher girl completely. The dog also raised havoc in several chicken yards about the town before he was killed. Both Vreda Viehlke and Tony Russo were bitten in the calf of the leg. They were put under medical treatment at once.

Last night the Cranford Board of Health ordered the brain and stomach of the dog removed and sent to the Pasteur Institue for examination. It was learned that the dog had been running about Cranford for over a week, but little attention was paid to him.

Gave All To Missions.

Warsaw, Ind., Dec. 19.—Mastered by his passion to aid the work of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church, starving himself to give to the cause, donating more than $100,000 in cash to promote the work, Elijah Hays, eighty-seven years old, a friend of Bishop McCabe, will be taken today to the Home for the Aged at Edgewater. Except an annuity granted by the church Mr. Hays is penniless and he is broken in health. His is a life story, a sacrifice for the cause to which he was devoted. One ruling ambition has been his from the day when prosperity first began to smile upon him. So frugal has been the aged man that his acquaintances have called him penurious. When he made his first gift of $100,000 to the cause of missionary work Bishop McCabe asked him what he considered would be a reasonable annuity for his wife's living expenses. He replied that he thought $500 would be plenty for them to live in luxury. The Bishop wouldn't hear this and an annuity of $1,500 was given him. Since that time he has been saving from his annuity and not long ago made another donation of $21,000 to the missionary work.

Coal Famine Probe.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 19.—So intense is the suffering of the residents of the Northwestern States because of the fuel famine this winter that there is to be a thorough investigation not only by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which was begun here yesterday, but by the Legislatures of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. Every one wants to know if the fault is the coal dealers or if it lies with the railroad because they do not move freight cars fast enough to get the fuel to consumers. Reports today indicate that the Great Northern Railroad is taking no full carloads west of Grand Forks other than fuel. The Northern Pacific has sent out 300 cars of fuel for commercial use in the last two days. At the storage docks at the head of the lakes the dock companies are ordered to load as far as possible for commercial use. This order, coming from the railroads, means that they are willing that their orders shall be held so that commercial business may get the right of way.

May Be Fined $3,100,000.

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 19.—The largest list of indictments ever returned in the Federal Court here was returned yesterday when the United States Grand Jury made its report to Judge Taylor. The Toledo Ice and Coal Company was indicted on 155 counts for receiving rebates on ice shipments. The Ann Arbor Railway was indicted on a like number for granting rebates. The maximum penalty is $20,000 fine on each count. If convicted on all counts the fines would amount to $3,100,000 in both cases.

Interesing Poolroom List.

New York, Dec. 19.—In a desk in a poolroom on which District Attorney Jerome's detectives descended yesterday afternoon was found a list of names of prominent men, with their telephone numbers, which Mr. Jerome believes will be of unusual importance in his fight against the gamblers. He would divulge none of the names, but he said one of them was that of a former Alderman who now holds an important county office, another was that of a former Tammany district leader who is now dead, and a third was that of a deputy sheriff. Why such a list should be kept in the rooms of the John Muiqueen Association, which was chartered ten years ago and whose rooms are on the second floor of a house in West street, between Christopher and West Tenth street, is something the District Attorney will undertake to learn by calling some of the men on the list before him.

Unique Station.

New York, Dec. 19.—Plans have been adopted by the Long Island Railroad Company for a new passenger station at Jamaica, in which the tracks will be so arranged as to pass through the building on two grades, one directly over the other, and both above the ground level. The plans for the station and surroundings contemplate the elimination of all street crossings at grade in that section, one thoroughfare passing directly under the station and being connected with it by stairways. Twelve tracks will run into the station, of which eight will be for through trains, passing on an elevated structure, and four for electric suburban trains to and from New York and Brooklyn. These latter tracks will be elevated, but will be laid directly under the tracks for the through trains. Entrance to the station will be made from the thoroughfare below grade which the company proposes to construct.

Hears Daughter's Voice in a Saloon.

New York, Dec. 19.—After a ceaseless search of thirty days among resorts of questionable character throughout the city, William Wright, of Flatbush, found his seventeen-year-old daughter Nora in a saloon in Willoughby street early yesterday morning. Tired out after his long search, Wright entered the saloon yesterday and was startled by hearing the sound of his daughter's voice behind a curtained partition. Entering a small room and scattering a crowd of men and women revellers, Wright seized his daughter. Neither she nor her acquaintances made any resistance, and Wright led the girl to the Adams street station, two blocks away. On his charge that his daughter was wayward the girl was locked up, and later, when arraigned before Magistrate Dooley, was committed to an institution pending a final disposition of her case today.

Fed Babies Through Hose.

Honolulu, T. M., Dec. 19.—Feeding about 150 babies with a hose is a novel method of giving food to the youngsters, but this is the way that the officers of the British steamship Suveric are said to have cared for a part of the Portuguese contingent of immigrant settlers that arrived here last Saturday from the Azores. The Portugese are noted for their large families and out of the 1,325 immigrants that arrived by the vessel a large number were children, and many small ones. The captain is quoted as saying that he had a hose strung along the deck fitted with 150 nipples. Then milk was pumped through the hose and with a young Portuguese baby at the end of each nipple the youngsters got fat and healthy.

Ship Captain a Suicide.

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 19.—Two hours after the Ramburg-American line tourist steamer Prinzessin Victoria Luise went ashore Sunday night off Port Royal, Captain Brunswig, her commander, locked himself in his cabin and blew out his brains. At the time of the stranding of the steamer she was without a pilot and the captain was in charge. He followed a wrong course and piled her up on the rocks just under the lighthouse. The Victoria Luise is reported to be pounding heavily and the seas are breaking over her, but hopes are still entertained that she will be saved. She is resting on a rocky lerge.

Two Headed Child Dies.

Moundsville, W. V., Dec. 19.—Owing to the circulation of sensational stories concerning the disposition of the body of a child with two heads born to Mr. and Mrs. John D. Cullom, the father has made public a statement that the body was secretly buried to guard against disinterment by ghouls. The child was born with two heads and one trunk and lived nine weeks. Mr. Cullom states that no amount of money would cause him to consider a great number of offers from medical institutions that desired the body.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

BY HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

There in the freezing current stood Joel Rae until long after the December sun had gone below the Oquirrh hills, performing his office of baptism, and reviving hope in those his words had smitten with fear.

His strength already depleted by the long march with the hand-cart party and by the exhausting strain of the day, he was early chilled by the water into which he plunged the repentant sinners. For the last hour that he stood in the stream, his whole body was numb; he had ceased to feel life in his feet, and his arms worked with a mechanical stiffness like the arms of some automaton over which his mind had control.

Not until night fell did the hymns cease and the crowd dwindle away. The air grew colder, and he began to feel pain again, the water cutting against his legs like a blade. Little groups were now hurrying off in the darkness, and the last Saint he had baptized was standing for the moment, chill and dripping, on the bank.

Seeing there was no one else to come, he staggered out of the stream where he had stood for three hours, finding his feet curiously clumsy and uncontrollable. Below him in the stream another Elder still waited to baptize a man and woman; but those who had been above him in the river were gone, and his own work was done.

He had been hearing footsteps behind him, creaking rapidly over the packed snow-path. He might have to ask for help to reach his home. Even as the steps came close, he felt himself swaying. He leaned over on the fence, but to his amazement that swayed, too, and threw him back. Then he felt himself falling toward the street; but the creaking steps ceased, now by his side, and he felt under him something soft but firm—something that did not sway as the fence had unaccountably done. With his balance thus regained, he discovered the thing that held him to be a woman's arm. A woman's face looked close into his, and then she spoke.

"You are so cold. I knew you would be. And I waited—I wanted to do for you—let me!"

At once there came back to him the vision of a white-faced woman in the crowd along the river bank, staring at him out of deep, gray eyes under heavy, black brows.

"Mara—Mara!"

"Yes, yes—you are so cold!"

"But you must not stand so close—see, I am wet—you will be chilled!"

"But you are already chilled; your clothes are freezing on you; and you were falling just now. Can you walk?"

"Yes—yes—my house is yonder."

"I know; it's far; it's beyond the square. You must come with me."

"But your house is still farther!"

She had started him now, with a firm grasp of his arm, walking beside him in the deep snow, and trying to keep him in the narrow path.

"No—I am staying here with Hubert Plimon's two babies, while the mother has gone to Provo where Hubert lies sick. See—the light there. Come with me—here's the gate—you shall be warmed."

Slowly and with many stumblings, leaning upon her strong arm, he made his way to the cabin door. She pushed it open before him and he felt the great warm breath of the room rush out upon him. Then he was inside, swaying again uncertainly upon his feet. In the hovering light that came from the fireplace he saw the bed in the far corner where the two small children were sleeping, saw Mara with her back to the door, facing him breathlessly, saw the heavy shadows all about; but he was conscious of hardly more than the vast heavenly warmth that rolled out from the fire and enfolded him and made him drunk.

Again he would have fallen, but she steadied him down on to a wide couch covered with buffalo robes, beside the big fireplace; and here he fell at once into a stupor. She drew out the couch so that it caught more of the heat, pulled off the water-soaked boots and the stiffened coat, wrapped him in a blanket which she warmed before the fire, and covered him still again with one of the buffalo robes.

She went then to bring food and to make a hot drink, which she strengthened with brandy poured from a little silver flask.

Presently she aroused him to drink the hot liquor, and then, after another blank of stupor, she aroused him again to eat. He could take but little of the food, but called for more of the drink, and felt the soul of it thrill along his frozen nerves until they awoke, snarpened, alert, and eager. He lay so, with closed eyes a little time, floating in an ecstasy that seemed to be half stupor and half of keenest sensibility. Then he opened his eyes. She was kneeling by the couch on which he lay. He felt her soft, quick breathing, and noted the unnatural shining of her eyes and lips where the firelight fell upon them. All at once he threw out his arms and drew her to him with such a shuddering rush of power that she cried aloud in quick alarm—but the cry was smothered under his kisses.

For ages the transport seemed to endure, the little world of his senses whirling madly through an illimitable space of sensuous light, his lips melting upon hers, his neck bending in the circle of pulsing warmth that her soft arms wove about it, his own arms crushing to his breast with frenzied fervor the whole yielding splendor of her womanhood. A moment so, then he fell back upon the couch, all his body quivering under the ecstasy from her parted lips, his triumphant senses rioting insolently through the gray, cold garden of his vows.

And then, as he lay so, there started with electric quickness, from some sudden coldness of recollection, the image of Prue. Sharp and vivid it shone from this chill of truth like a glittering star from the clean winter sky outside. Prue was before him with the tender blue of her eyes and the fleecy gold of her hair and her joy of a child—her little figure shrugging and nestling in his arms in happy faith—calling as she had called to him that morning—"Joel—Joel—Joel!"

He shivered in this flood of cold, relentless light, yet unflinchingly did he keep his face turned full upon the truth it revealed.

He sat up on the couch, looking about the little room curiously, as one recovering consciousness in strange surroundings. Then he began slowly to pull on the wet boots that she had placed near the fire.

GIVING OUT.

The Struggle Discourages Many a Citizen of Plainfield.

Around all day with an aching back;
Can't rest at night;
Enough to make any one "give out."
Doan's Kidney Pills will give renewed life.
They will cure the backache;
Cure every kidney ill.
Here is Plainfield proof that this is so:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of 86 Summit avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I am willing to reiterate my former statement given in behalf of Doan's Kidney Pills, feeling that some other person may be benefitted thereby. I had suffered with a severe pain in the small of my back and across the hips, and if I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore. I used plasters but they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling unusually bad when my attention was called to Doan's Kidney Pills and they were so highly recommended for troubles like mine that I procured a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. In a few days I felt their good effect, and when I had finished taking them I was relieved in every way. I am glad to recommend this reliable remedy."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"A Night in Town, which has been booked to appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night received the following flattering notice from the "Chronicle" when it played in St. Louis, Mo., where it opened the season at the Olympic theatre: "It is all fun. At the Olympic's opening for the season last night it received a hearty welcome from a large and enthusiastic audience. Clever specialities are interspersed throughout the farce, but are placed in such a manner that they do not interfere in any way with the action of the comedy."

"Big Hearted Jim" is a spirited western comedy-melodrama that rings true in its many original and distinct characters, with a romantic story, an irresistable appeal to the human heart and an unending series of ingenious complications and surprises. A remarkable cast, and an able company and realistic scenery, novel and complete, combine to make "Big Hearted Jim" a great production, and it will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

Ralph Stuart who comes here Christmas Day, matinee and night, will be remembered as an actor of pleasing personality with a magnetism that unconsciously attracts all toward him. He will present his greatest success, "By Right of Sword," a play dealing with the Russians and Nihilism, and he will portray the part of Richard Hamilton, an American gentleman. Mr. Stuart has been induced to make a brief tour of "By Right of Sword" before he commences rehearsals in "The Spoilers," a dramatic venture under the direction and management of Daniel Frohman, one of the best known theatrical managers in this country. Mr. Stuart will have the leading part.

Digby Bell in the big laughing hit, "The Education of Mr. Pipp," makes a return engagement to the New Plainfield theatre December 27. The comedian, eminent among America's laugh makers, visits this city after a 200 night run in New York city, and successful engagements in Chicago, Boston and other cities. Chicago thought so well of Digby Bell's "Mr. Pipp" that a return engagement was demanded, the second eclipsing the first. The play is now in its third season. Augustus Thomas is credited with evolving a most delightful comedy from Charles Dana Gibson's humorous drawings of the same title. Digby Bell's performance of "Mr. Pipp" is declared a masterpiece of drollery and fine artistic acting.

Former Judge W. R. Codington, of Sandford avenue, is able to be at his office, following a severe illness, which detained him at home several days.

Harry C. Bush, formerly a member of the fire department, who was injured while driving to a fire several months ago, improves slowly. He is able to be about the house and take short walks.

ELIZABETH CLUB TAKES TWO GAMES FROM PARKS.

Local Five Captures Second Game By Margin of Fifty-Two Points.

Contray to past performances the Park Club bowling team had to be satisfied with one game out of the series of three with the Elizabeth Club, at Elizabeth, last night. The county seat bowlers had on their war paint and did not propose to allow the visitors to take any more than they could possibl help. Elizabeth took the first game by a score of 901 to 835 and the third by a score of 969 to 784, while the Parks captured the second game by a score of 859 to 807.

Barlow and F. O. Ball were high men for the Parks, the former rolling 216 in the first game and the latter putting up a score of 203 in the second game. In the third game he rolled 175, the third highest score. The other scores were little less than the average for the Parks and could not possibly win for them against the superior work of the home five. Three of the Elizabeth bowlers put up scores of over 200. These are the last games to be rolled this year in the Central Bowling League tournament. They will be resumed January 3. FOUL COSTS TOURNEY TEAM A GOOD GAME.

It Was Made by "Sam" Cunningham and Rivals Got the Contest by a Margin of Four Pins.

Tourney games were again in evidence at McLaughlin's last night and six teams again battled for points and honors. The "whirlwind" team, Maltby and Theirs, were pitted against Cunningham and Woolston and lost two out of three games. Radin and Ackor took two away from VanEmburgh and Blatz and Alberts and Sheelen did the same trick with Day and Gahagan. The games between Cunninghan and Woolston and Maltby and Theirs were chock full of excitement and rooters were plentiful. Cunningham and his partner would have won all three games but for "Sam" getting over the foul line in the first frame and being deprived of a spare. Their opponents got the contest by four pins. High score for the nine games was made by Theirs, who turned in 226. There were quite a few below 150.

Starving on Barren Island.

New York, Dec. 19.—Found suffering from starvation and exposure in a hut on Barren Island, a nineteen-year-old girl, who gives her name as Clara Nelson, address concealed, was found last night by members of the crew of the tugboat Sallie McKay, that piles between Barren Island and Canarsie. While returning to their boat from the centre of the island the men heard moans in the hut and, investigating, found the girl. She was removed to St. Mary's Hospital, Canarsie, in an ambulance. From an incoherent story she told, after partly regaining consciousness, it was gleaned that she had gone to Barren Island to visit friends and had lost her way. It is not known how long she lay in the hut.

Cut Her Way Out of Jail.

Mason, Mich., Dec. 19.—A woman arrested three weeks ago at Lansing on the charge of shoplifting and known only as "Molly Maguire," made her escape from the county jail here Sunday night by cutting a two foot hole through an eighteen inch brick wall and descending a rope ladder from the second story of the jail. The woman's identity has baffled the officers since her arrest and she is believed to be a criminal of importance. The nearest to a clew of her identity was when she sent a telegram to a member of the detective force in Milwaukee asking for money. In some unknown manner the woman received two steel chisels, with which she picked the hole through the wall.

New York, Dec. 19.—After many weeks of campaigning and collecting votes both factions in the great insurance election met at the polls yesterday and deposited with the State Superintendent of Insurance the fruits of their labor. While both sides are sure of victory there was little doubt last night that the administration tickets of both the New York and Mutual had won by a comfortable margin.

O. G. Waring and John Bushnell Must Testify in Cases Against Standard Oil.

SERVED WITH NOTICE

Plainfielders Officers of Subsidiary Companies of Oil Trust—Hunt for Evidence.

Orville G. Waring, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, treasurer of the Bourne Scrymser Company, and John Bushnell, of Central avenue, secretary of the National Fuel Company, both subsidiary companies of the Standard Oil Company, are among those in New Jersey who have been served with notices by the United States Marshal in this State to appear as witnesses in the suits against the Standard Oil Company brought by the Federal Government.

There is considerable activity just now on the part of the Government in bringing suits against the Standard Oil Company, the first of which will be tried in St. Louis on Monday, January 7. In its efforts to bring the company to justice the Government seeks to reach every branch and department of the big corporation. This is evidenced by the fact that the activity is responsible for service made by the marshal against the officers of subsidiary companies in New Jersey.

Others who have been served with similar notice include Charles G. Black, of Bayonne, agent of the Colonia Oil Company; Charles G. Black, of Bayonne, agent of the Union Tank Line Company; F. W. Edwards, of Bayonne, agent of the Platt Washburn Refining Company; the Bayonne Tidewater Pipe Company and the Bayonne Tidewater Oil Company.

WORKED ON CHARTER.

Committee of Proposed Watchung Club Active.

The committee appointed a week ago by Mayor-elect Charles J. Fisk, to draft by-laws and a plan for organization together with the details for the incorporation of the new club now in process of formation, met at the Casino last night. The committee had a long session and agreed upon certain features to be incorporated in the charter for the club. The committee adjourned to meet again at the Casino Wednesday night, December 26.

This committee consists of Joseph M. Shellabarger, Craig A. Marsh, William T. Kaufman, Lewis E. Waring and George S. Ring. There appears to be no doubt but that the committee will recommend a plan for organization along certain lines suggested at the first meeting held a week ago.

Saved Tenants From Getting Cold.

But for thoughtfulness on the part of William M. Stillman, the owner of the structure, the tenants of the other three sections would have had no heat after the fire in the New Madison building last night. The water being emptied in the basement made its way along to where the huge steam boiler is located and was just about to get into the pit when Mr. Stillman reached the scene. He had feared that something of this sort would happen and he immediately set to work to keep the furnace fire from being drowned out. While the firemen were battling with the flames only a short distance away, he built a dam of ashes and sand all about the boiler and kept the water back. In this way the full supply of steam was maintained and the flats were kept warm.

The following officers have been elected by the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's R. C. church, North Plainfield: President, Robert McCormack; vice president, A. E. OLD COURT HOUSE MUST BE REMOVED SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS DEMAND THAT KLINE CARRY OUT CONTRACT.

A special meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders was held yesterday in Bernards township. The bridge near the school house at Mine brook was accepted. The contract price, $716, for the superstructure, was ordered paid the W. T. Kirk Co., of this city, and $169.51, balance due on the masonry, and $27.75 for extra fillings were ordered paid John C. Conrad, of Basking Ridge.

On Mr. Fitzga's motion Counsellor French was authorized to notify Hyman Kline to proceed at once to tear down and remove the old court house and jail according to his agreement. At the last monthly meeting the secretary was ordered to give a similar notice to Mr. Kline, but the latter paid no attention to it. There may be litigation over the matter, as Mr. Kline claims he has lost the sale of the buildings through the delay in their being turned over to him.

Clerk Sutphen was authorized to notify M. P. Lane, the probation officer, to present at the next meeting a statement of the fines paid him, with a list of the defendants in his charge.

The committee on buildings and grounds was authorized to construct a walk from the present court house (the chapel) to the new county jail.

BIG HEARTED ELKS WILL MAKE 500 CHILDREN HAPPY.

Their Annual Christmas Entertainment Promises to be Better Than Any of Its Predecessors.

The Children's Christmas committee of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., met last night and made final arrangements for the good time it is to give the poor children of the city. The affair will take place at Reform Hall next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be better than anything the goodhearted Elks have yet attempted. The programme will start off with an entertainment that will include a funny Punch and Judy show, a juggler who will do lots of amazing "stunts" and comedians whose business it is to make children happy. After that every one of the little attendants will be given a box of candy, an orange and also mittens, stockings and other useful things.

The committee is being assisted in its plans by Miss Holly, of the Organized Aid Association, who has distributed the admission tickets. Already more than 500 have been given out and the list includes many boys and girls whose Christmas otherwise would be devoid of holiday cheer. The members of the lodge have contributed liberally for the purpose, but there are still some who have not handed in amounts promised and it is asked by the committee that this be done.

The committee members are Fred Sandford, chairman; H. C. VanEmburgh, Maze Edwards, Charles C. Burnett and John J. Kenney.

SCHOOL DEDICATION.

State Superintendent Baxter Will Speak at New Market Tomorrow.

Arrangements for the dedication of the new school at New Market tomorrow afternoon have been completed. The programme will be elaborate.

State Superintendent Charles J. Baxter and County Superintendent H. Brewster Willis will speak. Rev. H. N. Jordan, of the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, and Rev. J. F. Attlee, pastor of the Baptist church at South Plainfield, which is in the New Market school district, will also take part. The nek school piano has been received and will be used in the exercises.

Two flags will be presented to the school by the Juniors and the Daughters of Liberty of the village. One flag is to be used in stormy weather, to save the regular banner from wear. The flags will be run up.

Trolley Or Auto Bus?

The Good Government Club, of South Plainfield, decided last night that unless the trolley company gets busy very soon and gives assurance of connecting that place with Plainfield, that an automobile bus will be secured and put in operation.

NEW IDEA MUST TRIUMPH

Colby Says Its Mission Will End When Its Principles are Crowned With Victory.

NECESSARY REFORMS

Political Machines, Bosses and Political Fetishes are Doomed Declares Leader of the Colbyites.

"What of the future of the new idea movement," State Senator Everett Colby was asked yesterday. "Will it continue?"

"Most assuredly — without the slightest doubt," he replied. "Its mission can never be ended until the reforms it started out to accomplish have been won. It will go on, gathering strength and power, until its principles are crowned with triumph. It may be over the wrecks of machines and bosses and ancient political fetishes, but it will go on."

"What do you regard, specifically, as the fundamental reform principles of the New Idea movement to which you allude?" Mr. Colby.

"First," replied, "to give the people of the State an opportunity to indicate by vote their choice of a United States Senator.

"Second, the assessment and taxation of public service franchises at their full value, at the full local rate.

"Third, a rule in both houses of the Legislature requiring the reporting by committees of all bills referred to them, so as to bring them under the review and judgment of the entire house.

"Fourth, a civil service law that will protect trained, experienced and capable officials from removal for partisan reasons.

"Fifth, the direct primary, by which the voter will record his choice of candidates without the intervention of conventions.

"These I regard as important reforms which the people want. They are progressive and in line with the best political thought of our time. No sound argument can be urged against any of them, and their adoption by the Legislature at the approaching session would crown that body with honor and with the plaudits of an approving people."

LOWERS HOTEL VALUATION

Victory For J. A. Staats In Appeal to County Tax Board.

ASSESSMENT DOWN $3,000

Board Acted After Hearing Arguments For and Against Reduction By Counsel On Both Sides.

Official notification that his appeal for a reduction of the assessment on the Hotel Iroquois building had been granted was received by J. A. Staats this morning from the County Board of Taxation. The assessment is cut down by $3,000.

The reduction is practically a complete victory for Mr. Sttats. The amount taken off is satisfactory. The fight for a lower valuation was virtually all on the building, and Mr. Staats feels that his contentions have been substantiated practically in full. Although the assessment on the ground was protested, that protest was not strongly pressed.

The first valuation was $18,000. Mr. Staats contended that the valuation on the property was not in proportion of that placed on nearby holdings. To show the grounds for his claim of discrimination he made comparison between the Iroquois and the Marsh building and the Codington building. The city and Mr. Staats were both represented by counsel at the hearing on the appeal. Corporation Counsel Marsh argued for Assessor VanEmburgh's valuation and Walter L. Hetfield presented Mr. Staats' claims.

"We are pleased over the board's action," said Mr. Hetfield this morning. "The reduction is perfectly satisfactory."

TAX RECEIPTS TODAY WILL REACH $40,000

YESTERDAY COLLECTOR MURRAY TOOK IN $35,000; BIG RUSH ON.

This is the busiest day in the office of Tax Collector John W. Murday, Jr., because it is the last day when taxes can be paid before they become delinquent. Yesterday's receipts aggregated approximately about $35,000, but today's returns will exceed those figures by five thousand dollars. Aside from the rush occasioned by those who call to pay their tax in person the mail is exceedingly heavy and it will probably be a day or two before these amounts are given proper credit.

While Mr. Murray has not said so, it is quite likely that the office will be open this evening to receive taxes. It has always been the custom to do this in past years. Mr. Murray is assisted by Frank Dunham, and both are just as busy as can be receiving money. It is believed that the total receipts this year will exceed those in previous years up o this time and that the delinquent list will be smaller than usual.

For some time he has felt that he would like to go to a smaller field, and last month handed in his resignation. After persistent effort the pastor's congregation finally consented to accept his resignation, to take effect January 15.

MAN, WIFE AND A RIFLE

All Three Figured in a Queer Episode Last Night.

HE FIRED THE WEAPON

Said He Did It to Frighten Off Wife, Who Was Beating Him—No Arrests.

The telephone bell rang at police headquarters at 9:30 o'clock last night, and Chief Kiely answered it himself.

"A man has just shot his wife at 521 Woodland avenue," came the message. "You had better send someone up here at once."

Chief Kiely banged the patrol wagon call, and hustled into his coat. He jumped into the wagon with Patrolman O'Keeffe, and ordered Driver O'Gorman to head for 521 Woodland avenue at top speed.

Quiet prevailed at No. 521 when the officers got there. It is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Fuller. The chief asked for the head of the house, and Mrs. Fuller called her husband. He was in bed.

The officers waited for him in the dining room. The pungent smell of gunpowder smoke was in the air, and the Chief prepared for startling developments.

Mr. Fuller came down in a few minutes, and the Chief asked for an explanation of the shooting. Mrs. Fuller was unharmed.

Mr. Fuller said he had fired off a rifle. He said his wife assaulted him, and he shot the gun to frighten her into submission. He said the bullet went into the ceiling.

The Chief made a searching examination. He could find no indication that anybody had been hurt, and no arrests were made. Neither Fuller nor his wife would consent to appear against the other, and there was nothing on which the Chief could proceed.

The couple are said to have been drinking. Chief Kiely would make no statement on the case for publication this morning, beyond giving the bare details of the formal police report on the occurence. He said he knew nothing of the occurrence or of the Fullers on which to base any statement. The incident as it stood, he said, was closed so far as the police were concerned.

CROSSING VICTIMS' FUNERAL TAKE PLACE ON SATURDAY.

Double Service to Be Held Over the Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. I. Dunn Who Were Killed.

Arrangements have been made for a double funeral over the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Campbell Dunn, who were killed on the Pennsylvania Railroad grade crossing at Stelton, Tuesday night. It will take place in the Stelton Baptist church, from which they were returning when the fatality occurred, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Trains on the Pennsylvania road, leaving New York at 12 noon and New Brunswick at 1:23 stop at Stelton.

Mrs. Dunn's death is the third in her family that has been brought about by accidents at the same crossing. Thirty years ago, her great grandfather, Daniel Runyon, was killed there as he was driving over the tracks and eight years ago her cousin, Miss Giles, daughter of Nelson Giles, met a similar fate as she and her sister, Mrs. Johnson, of Dunellen, with the Dunbar brothers, attempted to pass in a rig. Mrs. Johnson, who was then Miss Bertha Giles, was picked up for dead but afterward recovered.

NEW MADISON BUILDING SUFFERS $10,000 DAMAGE FROM BLAZE OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

Starting in Basement at the Northern End Sweeps Through Three Apartments Above It.

TENANTS DRIVEN OUT

Woman In Delicate Health Carried From Third Floor by Firemen—Entire City Department Works Three Hours.

Breaking out in the extreme northern end of the structure, fire spread through three apartments in the handsome New Madison building on Madison avenue, last night, causing a loss that will reach probably $10,000. The flames made their way with great rapidity from the basement straight up to the third floor, and only by dint of hard and well directed work on the part of the city department, were prevented from getting into other flats separated only by a hall wall. The families of Ralph Davison, James Hubbard and Frank Hedden, located on the first, second and third floors, respectively, were burned out, the furniture in each instance being almost a total loss. Two alarms were turned in for the blaze and the city's entire force of firemen was kept busy for three hours.

The origin of the blaze is a mystery to Chief Doane and the people concerned, as a thorough investigation conducted as soon as possible gave not the slightest hint. It began in a storeroom in the basement beneath the Davison apartment, which overlooks Green brook. The family was at dinner at 7:20 last night when someone smelled smoke and Mr. Davison found there was a blaze of some sort under the parlor. He called Fire Headquarters by telephone and Captain Daley, with the chemical engine and No. 2 horse wagon, responded.

The captain had no sooner opened a rear basement door when he discovered the interior to be a mass of flame and smoke. He immediately directed one of his men to turn in an alarm from box 12, bringing another hose wagon, the steamer and the hook and ladder truck. Chief Doane arrived in the meantime and took charge of the fight, sending in every line of hose that could be connected up. The nozzle men were beaten back repeatedly by belching flames, yet they stuck to their task and had a half dozen streams on the seat of the trouble in a very short time.

Fearing that the fire would get over into the adjoining three apartments, the chief afterward sent in a second alarm from box 32, calling out the West End apparatus and the remainder of the call men. With the additional help, the battle against the flames were renewed with vigor and an hour after the first call it was gotten under full control. Owing to the construction of the building, however, it was after 10 o'clock before the various floors were gone over and the last spark extinguished.

At almost the first alarm, the tenants in the affected apartments with one exception gathered a few belongings and left the building. Mrs. Frank Hedden, who resided on the top floor and who is in delicate health, refused to go out, even after she had been told that she was in danger. Before she fully realized the fact herself, the front stairs were impassable and she and her stepdaughter, Miss Olive Hedden, had to be carried down the rear fire escape by Captains Feiring and Addis. She was taken to the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jacob Blimm, Jr., who also resides in the New Madison.

The building has in all four sections of six apartments each, a fire wall standing between the sections. The fire was in the last section known as apartments 22, 23 and 24. Across the hall from these are Nos. 19, 20 and 21, occupied by Albert Lederer, James Ferguson and Miss Elizabeth White. The flames did not get across to them and the only damage they sustained was the little caused by smoke and which can be very easily remedied. In Nos. 22, 23 and 24, the ruin was wrought principally in the parlor and middle rooms, the interior practically being gutted. In the rear of the apartments, directly between each three, is a dumb-waiter shaft that extends from the first to

WANTS NO LICENSE FOR NEW NETHERWOOD

MRS. TRUELL'S HOTEL WILL BE RUN THE SAME AS INN AND COURT.

The extensive work of remodelling the Netherwood Hotel, which was recently purchased by Mrs. J. R. Truell, is progressing rapidly and the new owner fully believes that she will be able to open the resort for the reception of guests on May 1 of next year. William C. Smith has the contract for the mason work and Charles Dutscher the contract for heating. Mrs. Truell proposes to have an entirely new system of heating and there will be heat in every one of the 244 rooms. It is also probable that an independent lighting system will be installed.

It having always been Mrs. Truell's policy not to serve liquors at either Truell Court or the Inn, she will adopt the same rule at the hotel. She will not apply to have a bar there and she is confident that the hotel can be made a success without one. In speaking of the matter she said that several persons told her that she could not successfully conduct the Court or Inn without liquor, but she believes that she has refuted the theory. She is equally as confident about the hotel venture.

One decided improvement about the interier will be the finishing of wood-work. Everything will be painted white and white shades and curtains will be used. Several improvements are also being made in the ball-room, allowing more room. Just off the main entrance a small room has been provided with an open fire-place and in other ways made cozy. Extensive improvements will also be made in the dining room.

The mason is also putting in extra pillars in the basement and second floor to make the building as strong as possible, and all the brick work is being pointed up.

In the way of exterior improvements Mrs. Truell has had a number of trees cut down, which will allow more light about the hotel and will make the approach more attractive. The changes are being made entirely in accordance with Mrs. Truell's ideas and she is giving much attention to details.

It is the new owner's intention to personally manage the hotel. Of course, she will have only first-class experienced help, but she will give her personal attention to the management. The opening of the hotel will not interfere in any way with Truell Court or Truell Inn and these places will be continued as at present.

COMPLAINANTS IN WILL CASE SIGNED RELEASES.

Further Hearing in Alleged Suppression of Document by McKirgan Adjourned to January 2.

Before Judge Atwater in the Union County Orphans' Court at Elizabeth yesterday an application was made by Albert C. Pedrick, of Newark, on behalf of his clients, Thomas M. Smith and Carrie A. Topping, both of this city, and Lydia M. Woodruff, of Summit, to compel Elmer L. McKirgan, a lawyer, of Summit, to produce a will of his father, the late Lewis McKirgan, which it was alleged, he had in his possession with the intion of suppressing it.

The accused lawyer, through his counsel, Alfred DeCosta, of Summit, produced sworn releases signed a year ago by the three persons named in the complaint. These persons were in court, but Judge Atwater did not think it necessary to call them. He declared that they had no standing in the Orphans' Court unless execution of the releases were cleared or disproved by the opposing counsel.

Mr. Pedrick took an exception to this ruling and Judge Atwater allowed it.

The judge said that before he rendered a decision in the matter, however, he would give each side two weeks in which to file briefs.

McKirgan was placed on the witness stand for examination, but after his counsel, Mr. DeCosta, read some decisions in similar cases, notably one by Vice-Chancellor Stevens, which Mr. DeCosta claimed sustained his contention, Judge Atwater decided not to let the cross-examination of Mr. McKirgan proceed any further and that the further hearing of the case would be adjourned until Wednesday, January 2.

DIAMOND DUST.

Fred Tenney is to play Sunday ball next season.

The New York Nationals will play an exhibition game here with Yale on April 7.

The latest report concerning Joe Kelley is that he may play with Connie Mack's Philadelphias.

Eeach year produces a new pitching star—Chesbro, Walsh, Mathewson, Brown. Guesses on next season's luminaries are in order.

Griff may have expended all his batting energy in a three bagger he made year before last, but as a fielder he wears a 1,000 per cent. halo.

A meeting of the Tri-State League, which sooner or later is likely to join the ranks of organized baseball, will be held in Harrisburg next Thursday.

There was a lively demand for the services of the Cardinal pitcher, Buster Brown, last week, but McCloskey could not be persuaded to part with him.

The schedule follows: March 27, Georgetown at Georgetown; 28, Annapolis at Annapolis; 29, Washington and Lee at Richmond; 30, University of Virginia at Richmond. April 3, Princeton at Princeton; 6, New York Uniyersity at New York; 13, Fordman at New York; 17, Rutgers at New York; 20, University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 24, Cornell at Ithaca; 27, Yale at New York. May 1, Seton Hall at Seton Hall; 3, Cornell at New York; 4, Crescent A. Barney Dreyfus, of the Pittsburg ball team has put a quietus to the intimation that Pittsburg was either trying to dispose of the services of Wagner or that he would consider any kind of an offer for the big fellow. He said: "When I am ready to quit baseball then I may think of disposing of Wagner, but so long as I remain in the game he will play for me or not at all. I consider the Dutchman one of my assets, my principal asset, I might say, and I would not part with him for any amount of money, nor for all the players I know. I consider it unkind on the part of those outside Pittsburg to start the rumor that Wagner may play here or there. He is going to stay right in Pittsburg and play the game."

GOLF.

An effort to secure the women's championship is to be made by the Western delegates at the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association in the Auditorium Annex, Chicago, on January 18. In view of the agreement reached by the Western and Eastern women at Brae Burn during the last championship, the tournament would seem to be slated for Midlothian or some other Chicago links. There is not a whisper as yet of the clubs to bid for the amateur and the open, but there is still plenty of time, as the final choice will no doubt be left to the executive committee. The report of the nominating committee, Messrs. Robbins, Lesley and Hoyt, as to the ticket to be voted on is due this week and also the announcement of any amendments in the constitution. Frederick S. James, vice president of the U. S. G. A.; Edward P. Martin, Phelps B. Hoyt and others of the Chicago golfers are planning now for the entertainment of the Eastern delegates to the annual meeting. It is expected that the meeting will be one of the largest ever held by the U. S. G. A. The Western Golf Association will give a dinner to the delegates.

There are now fifty-nine clubs in the Metropolitan Golf Association. Twenty-one are in New Jersey, three in Connecticut, twelve on long Island and and twenty-three in this State exclusive of Long Island. The resignation of the Freeport Golf Club, due to being unable to hold its real estate on lease, has been accepted. Eight clubs joined during the year, the Cranford Golf Club, Dunwoodie Country Club, Mahopac Golf Club, Arsdale Golf Club, Briarcliff Golf Club, New Brunswick Golf Club, Fairview Country Club and Nyack Country Club.

Ned Fitzjohn, of the Mohawk Golf Club, Schenectady, has been engaged for the winter at Southern Pines, N. C.

The death is announced of the Rev. Dr. Grant, a graduate of St. Andrew's University and an earnest golfer, although he did not play much. He was pastor of the old Cathedral of Nornoch, which Andrew Carnegie and his guests at Skibo Castle attend and of which the Duke of Satherland is a member. All visitors to Dornoch links had a friend in Dr. Grant.

Harry Vardon has in contemplation a trip to South Africa and thence to Australia, returning to England by way of the United States. The journey will be for his health, but Vardon will take his clubs along. Aleck Gourlay, of Pittsburg, Pa., is at St. Andrew's for the winter. He is the first to reach Scotland of the year's crop of golfers who will winter at their old homes. James Maiden has gone to Atlanta, Ga., as assistant to Aleck Smith for the winter.

The governors of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests have decided officially not to hold a tournament at Pinehurst this winter. A committee of Eastern Advertisers and advertising men, with the consent of the governors, has arranged a special tournament for members of the clan, to be held at Pinehurst on January 14, 15 and 16. It will precede the Pinehurst open mid-winter tournament on January 17, 18 and 19, so that those who go to the advertising tournament may participate in an entire week of golfing.

FOOTBALL.

Notwithstanding the excellent results of the ten yard rule in football the last season, there are those who want to tinker with it. One of the propositions which may be made at the meeting of the rules committee next Saturday is that there be one more down inside the 25 yard line. If line smashing, the curtailing of which proved so beneficial under the new code, is to be encouraged the adoption of the foregoing proposition is a good way to go about it. Other proposed changes to be discussed at the meeting are the following: Substituting a distance penalty for loss of the ball when a forward pass strikes the ground. Changing the wording of the rules to allow a line man to run with the ball, provided he is not used in mass plays from tackle to tackle. Limiting the operation of the 5-yard zone on each side on the centre so that a forward pass from the outside may be legally cross this zone. Lengthening the halves to thirty-five minutes.

BASKETBALL.

The athletic management of Lehigh University has announced the basketball schedule for 1906-07 as follows: January 5, Albright at South Bethlehem; 10, Dartmouth at South Bethlehem; 19, Stevens at South Bethlehem; February 1, Wesleyan at South Bethlehem; 6, Swarthmore, at Swarthmore; 9, Rutgers at South Bethlem; 13, Pennsylvania State at South Bethlehem; 27, University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; March 9, Swarthmore at South Bethlehem; 16, Manhattan at South Bethlehem.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Critics of singing will have an opportunity to pass judgment upon the voice of Miss Louisa Lathrop, who plays the important part of "Mrs. Williams" in the musical farce "A Night in Town," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. Miss Lathrop is a pupil of Mme. Marchesi, who has coached some of the greatest lyric singers, while the celebrated Italian baritone, Signor Doria, also assisted her in her studies.

While the press and public are complaining of a lack of good new plays, it is a pleasure to be able to say there are at least a few, and one of them is coming this way, "Big Hearted Jim." It is an American play full of the broad, romantic spirited western life with the historic figure of Jim Saxon, a Montana sheriff at the head of the group of interesting characters. The company includes names of several widely known comedians, indicating an abundance of good comedy as well as romance. "Big Hearted Jim" will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

Ralph Stuart will make his last appearance here on Christmas Day, afternoon and night, in "By Right of Sword," as immediately thereafter he will commence rehearsals under the direction of Daniel Frohman in "The Spoilers," a dramatization of that well known novel of the same name, which created such a furore a few years ago. Mr. Frohman in looking around for some one to play the leading part, finally hit upon Mr. Stuart, as the part called for a man of personality, bearing, physique and undeniable histrionic ability. Mr. Stuart will have in the cast of "By Right of Sword" the New York cast of "The Spoilers," and an excellent performance is looked forward to.

The New Plainfield theatre will have next Thursday night one of the biggest comedy successes and distinctive personal triumphs of recent years in the return engagement of the brilliant comedian, Digby Bell in Augustus Thomas' play "The Education of Mr. Pipp." The play, as is now only universally known, was evolved by Mr. Thomas from Charles Dana Gibson's famous drawings of the same title as the play. "The Education of Mr. Pipp" in social matters, according to Mr. Gibson's fancy, began when Mr. Pipp was some sixty years old and after he had acquired a redundant roll of safe and highly renumerative U. S. bonds and steel stocks. The dean of the family faculty was Mrs. Pipp, the wife of his bosom, and the two premier professors were the Misses Pipp, over whose delineation in black and white Gibson lavished his most loving touches and who have become known the world over as the "Gibson Girl" type of American beauty.

Miss Addie Weaver, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting her father, Peter V. Weaver, of East Front street, has returned.

John R. Truell, of Central avenue, who underwent an operation in Boston several days ago, is convalescing. Mrs. Truell returned from Boston on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William McClure, of Somerville, are parents of a son. Mr. McClure formerly resided here. Mrs. McClure was formerly Katherine Barcalow, of Somerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vermeule Austin, who were married last week, have returned from their honeymoon and are now residing in their own home at 817 West Sixth street.

Frank V. Hoffman, formerly a reporter on the Courier News, but now of Kearney, was in town yesterday calling on friends. He has just recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

THE GREAT 12 ACRE STORE

HAHNE & Co
Newark's Store Beautiful

BROAD NEW & HALSEY STREETS

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL XMAS.

THE BIGGEST WEEK IN THIS STORE'S ...HISTORY...

The great tide of holiday trade is now at its flood, and every day this week the big store will be thronged by thousands of those good-hearted folks intent on making others happy.

We have planned for the BIGGEST BUSINESS by odds in the history of this great establishment.

GREATER STOCKS than were ever before assembled by any concern in the State are now here. A LARGER FORCE of employees than we have ever had has been marshalled to serve you.

Everything that could be planned in advance has been arranged. EVERY EMERGENCY we could anticipate has been provided for. EVERY CONVENIENCE we could provide to make the wheels go smoothly has been arranged. From floor managers to errand boys the force has been carefully instructed on all the details involved in the speedy and careful handling of trade. An immensely augmented delivery service has been established.

There should be no hitch anywhere. Everybody should be able to buy quickly; they should be served satisfactorily; they should be able to shop without discomfort, and they should receive their goods promptly. If they do not, it will be because of individual carelessness—not the fault of the house nor its system, and if there be mistakes (as there surely will be) we are prepared to rectify them in the speediest possible manner. All we ask is that you CO-OPERATE WITH US by reporting any error, and especially by reporting to us any goods that may be delivered to you by mistake.

HELP US BY TAKING AS MANY PARCELS with you as possible.

HELP US BY USING TRANSFER CARDS, thus having all your purchases sent in one delivery.

HELP US BY MAKING SURE that the salesperson waiting upon you gets the right name and address.

HELP US BY DECIDING as near as possible, upon the things you wish to buy before coming to the store. This will save your time as well as that of our salespeople.

HELP US BY STEPPING LIVELY in and out of elevators and by keeping to the right going in and out of doorways.

HELP US by using side aisles going from front to rear of store, thus avoiding congestion in main thoroughfares.

HELP US BY BEING CONSIDERATE of others, always remembering how difficult it is for a clerk to wait on more than one or two persons at a time with satisfaction to any one.

HELP US BY BEING PATIENT, TOLERANT, JUST, KIND AND CHEERFUL. Let the Christmas spirit prevail now as well as on Christmas Day.

Plainfield, N. J., December 20, 1906.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

Many expressions of approval have been given what might be called the pre-inaugural speech delivered by Mayor-elect Fisk to the members of the incoming Common Council the other night. "Good wholesome advice," is the way the Newark Evening News, for example, sums it all up, adding that if it is followed, the Common Council will become one of the most successful in New Jersey.

In commenting on the subject, the Newark paper said:

"There are two seasons of the year when the atmosphere is rife with erudite advice on how to manage affairs. The one is in June, when commencement orators explain the easy methods by which universal good is to be obtained, and the other is somewhere about the beginning of the year, when Governors, Mayors and other high executive officers tell their respective legislative bodies how to do what is right.

"In neither season is the advice taken to heart. In neither is it acted on to any noteworthy degree. The ones to whom it is given either forget it or have so much other business on hand that they haven't time to devote to the more or less elaborate essays brought to their attention when schools close or when councils organize. And yet the advice is good, and in some cases it is eminently practical and salutary. If it were followed it certainly would result in great and permanent advantage to the people at large and in great credit to those entrusted with the management of affairs.

"Reference might be made to the messages of the Presidents to Congress, to the Governors' annual messages to the Legislatures, to the Mayors' messages to councils of different years, all showing what good things were suggested and how poorly they were carried out. Or selections might be made from Governor Stokes' advice with reference to the treatment of intelligent, independent voters, or from Governor-elect Hughes' suggestions as to the regulation of public service corporations. But there is a later and a simpler instance of official advice from which an important lesson may be learned.

"The Mayor-elect of Plainfield, Charles J. Fisk, declined to take part in the caucus of local Republican councilmen elect, but made them a little speech in which he said, among other things: 'Don't tie your president down by any conditions of your vote. If you can't trust him don't elect him. Don't have a factional council. Don't have any 'Big Six,' but let all work to one end and for the city's good. Don't try to use your office to pull any one's chestnuts out of the fire. Work with me for the city's interests, irrespective of personal feelings.'

"That was good advice and there was enough of it, if followed, to make Plainfield's City Council one of the most popular and successful of similar bodies in the State. When Abraham Lincoln was elected President he chose for 'the great Cabinet' men who were continually trying to cut the ground from under his feet and to make themselves President. But they were, in his judgment, the very best men the nation could afford, for the positions to which he had called them, and he did everything he could for the nation's best interests, 'irrespective of personal feelings.'"

THE STELTON CROSSING.

There should be no delay on the part of the Pennsylvania Railroad in placing proper safe-guards at the Stelton crossing to prevent the repetition of such terrible accidents as occurred on Tuesday night. Only one perfectly effective way to do so suggests itself that being by elevating the tracks. The cost of such an improvement, however, might possibly be too great in the eyes of the company, and therefore the next best thing would be to place a gatekeeper on guard by night as well as by day. As half a dozen persons have met death on the spot it is high time that something be done at once.

The strenuous life was emulated in the career of Chaplain McCabe.

Oh Shaw, what's all this about a new head for the Mutual?

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

James F. Parker, of this city, will speak at the Y. M. C. A. meeting next Sunday afternoon.

Under the auspices of the women of the Christian church, Grove street, an oyster supper will be held at the church tomorrow night.

The Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will hold a prayer-meeting Monday afternoon in the small hall at the Y. M. C. A.

The Junior Society of the First Baptist church will meet in the church tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The programme will be appropriate to Christmas.

The Christmas sale being conducted by the Sisters at St. Gabriel's Academy, the borough, is meeting with much success. The sale will be continued for several days.

The choir of the First Baptist church will render the Christmas cantata, "The Story of Bethlehem," together with other selections at the church tonight. The public is invited.

The Christmas entertainment of the First M. E. church Sunday-school will be held in Vincent chapel, Thursday night, December 27. The Christmas service will be held on Sunday, with a special programme of music.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a social and literary entertainment in Vincent chapel tomorrow night. Miss Helen Whitney is chairman of the social committee and has prepared an attractive programme. Refreshments will be served.

Clifford A. Braider, organist of the First Presbyterian church, is preparing an attractive Christmas programme of music. The service by the Sunday-school will also be of unusual interest. Fred Iglehart, who has charge of the music in the school, is planning some novel features.

The prayer-meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, last night, was of unusual interest. According to previous custom the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, had invited the pastors of the sister chapels together with their congregations to attend this meeting just before Christmas. They did so last night and the ministers each had a small part in the service.

THE FORUM.

Motorman to Blame.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I notice in the account given in your issue of this evening of the collision last night on West Front street between a main line trolley car and a furniture van, the statement that the company do not blame the motorman. This is a common trait in corporations and perhaps a necessary stand in an effort to avoid liability; it is however in this case untenable. My wife and myself were probably the only witnesses of the collision and no one was to blame but the motorman. He was the sole cause of the trouble and had he been attending to his business with his eyes along the track on which the powerful light of his car was plainly shining he could have seen the rear of the big van at least 800 feet away. On the contrary, the car (almost empty) came bowling along at the rapid gate permitted, or tolerated, in the night and the motorman never woke up from his (indifference and inattention) dream of untold wealth in Alaska or some other place until within less than fifty feet of the van, when he shut off the current and applied the brakes. We were not a hundred feet from the spot where the collision occurred and at that moment the truckman was in the act of turning off the track, evidently having seen the light of the car, as no gong was sounded in a larm. The number of the car was 1909 and the motorman admitted to me his inattention in the statement that he "did not see the van till he was right on it." There are some drivers of vehicles who think they own the highways and some officers of ships who think they own the ocean; they should be taught needed lessons. One of the latter was recently.

Yours truly,
HAROLD SERRELL.

MADISON BUILDING ABLAZE

the top floor. The flames were kept out of this otherwise it would have been almost impossible to have saved Nos. 19, 20 and 21.

William M. Stillman, the owner of the building, was at the fire from within half an hour after the start and he said this morning that he was very well satisfied with the manner in which the department worked. He declared the chief and his men were entitled to great credit for keeping the blaze away from the remaining apartments of the section and that it was remarkable how they were prevented from getting into the dumbwaiter shaft. Asked as to what he considered the amount of damage to the building, Mr. Stillman said:

"It will be at least $5,000 and there is a possibility that it may reach almost twice that figure."

Of the tenants, the greatest loss will fall upon Frank Hedden. His apartment was handsomely fitted up but he did not carry a cent of insurance. Almost everything was destroyed, the exception being a few trinkets that were hurriedly caught up. Mr. Davison will also lose heavily as, though he was insured, his wife possessed many valuble oriental rugs, tapestries and bric-abrac gathered by her father in trips around the world. It will be impossible to replace them and the money value does not begin to estimate their worth to the owner. Mr. Hubbard is also fully protected by insurance but in neither instance can the losers give any figures. There is a probability, however, that the personal loss will aggregate several thousand dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lederer were in New York when the fire broke out and their two small children were at home with only a servant, only a young colored girl. The latter acted very cooly during the excitement and kept her presence of mind throughout. She wrapped the children up very carefully and took them to a neighbor's, afterward returning and watching the apartment. She kept at her post until the return of Mr. and Mrs. Lederer at 10:30.

While the fire was in progress in the New Madison building, an alarm was turned in from box 17 for a chimney blaze at the home of Edward Jones on Elm street. Realizing that the city department might be handicapped in responding, Chief Woolston ordered out the borough apparatus but it was not needed. Captain Townley and a hose wagon hurried to the scene and stopped the trouble with an extinguisher.

While the firemen were fighting the blaze, they were subjected to danger from falling glass and several of them were severely cut. Chief Doane received several bad gashes in the right arm and this morning was compelled to have them dressed by a physician. Ferdinand Rockfellow, one of the drivers, was also cut so badly he had to go to a drug store for treatment last night.

CHAPLAIN M'CABE WAS A STRONG MAN

FUNERAL OF FAMOUS M. E. PRELATE TAKES PLACE TONIGHT.

New York, Dec. 20.—The funeral of Bishop McCabe will be held from St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church this evening at eight o'clock. The Rev. Dr. George P. Eckman, pastor of St. Paul's, will be in charge of the services, and the speakers besides him will be the Rev. Dr. W. V. Kelley, editor of the Methodist Review; the Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, and Bishop Edward G. Andrews. Interment will be at Evanston, Ill., where there will be a service on Saturday. Mrs. McCabe and a niece will be accompanied on the trip to Evanston by a committe yet to be named.

Bishop McCabe was one of the stron men of his time. In the recent life insurance exposures he gave evidence of his mental and moral fibre. When the Mutual and New York Life Insurance companies were under fire some months ago Bishop McCabe was a member of the International Policy Holders Committee. He severely criticised the methods of the committee. He objected to the "intemperate and vituperative language" of circulars sent out by some members of the committee with his name attached, although he had never seen the circulars. In pointed language he gave public utterance to his opinions. Alton B. Parker replied from the other side, and then the Bishop was summoned to appear before the committee and "explain." He did not appear and was formally expelled from the committee. Bishop McCabe had great personal magnetism. Even in his more youthful days he was noted for the force and energy of his character. His power of making people put their hands in their pockets and contribute to the service of God has seldom been surpassed.

The Methodist Episcopal church owes much to him in this respect. He was born in Athens, Ohio, Oct. 11, 1836. He entered the Ohio Conference in 1860. In 1862 he became chaplain of the 122d Ohio volunteer infantry. At the battle of Winchester, Va., while looking after the wounded on the field, young McCabe was captured and taken to Libby Prison, where he remained four months.

WANT A VOTE ON THE BISHOPS' ACT.

Liquor Men in Royal Arch Propose to Work for a Referendum Clause.

Atlantic City, December 20.—Saloonkeepers of New Jersey will probably offer an amendment to the "bishops' law," asking for a referendum clause that will allow of acceptance or rejection of the provisions of the statute by separate localities, following a meeting of the State organization of the Royal Arch, composed of licensed hotels of the State, held here Tuesday afternoon.

The acceptance of the referendum amendment, in case of failure to obtain entire repealer of the bill, was adopted after a long discussion, during which members of the organization, in secret meeting, declared their belief in the Democratic majority of the House assisting them in securing what they insist is an infringement on their rights and privileges through the enforcement of the "bishops' law."

BIG ATTENDANCE ASSURED.

Finance Committee of Charity Ball Receives Encouraging Reports.

The finance committee of the Charity Ball held a meeting at the Casino, last night, and received various reports relative to progress being made. They indicate that previous records for attendance will be broken and that the combined theatre and ball offering will be enjoyed by many hundreds of people. The committee again makes the request that all ticket returns be made as soon as possible in order to have its work facilitated.

The ball committee, under the direction of Lewis Timpson, is doing a lot of work in a quiet way and it will have a lot of surprises in the way of decorations and novel effects. The members have secured the assistance of Allen Laing in planning new methods of using electric lights in the ball room and the result will demand unstinted praise. Mr. Timpson has always had the reputation of providing unique features at an affair of this kind but in the present instnce he has "let himself loose" if the expression may be pardoned.

John D. Not in Congo.

London, Dec. 20.—The Rev. Dr. Charles F. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 23.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—How can we carry the Christmas spirit through 1907?—Luke ii, 8-20.

The celebration of the birth of Christ is necessarily limited to but one day of the year, which we call Christmas day. But the spirit of Christmas should be manifested upon every day of the year. To do this it is necessary, first of all, to understand just what the spirit of Christmas is. There are many things that characterize the Christmas season, but if we were called upon to name the one that is most prominent the majority of Christians would undoubtedly decide in favor of joy. Christmas is, above all, a joyous season. The spirit of joy has characterized the day of Christ's birth from the very beginning. It was the keynote of the announcement of the angel of the Lord to the shepherds on the first Christmas morning, "Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy." And what reason for great joy! "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Well may the whole world sing at Christmas:

Joy to the world, the Lord is come;
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare Him room
And heaven and nature sing.

Of all the seasons of the year the Christmas season is the most joyous of all. Joy is the dominating spirit of the season.

This spirit of joy at Christmas is manifested in different ways. (1) It is manifested in expressions of gratitude to God. With the angelic chorus the world sings "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Perhaps at no other time is God so abundantly praised as at Christmas time. At that time as seldom at any other we remember God's great gift to the world, and the sentiment of most people is, "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift." But gratitude to God is not to be limited to any one day of the year, however important that day may be. It should characterize every day of the year. Every day we should praise and bless His holy name and not only for the daily blessings of life, but every day there should be in our hearts that spirit of joy that will lead us to thank Him daily for the gift of His son. (2) It is manifested in the kindly attitude of men toward their fellow men. Being joyful ourselves, we are anxious to impart this joy to others. The result is joyful greetings, the enriching of the lives of others with gifts, unusual kindness and expression of good will. But these are also things that should not be reserved for but one season of the year. There are always those about us who need our assistance. Kind words and deeds are needed and appreciated every day of the year. The spirit of joy should be a factor in our lives every day. Indeed, the Christmas spirit will accomplish greater results and prove a greater blessing on the common days of life than at a particular holiday season. Then all are more or less able to find joy for themselves. But it is mostly when amid the daily routine of life, with its duties and burdens, that we need the sympathy, cheerful greetings and assistance of our fellow men. Let us not forget this fact. Let us be kind and helpful upon all occasions, and thus manifest the Christmas spirit throughout the new year upon which we shall soon enter.

But how may we carry this spirit through the year? By remembering the goodness of God to us in the gift of His Son. It is this that fills us with the spirit of joy at the Christmas season, and why should it not have the same effect at other times? It undoubtedly would, but the trouble is that we forget it. Let us forget it no longer. When an opportunity comes to do a deed of kindness or to speak a word of good cheer to some one in trouble, in sorrow or in discouragement, let us remember the great gift of God to us and give ourselves in good deeds, in kind words and in heartfelt sympathy to others.

Worth Fighting For.

I stood some days ago in the shade of a church where the shadow of Christian Endeavor lingers, but where the spirit of it is only an empty name. The church needed a Christian Endeavor house cleaning or a Christian Endeavor revival, and the bringing of this to pass ought to be our inspiration rather than the recounting of our easily won victories. Pessimistic do you ask? Not a bit of it. I stand today the greatest Christian Endeavor optimist I ever have been, but as my heart goes out to God in thankfulness for His rich blessing on our efforts in these later years I cannot help reminding myself that we are not doing nearly so well as we ought, nor nearly so well as we might. The battles of Christian Endeavor are too easy today. It does not require hardship enough in winning to toughen our muscles and test our power of endurance. For many of us some "adverse winds" would prove blessings in disguise. I want to strike a keynote for the days ahead: A new society in every eligible church without one now; a new spirit in every dead society in existence today; a new purpose for loyalty to Jesus Christ in all Christian Endeavor and a new year of effort beyond anything we ever have known before. And if we shall strike this keynote and march away to the battle with winning determination I have no fear but that we shall put some of the old time fighting spirit into our work.—John R. Clements.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 23: "Lessons of the Manger." (Christmas Topic.)

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Luke ii, 7-20.—The world's exclusion of Jesus.—Verse 7. The lowly sign of the child Christ.—Verse 12. The manifestation of the child Christ.—Verse 16.

There was no place for them in the inn, not because any one intended to crowd them out as a matter of malice or ill will. Simply this—every one was busy about his own concerns and was ignorant of the nature of this family, their conditions and needs.

So it is at the present time. Multitudes are indifferent to the claims of Christ upon them because they are busy about other concerns and have never been brought to think on religious matters. Their minds are preoccupied. Their time is wholly taken up with other things. They are not hostile to religion—they are simply not thinking of it, but of other matters. They have no room for Christ because full of matters of a different nature.

At this Christmas time how much thought is given by the vast majority to those things connected with Christ, from whom it takes all its significance? There is hurry and bustle and a multitude of things, doing, joy and present making and giving, greetings and congratulations. Watch the flow of the tides of affairs and then tell yourself how much after all there is of Christ in the Christmas which most people know about. There is so much to be thought of and done there is no time or room for Him. Wait until Lent or some revival time and then we will think of Christ, but on Christmas, who ever thinks of that as a religious season?

Where shall we find Christ now? It was a strange thing for the Lord of all worlds to make His bed in a manger. The wise men from the east sought Him in the place which seems most natural—in the palace of the king. But He was not there. There was nothing in that palace or the persons living there which was like Him. He was Prince of Peace, but peace never found a lodging place where a Herod lived, and so Christ would find no home where such a king abode. He came to earth to save the poor in heart and bring victory to the lowliest of the human race. Why, then, should He find lodging anywhere other than among the lowly? Here was safety also. If born in the palace, He might have suffered the fate of some of the best of the king's sons, the very fate which Herod tried to inflict on Jesus when he ordered the slaughter of the babes of Bethlehem. He is safer far in the manger bed than in the king's arms.

This is also a sign to us at the present time. Would you find the things of Christ you must seek them not so much among the high and mighty of the world as among the lowly and meek. Do you understand this? Many do not and never will penetrate the mystery. They will still be wondering why they may not find the sweet and secret things of God in the highways and in the busy marts of men and in the world's own way.

There are births for which the nations wait in eager expectancy and which are heralded by roar of cannon and bonfires and celebrated by carousal and delirious joy. There are pomp and ceremony, careful public attestation of legitimacy, scrupulous care, soft garments, gems and all earthly glory and circumstances. And in so many cases it is all needed for the poor thing which comes into existence, for he has no glory or power in himself. But in this case what need, what place for earthly trumpetings, what need of human attestation, what time for shoutings and high rejoicing? This is not his hour or his abiding place. He owns all. He made all. He comes to call all, but His kingdom is not like these others. Earth's wealth shall be poured out for Him as never for any other. He shall dwell among men as men never before saw monarch live. He shall claim and receive homage such as no other one ever did or shall receive. He shall come into His own and shall reign supreme, but not as the Herods and Caesars. The manger is His sign.

Have you read His sign and found Him?

The Reach of Influence.

Did it ever occur to you that the most wonderful things in the world are the things that you cannot see? You never saw the perfume of a rose, but a rose cannot be in a room without your knowing that it is there. You do not see the zephyr that stirs the leaves in the orchard trees or the gale that sends forward the storm on its wild career, but nothing is so vital, nothing so powerful as the air, whether it be in gentle or in violent motion. The atmosphere infolds us alike in the valley, on the plain or on the mountain top, but we do not see it. The intangible things, things so slight yet so real that, although they defy touch, they weave themselves into the tissues of our being, are, after all, the things that are strongest and most enduring.

Years after the Empress Josephine had left her palace at Malmaison the rooms were full of a certain delicate fragrance which had pervaded her clothing and her furniture. Hundreds of years have passed since Shakespeare and Milton laid down their pens, but the words they wrote are throbbing with life today. You cannot handle a word, but the wide earth has nothing so imperishable.—Forward.

Lasting Service.

We often do more good by our sympathy than by our labors and render to the world a more lasting service by absence of jealousy and recognition of merit than we could ever render by the straining efforts of personal ambition.—Dean Farrer.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

When he stood up, put on his coat, and reached for his hat, she came to him, hesitating, timid.

"You are so cold! If you would only stay here—I am afraid you will be sick."

He answered very gently:

"It is better to go. I am strong again, now."

"I would—I would not be near you—and I am afraid for you to go out again in the cold."

He smiled a little. "Nothing can hurt me now—I am strong."

He opened the door, breathing his fill of the icy air that rushed in. He stepped outside, then turned to her. She stood in the doorway, the light from the room melting the darkness about them.

They looked long at each other. Then in a sudden impulse of gratitude, of generous feeling toward her, he put out his arm and drew her to him. She was cold, impassive. He bent over and lightly kissed her closed, unresponding lips. As he drew away, her hand caught his wrist for a second.

"I'm glad!" she said.

He tried to answer, but could only say, "Good night, Mara!"

Then he turned, drew the wide collar of his coat well up, and went down the narrow path through the snow. She stood, framed in the light of the doorway, leaning out to look after him until he was lost in the darkness.

As she stepped back and closed the door, a man, who had halted by a tree in front of the next house when the door first opened, walked on again.

It had been a great day, but, for one cause or another, it came near to being one of the last days of the man who had made it great.

Late the next afternoon, Joel Rae was found in his cabin by a messenger from Brigham. He had presumably lain there unattended since the night before, and now he was delirious and sick unto death; raving of the sins of the Saints, and of his great work of reformation. So tenderly sympathetic was his mind, said those who came to care for him, that in his delirium he ranked himself among the lowest of sinners in Zion, imploring them to take him out and bury him in the waters of baptism so that he might again be worthy to preach them the Word of God.

He was at once given every care, and for six weeks was not left alone night or day, the good mothers in Israel vying with each other in kindly offices for the sick Elder, and the men praying daily that he might not be taken so soon after his great work had begun.

The fifth wife of Elder Pixley came once to sit by his bedside, but when she heard him rave of some great sin that lay black upon his soul, beseeching forgiveness for it while the tears rained down his fevered face, she had professed that his suffering sickened her so she could not stay. Thereafter she had contented herself with inquiring at his door each day—until the day when they told her that the sickness was broken; that he was again rational and doubtless would soon be well. After that she went no more, which was not unnatural, for Elder Pixley was about to return from his three years' mission abroad, and there was much to do in the community-house in preparation for the master's coming.

But the long sickness of the young Elder did not in any manner stay the great movement he had inaugurated. From that first Sunday the reformation spread until it had reached every corner of the new Zion. The leaders took up the accusing cry,—the Elders, Bishops, High Priests, and Counsellors. Missionaries were appointed for the outlying settlements, and metings were held daily in every center, with a general renewing of covenants.

Brigham, who had warmly seconded Joel Rae's opening discourse, was now, not unnaturaly, the leader of the reformation, and in his preaching to the Saints while Joel Rae lay sick he committed no faults of vagueness. For profane swearing he rebuked his people: "You Elders in Israel will go to the canyons for wood, get a little brush whipped, and then curse and swear—damn and curse your ox in and swear by Him who created you. You rip and curse as bad as any pirates ever did!"

For the sin of cattlestealing he denounced them. "A fence high enough to keep out cattle-thieves," he told them, must be high enough to keep out the Devil.

Sometimes his grievance would have a personal basis, as when he told them: "I have gone to work and made roads to the canyon for wood; and I have cut wood down and piled it up, and then I have not got it. I wonder if any of you can say as much about the wood I have left there. I could tell stories of Elders that found and took my wood that should make professional thieves blush. And again I have proof to show that Bishops have taken thousands of pounds of wheat in tithing which they have never reported to the general tithing-office,—proof that they stole the wheat to let their friends speculate upon."

Under this very pointed denunciation many of the flock complained bitterly. But Brigham only increased the flow of his wrath upon them. "You need," said he, "to have it rain pitchforks, tines downward, from this pulpit, Sunday after Sunday."

Still, there were rebellious Saints to object, and, as Brigham drew the lines of his wrath tighter, these became more prominent in the community. When they voiced their discontent, they angered the priesthood. But when they indicated their purpose to leave the valley, as many soon did, they gave alarm. An exodus must be prevented at any cost, and so the priesthood let it be known that migrations from the valley would be considered as nothing less than apostasy. In Brigham's own words: "The moment a person decides to leave this people, he is cut off from every object that is desirable in time or eternity. Every possesion and object of affection will be taken from those who forsake the truth, and their identity will eventually cease."

But, as the reform wave swept on, it became apparent that these words had been considered merely figurative by many who were about to seek homes outside the valley. From every side news came privately that this family or that was preparing to leave.

And so it came about that the first Sunday Joel Rae was able to walk to the tabernacle, still weak and wasted and trembling, he heard a sermon from Brigham which made him question his own soul in an agony of terror. For, on this day, was boldly preached, for the first time in Zion, something which had never before been more than whispered among the highest elect,—the doctrine of blood-atonement—of human sacrifice.

Under his discourse Joel Rae sat terrified, with a bloodless face, cowering as he had made others to cower six weeks before. The words seemed to carry his own preaching to its rightful conclusion; but now how changed was his world!—a whirling, sickening chaos of sin and remorse.

P. H. S. FIVE CRIMPS BOROUGH BOY'S STANDING

N. P. H. S. LOSES SECOND GAME IN LEAGUE AND DROPS 500 POINTS.

The puffed and prideful borough five had their pretty and perfect percentage fractured in the second game of the Interscholastic Basketball League yesterday afternoon. The Plainfield High quintet defeated them, and they feel from 1,000 per cent. to .500. These sudden slumps have a habit of occurring when a schedule is young. The score was 32 to 19.

The city lads did not have what could be called an easy time, but they kept the game well in hand. They were appreciably stronger in team work and in shooting.

The playing was hurried in spots, and the technical meeties of the game were not observed. Many fouls were called; of the nineteen points they garnered the borough five got thirteen on fouls. The game was not rough, the fouls being springing from rules and not roughness.

Indicidual plays shone from both teams. Line and Caldwell, of P. H. S., McClintock and Steiner, of N. P. H. S., were the stellar exhibits.

Caldwell	McClintock

TO FIX THE SENATE SLATE NEXT THURSDAY

REPUBLICAN MEMBERS OF THE UPPER HOUSE TO CAUCUS ON THAT DATE.

Republican members of the New Jersey Senate have been notified by Senator Thomas J. Hillery that their caucus for nominating officers for the next session of the Senate will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday night, December 27, at the Republican Club, in East Hanover street, Trenton.

The impression prevails that Senator Bloomfield H. Minch, of Cumberland, will receive the nomination for President. One who is acquainted with the situation is authority for the statement that the Cumberland man will receive the votes of Senators Bradley, of Camden; Lee, of Atlantic; Hand, of Cape May; Robbins, of Burlington; Plummer, of Salem; Avis, of Gloucester; Hutchinson, of Mercer; Shinn, of Ocean; Brown, of Monmouth, and probably Ackerman, of Union. This will give him ten votes, two more than are necessary to carry the caucus.

The nomination of Mr. Minch for president of the Senate is likely to deprive Howard L. Tyler of the Senate secretaryship again. Mr. Tyler comes from the same county Mr. Minch does, and it is not usual to give the presidency and secretaryship to the same county. There is some talk of giving the secrearyship to one of the northern counties in case Mr. Minch gets the presidency.

Lethbridge to Be Speaker.

Edgar E. Lethbridge, of Orange, was unanimously nominated for speaker of the house of assembly by the Democratic members-elect of the lower branch of the Legislature, in caucus assembled at the Continental Hotel, Newark, Tuesday afternoon. Bossism, which played such a prominent part in the caucus that nominated Joseph H. Firth for the speakership at the State House last week, was reduced from a leading role to the dusty regions among the scenery where it raised its voice with the "howling mob."

To Receive Masonic Honors.

Among those upon whom the Order of Malta will be conferred at East Orange, tomorrow night, in addition to Governor Edward C. Stokes, will be Mayor-elect C. J. Fisk and Major Maze Edwards. The order will be conferred by Washington Commandry, No. 1, K. T., at a stated conclave of Jersey Commandery, No. 19, K. T., in the Women's Club Building, East Orange.

XMAS AT THE SCHOOLS

Appropriate Exercises in Most of the Public and Private Schools Today.

DR. ZELIE A SPEAKER

Talks To Pupils At Plainfield High School—Xmas Tree At Hartridge—In City and Borough.

Exercises appropriate to Christmas were held in the majority of public and private schools today. In one or two instances, an address was the principal feature but in the majority carols and recitations were the attractive parts of the programmes.

Christmastide was appropriately celebrated yesterday and this morning at the Hartridge School on East Seventh street. Yesterday morning the pupils in the kindergarten had a Christmas tree and it was also an opportunity for the children to present to their parents gifts of their own making. This morning the programme was divided into two parts. The first consisted of the rendition of sacred music and poems. Gounod's "Nazareth," and the old Christmas carol, "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen, Let Nothing You Dismay," and "Adestes Fideles". In the second part there were humorous recitations, secular music and essays by the children. The academic and elementary departments met together in the elementary department and the programme lasted about an hour and a half.

Presentations, an address by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, anthems and recitations made up the programme of the Christmas exercises of the Plainfield High School this morning. The programme was as follows:

Anthem, "Christians, Awake! Salute the Happy Morn," Schnecker; recitation, "The End of the Play," by W. M. Thackeray, Walter E. Knowlton; recitation, "Christmas at Santa Clara," written by J. De Lancey Ferguson, spoken by Helen Johnson; presentation of P. H. S. insignia; presentation of prizes won in the fall tennis tournament, (a) singles, (b) doubles); presentation of prizes won in the fall field meet, (a) individual ribbon prizes offered by the Courier-News, (b) class cup offered by The Daily Press, (c) individual championship medal offered by the P. H. S. A. A.; presentation of a photograph of Abbey's painting, "Sir Galahad Taking His Vow," Miss Elizabeth Pound, William Osgood; anthem, "There Were Shepherds," Buck, solo by Miss Queena Tillotson; song, "Christmas Hymn," Buck; address, Dr. John Sheridan Zezlie; anthem, "The First Christmas;" the senior-junior exercises.

Dr. Zelie spoke of the high spirit that men are beginning to realize must actuate their lives, and of the futility of human life when it has lost the favor of God and man. Christmas, Dr. Zelie said, was the time when Tennyson measured and took account of his advance in life, and of his trend of thought and attitude toward truth and his fellow man. It should be all men-time of test. The Christmas spirit, the speaker said, was the only spirit that should actuate the worker. Work was hard enough at best, but if it was carried on in a spirit of slavishness and hatred and revolt it was something awful. The working world needed the Christmas spirit, and everyone who worked.

An elaborate programme was enjoyed at the Bryant Public School this morning. There were carols by the school, songs by boys of the fifth grade, a lullaby by girls of the fifth grade, recitations by Dorothy Van Winkle, Harold Whitford, Frances Connett, Marguerite Hope, Maizie Blauvelt; song by Leonard Lewis, vocal duett by Lyle Smith and Leonard Lewis. The programme was closed with an exercise, "Christmas with Mother Goose," in which the following took part:

Mother Goose, Elizabeth Hammann; Old Woman, Lavinia Fulmer; children in the shoe, Jane Stout, Margaret Keenan, Monroe Gullberg, William Chamberlain and Harold Seal; Bo-Peep, Ruby Taylor; Little Boy Blue, William Wheelan; Simple Simon, Harold Pfiefer; Miss Muffet, Gertrude Blimm; Humpty-Dumpty, Theodore Vail; Jack be Nimble, Geo. Walsh. William Chamberlain also sang a solo. The exercises were in charge of Miss Griffin, principal of the school.

Under the direction of Miss Bullock, principal of the Franklin Public School, an attractive programme was presented this afternoon at 2 o'clock. These carols were sung by the pupils:

What Say the Bells? O, Little Town of Bethlehem, All in the Silent Night, Hark! the Herald Angels Sing, Thou Dids't Leave Thy Throne, Glory to God, The Christmas Spirit, Star of Bethlehem, Shining, Glad Tidings of

D. C. SMALLEY AND THE RAILROAD IN A SWAP

HE GIVES EAST THIRD STREET LOT FOR SLICE OF PARK AVENUE.

Deeds were filed, yesterday, completing an exchange of property between David C. Smalley, of Smalley Bros., and the Central Railroad. The properties swapped are the old "Flannery hall" lot at East Third and Church streets, and the lot on Park avenue, below the station approach, on which Justice V. W. Nash's office stood. The consideration named is $1. There may be another, but as to that the records speak not.

When Mr. Smalley acquired the East Third street lot and had the city close up the short street back of it, it was announced that he intended to build thereon a sausage manufactory. Rumors of the exchange arose, but Mr. Smalley steadfastly denied that he contemplated any such deal. He declared that he had no idea of parting with his East Third street property when the reporter told him the terms of the deal for which a deed was filed yesterday.

It is said now that the railroad intends to use the switch at Church street for the storing of the express car during the day. At present the car is in the way at the side of the North Avenue station.

MR. MURRAY COLLECTS $175,000 IN TAXES

APPROXIMATELY $50,000 YET TO BE COLLECTED AS DELINQUENT.

The disposition of most taxpayers to settle their bills before they are delinquent, resulted in unusual receipts at the office of Tax Collector John W. Murray, Jr., yesterday. There was approximately $75,000 received by Mr. Murray, making in all about $175,000 paid in up to and including December 20, the day taxes are due. This leaves between $50,000 and $60,000 to be collected, but as there has been a large amount of tax money received by mail which Mr. Murray has not been able to credit it, this sum will be greatly reduced.

Mr. Murray kept his office open last night until a late hour to accomodate citizens and in consequence many dropped into to pay their bills. The collector is well pleased with this year's returns and he does not believe that the delinquent list will be a large one.

CHRISTMAS AT FIRST BAPTIST.

Interesting Programme Arranged by Sunday-school.

Superintendent George H. Batchelor and the teachers of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, have prepared an attractive Christmas service for Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The programme is as follows:

Prelude, Hymn to St. Cecile, Gounod, organ, violin and piano; carol, See Amid the Winter's Flaky Snow; invocation, Lord's Prayer; carol, The Heavenly Babe; Scripture sentences; anthem, The Angels and the Shepherds, choir; Scripture recitation; fellowship exercises; offertory, violin solo, Romance, Rubenstein; Junior supplemental drill; I Wonder, Primary department; carol, Shine on Bethlehem's Star; lesson; Christmas carol; benediction, postlude, organ. There will be the usual Christmas service at the church in the morning, but no evening service will be held according to previous custom.

Reception for Debutante.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde, of Woodland avenue, have issued invitations for their daughter, Miss Edith Madara Hyde, who will be introduced to society on Saturday, December 29. The affair, which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hyde, will be a brilliant one.

Planning New Year's Eve Social.

The Gesang and Turn Verein is arranging for a social to be held in Saengerbund Hall New Year's eve. A committee, of which William Claassen is secretary, has been instructed to provide a first class programme.

Baseball Club Dance.

The Clinton Avenue Baseball Club will hold a dance in Central Hall, Park and North avenues, tonight. "Marty" O'Loughlin will give an exhibition of bag punching, using ceiling and floor bag.

Church Oyster Supper.

An oyster supper will be held at the Christian church, Grove street, tonight, for the benefit of the church fund. An informal programme will be presented after the supper.

Annual Dinner Committee Appointed—Ship Subsidy, Almanac and Trolley Line Also Considered.

By an unanimous vote, the Plainfield Board of Trade last night passed a resolution requesting Congressman Charles N. Fowler, of the Fifth district, and Congressman Ira W. Wood, of the Fourth district, to use their efforts to secure the passage of the bill to increase the pay of letter-carriers and postal clerks. Postmaster Elias H. Bird was on hand to champion the cause of the men who are said to be underpaid for the work they do, and he made a neat little speech explaining concisely why Congress should act.

The Board also took the preliminary steps towards holding the annual dinner, a committee being appointed by President Woolston to arrange for the affair. Mayor-elect Charles J. Fisk was elected as chairman. The other members of the committee are former Mayor William L. Saunders, former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, former Police Commissioner H. W. Marshall and former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell. It is quite probable that the banquet will be held during the latter part of January or the fore part of February. The Casino will be the place.

Several other matters were considered, among them being the proposition to give support to Messrs. St. John, Stout and Zimmerman, who are getting out an almanac containing among other things an excellent account of the Plainfield of today. The much talked of trolley line connecting Plainfield with South Plainfield was also referred to as was the scheme in Congress for ship subsidy. In the almanac matter, President Woolston was empowered to investigate and report at the next meeting. Nothing was done regarding the other two subjects, although both will be gone into further at the January meeting.

Secretary Frank H. Smith brought up the proposition to secure the aid of Congressmen Wood and Fowler in the postal clerks and carriers effort to get more pay. He read several letters from boards of trade and chambers of commerce urging action on the part of Congress, chief among which was a letter from the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, which started the movement two years ago. The resolution of the local board was read by Mr. Smith and quickly seconded by W. A. Woodruff. Before its passage, however, Mr. Bird explained its object.

The highest that a carrier can ever hope to get at the Plainfield postoffice, he said, was $850. When he became too old or too ill to work he has no means of support. As for the clerk, the best paid one in the local office gets but $1,100 and several others $1,000. Such pay, he pointed out, was barely sufficient for a man to exist on and that because corporations and individual employers were paying wages greatly in excess of the Government's scales, it had become well nigh impossible for him to get any more good men or to hold his present force. So critical had the situation become, he added, that in one Western town the entire postoffice force had quit in one day and the postmaster was compelled to pick men up off the streets to do the work temporarily. Under present conditions, the law is such that the present office is greatly crippled at this season of the year. More carriers are needed but the postmaster is powerless to secure them. Good pay brings good men, concluded Mr. Bird, and without them the service becomes wretched.

MR. PERKINS HASN'T HEARD OF A CAUCUS.

Doesn't Believe One Will Be Held Before New Year's.

Leader Randolph Perkins said yesterday he knew nothing of a report which comes from Trenton to the effect that the Republicans would hold a caucus at Trenton between Christmas and New Year's.

"I don't think there will be any caucus at that time," said Leader Perkins. "I for one would not be present at it, for I am going away for the holidays. I guess that rumor from Trenton is unfounded. I would be apt to know about it if a caucus was to be called."

Chief Weiss In Same Condition.

Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the borough police department, who was taken ill suddenly Wednesday, remains in about the same condition. He is under the care of Drs. Zeglio and Hughes, who diagnose the trouble as heart ailment.

MR. BIRD IN PROPOSED POSTMASTERS' ASSN.

FIRST CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN TRENTON NEXT MONTH.

The postmasters of the first-class offices of the State, including E. H. Bird, of this city, have appointed Postmaster Alexander C. Yard, of Trenton, and Postmaster Harry Bacharach, of Atlantic City, to call a meeting in January to form a State organization. The meeting will take place in Trenton. It is also left to Mr. Yard and Mr. Bacharach whether or not to include the postmasters of the second-class offices.

Several weeks ago when a committee of postmasters went to Washington to confer with Congressman Gardner in regard to the clerk's bill now before Congress, it was decided than an organization of this kind would be to the best interest of the postmasters and of the service. The convention will probably be called about the middle of January.

The cities of the first-class are: Atlantic City, Bayonne, Camden, East Orange, Elizabeth, Hoboken, Jersey City, Montclair, Newark, New Brunswick, Orange, Passaic, Paterson, Plainfield, Trenton.

ENTERTAINMENT BY ST. FAITH'S GUILD.

Novel Feature On Programme of St. Stephen's Church Affair; Those Who Took Part.

Humor, music and good cheer that drove all recollection of the joyless weather away marked the entertainment and sociable of St. Faith's Guild, of St. Stephen's P. E. church, at the parish house, last night. The programme was vastly enjoyed by a good-sized audience.

The chief feature of the programme was "Aunt Jerusha Dow's Album." Aunt Jerusha, who is Miss Emily Lacey in everyday life, told the audience of the pictures in her album, which was in a Brobdignagian frame behind her on the stage. As the leaves turned, the pictures stood forth, lifelike and amusing. The album "leaves" were filled by the following, in clever costume:

Mrs. Andrew Adelmann, F. W. J. Brook, Edward Bremble, Miss Hilda Bennett, Clara Gulberg, Ethel Gulberg, Helen Brook, Frederick Brook, George Dobbs, Herbert Dobbs, Miss Christianson, Victor A. Gorlin, Miss Edith Lacey, Alfred Lacey, William Bennett, Miss Chapman, Eleanor Gulberg, Miss Mary Jane Tygard, Charles Frederickson, Harry Christianson, Herbert Guinn, George Lund, Miss Theresa Kahrman, Lewis Clarke, Mrs. Herbert Guinn and Miss Christine Sorensen.

After "Aunt Jerusha" there were recitations by Mrs. Guinn and Miss Bennett; songs by Miss Kahrmann, Miss Blanche Gahagen, Miss Sorensen and Miss Lacey; Mr. Gorlin rendered mandolin selections and Miss Chapman played the piano. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Adelmann, as president of the Guild, was chairman of a committee of the whole in arranging the affair. The proceeds will go into the Guild treasury.

XMAS AT IRVING.

"Santa's Substitutes" Feature of School Programme.

"Santa's Substitutes," a Christmas cantata, was given at the Irving Public School, last night, by the pupils of the higher grades. Despite the stormy night the assembly hall was crowded to the limit by parents and friends of the school. The entertainment, given under the direction of Charles L. Lewis, was the best one ever given at the school and reflects credit both on Mr. Lewis and the children. The entire programme, as published in The Daily Press, was given.

This morning the children in the lower grades held their Christmas festivities in their class rooms, while the children in the kindergarten enjoyed a Christmas tree and a general jollification, with distribution of small gifts. If stormy there will be but one session today, otherwise, the regular session will be held this afternoon, after which the school will close for the holidays.

Will Give As Well As Receive.

The members of the Sunday-school of St. Stephen's P. E. church, Netherwood, will give as well as receive at their Christmas tree exercises on Holy Innocents' Day, December 28. There will be the usual box of candy and gift on the tree for them, but they will bring to the platform offerings for the little inmates of the Mission Home for Crippled Cchildren, of Brooklyn. The exercises will begin at 5 o'clock.

CORONER INVESTIGATING

Stelton Tragedy May Lead to Criminal Charge Against the Railroad.

NEGLIGENCE CHARGED

Crossing Is Glaringly Unsafe and Road Has Paid No Attention to Agitation For Better Safeguards.

Rigid investigations of the death of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Dunn, who were killed at the Stelton crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad Tuesday night is being made by Coroner Moke, of Middlesex county. Renewed agitation over the futile character of the crossing's so-called safeguards, aroused by the shocking fate of the couple, has spurred the coroner to determined activity, and if liability for criminal carelessness can be shown steps to prosecute the railroad officials will be taken.

After every accident there is a demand that the Stelton crossing be made safe. Probably more lives have been sacrificed there than at any other crossing along the road. Coming upon the road without warning the locomotives seem to carry grim death on their fenders. As long as the crossing is left in its present shape no single watchman, it is held, will be able to prevent fatal accidents.

Stelton people are wondering how many more of their people will have to sacrifice to the steel monsters before the railroad company deems the time opportune for safeguards to the crossing. At some other dangerous crossings in the State law suits have compelled the railroad company to look out for the safety of its passengers.

The fact that a flagman is unable to protect life at the Stelton crossing is evident as Peter O'Brien, the flagman at the crossing, was on duty that night and he was unable to prevent the loss of two lives. While the Supervisor's office at New Brunswick refuses to give out any information about the accident, it is said that O'Brien reported to the office that he had warned the couple and that they had either paid no attention to his warning or else had not heard him.

The two bodies are still in charge of Undertaker Hubbard at his undertaking establishment in New Brunswick today.

Coroner Moke yesterday decided to hold an inquest over the remains today, at the request of members of the family. George S. Silzer has been retained to inquire into the causes which led up to the death and will try to get at the facts at the inquest.

If it can be shown that the accident was caused by the negligence of any railroad employes, then the railroad company can be held for the accident.

Outside of the flagman at the crossing the only witness to the accident, it is believed, was Frank Runyon, who was waiting at the crossing to get across and who was directly behind Mr. and Mrs. Dunn's carriage.

Coroner Moke spent a part of yesterday at the scene of the killing gathering information about the accident.

The bodies will be kept at Hubbard's until Saturday afternoon and will be taken direct from there to the Stelton church, where the funeral service will be held.

HID IN CLOSET.

Wife Conceals Herself from Belligerent Husband.

James A. Kaine was arrested at his home on Watchung avenue last night, for chasing his wife out of their apartment. He had been drinking. Mrs. Kaine fled to the apartment of John Clarkson, upstairs, and hid from her husband in a closet. When Kaine quited down, she asked Mr. Clarkson to go out for a policeman. Patrolman Saunders took Kaine away.

Clarkson appeared in court this morning on behalf of Mrs. Kaine to say that the charge would not be pressed. Sentence was suspended.

Baxter to Stay.

An effective quietus was put upon the reports that Governor Stokes would appoint his old instructor, T. D. Sensor, to succeed Charles J. Baxter as state superintendent of public instruction by the chief executive yesterday afternoon. Governor Stokes also indicated by his remarks that he does not contemplate the removal of Mr. Baxter upon the expiration of his present term as has been stated in certain quarters.

Church Club Play.

The men's organization of St. Stephen's P. E. church is to present a play at the parish house on New Year's night. The title of the production is "The Haunted House." It is planned on an ambitious scale, and the organization expects to make the occasion noteworthy.

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR THE BUSINESS MAN

ELBERT HUBBARD SAYS HE IS AHEAD OF THE PROFESSIONAL MEN.

Elbert Hubbard, the lecturer and searcher ofter soul stuff and things, spoke to the pupils and teachers of the Plainfield Business College yesterday morning. Mr. Hubbard talked for an hour and a half about East Aurora, Elbert Hubbard, the Brotherhood of Man, and the Psychological Impulse.

He scored his usual success. The talk was punctuated with witticisms and near-epigrams, and he had no reason to complain of the degree of closeness with which his talk was followed.

Among other things, Mr. Hubbard said the business man had it on all professional men, because he ministered to the necessities of humanity. All the budding business persons before him applauded.

Mr. Hubbard came to the school, it was said this morning, because he had heard of it as an institution that taught business principles and methods in the way required by modern business. He said highly complimentary things of the school and its work.

It was announced that Mr. Hubbard would return to Plainfield under the auspices of the school, and deliver a public lecture. Mr. Hubbard has no press agent.

NEW MADISON FIRE LOSS SETTLED FOR $3,470

ADJUSTMENT SHOWS FIRST ESTIMATE OF DAMAGE WAS TOO HIGH.

Following a careful estimate of the damage by expert adjusters, William M. Stillman today accepted $3,470 from the insurance companies in payment for the damage sustained by the New Madison building Wednesday night. The figure is well below the loss first given out and shows that the blaze was not near so serious as at first supposed. Mr. Stillman thought yesterday after he had inspected the affected apartments that the entire interior of the three would have to be rebuilt and placed the damage at from $5,000 to $10,000. He had contractors examine the place at the same time the adjusters were at work and the figure he accepted balance with their estimates for reconstruction.

Steps will be taken at once to have the three apartments rebuilt as they were before the fire and the tenants will be able to return in a couple of months.

The task of adjusting the loss to Messrs. Davison, Hubbard and Hedden, who were burned out, is now going on but it will be several days before any figures can be arrived at. The largest amount was sustained by Mr. Davison but he was safely protected by insurance as was Mr. Hubbard. The one victim of the fire who refuses to shake hands with himself is Frank Hedden as he had no insurance at all.

Chief Doane is still at a loss to account for the origin of the blaze as a continued investigation has brought nothing. The only thing that seems plausible is the venture that some one was in the basement during the afternoon or evening and dropped a lighted match in one of the storerooms built for the tenants. They are constructed of pine slats and when once started, would convey flames to the flooring very quickly.

NO TIES FOR ACKERMAN

Union County Senator Will Not Go Into Caucus With Unit Rule Agreement.

PERKINS IS WITH HIM

Plainfield Legislator's Reason is That His Constituents Are Against Dryden—What Westfielder Says.

While the troubles of the Democrats over the organization of the next House of Assembly have been holding the centre of the political stage in this State during the past week the contest over the re-election of John F. Dryden to the United States Senate has been going on without any abatement of energy, even if the action has been mostly behind the scenes. The Dryden men keep up their claim that he will be elected and the Senator's opponents confidently assert that such a result is growing more improbable every day.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, is the latest to announce that he will not be bound by the Republican caucus if it should nominate Mr. Dryden. It was reported that the Union Senator had declared he could not see how he would be obeying the unmistakable public wish of his county that some Republican other than Mr. Dryden be sent to the United States Senate, if he should go into a caucus and after opposing Mr. Dryden's renomination should at the joint meeting cast his vote for the Senator's re-election.

Mr. Ackerman was asked the direct question yesterday if he had said he would not be bound by the Republican caucus if it should nominate Mr. Dryden.

"I have not made up my mind whether I will enter the caucus or not," replied the Union Senator. "But if I do it will be with the understanding that I am not to be bound by the vote of the caucus.

"A caucus for the nomination of a United States Senator," added Mr. Ackerman, "is, to my mind, altogether different from a caucus for the nomination of officers of the Senate or House. The former, I consider, is the conduit of the will of the people, and in it we should be governed entirely by the wishes of our constituents. Now there can be no manner of doubt that the sentiment in Union county is very strong against the re-election of Mr. Dryden, and for that reason I am opposed to him. I want it distinctly understood that my opposition is not based on any personal grounds, but is simply and only due to the fact that the public sentiment of my county is undoubtedly opposed to his re-election. Every day I am receiving letters from citizens in all grades of life telling me how disastrous to the future success of the Republican party his return to the Senate would be, while others oppose him on account of his connection with the Public Service and other corporations.

"Although I have received a large number of letters expressing opposition to Mr. Dryden, and asking me to vote against him, I have not received a single communication in his favor or asking me to vote for him. Besides these written communications I have been spoken to by many of the citizens of my county on the subject, and they, too, almost invariably expressed opposition to Mr. Dryden's re-election. Besides this the farmers of Union have declared against him on account of his votes on the oleomargarine and denatured alcohol bills.

"It is not a new thing for Representatives of Union County in the Legislature to vote against a caucus nominee for United States Senator when it is clear that the people of the county are opposed to that nominee. In the Senatorial election of 1887 William H. Corbin and William Chamberlain, Assemblymen from Union, voted against General William J. Sewell, who was the candidate of the Republican party."

The question of abiding by the decision of the caucus was put directly to Randolph Perkins, also of Union, the leader of the House last year, at his office in Jersey City yesterday. Mr. Perkins was averse to talking on the subject, saying that he thought he would do better if he said nothing at all. It was well known, he continued, that he was opposed to the re-election of Mr. Dryden, because there was no mistaking the sentiment against Mr. Dryden's re-election in Union county. When pressed for a definite reply to the question whether he would be bound by the action of the caucus, Mr. Perkins finally said:

"If I go into the caucus, take part in its proceedings and vote on the nomination of a United States Senator, I shall abide by the decision of that caucus."

The particular emphasis which Mr.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"A Night in Town," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night, serves to introduce an exceedingly clever soubrette, in the person of Helen Warren. Miss Warren is a product of the far West, this being her first engagement with any company starting from New York. The part which this clever young woman plays was created by Eva Tanguay, and it is said, she scores quite as strongly as her predecessor.

Love and courage against trickery and treachery have a bitter struggle in "Big Hearted Jim" and the beautiful romance of the pretty school teacher and the brave Montana sheriff, Jim. Saxon, is told with unerring skill. The play is a mine of gold of true comedy and big nuggets of the best humor are discovered. A talented company makes the many remarkable characters live. It will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

In "By Right of Sword," which is a brisk dramatization of the popular novel by that name from the pen of Arthur W. Marchmont, a justifiable attempt has been made to use the familiar elements of Russian melodrama—The Nihilists, the bureaucrasy, the military despotism, as they exist in the popular imagination in a novel way. Although these familiar things are stirred into this particular theatrical pot the denoument is a happy one and throughout the distillation there are more fumes of comedy than of tragedy. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre Xmas afternoon and night.

It is no easy task for an actor to realize in personality and art a character which has become familiar and popular with the public through some other source. Mr. Pipp in Charles Dana Gibson's famous cartoon of "The Education of Mr. Pip" made his impress as a peculiar type of American—shrewd, droll, rich, funny in appearance and henpecked by a domineering wife. But Digby Bell has been more than equal to it. He has brought Mr. Pipp to life in Augustus Thomas' comedy, "The Education of Mr. Pipp," and presents a perfect realization of the character in one of the most natural, delightful and artistic impersonations which the American stage has known in years. Theatre-goers will have the opportunity of seeing Mr. Bell in this part during his return engagement at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night.

—George H. Bellis, of Elmwood place, is now at the Soldier's Home at Kearny, the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of which he is a member, having interested themselves in his behalf.

N.P.H.S. SENIORS PRESENT "ICI ON PARLE FRANCAIS"

MEMBERS OF THE CAST SCORE INDIVIDUAL HITS.

The senior class of the borough High School clung to custom, last night, by entertaining fellow students and friends with a class play. It was given in the assembly hall before an attendance of nearly 300 young people.

The play was decidedly Frenchy in its origin and action and was entitled "Ici on Parle Francais." The characters were taken as follows: "Mr. Spriggins," Arthur Dunning; "Francais Dubois," Frank Webster; "Major Rattan," Tone Overton; "Mrs. Spriggins," Miss Edith Ganun; "Angeline Spriggins," Miss Myra Emmons; "Mrs. Major Rattan," Miss Florence Smalley; "Anna Maria," (a maid), Miss Lavina Hand. Action in the play was plentiful and every member of the cast took opportunity of it to display artistic ability. Arthur Dunning was "right at home" in his part and he had a splendid opposite in Miss Emmons, who gave a character impersonation in "Angeline Spriggins" that was a breezy as a spring zephyr from the Watchung mountains. Frank Webster took the part of "Francois Dubois" as though he had just stepped from the Bois de Boulogne and other participants scored individual hits. Following the play the members of the class held their regular exercises during which the usual presents intended only for fun were handed out. Lemons were plentiful.

The class play was produced under the direction of Miss Stahlberger, who drilled the participants and is entitled to much credit for their success.

Perkins laid on the word "if" at once suggested the question whether he intended to go into the caucus and he replied that he had not yet made up his mind.

Owing to the fact that there is no one in the Essex delegation who will place Mr. Dryden's name before the caucus, it has been reported that he would be nominated by Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, because he lives in that county half of the year. When Mr. Frelinghuysen was asked what truth there was in that report he declined to discuss it. Neither would he say what position he would take upon the senatorial question, further than that he was pledged to no candidate. The public sentiment upon the question in his county was equally divided, he said, and no more of his constituents had spoken to him against Mr. Dryden than had spoken in his favor. As far as Mr. Frelinghuysen could judge there was no great preponderance of opposition to Mr. Dryden among the farmers of his county. The Senator and Assemblyman from Somerset, he also said, would agree on the Senatorial question.

Mr. Frelinghuysen was the Governor's military aide up to a short time ago, when he resigned on account of the press of business matters. He has always been considered one of Mr. Stokes' warmest supporters, but when he was asked what he thought of the Governor as a Senatorial candidate, he said Mr. Stokes would not do at all, because of the constitutional prohibition. Mr. Frelinghuysen could not see, he said, how any member of the Legislature, who had taken a solemn oath to uphold the Constitution, could vote for Governor Stokes for United States Senator in the face of the clause of that document which explicitly declares that the Governor shall not be elected to any office during his incumbency of the Governor's chair.

The men who are opposing Mr. Dryden say that they know of enough members of the Legislature who have declared themselves against him to prevent his securing the requisite majority of the joint meeting, provided the dissenters are not bound by the action of the caucus. Dryden's opponents are counting on Senators Wakelee, of Bergen; Colby, of Essex, and Ackerman, of Union, and Assemblymen Fake and Divine, of Bergen, Perkins and Tillman, of Union; Drake and Crowther, of Middlesex; Thompson, of Mercer, and Taylor, of Ocean, eleven in all, as men who will not support the junior Senator for another term.

John King, of Bound Brook, owner of the furniture van that was bumped by a trolley car on West Front street, Tuesday night, visited George Coles livery this morning but refused to take away the team that was hauling the vehicle when the crash occured. He declared that they had been rendered unfit for his use and that it was up to the trolley company to say what should be done with them, adding that he expected reimbursement to the last cent of their value. The animals were placed in the livery by the police and in the event of a dispute the city may be called upon to pay for their keep.

—Arthur Jennings, of Jackson avenue, while riding his wheel through that avenue Wednesday night, collided with a woman on a wheel going in the opposite direction. Mr. Jennings had a light on his wheel and was on the right side of the road, while he claims that the woman had no light and was on the wrong side. In the collision Jennings was thrown over the handle-bars of his wheel and received a cut over the forehead which Dr. Long attended to.

Great Joy. In addition there was a vocal solo, He Loved Us So, by Edward Crone, chorus by the school, The First Christmas Gift, song by ten girls, reading of Christmas Story, by Miss Bullock, Star of Bethlehem, Bethlehem Lullaby, by chorus of twenty-five voices.

Exercises were held at the Lincoln Public School this morning. Owing to the fact that there is no assembly hall at this school the children were obliged to hold their exercises in the various class-rooms. The programmes were of a simple character, consisting of recitations and the singing of carols.

Miss Humpstone, principal of the Washington Public School, assisted by the teachers, a Christmas play, entitled "The Real Santa Claus," was given at the school this afternoon by the pupils. There were also several recitations, songs, a piano solo by Ernest Stevens, the singing of a lullaby by the pupils of the fourth and fifth grades. Today noon the children in the lower grades enjoyed a Christmas tree, together with songs and recitations.

FINE CHRISTMAS MUSIC AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Excellent Programme Rendered By Trained Soloists and Chorus.

A small but appreciative audience enjoyed the Christmas musical service at the First Baptist church, last night, and there is no doubt that it will be repeated. The programme consisted of old and new Christmas carols, a selection from an unfinished oratorio, "Christus," by Mendelssohn; a contralto solo and chorus from the "Messiah," together with the beautiful cantata, "The Story of Bethlehem," by John E. West.

The opening number was a prelude, violin and organ, "Aria," Bach, by Howard Case, organist, and Miss Florence Wohlfert, violinist. Then followed the rendition of "Say, Where Is He Born?" Mendelssohn, from the unfinished oratorio, "Christus." Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano soloist, sang the first part, and there was a pleasing duet by William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor, concluding with a part for the entire chorus. The next numbers were two old Bohemian carols arranged by Carl Reidel. The first was "The Angels and the Shepherds," and the second, "Let All Men Sing." "Sing We Noel," French carol from 16th Century, arranged by H. B. Gaul, was divided between the chorus and the women's voices. The next selection comprised three English carols, "Carols for Christmas Eve," Ousely; "Good King Wenceslas," and "Sweet Christmas Bells," made up of solo parts taken by Miss Harris, Miss Gertrude Hinz, contralto, William Holmes and George Smith and the chorus. This part of the programme was concluded with the rendition of the selection from the "Messiah," in which Miss Hinz sang the solo part, assisted by the chorus.

The second part of the programme was given up to the presentation of the cantata, "The Story of Bethlehem." This charming Christmas work was given in true style. The principal solo work was by Miss Harris, William Holmes, George Smith and Miss Hinz, interspersed with duets, trios and quartette parts.

The work of the soloists was up to the usual high standard, under the direction of Edward J. Fitzhugh, who assisted Howard Case, as organist. The soloists were Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano; Mrs. Robert Giddes, mezzo-soprano; George Smith, tenor; William Holmes, baritone; George Taylor, bass, and Miss Florence Wohlfert was the assisting artist.

Shoplifter Fears Divorce.

New York, Dec. 21.—Investigation yesterday by detectives failed to reveal the identity of a well dressed, middle aged woman who, with well filled purse, was arrested in a Fulton street department store after she had, as alleged, stolen several small articles valued at less than $5. To the police she said her name was Mary Howard and that she lives at No. 2,663 Fulton street; but no trace of such a person could be found at that address. She finally admitted that she had given a fictitious name and asserted that she would not reveal her identity for fear her husband would be so shocked by the disgrace that he would divorce her. She managed to obtain bail, her bondsman being the owner of a $15,000 house in Sixth avenue, Manhattan.

NEW JERSEY'S GEOLOGY

Annual Report of the State Geologist for Last Year Just Issued.

CHANGES ON THE COAST

Fossil Plants, Limestones and Other Subjects Treated in the Report.

The annual report of the State Geologist for 1905 has recently been published. In addition to the administrative report, which recounts briefly the operations of the survey, and which was issued early in the year for the use of the Legislature, it contains a number of papers of more than ordinary interest.

"Changes along the New Jersey Coast" is the title of an article by Prof. Lewis M. Haupt, an eminent hydraulic engineer, in which the successive changes of coast line, particularly near the inlets between Sandy Hook and Cape May, are traced in detail. The work of the waves and currents in shifting the sands is analyzed, and some suggestions are made as to protective measures necessary to prevent the encroachment of the sea. A number of maps showing the position of inlets at different periods, and half-tone illustrations of the features along the shore, aid much in making the report of interest.

In Part II., Edward W. Berry gives a brief sketch of fossil plants, tracing the development of plant life during the different geological periods, and pointing out the significant features of their floras. eH also discusses in detail the flora found in the clays near Cliffwood, in Monmouth county, and describes a number of new specnes. This paper, although somewhat technical in character, possesses some features of interest to all interested in botany.

A report upon "The Chemical Composition of the White Crystalline Limestones," making Part III. of the report, is published at opportune time. The great demand for a limestone high in carbonate of lime and comparatively free from sillica and magnesia has directed attention to our extensive deposits of white limestone, particularly those near Franklinn Furnace in Sussex county. The Geological Survey has made a large number of analyses of these limestones, both from the quarries which are already opened and also from other localities which seem worthy of developing. Through the courtesy of companies already established in the district other analyses have been obtained. This report is accompanied by a map showing the location of the white limestone and the points from which samples were taken, and will be of great value to all persons interested in the occurrence of high-trade limestones.

The question of portable waters is a vital one to the State, particularly to that portion of the State whose natural source of supply is to be found in the Upper Passaic Valley. For this reason, the possibility of establishing a huge storage reservoir in this valley by the erection of a dam at Little Falls has been carefully investigated by the Survey, and C. C. Vermeule in his report discusses the questions involved. He shows that by a dam at Little Falls having a length of 6,000 feet it will be possible to create a lake in the low land along the river having an area at normal level of over 30,000 acres, and a maximum depth of 28 feet. Such a lake would have storage capacity to furnish 396,000,000 gallons daily, even during the driest season. Of this 100,000,000 gallons should be allowed to run off through the stream channel being used to furnish power at Little Falls, Paterson and Passaic, and to flush the lower stream in order that it may be maintained in a wholesome condition. There would be left 206,000,000 gallons daily available as a water-supply, an amount sufficient to supply the growing demands of the metropolitan district of the State for the next thirty-five years. Until so needed the surplus water would be available for sale as power. The storage afforded by the proposed lake would be ample to provide for even the greatest floods which have ever occured upon the river.

Mr. Vermeule's report contains a carefully worked-out statement as to the probable cost of such an improvement, and points out that if undertaken at all, it should be carried out as a public trust under the control of the State. A large map showing in detail the position of the lake accompanies the report.

The peat deposits of the State are treated in a carefully prepared paper by C. W. Parmelee and W. E. McCourt. All the swamps in the northern portion of the State were examined, samples collected, and a long series of tests made to determine the availability of the peat for fuel, fertilizer purposes and other uses. The paper contains also a peneral discussion of the various uses to which peat had been put in other countries.

Notes upon the mineral industry of the State, showing that during the year the production of iron ore was over 500,000 long tons, and of zinc ore over 323,000 tons, conclude the volume.

The report can be obtained by making application to the State Geologist, at Trenton, N. J., and sending 1 cents to cover the cost of mailing, or the separate papers can be had by sending 4 cents each for postage.

McCLURE'S FOR 1907.

In the January number of McClure's will begin the Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy and the History of the Christian Science Movement. For the first time a complete, impartial and true story of Mrs. Eddy and Christian Science is to be had—it will run throughout the year. Georgine Milmine has written the story—for nearly three years she has pursued her study of the subjects. Five other writers of McClure's staff have worked with her to make this story accurate, fair, unbiased and complete. In view of the fact that for some months the press has been full of diverse and conflicting news and statements regarding Mrs. Eddy, it is evident that accurate knowledge concerning her is difficult to obtain in a short time. Consequently McClure's long and thorough preparation of its series will give us for the first time a true history and account of her and her cult.

Carl Schurz's Reminiscences of a long life will be continued. An indication of the timeliness of these reminiscences and the reawakened national interest in Carl Schurz to which they have contributed, are the great Carl Schurz Memorial Meetings held recently in the cities, and the memorial movement started which proposes to raise $250,000, and to erect a Carl Schurz memorial as a tribute to his great service to the progress of our country. William Allen White, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Burton J. Hendrick and George Kibbe Turner will also contribute to McClure's powerful articles on present day topics, conditions and men of national interest. These writers are big men and the work of each one aside from its literary achievement is a compelling, wholesome factor in the regeneration which these United States are now undergoing. George Kennan, who won his spurs by his remarkable series on Siberia and Russia's exile system, has been added to McClure's staff. The results of his recent investigations and work will appear at an early date. Ellen Terry contributes an intimate history of the English drama of our day. This writing teems with anecdotes and incidents from the lives of great actors whom she knew intimately. From these droll, amusing and interesting happenings we can understand why these men and women of genius became loved and famous. For the story readers products of all McClure's fiction favorites will appear and a large number of writers who have "hit" recently. Such well known names as Joseph Conrad, Mary Stewart Cutting, Perceval Gibbon, Viola Roseboro, O. Henry, Myra Kelly, Rex Beach, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow and Helen R. Martin give promise of as good stories of various sorts as any reader could wish. Illustrators of note and merit will also contribute their share and add to the authors productions and enhance the writings and stories by scores of pictures and illustrations in every issue.

TO THE SHOPPER.

Don't wait until the day before Christmas to buy the majority of your gifts because they are marked down at the last moment.

Don't give to people because you anticipate a gift from them.

Don't give your mother an ornament for the house; make her gift as personal as you can.

Don't harass the weary salesgirl any more than you can help; a kind and considerate word from you will win more attention and courtesy than the most haugthy command.

Remember that bargain counters are a snare and a delusion, particularly at this season, and regulate your purchases accordingly. Who would appreciate a gift that looked as if it had been handled and laid aside by a multitude?

Don't give at random. Give a little consideration to the likes and taste of the one whom you are going to remember.

Don't forget that Christmas comes but once a year, and that there is no greater joy than gicing to those you love.

GIFTS FOR THE BABY.

A silver food pusher.

A rattle with a Peter Rabbit head.

A painted ball attached to a shirred ribbon.

A cord doll hung with little bells.

A ribbon hung with rings full of safety pins.

A little satin cabinet for his various pins.

A cunning little pair of carded silk shoes trimmed with "val" lace.

A Santa Claus Mask Free.

Boys and girls, you can get a Santa Claus False-Face free with next Sunday's New York World. It comes with the Magazine Section and is just the right size to fit a boy or girl. It is in bright colors, with green leaves and red holly berries. Just the thing to have lots of fun with for Christmas. Make others laugh and make yourself happy. Every parent should get this Christmas Supplement for the children.

No receptacle for soiled clothing should under any circumstances be kept in a bedroom.

In mending household linen the most satisfactory way to do is to mend it before it is sent to the laundry, not when it returns, starched and ready for use once more.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

If perplexed as to why to buy for a Christmas gift go to Putnam & DeGraw's dry goods store on West Front street, and you will find just what you want.

You will find at O. M. Dunham's men's furnishing goods store a great many things that will make a suitable gift for a man and the prices are within your reach.

Carl Silbert, the West Front street jeweler, is prepared for a big holiday trade. His stock is large and makes it easy to select a gift suitable for any member of the family.

C. M. Neagle, the West Front street druggist, is sure he can please you with his large stock of holiday goods. Inspect them before purchasing elsewhere and you will never regret it.

Have you seen L. W. Randolph's drug store? It is handsomely decorated in Christmas attire and is more attractive than ever. There is an unusual display of Huyler's celebrated confection in a booth arranged for the holiday season, and the stock includes all the toothsome sweets. Lots of other things suitable for Christmas gifts.

What Scribner's Magazine Is Doing For Its Readers.

Not long ago William Allen White wrote of Scribner's:

"Between the magazines that are using the lever of their circulation to pry up the world, and those which have nothing of current interest later than 1812, there lies a fine pathway for some magazine for people who are now on earth who are not excited about the proximity of the demnition bow-wows to the orbit of this sad old earth, and in that path Scribner's Magazine seems to be walking in solitary state. Its fiction is particularly sane and wholesome. It lacks the Miss Nancy pucker of the fiction of the magazines of prunes and prisms, and holds the vigor of the fiction of the more strenuous magazines without the slightest rawness. Scribner's is a great and good magazine and should be in every American home."

This commendation is well borne out by the announcement which the publishers of this magazine make of some of the contents for the coming year.

There will be a series of articles by Henry van Dyke, entitled, "Days Off," which will appeal to all lovers of out-of-door life—and who in these days is not? Papers by Sidney Lee, entitled the "Call of the West" to the Englishmen of Elizabeth's time, of very special interest in relation to the early settlement of America; two articles by the Confederate General E. P. Alexander, one on the "Battle of Bull Run," the other on "The Movement against Petersburg;" "Touring Europe in an Automobile" will be described by the brilliant writer, Henry Norman; Thomas F. Millard will write on "Present Conditions in the Far East;" the remarkable "Voyave of the Dry-dock Dewey" will be described by the artist, W. J. Aylward; the great Cathedral of St. John, the Divine, now in process of construction in New York city, will be the subject of an article by Mr. Grant La Farge, one of the architects. Such articles as these will give the magazine character and interest for every thoughtful reader.

The fiction in the magazine promises to be of the highest type and of much more than ordinary interest, as the mention of a few names will indicate.

There will be more Rebecca stories by Kate Douglas Wiggin, short stories by Richard Harding Davis, J. B. Connolly, Arthur Cosslett Smith, John Fox., Jr., Thomas Nelson Page, Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, F. Hopkinson Smith, and many others.

Scribner's has always been beautifully illustrated and has for years furnished the standard for color printing.

A Happy Hunting Ground For Gift Seekers—Van Horn's.

The happy hunter of gifts will find many a useful suggestion in the marvellously varied stocks of Amos H. Van Horn, Ltd., (73 Market street, Newark, N. J.,) commonly known as "Everybody's Store." Passing from floor to floor, one sees nothing but thoroughly practical gifts for folks of all ages, and the most inviting feature of it all is the uniform moderateness of prices. The rugs, lamps, pictures, dining room, prior and bedroom pieces all seem to be of the very latest tyle, calculated to appeal to all tastes. The unique system of this house in the matter of accommodating terms is praiseworthy indeed, proving a most acceptable boon to many at a time when ready cash is often a scarce commodity.

Seals Crape From Doorknob.

New York, Dec. 21.—Stealing crape from the doorknob of a house of mourning was the crime of which William Cleary, a longshoreman, of No. 5 Thompson street, was convicted in Special Sessions Court yesterday. There was a death in No. 475 Canal street on Monday last, and the usual black was placed on the door. It was daylight when Cleary passed and he was seen to detach the crape, place it in his pocket and walk away. He was sent to the Tombs for sixty days. The crape was valued at $1.50.

Four hours is the longest interval during which children should go without food in the daytime, and something, if only a drink of milk and a biscuit, should be given them before going to bed.

BROAD STREET—NEWARK, N. J.—CEDAR STREET

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

Graceful Hands.

It is next to impossible to make the hands slender. You can make them graceful by indulging in certain Delsarte exercises, stretching the fingers to the utmost and closing the hand slowly and gracefully. You can also keep your hands soft and white by using a pure soap and cosmetic jelly. If, in addition, the nails are beautifully manicured, the extra plumpness will not matter so very much. The main thing is to have the hands white and soft, the nails polished and clean and to move the hands gracefully. All these delightful conditions can be cultivated.

Towels.

Much to the comfort of the average man and the sensible woman, the fringed damask towel is being supplanted, or at least supplemented, by the hemstitched huckaback. To many persons huckaback affords just the right degree of roughness and resistance to be agreeable, while it also absorbs moisure rather more rapidly. For the dower chest of the bride nothing is prettier than huckaback towels embroidered at the ends tastefully in old blue, old pink, white or a color that matches the decorative scheme of some particular room.

Timbales of Cooked Rabbit.

Grease well one dozen small timbale molds; sprinkle with chopped tongue and chopped mushrooms. Mix in a basin six ounces chopped cooked rabbit, one cup of brown sauce, one tablespoonful of bread crumbs, salt, pepper and one egg, and fill the lined molds; cover with greased paper and steam for twenty minutes. Serve with brown sauce, flavored with red current jelly and a little sherry wine.

For the Complexion.

One writer on the care of the complexion says that no astringent tonic surpasses cold rain or distilled water. Dip the soft linen rag into the water, slap the face gently with it for five minutes every morning and see what happens. It stimulates the circulation, she says, and the activity of the circulation is precisely that which produces the clearness and brilliancy of skin so much desired.

Shelf Paper.

"If paper is used on your closet shelves," says an expert in domestic science, "teach your waitress to put on three thickness at once. It is as easy to cut three layers as one. They can be removed then one at a time as they become soiled, a few dishes being removed and replaced as the paper is rolled away, and it requires much less time than to remove all the dishes and put on new paper."

To Keep Colors from Running.

To prevent blue from running into a white ground, dissolve a teaspoonful of copperas in a pailful of soft water, and a piece of lime the size of an acorn and soak the garments in this water two hours before washing. To keep colors from running in washing black prints, put a teaspoonful of black pepper in the first water.

To Keep Clothes White.

In putting away white clothes from one season to another to keep them from yellowing take a bag made of an old sheet, wash clean, dip in strong bluing water and dry. It should be very blue. Then put clean clothes in bag loosely and hang in a dark closet. Clothes will keep white for years by this method.

To Clean Bronzes.

First rub the bronze well with a dry cloth to remove every particle of dust. After dusting wash well in strong white soapsuds and ammonia. Ainse clean and polish with rotten stone and a tiny bit of oil. Then rub off every trace of the oil. Never let any kind of acid touch the bronze, as it will eat it.

Cabbage Stumps.

Why do we throw away tender cabbage stumps? Why do we throw away apple peelings and apple cores? Apple cores and peelings make a splendid jelly, but it is well to get rid of most of the pips. Cabbage stumps when young are a valuable addition to stews. They should be sliced.

To Clean a White Felt Hat.

Make a soft paste of magnesia and cold water. Apply with a brush. Let it get thoroughly dry and then brush with a fairly stiff brush till the powder is removed, and the hat will look like new.

Ebony Brushes.

The backs and handles of ebony brushes should be rubbed over with a little boiled linseed oil after washing and then rubbed with a soft duster till every vestige of oil is removed.

Washing Linoleum.

Never use either soap or brush when washing linoleum. Use instead warm water and a soft cloth or flannel; rinse with water and skim milk and wipe dry with a soft cloth.

To Keep Chimneys Clean.

When the lamp chimneys are cleaned a paper cone set over each one will prevent the accumulation of dust and greasy vapor that is apt to collect on them before evening.

For Softening the Skin.

Pure glycerine is too strong for the majority of skins. Diluted with three parts of aqua pura or rosewater, it will be found soothing and softening to nearly all skins.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

BY HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

As he listened to Brigham's words, picturing the blood of the sinner smoking on the ground, his thoughts fled back to that night,—that night of wondrous light and warmth, the last he could remember before the great blank came.

Now the voice of Brigham came to him again: "'And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission!"

Then the service ended, and he saw Bishop Wright pushing toward him through the crowd.

"Well, well, Brother Rae—you do look peaked, for sure! But you'll pick up fast enough, and just in time, too. Lord! what won't Brother Brigham do when the Holy Ghost gets a strangle-holt on him? Now, then," he added, in a lower tone, "if I ain't mistaken, there's going to be some work for the Sons of Dan!"

CHAPTER XIV.

How the Souls of Apostates Were Saved.

The Wild Ram of the Mountains had spoken to-day; there was work at hand for the Sons of Dan. When his Witness at last came to Joel Rae, he tried vainly to recall the working of his mind at this time; to remember where he had made the great turn—where he had faced about. For, once, he knew, he had been headed the way he wished to go, a long, plain road, reaching straight toward the point whither al the aspirations of his soul urged him.

And then, all in a day or in a night, though he had seen never a turn in the road, though he had gone a true and straight course, suddenly he had looked up to find he was headed the opposite way. After facing his goal so long, he was now going from it—and never a turn! It was the wretched paradox of a dream.

The day after Brigham's sermon on blood-atonement, there had been a meeting in the Historian's office, presided over by Brigham. And here for the first time Joel Rae found he was no longer looked upon as one too radical. Somewhat dazedly, too, he realized at this close range the severely practical aspects of much that he had taught in theory. It was strange, almost unnerving, to behold his own teachings naked of their pulpit rhetoric; to find his long-cherished ideals materialized by literal-minded, practical men.

He heard again the oath he had sworn, back on the river-flat: "I will assist in executing all the decrees of the First President, Patriarch, or President of the Twelve, and I will cause all who speak evil of the Presidency or Heads of the Church to die the death of dissenters or apostates——" And then he had heard the business of the meeting discussed. Decisions were reached swiftly, and orders given in words that were few and plain. Even had these orders been repugnant to him, they were not to be questioned; they came from an infallible priesthood, obedience to which was the first essential to his soul's salvation; and they came again from the head of an organization to which he was bound by every oath he had been taught to hold sacred. But, while they left him dazed, disconcerted, and puzzled, he was by no means certain that they were repugnant. They were but the legitimate extension of his teachings since childhood, and of his own preaching.

In custody at Kayesville, 25 miles north of Salt Lake City, were six men who had been arrested by church authority while on their way east from California. They were suspected of being Federal spies. The night following the meeting which Joel Rae had attended, these prisoners were attacked while they slept. Two were killed at once; two more after a brief struggle; and the remaining two the following day, after they had been pursued through the night. The capable Bishop Wright declared in confidence to Joel Rae that it reminded him of old days at Nauvoo.

The same week was saved Rosmas Anderson, who had incurred rejection from Israel and eternal wrath by his misbehavior. Becoming submissive to the decree of the Church, when it was made known to him by certain men who came in the night, it was believed that his atonement would suffice to place him once more in the household of faith. He had asked but half a day to prepare for the solemn ceremony. His wife, regretful but firm in the faith, had provided clean garments for her sinful husband, and the appointed executioners dug his grave. They went for him at midnight. By the side of the grave they had let him kneel and pray. His throat had then been cut by a deft hand, and he was held so that his blood ran into the grave, thus consummating the sacrifice to the God of Israel. The widow, obeying instructions, announced that her husband had gone to California.

Then the soul of William Parrish, at Springville, was saved to eternal glory; also the soul of his son, Beason. For both of these sinful ones [illegible] on the verge of apostasy; had plotted, indeed, and made secret preparations to leave the valley, all of which were discovered by church emissaries, fortunately for the eternal welfare of the two most concerned. Yet a few years later, when the hated Gentiles had gained some shadow of authority in the new Zion, their minions were especially bitter as to this feat of mercy, seeking, indeed, to indict the performers of it.

As to various persons who met death while leaving the valley, opinion was divided on the question of their ultimate salvation. For it was announced concerning these, as their bodies were discovered from time to time, that the Indians had killed them.

It was now that Joel Rae became conscious that he was facing directly away from the glory he had so long sought and suffered for. Though as yet no blood for Israel had been shed in his actual presence, he had attended the meetings of the Sons of Dan, and was kept aware of their operations. It seemed to him in after years that his faculties had at this time been in trance.

He was seized at length with an impulse to be away from it all. As the days went by with their tragedies, he became half wild with restlessness and a strange fear of himself. In spite of his lifelong training, he knew there was wrong in the air. He could not question the decrees of the priesthood, but this much became clear to him,—that only one thing could carry with it more possibilities of evil than this course of the Church toward dissenters—and that was to doubt that Brigham Young's voice was as the voice of God. Not yet could he bring himself to this. But the unreasoning desire to be away became so strong that he knew he must yield to it.

Turning this in his mind one day he met a brother Elder, a man full of zeal who had lately returned from a mission abroad. There had been, he said, a great outpouring of the spirit in Wales.

"And what a glorious day has dawned here," he continued. "Thank God; there is a way to save the souls of the blind! That reminds me—have you heard of the saving work Brother Pixley was obliged to do?"

"Brother Pixley?—no." He heard his own voice tremble, in spite of his effort at self-control. The other became more confidential, stepping closer and speaking low.

"Of course, it ain't to be talked of freely, but you have a right to know, for was it not your own preaching that led to this glorious reformation? You see, Brother Pixley came back with me, after doing great works abroad. Naturally, he came full of love for his wives. But he had been here only a few days when he became convinced that one of them had forgotten him; something in her manner made him suspect it, for she was a woman of singularly open, almost recklessly open, nature. Then a good neighbor came and told him that one night, while on his way for the doctor, he had seen this woman take leave of her lover—had seen the man, whom he could not recognize, embrace her at parting. He taxed her with this, and she at once confessed, though protesting that she had not sinned, save in spirit. You can imagine his grief, Brother Rae, for he had loved the woman. Well; after taking counsel from Brigham, he talked the matter over with her very calmly, telling her that unless her blood smoked upon the ground, she would be cast aside in eternity. She really had spiritual aspirations, it seems, for she consented to meet the ordeal. Then, of course, it was necessary to learn from her the name of the man—and when all was ready for the sacrifice, Brother Pixley commanded her to make it known."

"Tell me which of Brother Pixley's wives it was." He could feel the little cool beads of sweat upon his forehead.

STATE COLLEGE WORK REPORTED TO GOVERNOR.

Growing Demand for Graduates of Ceramic Courses Is Pointed Out.

Trenton, Dec. 21.—The annual report of the State College at New Brunswick has been submitted to Governor Stokes. The document is a lengthy one, detailing the technical work in agriculture and mechanic arts which is pursued in this institution. The report of the State board of visitors shows that during the past years the corps of instructors numbered thirty; that the enrolment for the year was 182.

Under the head of condition and progress the report notes that New Jersey has paid the college $27,600 for services rendered under the scholarship act of 1890 during the collegiate years 1902-1903, 1903-1904 and 1904-1905, and $24,000 appropriated for the establishment of short courses in agriculture. The requisite land for these courses has been acquired by gift and by purchase, contracts for buildings have been made, and it is expected that the courses will be formally inaugurated in January, 1907. The report also shows that plans for the enlargement of the facilities for instruction in the departments of civil engineering and electricity are nearly concluded.

In the report of the department of clay-working and ceramics made by Cullen W. Parmelee it is shown that there is a growing demand for graduates of the courses in ceramics. During the past year there have been requests for men, requests which, however, were not met, solely because all our graduates were already engaged. Mr. Parmelee says "such requests from manufacturers may be interpreted as surest evidence of the value of scientific training in ceramics. Although a new profession in ths country, a development of the past ten years, yet everywhere we find progressive managers of clay-working industries taking into their employ young men especially trained to attack the problems of this industry."

The financial report of the clay-working department of the college for the fiscal year ending October 31 shows that the receipts for the year from the State treasurer, as per appropriation, were $2,500.

BLACKER CRIME NEVER STAINED ARMY'S HONOR.

President in Message Says Death Is Proper for Offending Negro Troop.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—President Roosevelt's special message, sent to Congress yesterday, regarding the dishonorable discharge of negro soldiers because of the outbreak in Brownsville, Texas, is generally regarded here as about as vigorous a document as Mr. Roosevelt has ever written, but it is not likely to prevent an investigation of the whole affair by the Senate. He declares the soldiers were the aggressors from "start to finish;" that they murdered one man, tried to murder others, and tried "to murder women and children." He declares the act was one of "horrible atrocity," and, so far as the President is aware of, "unparalleled infamy" in the annals of the army.

"Blacker crime," the President says, "never stained the annals of the army," and this has been supplemented by another "only less black" in the shape of a "successful conspiracy of silence for the purpose of shielding those who took part in the original conspiracy of murder." Mr. Roosevelt denies that the discharge from the service which he ordered was a punishment, because as a punishment it is "utterly inadequuate." The punishment, he says, meet for mutineers and murderers, such as those guilty of the Brownsville assault, is death, and a punishment only less severe ought to be meted out to those who have "aided and abetted murder, mutiny and treason" by refusing to help in their detection. The President declares if negroes elect to stand by criminals because they are of their own race they will surely lay up for themselves the most dreadful day of reckoning. "I do not claim as a favor, but I challenge as a right, the support of every citizen of this country, whatever his color, provided only he has in him the spirit of genuine and far sighted patriotism," Mr. Roosevelt declares.

HORTICULTURISTS TO MEET.

State Flower Society Issues Call for Its Thirty-second Annual Session in January.

The thirty-second annual meeting of the New Jersey State Horticultural Society will take place at the State house, Trenton, in the Assembly chamber, Thursday and Friday, January 3 and 4. Secretary Mary W. Budd has sent out notice of the meeting, and announces that the headquarters will be at the Trenton House.

Farmers' clubs, granges and agricultural societies are requested to send delegates. A question box on topics pertaining to horticulture will be provided.

The society will offer prizes at this meeting for exhibits of horticulture. Reports of officers, committee and election of new officers will comprise the principal business of the session.

Dummy Oil President.

New York, Dec. 21.—Attorney General Herbert S. Hadley, of Missouri, drew from Standard Oil witnesses Thursday, at a continuation of the Missouri ouster case, in the Waldorf-Astoria, the admission that a humble employee of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was taken from the sales department of that branch of the great organization and with an increase of salary of only $500 a year was made president of the Republic Oil Company, which purported to be independent, but was in reality the absolute property of the Standard. One of the chief duties which this dummy president was called upon to perform in return for his increase of $500 a year in salary was to pay over to William G. Rockefeller, as treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the parent concern, the dividends of the so-called independent concern.

45,000 Want More Pay.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 21.—Demands for a wage increase of fifteen per cent. and an eight hour day for brakemen and conductors on all through freight trains will be filed today with managers of all railroad systems in the West. The demands cover 45,000 men on forty-seven systems, and the increase asked for amounts to approximately $8,000,000 a year. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors are acting in conjunction in the matter, and the officials of these organizations expect to open negotiations with the railroad managers early in January. The engine drivers and firemen are proposing to make a similar move, but they are acting independently.

Wages Still Swelling.

New York, Dec. 21.—From almost every point in the United States, and especially from New England, news has been spread broadcast for the last month that big corporations—and these include the Standard Oil and railroads—had announced five, ten, fifteen and twenty per cent. increases in wages of employees, but as the new year approaches the number of workers to benefit by the generosity of employers increases. The latest railroad to announce higher wages is the Lehigh Valley. That company announced yesterday an increase in the pay of employees in the transportation department of from ten to twenty per cent. to take effect December 1.

FOR LARGER HOSPITAL IN FIREMEN'S HOME

Report of New Jersey Institution at Boonton Is Presented to the Governor.

Trenton, Dec. 21.—The board of managers of the New Jersey Firemen's Home at Boonton has submitted to Governor Stokes its seventh annual report, which details several phases of the administration of the institution. The report shows that the population of the home at this time is thirty-one. Of the total number of inmates, eleven were admitted during the past fiscal year. There were three deaths in the home during the year, as follows: Augustus J. Crooks, of Newark; Charles Zehner, of Trenton, and John Degroff, of Bayonne.

The financial report of the home shows that the receipts during the year were $13,017.04, and that of this amount all was expended, excepting a present cash balance of $2,996.26. For the fund of the home devoted to general improvements, the amount in the treasury is $4,524.41. The fund, which is made up from moneys received from deceased members, amounts to $3,1.62. Clothing for the men and subsistence for the year cost $3,139.69, which equals twenty-six adn three-quarter cents per day per man. The annual cost for maintenance per man is $12.33. During the year three men left the home, as follows: Charles R. Van Pelt, of Matawan; Samuel Walker, of Paterson, and George A. Drake, of Newark.

Dr. Cuthbert Wigg, home physician, in his report, advocates for the home additional hospital accommodations, and in this connection he says:

"The advancing age and consequent liability to sickness, together with an increasing number of inmates, would, in the judgment of the house physician, indicate provision for addditional hospital accommodation, the present room having been crowded to its limit on several occasions. I would suggest careful consideration of this matter before actual necessity demands, and the home be very much incommoded to provide the necessary accommodation and care."

May Get New Graves.

New York, Dec. 21.—Acceding to the request of a large number of persons whose relatives are buried in the old Roman Catholic cemetery, between First avenue and avenue A and Eleventh and Twelfth streets, the oldest large Catholic cemetery in this city, the Board of Trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral have called a meeting of the members of the corporation on February 25 to decide what shall be done in the matter. Twenty-three years ago there was a similar attempt to give up the ground for cemetery purposes, and it met with such a storm of indignation that the matter was dropped.

Wife Refused to Accept Body.

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 21.—Sensational development are looked for at Bryan, Ohio, in consequence of the attmept to bury the body of a man supposed to be that of John P. Long, which was brought from Camden, N. J. The identification of the body had been accepted by all save his wife, who sued for a divorce before Long disappeared. She refused to accept the body until she saw it. When she did she proved that the body was that of another man than her husband. Dr. James Long, a cousin of the missing man, who brought back his supposed body to Bryan, again went East yesterday with the body which had been picked up beside a railroad track in Camden.

PENSION ROLL WIDOWS

Last Revolutionary Widow Died Only One Month Ago.

COSTLY TO THE U. S

Young Women Marry Old Veterans, Grass Widows Seek Pensions.

ith at Plymouth Union, Vt., on vember 11 of Mrs. Esther Damon, the last of the widows of Revolutionary soldiers, directs attention to the fact that if the widows of Civil War veterans attain as great longevity as the widows of those who served in the Revolutionary Army the government will still be paying pensions to them in the year of our Lord 1987, says a dispatch from Washington.

As for the widows of the veterans of the Spanish-American War, no official of the Pension Bureau has been bold enough to attempt to compute when this roll of pensioners may end. But it will certainly be somewhere after the beginning of the next century.

In 1899 there were four widows of Revolutionary soldiers living. In 1903 two were living.

Three daughters of Revolutionary soldiers still survive on the pension rolls, all of whom were pensioned by special act of Congress. They are Sarah C. Hurlbutt, aged 88, of Little March, Pa., daughter of Elijah Weeks; Rhoda Augusta Thompson, aged 85, of Woodbury, Conn., daughter of Thaddeus Thompson, and Phebe M. Palmeter, aged 85, of Talette, N. Y., daughter of Johathan Wooley. The daughter of a Revolutionary soldier who had attained the age of 90, Mary Jane Lynn, of Williamsport, Pa., died on February 19 last.

The last of the survivors of the War of 1812 died on May 13, 1905, but widows of these veterans are still on the pension rolls to the number of 660, although 116 died last year. Hiram Cronk, of New York, was the last of the survivors of the War of 1812, and he was buried with considerable ceremony.

The widows of Mexican War veterans now on the pension rolls outnumber the veteran pensioners nearly two to one, there being 7,488 of the former and 3,984 of the latter.

The survivors of the Civil War outnumber the widows who are drawing pensions on account of that war more than two to one, there being 666,453 soldiers and sailors of the Civil War pensioned and 252,047 widows of veterans of that war. But the number of soldier pensioners is rapidly decreasing, the net decrease last year amounting to 18,155, while the number of widows who are drawing pensions was increased last year by 536.

It will not be many years at this rate before the Civil War widows outnumber the Civil War veterans on the pension rolls. One reason for the increase is that a majority of the soldiers who die as pensioners leave widows who, until the soldier's death, have no pensionable status, but as soon as the soldier dies his widow goes upon the pension payrolls either under the general law or under the act of June, 1890.

One can readily see that a woman who draws a pension as the widow of a soldier of the Revolutionary War or the War of 1812 must have married the soldier on whose account she is being pensioned when she was young and the soldier very old.

A century and a quarter has passed since the close of the Revolutionary War and nearly a century has elapsed since the War of 1812. Admitting that a Revolutionary soldier was 15 at the close of the war, he would be at least 135 years old if he were on the pension rolls today. By the same calculation a soldier pensioner of the War of 1812 would be past the century mark.

Until Congress passed the act of March 3, 1899, it was quite common for young women to wed old veterans and then promptly desert them, and as soon as the veteran died make application for pension as a soldier's widow. The act of March 3, 1899, was passed to correct this growing evil.

There is a section in the pension office under the direct control of the law division which has come to be styled the grass widows' division. It has to do with the application of women who say they are the deserted wives of soldiers and who make claim under the law to an allowance of one-half the soldier's pension.

It was stated at the bureau that the Commissioner of Pensions has had more trouble on account of soldiers who have deserted their wives after having secured a pension and left them destitute than on account of women who have married soldiers with a view to securing a widow's pension.

There are many cases in which a veteran has surrendered his pension to the government rather than permit his wife, from whom he was living apart, to share his pension with him. For a time it was the habit of some of the pensioners to deprive their wives of half their pension money by refusing to draw the money, allowing it to accumulate until such time as the wife died or was divorced.

The commissioner put a stop to this practice by construing the statuate so as to enable him to pay the wife her share of the accrued pension, regardless of whether the veteran husband drew his share or not. Other veterans have deserted their wives and afterward caused false information to be given that they were dead.

WHAT JERSEY DOES FOR ITS CITIZENS

IT DOES MORE THAN MOST STATES AND IMPOSES LIGHTER BURDENS.

"One of the attractions that helps to bring residents and industrial establishments to New Jersey," said a prominent manufacturer of the State the other day, "and one that seems to have escaped the attention of the press, is found in the fact that while the State does more for its citizens than do most States, the burdens which it imposes on them are lighter than in almost any one of its fellow members of the Union. A distinguished Western statesman recently visited us and pointed out some of our shortcomings in the pathway of progress. An examination of recent figures indicate, however, that New Jersey is really in advance of States that are pointed out as noteworthy examples of progress.

"For instance, the State of Wisconsin, which Senator La Follette thinks is the banner State in enterprise, is compelled to levy State taxes upon the people. In the State of New Jersey there has been no levy of taxes on the people since 1884. Wisconsin, with its State tax, paid only $1,118,000 for educational purposes last year, while New Jersey without any State tax paid $1,116,000.

"New Jersey's railroad taxes for several years past have been $5,000,000 annually, whereas Winsconsin, with its new railroad tax law, last year collected only $2,600,000 under it. The increase in railroad taxes in Wisconsin last year was only 33 per cent., whereas the increase in New Jersey as a result of New Jersey's tax law is 300 per cent.

"I doubt if there is another State in the country that can equal New Jersey's State treasury balance of $3,000,000. Wisconsin can boast of only $2,000,000. The State treasury balance of New Jersey would be greater every year by a million or two but for the fact that the laws of our prosperous little State provides for the expenditure of the surplus in ticular it has one item alone by public works. In this latter parmeans of which New Jersey can give valuable lessons to its rival States. I refer to the 1,200 miles of fine macadam roads in New Jersey which have been built from the State funds in addition to the enormously valuable public State institutions for which New Jersey is famed. Wisconsin has built almost no roads. It has no State institutions to speak of and these facts are true of almost all the group of States adjacent to Wisconsin.

"New Jersey on the other hand possesses the finest school system of any in the country, except, perhaps, that of Massachusetts, which it equals. Its surface transportation system is admitted to excel that of New England and the most prosperous of the Western States."

FACTS IN FEW LINES.

J. I. C. Clark, now acting as press agent for the Standard Oil Company and all its vast allied interests, has long been a leading newspaper man in New York. So successful thus far have been his efforts that other men of large affairs who heretofore have scoffed at friends for employing press agents are now casting about for publicity experts to attach to their permanent staffs.

Some time ago the ameer of Afghanistan forbade the import into his country of carpets colored with aniline dyes. The dunbar of Kashmir has now decided to charge the high duty of 45 per cent. on all aniline dyes at the frontier and at a certain distance within the frontier to confiscate and at once destroy them. By this measure it is hoped the beautiful arts for which the vale of Kashmir is famous will be preserved from deterioration.

Vermont's retiring governor, Farmer Bell, went out of office as firm a believer in capital punishment as he went in. "During my term," he said in his valedictory message, "it became my duty to see that this law was carried into effect. In the general discussion of the subject thus occasioned in the state as well as elsewhere I have been deeply impressed with the fact that Vermont has more regard for the dignity of law than for sickly sentimentality."

The milk producing industry was discussed at length. It was the consensus of opinion that the price of that commodity should be advanced, as there was little or no profit in its production, especially during the greater portion of the year when there is no pasturage. It was maintained that the local producer was at a decided disadvantage as compared with such corporations as Borden's, as their dairies could not be examined by local boards. Agitation was advocated looking to the abatement of milk adulteration by so-called "preservalines."

VAIL

A GOOD YEAR FOR THE STATES FARMERS

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE REPORTS ONLY ONE FAILURE.

Cyrus B. Crane, in his annual report, says that the past season had been one of signal prosperity to the farmed; that the weather conditions had been such as to make possible the harvesting of exceptionally large crops. But one failure had to be recorded, he said, and that was the attempt to follow the advice of Professor E. B. Voorhees, of the New Brunswick Experiment Station, who advocated making alfalfa a staple product of the farm. Mr. Crane pointed out as the possible causes of the failure of experimenting with this valuable fodder the neglect of the proper soil preparation and the lack of the necessary bacteria. As a means of making farming more profitable, reducing the cost of fertilization by the growing of nitrogenous crops, such as clover, etc., the manipulation of the materials at hand in a more intensive manner and a more efficient management of all adjuncts of the farm, were advocated.

In the matter of taxation, it was charged that the farmer was forced to pay more than his just share of the cost of government, while many corporate interests escaped paying their proportionate burden. A more stringent automobile law, efficiently enforced, especially in rural districts, was favored. Mr. Crane spoke of the revival of the custom of holding annual fairs, stating that the exhibit of last fall was a creditable one, and that with a strong fair organization, as has been effected, a fine showing may be looked for next fall.

Secretary Justus W. Dobbins gave a report of the meetings of the year inclusive of the Farmers' Institute held in the Verona Methodist church. Treasurer George R. De Camp read his report, which showed that all indebtedness had been paid off, leaving a balance of $15.82.

Dr. Joseph B. Ward, one of the board of directors of the State Agricultural College, stated that he had just come from a visit to New Brunswick and had spent considerable time discussing the work of special training for the prospective farmer with President W. H. S. Demarest and Dr. Edward B. Voorhees, of Rutgers College. He explained the aims of the short course in agriculture recently established and now offered for the first time in the history of New Jersey. The courses are general agriculture, dairy farming and fruit growing and market gardening. All courses will begin January 2 of next year. Tuition is free to all residents of the State and no entrance examination will be required.

There are but twenty applicants as yet, he declared, and of this number three young women have matriculated. Mr. DeCamp, who is a member of the executive committee of the State Board of Agriculture, said that the only opposition that voiced itself in the Legislature to the establishing of these free courses was born of the belief that the farming community would not patronize them. The State appropriated, he affirmed, $24,000 for buildings and land and $6,000 for instruction, and it was up to the people to show its appreciation of the advantages offered.

Austin E. Hedden made a report of teh meeting of the State Board of Agriculture held recently at Trenton.

ADVERTISING PHILOSOPHY.

You wouldn't plant a sapling in the spring and expect your entire house shaded the following summer.

Neither does a wise merchant insert a 2-inch ad for one day and expect to sell out his entire stock the following 24 hours.

Shade follows growth. Dollars follow judicious advertising.

A Daily Press ad is read just before the people go shopping—that means something.

Originality in advertising is all right, but it must be sensible.

Attracting attention doesn't necessarily sell goods—a black snake in an orchard will make us open out eyes, but very few of us care to carry it home.

Don't fail to advertise, but be sensible always. Use The Daily Press.

If your goods are worth selling, they are worth advertising—"keeping everlastingly at it" brings success.

If you have something to sell, let the people know it with a Daily Press ad.

If you are in doubt as to how to advertise, let our ad man call and offer suggestions.

ON THE JERSEY CENTRAL.

First Commuter—Well, conductor, I see you've lost your general passenger agent, Burt.

Conductor—Yes; but we haven't lost Hope.

Second Commuter—
Our greatest good, and what we least can spare,
Is Hope; the last of all our evils, fear.

Conductor—Where there is no Hope there can be no endeavor.

Third Commuter—
Hope tells a flattering tale
Delusive, vain and hallow.
Ah! Let not Hope prevail,
Lest disappointment follow.

Conductor—
Behind the cloud the starlight lurks,
Through showers the sunbeams fall;
For Baer, who loveth all his works,
Has left his Hope with all.

And so forth and so on. Hope is the new general passenger agent of the Central. Everybody is punning him, and some are punishing.

PIONEERS OF PLAINFIELD

Websters Among Earliest of Settlers in This Vicinity.

OLD HOMESTEAD SITE

Mainly Instrumental in Laying Out the Road That Has Become Watchung Ave.—Genealogical Lore.

Among the earliest pioneers who settled in this vicinity on these "plain fields" and established permanent homes here, were members of the Webster family. In the list of first landholders of this name in Woodbridge township when title was taken in 1666, was Nathaniel Webster, of Newbury, Mass. In 1698, when Piscataway township was settled, the name of Robert Webster appeared on the official roll of freeholders. These were of English ancestry and identified with the Anglican church.

The Webster line, for consideration in this article, was connected from the first with the Society of Friends and was of Scotch origin. William Webster, its founder, emigrated to East Jersey at the time of the persecution in Europe of nonconformists and dissenters. He located a few miles southeast of Plainfield about 1685, and raised a large family, most of whom, with their descendants, have been exemplary members of the Friends faith. William Webster was scrupulously sincere in his religious convictions. For this reason he strenuously opposed contributing towards the support of the Puritan preacher in Woodbridge, and took the first step in this colony towards resisting a public taxation to pay the minister's salary! The transaction is thus referred to in the old Town book of the year 1695:

"William Webster, pretending that it is contrary to his conscience to pay anything toward the maintenance of a minister, Captain John Bishop hath engaged in open town-meeting to free the said Webster from the said charge and to pay the said Webster's part so long as the said Bishop shall live."

The original family of this Scotch Friend consisted of his five sons, William, Jr., mentioned further on; Benjamin, b. 1709, m. Rachel Skinner; Joseph, b. 1711, m. Elizabeth Shotwell; Moses and Aaron. The daughters of the emigrant settler were Mary, Hannah, Sarah and Rachel.

The oldest son of this worthy sire, as just stated, was William Webster, Jr., born 1692, married 1717 to Susannah Cowperthwait. He set up housekeeping about 1718-20 in Plainfield on a farm through which Cedar brook ran then as now. This pioneer home was located on the southeasterly side of the stream, near where Prospect avenue crosses the brook. The house he built was one of the earliest dwellings in existing city limits.

Part of this original building is still standing, and is occupied by the Martines. It might be recorded also that in this dwelling is some of the timber and foundation material that entered into the construction of a previous habitation of one of the still more primitive pioneers who temporarily dwelt on the same plantation in 1685.

In this early eighteenth century home were born eleven children and here the Webster homestead remained for several generations. There were three sons and eight daughters, all but one reaching mature years. The oldest child was John Webster, born 1718, died 1800; William, b. 1722; Hugh, b. 1730, died 1815. Seven of the girls lived to marry: Grace, Rachel, Susannah, Martha, Mary, Sarah and Elizabeth. They formed marriage relations with the Shotwells, Hamptons, Thorns and Marshs.

The oldest son, John, was his father's main assistant on the plantation of a large acreage in 1750, the year of the father's death. Up to this time there was no public road near by and the front of the dwelling house had a southern exposure. The Websters were mainly instrumental in laying out and opening a roadway running east and west on the northerly side of the house. This highway, then and for half a century afterward, was known as the road to Rahway. About 1815 it was called Peace street, later Broadway, and now Watchung avenue. At the time the road was first opened the front of the old homestead was changed from the south to the north side, in order to face the new public highway.

About the time of the opening of this Rahway road, the Websters erected a grist mill on the bank of Green brook at the head of this thoroughfare. The mill continued to grind the grain of farmers for miles around being located just below and near the present dam at Tier's pond, until 1782, when it was moved to the mountain road, now Somerset street, and known for years as French's mill.

The families mentioned were all among the founders of the early Friends' meetings at Woodbridge and Rahway. In 1728 an effort was made by the Websters, Laings and others to start a meeting in the vicinity of Plainfield. The first Plainfield meeting house was completed and occupied for worship in 1731-6. The small house was located in the woods of Short Hills on lands given by John Laing, about a mile from the eastern city limits. This little building served the quiet congregation until 1787-8, when the present house was erected, where it still stands, near the depot.

The youngest brother of John Webster, occupant of the old homestead until his death in 1800, was Hugh Webster, born 1730, married 1753 to Sarah Marsh, died 1815. He owned a large farm at the northwest of the primitive plantation of his father and grandfather, lying in the present first and second wards. His family, all born in Plainfield, consisted of seven sons and five daughters: William, John, Samuel, Hugh, Isaac, Marsh and Joseph. The last was grandfather of Catherine R. Webster, who recently died, the sole distributor of his estate. The five daughters were Mary, married Edward Fitz Randolph; Martha, married Thomas Laing; Susannah, married Samuel Pound; Sarah, who died young; and Anna, married Joseph Laing.

In another article will be given the descendants of Joseph Webster, ancestor of the late Miss Kate Webster.

Poverty is the want of much, avarice the want of everything.

No tyranny of circumstances can permanently imprison a determined will.

Idleness travels very leisurely, and poverty soon overtakes her.

More men fail through ignorance of their strength than through knowledge of their weakness.

You may succeed when others do not believe in you, but never when you do not believe in yourself.

Man is not merely the architect of his own fortune, but he must also lay the bricks himself.

He alone is happy who has learned to extract happiness, not from ideal conditions, but from the actual ones about him.

Man was made for growth. Perpetual expansion is his normal condition. To have an ambition to grow larger and broader every day, to push the horizon of ignorance a little further away, to become a little richer in knowledge, a little wiser, and more of a man, that is an ambition worth while.

As a rule, he will be the most successful man who has himself best in hand, who is the best schoolmaster to himself, and who compels himself to the discipline and drill which will strengthen his deficiencies and eliminate his weaknesses, the man who is the best trainer of himself.

DEFENDS SUPT. BAXTER

Head of Borough Schools Is Vigorous in His Support.

POLITICS LED TO ATTACK

Mr. Baxter Himself Told New Market Friends That Yesterday — He Doesn't Fear Loss of His Official Head.

Vigorous defense of State School Superintendent Charles J. Baxter, who has been assailed in some quarters as unfit for reappointment, was voiced this morning by H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the borough schools and of the Somerset county schools, this morning. To a reporter who asked Mr. Krebs what he thought of Mr. Baxter and his administration of the State superintendency, Mr. Krebs said:

"The insinuations against Mr. Baxter are not only untrue, but exceedingly unkind, and are resented by those who know the man and the facts. Mr. Baxter has never done anything to secure appointment, reappointment, or increase of salary. His modesty in this respect is so well known that his friends have always in the past taken the necessary steps in his interests, knowing that he would do absolutely nothing himself except to attend most effectively to his duties.

"I believe that ninety-nine per cent. of the school men want to see Mr. Baxter reappointed. He has done a great work in developing the high schools of the State. He has courageously stood up for the right of every child in the State to receive a high school education. He has been most helpful in his counsel to school officers. In fact, there are no complaints except from some people who are not satisfied because Mr. Baxter has declined to allow politics to enter into the educational affairs of the State, and from a few other people who would like to be appointed State Superintendent themselves and therefore needs must raise an issue.

"The school men of the State do not want to experiment with a new man. They know the efficiency and the loyalty of Mr. Baxter, and wish to see him retained for at least another term."

Mr. Baxter spoke of the attacks on him to friends he met at the New Market school dedication yesterday. He said his head was demanded by a clique of politicians who found they could not use him, and never would be able to. He spoke as if he had little doubt of reappointment.

COMING COLLEGE SMOKER WILL BE LARGELY ATTENDED.

From Number of Acceptances to Invitations the Casino's Capacity Will Be Taxed.

From present indications it looks as if this year's all-college men's smoker will surpass last year's as far as attendance and manner of entertainment are concerned. During the first three days after the notices were sent out over 150 replies were sent in, the majority of them being acceptances. It looks now as if the Casino would be taxed to its utmost. As regards entertainment the committee can promise many novelties this year which it is not at liberty at present to divulge. Those who have not done so are urged to reply at once to Owen H. Fleming, 1012 Park avenue, whether or not they expect to help whoop it up for their Alma Mater on Thursday night, January 24.

There will be plenty of good lively music, instrumental and vocal, at the smoker and the committee has promised to have a quartette from Princeton and one from Yale. Those who were present at the last smoker will remember what a rivalry there was among the men representing various colleges and the singing of favorite college s ongs was one of the most enjoyable features of the occasion.

An Epworth League Social.

The members of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church enjoyed the monthly entertainment and social in Vincent chapel, last night, and although the attendance was not large, those present had a good time, playing all sorts of games, including lawyer vs. client, stage coach, Santa Claus and many others. Miss Sayre had charge of the entertainment, planning the programme. After the programme, the social committee, of which Miss Helen Whitney is the chairman, served refreshments, which included charlotte rousse made by Miss Whitney.

—The assortment of vegetables at Neuman Brothers is the largest in the city. For today and Monday they will have cauliflower, green beans, hothouse radishes and tomatoes, spinach, fancy table celery, cucumbers, oyster plant, beets, Boston lettuce and many others. Strictly fresh consignments.

DEDICATED THE SCHOOL

New Structure at New Market Acclaimed by the Populace.

C. J. BAXTER WAS THERE

State Superintendent Made the Dedicatory Address—Flags and a Dictionary Presented—The Programme.

The new $12,000 brick school house was dedicated at New Market yesterday afternoon, and the village took a holiday to attend the exercises. South Plainfield and the more rural parts of Piscataway township were well represented in the audience. It was a great day, and nobody able to get out to it stayed at home. Even very small children, whose interest in the school lies in a dark and dismal future were there.

The programme was impressive. Its length was twenty numbers, and some extras. It included five addresses—one of them by State Superintendent Charles J. Baxter—orchestral selections, vocal solos, choruses, recitations, and presentations. New Market waited long, and fought valiantly at the polls, for its new schoolhouse, and it felt that the structure must have a great send-off.

The exercises were held in the school assembly room. The back of the platform was draped with the 12x18-foot flag presented to the school by the village Juniors and Daughters of Liberty. A smaller flag, for stormy day use, stood at the platform's side. The brand new Emerson piano, which is to be paid for by popular subscription, stood before the platform, and a handsome Webster's distionary, unabridged and unreformed, rested on the piano top.

The programme was as follows:

PART I—Selection, orchestra; prayer, Rev. C. W. F. Attlee; address, Rev. H. N. Jordan; selection, orchestra; dedicatory address, State Superintendent C. J. Baxter; waltz-song, "Carmena," H. L. Wilson, Miss Lulu M. Corson; address, County Superintendent H. Brewster Willis; address, D. J. Perrine, president Board of Education; song, "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," chorus; recitation, "Advantages of Education," Hilda Johnson; recitation, "A Liberal Education," Emile Nelson.

PART II—Song, "The Year's at the Spring," H. A. Beach, Miss Lulu M. Corson; recitation, "Education," Lester Nelson; address, Rev. Frank Fletcher; selection, orchestra; recitation, "The National Flag," Grace Burdick; presentation of flag, Miss Irene Day; acceptance by President of Board of Education; song, "Star Spangled Banner," audience and chorus; "America," audience and chorus; benediction, Rev. Frank Fletcher.

In his dedicatory address State Superintendent Baxter quoted interestingly from educational reports, noting, among other things, that the average cost of New Jersey's schoolhouses is $1,123. He congratulated the school board and the community on the new school, which he would have thought cost much more than $12,000 if he hadn't known the sum expended on it. Credit was due to the school board, he said, and thanks.

The formal words of dedication were said in closing his address. Bringing the audience to their feet, Mr. Baxter said, with impressiveness:

"Let us dedicate this building to truth, industry, honor, and education."

County Superintendent Brewster Willis gave some county statistics. In connection with them he said teachers were not paid enough. D. J. Perrine, president of the board, concurred with Mr. Willis in his address. He intimated that the board would make provision in the next budget for an increase of salaries.

Rev. H. N. Jordan and Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastors of the Seventh-Day and First Baptist churches, respectively, spoke briefly. Both commended the school board and voiced the pride of the township in the new school. Miss Irene Day spoke briefly in presenting the flags on behalf of Friendship Council, No. 81, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Lakeside Council, No. 35, D. of L. The audienced joined the chorus of school-girls in singing the Star Spangled Banner when Miss Day finished.

Just before the exercises closed, it was announced that Mr. and Mrs. Morris Eiseman, of New York, who have property interests in New Market and take great interest in the advancement of the village, had each made a gift toward the equipment of the school. Mrs. Eiseman gave the dictionary on the piano and Mr. Eiseman gave $10 toward the payment on the piano.

The Piscataway Board of Education is made up as follows:

D. J. Perrine, president; G. W. Harris, vice president; E. S. Vechte, secretary; William Bieler, John

MADE KNIGHTS OF MALTA

Governor Stokes, Mayor-Elect Fisk Among 200 Presenting Themselves.

BEFORE 1,000 TEMPLARS

Five Plainfielders Knighted in Templars' Highest Degree—Commander Dill Toastmaster At Banquet.

The Order of Malta was conferred on Governor Edward C. Stokes, two hundred others included, and five members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., at a stated conclave of Jersey Commandery, No. 19, K. T., of East Orange, last night. The work was executed in full form by Washington Commandery, No. 1, K. T., of Hartford, Conn., in the presence of Sir Knights from Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, Delaware and this State. There was a delegation of just thirty-five Sir Knights from Trinity Commandery. Washington Commandery has the reputation for excellence in conferring degrees and this was fully sustained last night.

Governor Stokes was the honored guest of Jersey Commandery in receiving the degree, and it was through the courtesy of the commandery that Mayor-elect Charles Joel Fisk, Major Maze Edwards, former Councilman William Starr Bullock, Stephen B. Joseph and former Councilman J. Stephen Higham, of Trinity Commandery, were permitted to receive the degree.

The conclave was held in the Women's Club building, East Orange, and the hall was crowded to the limit. The greater part of the evening was taken up in conferring the Order of Malta. Afterward Jersey Commandery entertained the Sir Knights at a banquet. Sir Knight W. A. Pinto was the chairman of the committee having charge of the transportation for members of Trinity Commandery.

A class of nearly two hundred members of various commanderies of New Jersey presented themselves in company with Governor Stokes for similar honors.

What took place within the walls of the asylum while the ceremonies were in progress is of course a sealed book, for the Knights Templars' work is as secret and its secrecy is as zealously guarded from alien eyes and ears as that of any other branch of Freemasonry, and no more than the least hint ofthe solemnity and beauty of the work performed within the asylum is ever divulged. That the order stands for Christian brotherhood and that its membership embraces the flower of the Christian manhood of this and other States is everywhere recognized.

The members of the Washington Commandery and officers of visiting grand commanderies were entertained at dinner at the Orange Club at 6 o'clock.

About one hundred Sir Knights were at the tables. Governor Stokes occupied the seat of honor, at the right of Eminent Commander James B. Dill. The diners received, by standing, Sir Knight General Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America, associate prelate of Jersey Commmandery, who was a late comer at the dinner. From the club house the guests were escorted to the asylum by the officers of Jersey Commandery.

At the asylum Right Eminent Commander Carman, of the New Jersey Grand Commandery, was formally received by the assembled Sir Knights and assumed charge of the conclave.

BACK FROM COBALT.

Dr. Moldenke Hal Hard Journey To New Mining Field.

Dr. Richard Moldenke has just returned from a trip to the Cobalt mines in Northern Canada. His journey to the mines was one of hardship. He tells of getting up in the morning with the thermometer 30 degrees below zero, and, after bundling up in furs, blankets and extra clothing driving fifteen or twenty miles over snow-packed roads, to make a report of two of these mines. Wolves and bears abounded in the dense forests through which he passed, and the driver went heavily armed on this account.

Dr. Moldenke brought back some beautiful specimens of silver ore almost in a pure state.

Not a Candidate for President.

Councilman George P. Mellick announces that he will not be a candidate for re-election as president of the Plainfield Country Club, which position he has held for several years. Therefore, his name will not be presented at the annual meeting of the club in February. Mr. Mellick has been active in the management of the club since its organization.

Miss Marion Phillips, of Fairview avenue, a student at the Bordentown Academy, is home for the h olidays.

P.H.S. XMAS EXERCISES

Presentation of Prizes Including Daily Press Silver Cup Evoked Interest.

"ROAST" THE JUNIORS

Luncheon Served by Third Year Class For Seniors and Faculty—Gifts Exchanged.

The Christmas exercises of the Plainfield High School, held yesterday in the auditorium, were in every way a success. The gallery was well filled with visitors and their appreciation of the programme was shown by frequent and sustained applause.

One feature was a complete surprise to all, as it was not announced until Principal I. W. Traver explained that a neat sum remained from the contributions after purchasing the Sir Galahad picture. This money together with the ten dollars which the State allows to be spent for the school each year, was sufficient to buy a second picture. It represents Cicero denouncing Cataline and is the one which received the second largest number of votes by the students when the other picture was chosen. It was presented in the name of the school by Miss Mildred Berry, and William Douglas, president of the senior class, made the speech of acceptance.

The presentation of prizes was as follows:

The handsome silver cup offered by The Daily Press for the class championship in the field meet went to the class of 1907. The individual championship medal offered by the High School Athletic Association was presented to Chauncey Murphy. The individual ribbon prizes offered by The Courier News went to these people: For 100-yard dash, first prize, Murphy; second, Douglas; third, Fisher. Standing broad jump, Murphy, Fisher and Douglas. Running high jump, Todd, Douglas and Caldwell. Pole vault, Murphy, Brakely and Taylor. The 440-yard run, Douglas, Brakely and Todd. Shot put, Douglas, Caldwell and Fisher. The 50-yard dash, Edgar Freeman, Russell Miller and Alfred Beeken. Running broad jump, Murphy, Brakely and Douglas. Hammer throw, Douglas, Fisher and Brakeley. The 220-yard dash, Murphy, Douglas and Fisher. The 880-yard run, Murphy, Todd and Brakeley.

The prize for the tug-of-war went to the juniors. Joseph VanDeventer, who won the tennis tournament in singles, was presented with a medal in the form of a watch fob. William Briggs and Fred Martin won the prize for doubles in tennis.

As has been the custom for a number of years, after the formal programme was concluded, the seniors took charge and proceeded to "roast" every member of the junior class. The seniors went on the stage in a body and the juniors were called up one at a time. Joseph VanDeventer and Weston Garett, dressed as monkeys, pushed a fruit wagon through the auditorium and up on the stage. They took their part well and seemed perfectly natural. William D. Taylor, arrayed as an Italian fruit vender, followed the cart, playing a hand organ. When all were on the platform the juniors were called up one at a time, and handed a lemon from the cart. The lemons consisted of Christmas presents; and while they were being undone an appropriate poem was read, exposing some characteristic of the victim. The presents were supposed to either aid or remedy the point brought forth in the poem. Some were hit hard but all took their "roast" in a good natured way and with a spirit that makes an affair of that kind a perfect success. The poems were written by members of the senior class and read by William Osgood.

At the close of the exercises the juniors served a spread to the faculty and the senior class. The menu: Potato salad, olives, pickles, sandwitches, ice cream, cake and candy. Louis de Bigard was head waitor. For the remainder of the afternoon dancing was enjoyed in the auditorium.

The junior class Christmas committee was composed of the president, Walter Caldwell, Harold Robbins, Percy Mygrant, Francis Foster, Donald Mortimer, Miss Elizabeth Pound and Miss Esther Crampton.

The sophomore and freshmen classes also exchanged gifts. The former presented the lower class with cards bearing a highly colored picture of a lemon and an appropriate verse, also highly colored. The freshmen gave the sophomores tin horns with a verse attached. This was written by Miss Margaret Leggett, and the other by Miss Sadie Brouwer.

ELECTION ERROR STANDS

State Board Can't Go Behind Returns For Voting Machine Mistake.

THE RAHWAY MUDDLE

Election Officers of Fourth Ward, in That Place, May Be Authorized to Correct Martine's Vote.

Attorney-General McCarter has submitted an opinion to Governor Stokes, as chairman of the State Board of Canvassers, advising him that in his judgment the functions of that body are purely ministerial, and that, therefore, the board can not go beyond the returns submitted to it. The opinon was asked for to determine whether the board could correct the obvious mistakes made in the Fourth ward of the city of Rahway, where James E. Martine, the Democratic candidate for Congress, received more votes than there were names on the poll book.

The attorney-general has found authority, however, by which the board may refer the returns back to the election officers for correction, and this course will undoubtedly be pursued. Mr. McCarter in his opinion to the Governor says:

"The question has been submitted to me whether or not the State Board of Canvassers are justified in inspecting the voting machine in question and correcting the obvious error that has been made in the returns. I have examined the subject with considerable care, and, contrary to my first impression, have reached the conclusion that it is well settled in this State that the duties of the County Board of Canvassers are purely ministerial, and that in examining the returns submitted to them and announcing the result, they have no right to go behind such returns and ascertain if they are, in fact, correct. The duties of the State Board of Canvassers are imposed by the Legislature in practically identical language with those of the county board, and I apprehend, therefore, that the same rule governs them. I think, however, that when an obvious error exists, such as is here found, the board has the right and is charged with the duty of having improper returns amended so that the true state of affairs can be presented to them."

CLASS JOLLIFICATION AT THE SEMINARY.

Juniors Entertain Seniors at the School and Give Them Presents.

An informal evening of Christmas jollification in which seniors and juniors took part was passed at the Seminary last evening when the members of the junior class gave a reception to the seniors. Informally planned, the affair proved a brilliant social success. The members of both classes attended in costumes and masques and the assembly room, where the exercises were held, was tastefully decorated with the Christmas colors in streamers and with holly.

Commemorative of the season, gifts were distributed by the juniors to the members of the senior class. The presents were hanging in stockings, one for each senior, and were presided over by Miss Catherine Titus, as Santa Claus. The gifts were appropriate to the individual girls and each was accompanied by a verse of poetry, containing "slams" and "lemons" for the recipient. The president of the junior class, Miss Marguerite Carpenter, presented the gifts as each senior's name was called by Santa.

Following the distribution of gifts, which caused much merriment, masques were removed and the juniors received their senior guests at an informal collation. At the close of the evening's programme, there was a dance participated in by the members of both classes and the invited guests.

P. H. S. Boys Lark.

"Eat, drink, and be merry"—that was the purpose for which the boys of the senior class of the Plainfield High School assembled in the gymnasium last night. "Rough-house" held sway for a while, and everybody got his share. They played basketball; had a war dance, tug-of-war, acrobatic stunts, and Oriental dances. After an ample feast in the lunch room the boys proceeded to the auditorium, and with William Douglass at the piano they "let voices resound."

Will Caucus Next Week.

The members of the Common Council will not hold their caucus to decide about a president and the committees until some night next week. Councilman Mellick is still detained at home by illness, but it is believed that by next week he will have recovered sufficiently to attend the caucus.

CLOSED BOROUGH'S YEAR

Council Meets to Receive Annual Reports and Finish 1906 Business.

CHAS. A. LEE RETIRES

Thanked By Mayor Smalley for His Faithful Service of Six Years and Nine Months.

For the purpose of receiving reports and closing up accounts so that it could enter upon the new year free and clear, the Borough Council held a special meeting, last night, making the last one for 1906. The session also marked the retirement of Charles A. Lee who has been a member of the body for nearly seven years and he was formally bade "farewell" by Mayor Smalley and the other councilmen.

Among reports submitted was one from Mayor Smalley as acting recorder which detailed affairs in the police department for the past year as follows: Total number of arrests 215; amount of fines collected $566.75, committed to the county jail 12, committed to the borough jail 9, sentence suspended on 14. This report was supplemented by one from Chief Marshal Weiss in which he stated that the large number of arrests was due to the increase in foreign population and the newcomers' unfamiliarity with the laws. He stated, however, that as soon as they got acquainted they became law-abiding citizens and occasioned no trouble. The general order in the borough at the present time he declared to be excellent.

Howard Woolston, chief of the fire department, submitted this report: Number of alarms for the year, 34, divided as follows: Regular 11, still 12, false 4, wash and drill 4, special 3. The special alrms were for the Park Club on July 4 when supervision was exercised during a pyrotechnic display, a haystack fire at the Watchung springs on November 19, the same being out of the borough limits, and for box 17 in this city last Wednesday night. The causes were divided in this manner: Grass 5, chimney 8, oil stove 2, lamps 2, children and matches 2, unknown 2, lace curtain and gas jet 1, straw 1.

Fred Becker, overseer of the poor, reported that his total receipts for the year, including balance left over, had been $1,326.76, and that he had disbursed $1,254.23. The clerk's and treasurer's reports cannot be made up until after the first of the year as a number of accounts remain to be included.

In the regular order of business, Mr. Lee asked that a resolution be passed defining the powers and extending the scope of the borough end of the consolidation committee. He explained that the joint body had been handicapped in this respect and that the action he requested had been taken by the Plainfield council. On instruction from the Mayor, Mr. Lee presented a resolution covering the needs and it was passed. Mr. Lee was made a member of the committee because of his connection with the council and he will continue to serve after his retirement as a clause in the county permits him.

Thomas Moran, Catherine Moran and other property owners petitioned for a fire box and hydrant at Watchung avenue and Regent street and Thomas Deter made application for appointment as lieutenant and driver in the fire department. Fred Emmons was appointed a call man to act as driver until a permanent man is secured and Mr. McGee reported auditing the books of the overseer of the poor and finding them correct. The resignation of Fred Breem as lieutenant in the fire department was received and accepted. He was appointed at the last meeting but afterward declined to serve.

When Mr. Lee's retirement from the council was suggested, Mayor Smalley took occasion to address him direct and among other things he said: "On the part of those you have represented in the council I want to thank you. I know what it means to serve as you have and realize the trying times and criticism it brings and when a man gives his services without pay as you have he deserves a hearty vote of thanks and I for one want to extend mine. I am very sorry that you are to retire and I hope the time will come when you will return to us and again take up the burden."

In reply Mr. Lee said: "I have been in the council six years and nine months and the work has been a pleasure, while I have also enjoyed the companionship of yourself and others. There have been times when I was criticised harshly but I realized that it was impossible to serve everyone agreeably and held to the purpose I thought was right. I retire with the best wishes for those who remain in the council and also yourself."

Mr. Lee will be succeeded by B. R. Waldron.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The new Emerson piano was in its place in the school assembly hall yesterday afternoon. It is a handsome instrument, and it is to be hoped the citizens will cheerfully and rapidly pay off the money due on it. The board has exhausted its funds on the school and the piano will have to be paid for by popular subscription. It was regretted yesterday by a good many that the board did not pass contribution baskets through the dedication audience. A tidy sum could have been gathered.

The school flag will not fly from the roof of the building. It will float from a staff set in the school yard, where it will catch the eyes of the children as they come into school. The stormy weather flag is on a pole of its own, and will be flown from over the school doorway.

Ralph Fraunfelter, formerly principal of the New Market school, now teacher of mathematics in the Roselle High School, attended the school dedication exercises yesterday.

J. Newton Apgar left his sick-bed yesterday to attend the school dedication. He is not as ill as he has been, but the cold is still in command of him.

Mr. and Mrs. Benward's celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary will be an elaborate affair. The invitations will be out next week.

Ernest Peters has given up electrical work to become a fireman on the Central Railroad. He started to work this week at Jersey City.

The opening of the bank will be marked by a reception. Open house will be kept on the first day and visitors will be made welcome.

Turkeys and all manner of Christmas cheer on the hoof (so to say) will tempt the patrons of Nelson's hotel Christmas Eve.

Frank Nelson, of Roselle, visited old friends in the village yesterday.

On Wednesday evening, December 26, Washington Hall will be thrown open to the Sunday-school, and the parents and friends. Old fashioned games and lots of fun will be the order of the evening. Santa Claus is hurrying from Snow-land and is sure to be there to distribute gifts to the children.

The services in the church tomorrow will vary from the usual services. The evening service will be of a different order; vocal and instrumental music will occupy the hour. The prayer meeting will be omitted on Tuesday evening.

There will be a family reunion on Christmas Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. VanCourt. It is expected that twenty-five relatives will be present and Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor of Marconnier chapel, will be a guest.

The Catholic flock will soon give another entertainment, the proceeds of which are to go toward the erection of the proposed church.

WANTS PIER TORN DOWN.

Attorney-General Files An Information Against Railroad Structure.

Trenton, Dec. 22.—Attorney-General McCarter has filed an information in the Court of Chancery to compel the Central Railroad to tear down so much of its pier at Elizabeth as extends beyond the exterior pier line established in that part of Newark Bay. The information asserts the original sovereignty of the State in all the lands lying under the waters of Newark Bay and the Arthur Kill within the present boundaries of the State.

The only authority given the railroad for the premises in question, it is claimed, was under a grant made on November 12, 1874. These powers have neither been enlarged nor altered since the grant was made, yet it is claimed that the railroad has arbitrarily built its pier beyond the exterior line, and upon lines lying under the navigable waters of the State.

National Guard Scandal.

New York, Dec. 22.—Extortion, bribery and blackmail are the charges on which are based the subpoenas served yesterday afternoon in the armory of the First battery, Captain Louis Wendel, commanding. District Attorney Jerome has been told of "graft" within the battery and of methods of intimidation that, if proven, as he has no doubt they will be, will threaten the disruption of that organization and must result in several important changes within it. There are those now high in authority who will be fortunate, in the opinion of the District Attorney, to escape State prison. Courts martial are certain to follow and it may be the entire National Guard of New York will feel the effects.

"THE LION AND THE MOUSE" IN THE BOWLING TOURNEY

THE SIMILE PROMPTED BY THE CONTRASTING SIZES OF TWO TEAMS.

"The lion and the mouse," or rather the lions and the mice, met in competition on McLaughlin's alleys, yesterday afternoon, the struggle being another series in the two-men tourney. The smaller end of the combination was the "pony" team, Mullen and Conklin, and like the heroine in Charles Klein's popular play they got the better of the "lions", which happened to be Judge Runyon and Chief Kiely. The ponies were not in terribly rapid shape, in fact Willie Mullen handed in the lowest score of the entire tourney series, but for all that they captured two of the three games. A large crowd of fans was on hand and the applause the youngsters got helped them to pile up strikes and spares.

Four other teams competed last night; Nash and Skelly taking two from Vail and Meyers and Felver and Reville two from Causebrook and McLaughlin. By a bit of hard luck, John McLaughlin lost the game in which he made high score for the night, a 228. His partner rolled 152 but Felver and Reville accomplished some terrific pinning and turned in a combined score of 404, one of the best yet recorded. In this game McLaughlin made five straight strikes just before the finish. Walter Vail was hoodoed in his games, getting 115 and 130, while his best was 169.

FOOTBALL.

The first official session of the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee will be held in New York today, and the progress in the work of revising the gridiron code for next season will be watched closely by the followers of the game as well as those who are opposed to the sport.

The most financially successful season in the history of football at Dartmouth has just closed, according to the report made by the athletic directors, for with gross receipts of $17,343 there remains a balance in the treasury of $5,335. Of the receipts the largest item was the perquisites of the game with Harvard, which netted $7,237.26, and in the expense column the trip to Princeton showed the greatest expenditure, totalling $1,057.79.

Abandoning the professional head coach in football, Cornell has adopted a system of graduate coaching and next fall will put it into operation. Henry Schoelikopf, '02, and Morris Halliday, '06, are the men selected to do the work. At a meeting of the athletic council held recently they were selected to act as field coaches for next year. With Capt. Cook they will form the football field committee, and will be assisted in coaching by old Cornell football players, chosen by the council and the committee.

Harvard has always shown a marked preference for corpulent football players. The Crimson eleven in recent years has boasted of at least one or two fat men. This policy has been apparently sustained in the reported election of Centre Rush Parker to the captaincy of the Harvard eleven for next year. Parker is a heavyweight in all that the word implies. In the Yale game he was compelled to retire from sheer exhaustion after putting up a plucky fight.

GOLF.

According to Frank Presbrey, the advertising golf tournament to be held at Pinehurst, N. C., on January 14, 15 and 16 promises to prove a decided success. In view of the fact that this is not an official tournament of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests, the committee has deemed it advisable to broaden the qualifications so as to permit any one to play who is in any way associated with the advertising business.

The new parlor game called "substitute golf" is likely to provide something more than entertainment on a cold winter's night, when the links are covered with snow, as it will teach a beginner all about the game except the actual use of the clubs, and make, perhaps, many converts to the "royal and ancient" game.

W. R. Moon, of the Dunwoodie Country Club, struck a note that has since been responded to by many when he asked at the annual M. G. A. meeting that the dues be raised from $15 to $20, the increase to be used to bring out the handicap list in its present complete form. The other delegates did not catch on at once to the drift of Moon's suggestion and the motion did not pass, but since the meeting the supporters of the motion have increased in numbers. The handicap committee, Calkins, Manzies and Phillips, had previously recommended that in view of the expense, about $250, and the trouble, the general list of 2,550 names be done away with and a ranking list of perhaps 900 names be substituted, that is all handicapped to nine instead of fifteen.

DIAMOND DUST.

The New York American League Club will make a determined effort to secure Doc Hillebrand, famous as the star boxman at Princeton University several years ago. Hillebrand is technically the property of the Washington club, but the young man, after agreeing to go there shortly after leaving college, decided that he wanted to play in a larger city, an impossibility under the circumstances which forced him into retirement.

Although Pullman was re-elected president of the National League, his power to arrange a playing schedule in conjunction with President Johnson of the American League was rescinded by the magnates. Instead of a one man arrangement, therefore, the National League schedule will be prepared by a committee of three, Ebbets, Dreyfuss and Murphy, who will confer with Johnson some time next month. Johnson has full authority to act for the American League, and in previous years his relations with Pulliam were without much friction. But with three interested club owners in the National League sorting the schedule plums, Johnson may find that reaching a satisfactory agreement with these worthies will not be an easy matter.

MOREL GETS VERDICT.

Judge Newcorn Rules Against Drake in Lively Case.

Louis C. Morel wins his suit against Charles E. Drake, for $62, on contract, in the District Court. Judge Newcorn filed his judgment on it this morning. This was the suit in which Lawyers Hetfield, Jr., and Owens jabbed one another in unparliamentary manner and scandalized the court.

Judge Newcorn rules that the evidence all showed Morel's work had been accepted as complete. Drake's claim for the recoupment, over which the lawyers clashed, and which the court had returned into the action after it had been withdrawn, was dismissed as unproved. Drake will have to pay costs as well as the $62. Mr. Owens was Morel's lawyer.

TEMPLARS WERE STALLED.

Started for Big Conclave in Auto; Machine Betrayed Them.

Five members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., including Robert Rushmore, eminent commander, failed to attend the stated conclave of Jersey Commandery, No. 19, K. T., at East Orange, last night, when Washington Commandery, No. 1, of Hartford, Conn., conferred the Order of Malta on Governor E. C. Stokes and several Sir Knights from this city, because they depended upon an automobile to get them there.

Mr. Rushmore, accompanied by L. B. Woolston, Henry Woodland, B. Frank Coriell and H. W. Marshall, left here in Mr. Rushmore's automobile, intending to reach East Orange in record-breaking time. Everything went well until the party struck the Springfield road, where the auto swerved and landed in a ditch. The wheels sank into the mud and the auto could not be moved.

The services of a farmer were sought and with the aid of a horse the machine was gotten out of the mud. An examination disclosed a punctured tire and all hope of reaching East Orange was given up. The farmer towed the car to Plainfield and it was well on toward midnight when the Sir Knights reached their homes.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

At the Bijou theatre in New York, May Irwin has scored an old time success in her new George V. Hobart play. Owing to legal complications teh title of the play has been in doubt for the past few days. At first it was known as "Mrs. Wilson, That's All," but a certain firm, manufacturers of a certain brand of bar supplies, objected and threatened injunction proceedings; and rather than be haled to court Miss Irwin dropped the "That's All" and announced her play as "Mrs. Wilson." Later, however, the name Andrews was added to the title and it is now advertised as "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews." The critics have most generally united in declaring that Miss Irwin's new vehicle gives her splendid opportunity for the display of her talents as a fun maker and all her old time admirers have been out in full force. Her new songs are all "hits," "Moses Andrew Jackson" being an especial favorite. On Monday night Miss Irwin will make a radical departure from her custom of singing "coon" songs, and will have a try at a new Irish ditty written by Fred Bowman and Ted. Snider, called "Honora Doolin." This will be sung by Miss Irwin in Irish dialect and will no doubt prove an innovation to those who have associated her vocal efforts only with the music of the "sunny south land."

Miss Blanche Ring, who is now a stellar member of Lew Fields' all star company at the Herald Square theatre, last week gave a dinner party in honor of the Pony Ballet now appearing with James T. Powers in "The Blue Moon" at the Casino. The Pony Ballet appeared with Miss Ring when she starred in "Dolly Dollars." Teddy bears were distributed to the guests as souvenirs.

Edythe Chapman, who impersonates the Princess Artemia, in "The Light Eternal," at the Majestic theatre, New York, is one of the very few actresses who has appeared at the Greek theatre at Harvard. This occurred several years ago when she was a student at the Lyceum School of Acting, of which David Belasco was instructor. Mr. Belasco put on Sophocles' play, "The Electra" and as an early indication of his thoroughness, he devoted five months to rehearsing the students in this drama. Mr. Belasco's enterprise at that time created very considerable comment over the country.

In the Evening Telegram in the review of "The Man of the Hour," the writer says: "Not since the days of 'The Senator' has a play been presented with such brilliant promise of success as 'The Man of the Hour,' by George Broadhurst, which was given its first New York production under Wm. A. Brady and Jos. R. Grismer's management at the Savoy theatre last night. Mr. Broadhurst has put upon the stage types with which New Yorkers are familiar and has used his characters to develop an interesting story." The other newspapers in their reviews were equally fulsome. The New York Herald referred to the play as "a sensation." The Word as "a straight-from-the-shoulder hit." The Tribune as "one of the most auspicious successes of the year." The Evening Journal as "a howling success." The News says "it will last." The Press "The Man of the Hour is likely to live for many days. It is a success." The Post, "The Man of the Hour fulfills an important and honorable theatrical function. Gloriously triumphant in every detail." In The Mail Frederick Edward McKay refers to the production, "As one you had better go and see," and in The Telegraph, Rennold Wolfe says, "Success loomed up like a big capital 'S.'" John Corbin in his review in The Sun said "The Man of the Hour bids fair to be a very great success," and Chas. Darnton in the Evening World remarks that "The Man of the Hour is direct and vigorous."

Prosecutes Ice Trust.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Alleging that it monopolizes the ice output of New York city; that it has raised prices so that it clears seventy-one per cent. profit at times, and that it has sold its output at prices twenty-one times as large as the cost of production, Attorney General Julius M. Mayer yesterday began an action against the American Ice Company, in the Supreme Court of New York county, for the dissolution of the so called Ice Trust. A summons and complaint issued here Wednesday night was forwarded to the New York city representatives of the Attorney General for service yesterday upon the proper officials of the company. That the prosecution will be continued is shown by a statement made by Mr. Mayer that Attorney General-elect Jackson has been consulted and concurs in the action. A criminal action is said to be intended if the present case is successful.

Patrick's Life Saved.

New York, Dec. 22.—After nearly five years in the death house of Sing Sing and after having been seven times sentenced to death Albert T. Patrick, convicted of the murder of William M. Rice, was saved from the electric chair by Governor Higgins yesterday. The Governor commuted Patrick's sentence to imprisonment for life. Although gratified that his life is to be spared, Patrick in his cell in Sing Sing declared emphatically that his efforts to obtain freedom would be continued. He will fight, he said, through all the courts and will not cease until the United States Supreme Court has finally passed on his case.

LITERARY.

There have been of late so few magazine contributions from Theodore Roosevelt that his essay on "The Ancient Irish Sagas" in the January Century will be the notable magazine feature of the month. Mr. Roosevelt ranks the wealth of poems and tales in the ancient Celtic, and especially in the ancient Erse manuscripts—already a matter of keen interest to scholars—as a treasure-house of literature of much importance and value. He desires to see popularized this literature—"a body of prose and poetry of great and well-nigh unique interest from every standpoint, which in some respects can be matched only by the Norse sagas, and which has some striking beauties the like of which are not to be found even in these Norse sagas"—and to this end urges that, wherever possible, chairs of Celtic should be established in America's leading universities. J. C. Leyendecker's best illustrative work, it is promised, will accompany Mr. Roosevelt's article.

Scribner's Magazine has completed its twentieth year, and opens its forty-first volume with Henry van Dyke's delightful outdoor article, "A Holiday in a Vacation." Dr. van Dyke believes that "No vacation is perfect without a holiday in it," and this is one of a series of "Days Off" that he is writing for the Magazine. This particular "day off" was in the southeast corner of Maine, and the occasion of it was a canoe trip down a little river. Schoonover contributes a number of illustrations, some of them in color. The fiction event of the year is undoubtedly the beginning of Mrs. Wharton's serial, "The Fruit of the Tree," a novel of large plan and seriousness, dealing with a vital question and, incidentally, portraying certain phases of American life with a vividness and truth that characterized "The House of Mirth." In this story the characters move in a wider social range, and some of the conditions affecting them are industrial and have to do with the betterment of factory life. The main interest, however, is in the souls of the people as influenced by modern thought.

If the special holiday number of The Metropolitan Magazine is to be taken as a fair example of this periodical for the next year, its readers have a splendid literary and artistic treat to which to look forward. "Christmas and New Year in Mexico," by Gilbert Cunningham Terry, is illustrated in an original and striking manner. "The Christmas Baby," by James Francis Cooke, is a good old-fashioned sort of a holiday story which warms your heart and fills you with the spirit of Christmas. "The Fairy Poodle," by Leonard Merrick, is a sentimental story of New Year's, told with the deft charm of this well-known writer. Among the more serious features of the number are "The Passing of the Moonshiners," by David A. Gates, of the Internal Revenue Service, which shows the splendid work the Internal Revenue Officers are accomplishing, in constant danger of their lives, for the protection of the revenue taxes.

Threw Coal at Girl.

New York, Dec. 22.—Benjamin Meaden, of No. 36 Vandervort street, was held yesterday, in Lee Avenue Court, in $100 on a charge of annoying Miss May Wistern, a station agent of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. Meaden entered the elevated station at Driggs avenue and Broadway, where Miss Wistern is employed, and insisted that she should talk to him. Miss Wistern told him to go about his business or she would call a policeman. Meaden then threw coals at her, she says. Fearing that the man was insane Miss Wistern ran to the platform and waved a red flag. Police Sergeant Kellerher ran to the station, where he found Meaden bombarding the ticket office with coals and crying, "You refuse, do you? Well, take that, and that." After a lively struggle Kellerher arrested Meaden.

Emancipation Celebration.

New York, Dec. 22.—Bishop Walters, president of the Afro-American Council, yesterday issued a call to negroes to celebrate on January 1 the forty-third anniversary of their emancipation by President Lincoln. He calls on them to let the world know of the progress the race has made. "We should cry aloud," he says, "against the injustices which are being perpetrated against us by the enactment of the Jim Crow car and disfranchisement law on the part of the South. We should let the world know what an injustice has been done the race by the dismissal of innocent negro soldiers at the behest of race prejudice, men who have for years fought in defence of the flag and for the honor of the country."

Forgets and Is Killed.

New York, Dec. 22.—George Smith, aged twenty-three, of No. 316 East Nineteenth street, an assistant oiler in the six story factory building at No. 245 Greene street, met death yesterday afternoon while oiling one of the elevators in the building. Smith had got on top of the elevator and started it himself, oiling the sidings as he went slowly up. He forgot to clutch the controlling rope, and before any one could stop the elevator it jammed against the roof of the shaft. Smith was crushed, death being almost instantaeous.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"The fifth, did I not say? But to his amazement and chagrin, she refused to give him the name of the man, and he had no way of learning it otherwise, since there was no one he could suspect. He pointed out to her that not even her blood could save her should she die shielding him. But she declared that he was a good man, and that rather than bring disgrace upon him she would die—would even lose her soul; that in truth she did not care to live, since she loved him so that living away from him was worse than death. I have said she was a woman of a large nature, somewhat reckless and generous, and her mistaken notion of loyalty led her to persist in spite of all the threats and entreaties of her distressed husband. She even smiled when she told him that she would rather die than live away from this unknown man, smiled in a way that must have enraged him—since he had never won that kind of love from her for himself—for then he let her meet the sacrifice without further talk. He drew her on to his knee, kissed her for the last time, then held her head back—and the thing was done. How sad it is that she did not make a full confession. Then, by her willing sacrifice, she would have gone direct to the circle of the Gods and Goddesses; but now, dying as she did, her soul must be lost——"

"Which wife did you say——"

"The fifth—she that was Mara Cavan—but, dear me, Brother Rae! you should not be out so soon! Why, man, you're weak as a cat! Come, I'll walk with you as far as your house, and you must lie abed again until you are stronger. I can understand how you wished to be up as soon as possible; how proud you must feel that your preaching has led to this glorious awakening and made it possible to save the souls of many sinful ones—but you must be careful not to overtax yourself."

Four days later, a white-faced young Elder applied to Brigham for permission to go to the settlements on the south. He professed to be sick, to have suffered a relapse owing to incautious exposure so soon after his long illness. He seemed, indeed, not only to be weak, but to be much distressed in his mind.

Brigham was gracious enough to accord the desired permission, adding that the young Elder could preach the revived gospel and rebaptize on his way south, thus combining work with recreation. He was also good enough to volunteer some advice.

"What ails you mostly, Brother Joel, is your single state. What you need is wives. You've been here ten years now and it's high time. You're given to brooding over things that are other people's to brood on, and then, you're naturally soul-proud. Now, a few wives will humble you and make you more reasonable, like the rest of us. I don't want to be too downright with you, like I am with some of the others, because I've always had a special kind of feeling for you, and so I've let you go on. But you think it over, and talk to me about it when you come back. It's high time you was building up your thrones and dominions in the Kingdom."

He started south the next day, riding down between the two mountain ranges that bordered the valley, stopping at each settlement, breathing more freely, resting more easily, as each day took him farther away. Yet, when he closed his eyes, there, like an echo, was the vision of a woman's face with shining eyes and lips,—a vision that after a few seconds was washed away by a great wave of blood.

But after a few days, certain bits of news caught up with him that happily drove this thing from his sight for a time by stirring within him all his old dread of Gentile persecution.

First he heard that Parley Pratt, the Archer of Paradise and one of the Twelve Apostles, had been foully murdered back in Arkansas while seeking to carry to their mother the children of his ninth wife. The father of these children, so his informant reported, had waylaid and shot him.

Then came rumors of a large wagon-train going south through Utah on its way to California. Reports said it was composed chiefly of Missourians, some of whom were said to be boasting that they had helped to expel the Saints from Jackson county in that state. Also in this train were reported to be several men from Arkansas who had been implicated in the assassination of Apostle Pratt.

But news of the crowning infamy reached him the following day,—news that had put out all thought of his great sin and his bloody secret, news of a thing so monstrous that he was unable to give it credence until it had been confirmed by other comers from the north. President Buchanan, inspired by tales that had reached him of various deeds growing out of the reformation, and by the treatment which various Federal officers were said to have received, had decided that rebellion existed in the Territory of Utah. He had appointed a successor to Brigham Young as governor, so the report ran, and ordered an army to march to Salt Lake City for the alleged purpose of installing the new executive.

Three days later all doubt of the truth of this story was banished. Word then came that Brigham was about to declare martial law, and that he had promised that Buchanan's army should never enter the valley.

Now his heart beat high again, with something of the old swift fervor. The Gentile yoke was at last to be thrown off. War would come, and the Lord would surely hold them safe while they melted away the Gentile hosts.

He reached the settlement of Parowan that night, and when they told him there that the wagon-train coming south—their ancient enemies who had plundered and butchered them in Jackson county—was to be cut off before it left the basin, it seemed but right to him, the just vengeance of Heaven upon their one-time despoilers, and a fitting first act in the war drama that was now to be played.

CHAPTER XV.

The Order from Headquarters.

He left Parowan the next morning to preach at one of the little settlements to the east. He was gone three days. When he came back they told him that the train of Missourians had passed through Parowan and on to the south. He attended a military council held that evening in the meeting-house. Three days of reflection, while it had not cooled the anger he felt toward these members of the mob that had so brutally wronged his people, had slightly cooled his ardor for aggressive warfare.

FACTS, NOT FICTION.

Experiences of Plainfield Citizens Are Easily Proven to Be Facts.

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statement from a resident of Plainfield is true. Read it and compare evidence from Plainfield people with testimony of strangers living so far away you cannot investigate the facts of the case. Many more citizens of Plainfield will endorse our claims.

S. C. Conklin, of 134 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was suffering from aches and pains in my side, back and hips. My kidneys did not work as they should, and as far as I could learn from physicians I was in very bad shape with by kidneys and bladder. I was casting about for a cure but nothing I did helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at L. W. Randolph's pramacy. I took three boxes and they cured me. I gave a statement at that time telling what this remedy did for me and I am glad to repeat the praise I gave Doan's Kidney Pills at that time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Governor Utter Stricken.

Newport, R. I., Dec. 22.—Governor George H. Utter was taken ill with acute indigestion on the train coming to Newport late last evening. Fortunately a physician was aboard and gave him prompt attention. Here he was taken to the residence of Postmaster A. C. Landers, where he will remain until today, when he hopes to return to Providence. Late last night it was said he was better.

CRANFORD GETS ROAD MONEY.

Treasurer E. G. Woodling Receives $8,500 from the State.

Township Treasurer E. G. Woodling, of Cranford, has received a check amounting to $8,500 from the State, which sum represents the only money paid into Union county this year from the State aid fund for roads. The State also paid the inspectors on the four roads built here their salaries, amounting to nearly $500.

Cranford has now completed all the roads leading to adjoining municipalities, and therefore cannot secure the State aid on any additional road work. The only roads now in bad condition are a few streets within the limits of the township, which must be repaired by local appropriation and a share borne by the abutting property owner. The four roads built by Cranford this year lead to Kenilworth, Westfield, Springfield and Linden. The total cost of the work was $25,000. The township issued bonds for $15,000 for the work.

Reserves Decision in Coal Case.

Elizabeth, Dec. 22.—Application was made in the Union County Court of Common Pleas yesterday to Judge Atwater by former Governor Voorhees for a new trial in the case of Barnett Jacobson and his son, Jacob, coal dealers here, who were recently convicted by a jury of defrauding the city of Elizabeth in the supplying of coal to the Battin High School. Prosecutor English opposed the motion of the former Governor to have the verdict set aside. Judge Atwater reserved decision.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATED IN THE LOCAL CHURCHES

Protestant Denominations in City and Borough Observe the Day of Christ's Nativity.

WITH ELABORATE MUSIC

Special Sermons Morning and Evening—Children's Exercises in Many of the Churches.

Services commemorating Christ's nativity were held in the various Protestant churches of Plainfield and North Plainfield yesterday. There were also appropriate exercises for the children in many of the churches.

Grace M. E.

Rev. Dr. Charles W. Parsons preached a Christmas sermon in Grace Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning. The Texts were: St. Matthew 1:23, "Emanuel, God with us," and St. Luke 2: 7, "There was no room for them in the inn." He said in part:

"Christmas—the world's jubilee—its boundaries this round globe swing ing in its courses, and beyond that for the throbbing air pulses with the glad acclaim, and beyond that, for heaven's arches ring. Wherever the name of Jesus has been spoken, in all lands, under all skies, in country wide and city full, happy human voices join the angel chorus, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth Peace Good Will to Men.'

"Two armies lay face to face on the continent of Europe. The eve of battle was on them but that eve was Christmas eve. By solemn compact hostilities were suspended, guards dismissed, pickets called in, and for that night differences were forgotten, anam ities laid aside, and an allegiance stronger even than love of country prevailed. And the world is wise when it remembers its history making days—in the country and in the church.

"Passion week, every day of it—and the glad Easter Sunday morning, but especially the birthday that dawned with song-burst and angel jubilee over Bethlehem's plains. And this great initial day ought to have greatest observance, for I say to you people this morning, you whose homes for the weeks past have been full of plots and counterplots, the very air electric and full of secrecy, I say to you one and all, your homes are what they are; your hearts are warm, your gifts and receivings many and varied because of the Infinite Gift of God to this world.

"Is He indeed received with genuine welcome? He was not then. Think of it—and how sad the thought, although He was 'Emanuel, God with us,' and 'The word made flesh to dwell among us,' and 'The day spring from on high to give light to them that sit in darkness.' Yet 'there was no room for them in the inn.'

"When the saintly young Jewess stood at the door seeking admission the keeper bruskly waved her aside. Sad was it, inhuman, and yet the inn-keeper then did only what an inn keeper would do today. He turned them away because he did not know them; their appearance was against them; they were very ordinary people in every day garb. They were poor. So the gates closed.

"But do you say, 'ah too bad, too bad, I wouldn't do such a thing.' I am not so sure that you have not done it. You know who it is; the old inn-keeper did not. Womanhood had not then been lifted from the dust, motherhood crowned and children glorified. Jesus did that, and that was His birth-night.

"Now there is some room for Him, it ought to be complete. Jesus has certainly gained full admission into the thinking of the world. And the doors of the hearts of many men swing wide open to let Him in. Everybody has confidence in Him, and no one criticeizes Him, and that can be said of no other. All men who believe at all, believe Him to have been the gift of God to man, and ninety-nine one-hundredths of all who call themselves Christians, believe Him to be Divine."

Dr. Parsons closed by saying: "To you, Jesus gave Himself on the first Christmas day; to Him, will you give yourself on this last Christmas day. On this morning with 10-20-30-40-50 other such festivals past and unimproved, will you not let the love of Christ so win you, His life so charm you, His blood so cleanse you, that this shall be the glad hour, and the holy place of your complete reconciliation to Him."

The Sunday-school of Grace M. E. church held its exercises in the afternoon. Superintendent W. J. Conroy was in charge. There was a large attendance.

The programme included recitations by Mildred Harding, Elmer Coons, Fred Tomlinson, Grace Conover; Samuel Bodine, Hilda Story, Norman Conover, Evelyn Nelson, Russell Story, Mary VanWinkle, Bertha Fulver, Wilbur Bolen and Bessie Taynor; an exercise by eight girls, led by Clara Bodenheimer; songs by the infant class and by the school. The pastor, Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, spoke.

The decoration of the church was unusually pretty. Cedars, holly and evergreens were used.

Rev. Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist, spoke and sang at the evening service. He interested and impressed a large audience. His singing was remarkable for its beauty; his voice is appreciably better than that of the ordinary public speaker.

He spoke mainly, on the value of the religion of Christ and its importance to everybody. It was the duty of all people to accept the gift of salvation from Christ, who had given so much for them.

First Baptist.

There were two special services at the First Baptist church, one in the morning and the second in the afternoon at 3 o'clock under the auspices of the Sunday-school. The church was appropriately decorated with green roping, while over the organ was displayed a large star of evergreens, brilliantly lighted with small incandescent lamps. The absence of the pastor,, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, who is detained at home with an attack of laryngitis, was a disappointment, but his place was ably taken by Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, who preached an impressive Christmas sermon.

The choir under the direction of Howard Case, organist, rendered a number of special selections, some taken from the Christmas programme given Thursday night of last week. They included, "Say, Where Is He Born," Mendelssohn; "Sing We Noel," Gaul; "O Thou That Tellest," from the "Messiah," contralto solo, Miss Gertrude Hinz, and chorus; and the offertory, "In Bethlehem's Ancient City," West, soprano solo, Miss Lonella C. Harris. The other solo parts were taken by William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor.

The programme in the afternoon was in charge of the superintendent of the school, George H. Batchelor. It opened with a prelude, "Hymn to St. Cecile," Gounod, organ, violin and piano. There were these carols by the school: "See Amid the Winter's Flaky Snow," "The Heavenly Babe," "Shine on Bethlehem's Star," and "Christmas Carol." "A Bethlehem Baby" was sung by Ruth Johnson, Anna Sherwin, Mildred Wise, Dorothy Lee and Emra Gordon Dobbins. There was also an anthem by the choir, "The Angels and the Shepherds," an offertory selection, violin solo, "Romance," Rubenstein, by Miss Florence Wohlfert, the offering being for the Day Nursery. Other interestng features were the fellowship exercise a Junior supplemental drill and a selection, "I Wonder," by the Primary department. Mrs. J. A. Powlinson, superintendent of the primary department had charge of the programme given by the children. There was no evening service at the church.

Special Christmas services were held all day at the First M. E. church, the music by the vested choir uunder the direction of J. Edmund Skiff being a feature. The church was appropriately decorated, as was also Vincent chapel, where the Sunday-school held its exercises in the afternoon. In the morning Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, preached a Christams sermon. The choir rendered these numbers:

"Sing O Heavens," Tours; "There Were Shepherds," Buck; "Bethlehem," Goombs, solo, Miss Bertha van Nuis Willis, and "Glory to God," Veazie.

In the evening the programme was almost entirely musical, these numbers being given: "Glory to God," Simpson; "Bethlehem," Bartlett; "Rejoice Greatly," from the "Messiah," Handel, solo, Miss Willis; "There Were Shepherds," Gaul;" "Nazareth," Gounod, solo, Miss Mesick. In addition the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, gave a short talk which was appropriate to the day.

The afternoon was devoted to Christmas exercises by the children in the Sunday-school, under the direction of James R. Joy, superintendent. There were carols, recitations and exercises by the young people, the programme being as follows:

Park Avenue Baptist.

An elaborate programme was enjoyed at the Park Avenue Baptist church throughout the day. The church and Sunday-school were lavishly decorated with Christmas greens and holly. In the m orning the choir rendered special music and the pas-

STICKS MILLIGAN CAUGHT

Dropped Off a Freight Train For a Drink at Watson's.

RAN INTO COP'S ARMS

Chance and the Need of a Warm Bracer Ends Escaped Prisoner's Stretch of Freedom.

Liberty was the price Lewis Milligan, alias "Sticks," who escaped from the city jail in August, paid for a drink of whiskey Saturday afternoon. He was recaptured as he left Michael Watson's saloon to where he had slipped from a freight train for a warming glass, by Patrolman Vanderweg.

Milligan escaped from the station house, where he was being held to await commitment to the Reformatory at Rahway, for breaking his parole. He had been placed in charge of the probation officer for holding up and robbing a boy at the freight station. He got out by reaching through the bars of his cell and taking the jail keys from the lock of the cell door, where they had been forgotten by an officer. He was hampered by a wooden leg, and managed to step out and away unobserved, by a back door, and kept himself successfully concealed in a nearby barn until the search for him had passed up along the trolley line toward Scotch Plains. An hour later when he heard a slow freight approaching he slipped out and limped to the railroad at Church street. He boarded a slow train there and rode to Graceland, near Westfield, where he got aboard a westbound Reading fast freight. He made his way to Scranton.

He travelled up and down the road after that, but he cut Plainfield out of his stopping-off places. Saturday, he was on his way back from New York to Pennsylvania, with two pals. The freight train slowed up and stopped at Grant avenue, and Milligan looked longingly in the direction of Watson's saloon, at Grant avenue and Third street. He was cold, and a "hooker" of whiskey seemed very good. He gave way to the temptation, and with his companions went down to the saloon. That was at 5:30 o'clock.

Patrolman Martin Vanderweg, who lives in the neighborhood, was going by the saloon door in citizens' clothes when Milligan and his pals came out. The officer recognized "Sticks," and placed him under arrest. His companions took to their heels and escaped. Milligan used to fight policemen on occasion, but he has outgrown that and he made no trouble for Vanderweg.

Judge Runyon committed him to the county jail this morning to await action by the Probation Officer, and he was taken to Elizabeth by Detective McCarthy. He wished Judge Runyon and Chief Kiely a merry Christmas as he went out.

TROLLEY HITS WAGON DRIVER HURLED OUT.

Accident of a Type Getting Commonplace with P. S. C. Trolleys.

An eastbound main line trolley car ran down one of the business wagons of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company on East Second street, Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock, completely smashing the wagon and scattering the groceries over the street. Walter Swalm, the driver, was thrown out receiving severe injuries. The horse was uninjured.

Mr. Swalm had just left groceries at a house and was driving east on Second street, when the trolley suddenly bore down upon him. He declares that the motorman did not ring his bell and that he did not know of the presence of the car until it struck the rig. The wagon was a new one and had just been put into service. Mr. Swalm is now confined to his house, his injuries consisting of cuts and bruises, and is under the care of a physician.

New Rural P. O. Delivery.

Ward has been received from Washington, D. C., which states that a third rural free delivery route is to be established from the Somerville post office on Saturday, February 16, to serve 112 families and 504 persons. It will run from Somerville to North Branch by way of the poor farm, and thence to Burnt Mills, Lamington and so back to the county seat. Application has also been made for a route to cover the Frankport and South Branch sections. If this is established it will be known as route number four.

MISS CASEY A HEROINE

Rescues Small Child From Under Hoofs of a Team.

AS MOTHER LOOKS ON

Child In Her Arms Made Her Helpless In the Face of the Other Little One's Danger.

With a child in her arms and another clinging to her skirts, Mrs. William Jamieson, of New York, was walking down West Front street at 6 o'clock last night. At New street, the toddler saw something on the other side of the street that attracted it. The child let go its mother's skirt, and started across the roadway.

As it reached the middle of the street, a carriage driver at reckless speed approched. The child was directly in its path. Either the driver did not see the toddler, or the horses were beyond control; whatever the cause the horses did not swerve an inch from their path. It looked for an instant as if a tragedy was about to take place, but Miss Lizzie Casey, heroine, of New street, stopped into the arena of events.

She saw the child's danger as she was walking by, and acted swiftly. She sprang into the street, and snatched the child back. She got it out of harm's way just as the team, still galloping hard, rushed by. Mrs. Jamieson, choking with fright, could barely thank her.

M. WEINBERGER'S BODY TO BE BROUGHT HOME.

Death Came to the Well-known Local Merchant at Hot Springs Saturday.

The body of Meyer Weinberger, Plainfield's well-known clothing merchant, who died at Hot Springs, Ark., Saturday morning, has been forwarded to Plainfield and will probably reach here tomorrow night. As yet no arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Mr. Weinberger had suffered for a long time from Bright's disease and he went West in the hope that a change of climate might better his condition. He located first in Los Angeles, Cal., but very little improvement was noted at the start. At one time it was thought he might not survive and his relatives were summoned from the East. He afterward rallied and got along very nicely and then went to Hot Springs for further treatment.

Mr. Weinberger caem to Plainfield from New York about fifteen years ago and first located in the store on West Front street now occupied by the Paris. A few years ago he purchased the building at Front street and Compton's alley where the business is now being conducted by his brother, J. Weinberger, formerly of Summit. He leaves a wife, three daughters and a son.

SOMERSET CLUB FAIR NETTED HUNDRED DOLLARS.

Week's Affair Proved to Be a Greater Success Than Anticipated.

The Somerset Club week's fair was one of the most successful undertakings ever held in North Plainfield and the crowning glory came on Saturday night when it was announced that $100 had been realized as a result of the efforts of the members. The blind musician furnished the entertainment on Saturday night and there was lots else to give entertainment to the crowd that visited the clubhouse.

Edward Bimble got the $25 rug and William C. Smith the $7 one. Miss Helen Smalley received the lace curtains. There were numerous other minor awards. During the evening, Captain Smith conducted a five minute auction, which netted quite a sum. The general committee consisted of Captain W. C. Smith, John Shroppe and Fred Koller.

First National Bank Changes.

Adelbert Vail, one of the oldest employees of the First National Bank, having been engaged there as a bookkeeper for over twenty years, has resigned his position and taken a similar one with Clifton & Campbell, of Park avenue. His place at the bank has been taken by Harry B. Joseph, and the latter's place is filled by Howard Boss, formerly of the electric department of the Public Service Corporation.

Thomas Shortis.

Thomas Shortis, aged sixty-seven years, died Saturday at the residence of his sister, Mrs. George VanNest, of Monroe avenue. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Clarence Bulsom, of New York. The funeral was held at Mrs. VanNest's home this afternoon and was conducted by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel. Interment was in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

LARDER RAIDED BY CROOK

Negro Thief Took All the Sunday Dinner of the Kaufmans.

CAPTURED AND ESCAPED

Policeman Nabbed Him As He Came Out of the House, But Shot In Vain As He Fled.

Patrolman Payne, patrolling West Seventh street at 1:25 o'clock yesterday morning, heard a door slam. The sound seemed to come from No. 531, occupied by W. T. Kaufman. Payne looked at No. 531, and as he looked a figure with a package under its arm hurried down the steps.

Payne got busy. The figure proved to be a light colored negro, a little under medium neight, about 27 years old. He had a pasteboard box under his arm. Payne took him to a street lamp and looked in the box. The contents caused the cop to open his eyes. They were:

One roast of meat, 12 pounds; two strips of bacon, a whole Taylor's ham, three packets of print butter, and thirty-six pats of butter.

The negro said the cook had given them to him. He said she was a friend of his. Payne decided the friendship needed investigation and took the negro to the alarm box to call up a patrol wagon. The man had spoken plausibly, and gave no intimation of flight, so Payne took no hold on him as he reached for the box pull. When the cop was on the point of yankink the alarm, the negro took to his heels.

Payne gave chase, but the fugitive gained. The officer drew his revolver and after warning the negro to half, fired. He sent four shots after the fugitive, and thinks one took effect, but the negro kept on and escaped.

Payne took the box of food to the Kaufman house. Mr. Kaufman recognized the roast and the rest of the things as the family's Sunday dinner. The negro had cleaned everything out of the larder except a few pieces of cold meat. The cook denied all knowledge of him, and the family believed her. She has been with them for sixteen years. The larder thief gained entrance through a side door.

WATCH OUT FOR THE SECOND STORY THIEF.

This Is His Season—Robbed a Front Street House Last Night.

When H. R. Horthrup and his family returned to their home at 434 East Front street, last night, after an absence of two hours, they found jewelry and money, valued all together at $215, missing. A front window showed how an uninvited visitor had made his entrance.

The theft was reported to the police. They could find no clue to the crook. The job looked like a regulation bit of second-story work, professional model.

Chief Kiely issued a warning to householders against second story men this morning, in connection with his statement on the case. This is the season when second story and upstairs thieves, porch climbers and the kindred varieties of crooks do most love to operate. Their favorite hours are suppertime and church time. A good protection against crooks while at supper is a little dog with sharp ears and a strident bark, in the upper part of the house.

Robert Pierson's Funeral.

The funeral of Robert Pierson, twenty-five years old, the Jersey Central bridge builder, who was killed on the Newark Bay draw, was held at his late home on South Bridge street in Somerville, yesterday afternoon, and was attended by a host of sorrowing relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. E. A. Woods, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated, and burial was in the new cemetery. The body, which was found on Friday, was taken to Maxwell's morgue in Somerville that night. Pierson had been struck by the flyer on the shoulder. He was a member of the Red Men, who attended the funeral in a body.

DEMOCRAT'S VOTE NECESSARY FOR DRYDEN TO WIN

JUDGE RUNYON HONORED BY SUNDAY-SCHOOL CLASS

YOUNG MEN OF HOPE CHAPEL TENDER HIM A RECEPTION.

Judge William N. Runyon's Sunday-school class at Hope chapel, composed of young men, tendered him a reception in the new primary room, Saturday night. A feature of the affair was an elaborate supper, covers being laid for twenty. At is conclusion Rev. L. R. Howard assumed charge of the proceedings and after making an address called on John H. Cose, Thomas M. Muir and James Penny for others. When Mr. Penny concluded speaking, in behalf of the class, he presented the judge with a handsome Morris chair as an expression of the esteem in which he is held by the members. The judge responded with a timely talk and a social time followed.

The affair was arranged by a committee from the class composed of Ben Evans, Wallace Morton and Charles Vincent.

BIG HOLIDAY RUSH IS ON AT POSTOFFICE

18 CARRIERS, 18 ASSISTANTS AND 7 MAIL WAGONS DELIVERING XMAS GIFTS

The holiday rush at the postoffice this year exceeds by far anything in in its history, it is said. Despite the fact that Postmaster E. H. Bird made provision for this the business has been so heavy that it has almost swamped the force in handling it. The rush began early last week and by Saturday night it was tremendous. Two stamp windows were provided and yet this was hardly sufficient to care for the crowd. Three extra men are employed to do clerical work in the office and even with this help it has been impossible to keep up with the avalanche of incoming and outgoing mail.

The office now has eighteen regular letter-carriers and so heavy has been the mail that each carrier has been obliged to have an assistant in order to deliver it on time. Besides the force of eighteen carriers and the assistants there are also seven mail wagons kept busy delivering mail in the outlying districts and on the rural free delivery routes.

It has required the patience of Job on the part of the office force to handle the heavy business, but the clerks are good natured and are obliging in their efforts to help the patrons of the office get their mail or get rid of it. Mr. Bird expects to have all the mail delivered by tomorrow and his force of help is striving to that end so that there may be no disappointed peopel. Mr. Bird is congratulating himself that the improvements at the office were completed early, otherwise he would have been greatly handicapped in the holiday rush.

STOKES MAY ATTEND.

Says Only An Affair of State Will Keep Him from American Banquet.

The American banquet committee, which is making the arrangements for the local Junior councils' affair ton be held at the Casino, met at Lawyer Harry C. Runyon's office Saturday night, for the purpose of discussing speakers. A letter was received from Governor Stokes in which he stated that he had made a note of the date and that an important matter of State would be the only thing to prevent his attending. The committee expects to announce the toastmaster within a few days.

The tickets for the banquet are now on sale and may be procured from members of the committee. From present indications the affair will be more elaborate in every way than was last year's banquet and a big attendance is anticipated.

A Home Wedding.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the home of W. C. Applegate, of East Seventh street, Saturday night at 8 o'clock when Miss Mary Snyder, of this city, was made the wife of Herman Greiwe, of Newark. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Parsons, of Grace M. E. church, and was witnessed by a gathering of relatives and friends. A reception followed during which a supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Greiwe will make their home in Newark.

Defection of Four Men Leaves Him One Short of Enough Republican Votes to Insure His Election.

WILL MR. FIRTH HELPP

Colby, Ackerman, Fake and Taylor Will Not Be Bound By Any Caucus to Vote for Dryden.

What little there is stirring today on the Senatorship has chiefly to do with the opposition to Senator Dryden. The fact that Senator Ackerman, of Union, and Assemblyman Taylor, of Ocean, have declared that under no circumstances will they support the present Senator or go into a caucus on the Senatorship, if it is to be binding, has furnished a mild sensation. There are now four Republicans who refuse to support Dryden or go into a caucus on the Senatorship which would carry a binding ballot. The fours are Senator Colby, of Essex; Senator Ackerman, of Union; Assemblyman Fake, of Bergen, and Assemblyman Taylor, of Ocean. The positive defection of these men leaves Dryden one short of Republican votes enough to elect him. James Smith can now come to his friend's assistance and, it is said, have Firth cast the vote for Dryden that, it is alleged, he said he would like to cast when he thought he was going to be Speaker.

While a Republican at large, Senator Colby promises to maintain his independence, and should he join with the Democrats on any question that may require a two-thirds vote it would be interesting. Every Republican Senator will have to vote "aye" to pass a measure under such circumstances. Besides, Colby may not prove to be the only independent Republican in the Senate. Senator Ackerman, of Union, has developed decidedly independent views, and Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, and Wakelee, of Bergen, do not hesitate to express independent views and vote accordingly without regard to party ties.

It is generally taken for granted that the leadership of the House will lie between Randolph Perkins, of Union, last year's Assembly leader, and Alfred N. Barber, of Mercer, who was prominent in the debates of the last session.

Although the action of the Democratic leaders in nominating Joseph H. Firth, of Warren, for Speaker of the House, and then trying to patch up the blunder by naming Edgar E. Lethbridge, of Essex, has hurt the party prospects, there are a number of sanguine people who think the Democrats can elect the next Governor. Already half a dozen booms have been launched for the nomination.

A CURTAILED JURY.

Case In the District Court Goes Before Eleven Men.

With a man shy in the jury box, the case of M. F. Gano, who sued Solomon and Bernhard Mann for $80 commission alleged to be due on the sale of a house on West Fourth street, was tried in the District Court this morning. The venire was given to Sergeant Hand two hours before the case was called, and he could get only eleven talesmen. Both sides agreed to go ahead with eleven men and the court consented.

The defense claimed Robert Fulton made the sale. The jury awarded the plaintiff a verdict in full. W. L. Hetfield, Jr., appeared for him.

Everyone will enjoy tomorrow as a holiday, the factories and stores will be closed, and the one day in the year will be given over to merry making and feasting. No special events are scheduled, but there will be several family gatherings that will gather round the festive board in their yearly reunion.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith preached a special Christmas sermon at the Baptist church yesterday morning, taking for his text, "Day Spring from on High.' The service was well attended. Christmas carols and other special music was rendered by the choir under the leadership of L. D. H. Gilmore, of Newark.

The Methodist Sunday-school holds Christmas exercises tonight in the church. The friends of the school are invited to enjoy the event with them.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Big Hearted Jim" Saxon, sheriff of Medicine Lodge, Montana, "always got what he went after, but failed, and death stared him in the face when he fell in love with a school teacher, the beauty of his town. The play tells the story in four acts that are each wonderful little plays in themselves. Klint and Gazzolo, the well known producing managers, are presenting "Big Hearted Jim" with a splendid cast and a thorough scenic production throughout. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Ralph Stuart, in his greatest success, "By Right of Sword," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. In securing Mr. Stuart, Manager Counihan was aware that he was getting a Plainfield favorite and that the production would please the holiday amusement seekers.

A favorite comedian in a big comedy success will be the offering at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, when Digby Bell appears in Augustus Thomas' successful comedy, "The Education of Mr. Pipp." As Mr. Pipp, Mr. Bell is credited with the greatest triumph of his career. His Mr. Pipp is a character whose genial humor and artistic finish is the finest that has graced the American stage for many years. He played the part for over 150 nights in New York, when it was originally produced, and last year he duplicated his success in long engagements in Chicago, Boston and other cities. The play, as it is now well known, was evolved from Chas. Dana Gibson's famous cartoons of the same title in which the Gibson Girls and Mr. Pipp were the principal figures.

The pleasant announcement is made that "Under Southern Skies" is to reappear at the New Plainfield theatre on New Year's afternoon and night. "Under Southern Skies" has become a standard attraction and those who attend the performance are certain of "getting their money's worth." This is the sixth season of this delightful drama which has been played before many crowded and fashionable houses since it appeared here last season. Its popularity seems to grow greater with each succeeding visit as it is one of those plays which people like better every time they see it.

B. C. Whitney's gorgeous musical production, "Piff, Paff, Pouf," direct from its phenomenal run of eight solid months at the New York Casino, will be the offering at the New Plainfield theatre on January 9. "Piff, Paff, Pouf" has been termed a "musical cocktail," which seems a befitting description. The entertainment is bright, snappy, lively and kaleidoscopic, and is calculated to dispel the blues.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will not meet this week.

The regular communion services will be held at the Congregational church Sunday, January 13.

There will be a business and social meeting of the Brotherhood of the First M. E. church Friday night in Vincent chapel.

The Christmas entertainment at the Congregational church under the auspices of the Sunday-school will be held Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

"The Christmas Spirit" will be the subject of the prayer meeting at the Congregational church Wednesday night. Everyone is requested to bring a Christmas thought.

The primary department of the First Baptist church will hold its Christmas entertainment Thursday afternoon and in the evening a cantata entitled "Johnnie Doupter," will be given by the older pupils under the direction of William Holmes.

The ushers for the coming quarter at the First M. E. church are as follows: Chairman, L. H. Backer; assistant chairman, E. D. Miller; P. P. Smith, L. Mantz, R. A. Palmer, Arthur Humble, John Henry, Edward Mosher, F. A. Martin and Dr. F. W. Cornwell.

The Christmas entertainment for the primary, beginners and cradle roll of the First M. E. church will be held in Vincent chapel Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The entertainment for the junior, senior and home departments will be held in the evening at 7:30 o'clock at the same place. There will be moving pictures and feats of magic.

Not Black Hand Victim.

Frank Cureio, who disappeared from his home, No. 531 Adams street, Hoboken, a week ago, is in Columbus, O., at the home of his brother, who is a police sergeant there. His family received word to that effect yesterday. Stories of a Black Hand letter in connection with his going are untrue. He gave up a position as drug clerk a month ago, intending to open a saloon, but being unable to get a license, he went in search of a field to invest his ten years' savings.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Conjectures regarding the officers of the United States Golf Association for 1907 have been set at rest by the report of the nominating committee, Arden M. Robbins, St. Andrews; R. W. Lesley, Philadelphia, and Phelps B. Hoyt, Chicago. Ransom H. Thomas of the Morris County Golf Club after two terms will be succeeded as president by Daniel Chauncey of the Dyker Meadow and Garden City clubs. The vice-presidents remain unchanged, while the present zealous secretary and treasurer also stay in office. The executive committee is entirely new. Leighton Calkins of the Plainfield Country Club takes the place made vacant by the promotion of Chauncey. The others to be succeeded are H. Chandler Egan, Chicago; Heyward G. Leavitt, Omaha, and A. L. Ripley, Boston. Three of the nine on the ticket are Westerners, three represent Metropolitan Golf Association clubs, while Boston, Philadelphia and Washington claim the three others. This is the ticket: President, Daniel Chauncey, Garden City Golf Club; vice-presidents, Fred S. James, Glen View Club, and Alex Britton, Chevy Chase Club; secretary, W. Fellows Morgan, Baltusrol Club; treasurer, S. Y. Heebner, Philadelphia Club; executive committee, Leighton Calkins, Plainfield Country Club; Warren Dickinson, Des Moines Golf and Country Club; Herbert Jaques, Country Club, Brookline; Silas H. Strawn, Midlothian Country Club. A nomination is equivalent to election, or at least there is no record of an opposition ticket. No amendments are announced to be voted on. The report of the executive committee, which is usually sent out in advance, is to be kept back until read at the meeting.

Chicago is to have a public links at Garfield Park. There are forty acres available for the course and Tom Bendelow has been engaged to lay it out. The course will relieve the congestion at Jackson Park and be particularly accessible to West Side residents. The North Side residents have been asking for a public course at Lincoln Park for some seasons, but the park commissioners have not been able to find enough land for the purpose. There are still hopes among the Chicago golfers that in time each section will have its own public course. To make Garfield Park available for golf the commissioners have had to remove the asphalt bicycle track, which no one has used for four years. The cleared ground and the property extending to Colorado avenue will give room for a nine hole round.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

The New Plainfield theatre will have a splendid holiday attraction next Thursday night, when Digby Bell will play an engagement in Augustus Thomas biggest comedy success, "The Education of Mr. Pipp." As is now well known this is a dramatization of Charles Dana Gibson's popuular drawings of the same title in which "Mr. and Mrs. Pipp" and the pretty "Gibson girls" were the conspicious figures. Out of these drawings Mr. Thomas has evolved a delightful comedy full of humor, strong dramatic incident and engaging love romance. The play ran for over 150 nights when originally produced in New York two seasons ago and has since then played long engagements in Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other large cities, in many instances return engagements being demanded. As "Mr. Pipp," Mr. Bell has won the greatest triumph of his career, his performance of the genial little Pittsburg millionaire being declared one of the finest and most artistic character creations contributed to the American stage in very many years.

May Irwin closed her New York engagement in "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" at the Bijou theatre Saturday night, the same having been one of the most successful she has ever enjoyed. In the metrooplis. The original company her when she appears at the New Plainfield theatre New Year's eve in connection with the Charity Ball. Those who saw Miss Irwin when she was at the local play-house earlier in the season know what a strong attraction the committee has secured and their efforts will no doubt be rewarded by a capacity audience.

W. S. Butterfield, the widely known theatrical man who made a deal for Music Hall several years ago that afterward fell through, has been heard from by local friends. He is now managing the Bijou theatre at Battle Creek, Mich., and from all accounts is meeting with well deserved success.

Merry Christmas!

It being a legal holiday, The Daily Press will not be published tomorrow.

The retirement of Charles A. Lee as a member of the North Plainfield Council should not go unnoticed. It is fitting that some word of recognition should be given the valuable services he has rendered the people of the borough. For nearly seven years, Mr. Lee has served his fellow citizens as a member of that body and that he did so in a conscientious, faithful and very able manner no one will deny. On one or two occasions he has opposed the ideas and suggestions of some of his colleagues regarding municipal policies in a manner that has won for him the highest admiration of even those with whom he has disagreed. He retires with a most creditable record, one thoroughly appreciated by those who have followed his career.

DANIEL BAKER.

Well-known Scotch Plains Trapper and Shooter Dies.

Danies Baker, one of the oldest and best known residents of Scotch Plains, died at his home on Terrell road, yesterday morning. He was in his seventy-fifth year and death was indirectly due to his advanced age. Mr. Baker leaves a widow who is at present critically ill. There is a possibility that she may not survive the day.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATED

tor, Rev. A. E. Finn, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

The principal service was in the afternoon under the auspices of the Sunday-school, of which George E. Hall is the superintendent. An orchestra, consisting of G. W. V. Moy, Ernest Higham, Miss Arline Brown, Miss Marjorie Brown, violins; Whitney C. Frazee, cornet, and Miss Mary Clark, pianist, accompanied all the music.

The programme opened with a coral by the school, "What Say the Bells;" and "Glory to God," followed by a recitation, "A Christmas Carol," Marielle Dunham; song, "The Bells Are Merrily Ringing," primary department; carol, "Shining," school; recitation, "What Makes Us Celebrate Christmas," Clara Hadley; song, "Happy Snow Flakes," primary department; carol, "All in the Silent Night," school; "The Christmas Story," junior department; solo and quartette, "The Birthday of a King," Charles Lewis, Miss Cora R. Brokaw, Miss Florence G. Hawkins and Roland C. Treadwell; carol, "Glad Tidings of Great Joy," school; recitation, "Our Gift," Cornelia Smith, Sarah Johnson, Gladys Radley and Emily VanWinkle; carol, "The Bethlehem Lullaby," intermediates; recitation, "The Guest Comes," Arline Brown; carol, "The Christmas Spirit," school.

There were also remarks by Superintendent George E. Hall in which he spoke of the offering to be received for the Day Nursery. This amounted to $20.25. In response to the appeal a large number of toys, games, books, etc., were donated for the Children's Home. Those who assisted the superintendent in arranging the programme consisted of Miss Elmira C. Runyon, Miss Charlotte Tennant, and Mrs. Harry C. Runyon.

In the evening the pastor, Rev. Mr. Finn, preached a Christmas sermon, his subject being "The Three Aspects of the Nativity." There was also special music by the choir.

Trinity Reformed.

Because of the illness of Dr. Schenck, the day's programme at Trinity Reformed church was not as elaborate as in former years but the spirit of Christmastide was observed and the services were attended by large congregations. In the morning the choir, composed of Miss Ethel Moore, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; E. D. Young, tenor, and Fred S. Cutter, bass, sang special anthems and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis delivered an impressive Christmas sermon. His text was "Peace on Earth," Luke 2:14, and had for its main thought the origin of Christmas and the first Christmas tree. Choirmaster A. L. Titsworth had full charge of the musical programme which added greatly to the appropriateness of the occasion.

The evening service was in charge of the Sunday-school, Superintendent F. E. Smith conducting. With W. C. Leek leading and assisted by the Vivo Trio, M. A. Korff, violin, and the Messrs. Spear, violin and piano, the school sang carols from Adam Geibel's "Songs of the Ages." Miss L. A. Force acted as accompanist. The singing was very hearty and greatly enjoyed by everyone. Special numbers were rendered by the choir and Rev. Walter T. Griffin, a favorite with the Sunday-school in general and the younger element in particular, gave an address that had the close attention of the entire gathering. His subject was "Where Is He," the question asked by the three kings.

Congregational Church.

Most of the forenoon and part of the afternoon were devoted to Christmas observance at the Congregational church yesterday. The Sunday-school observance followed almost immediately after the church service, at noon. There was no evening service. The church was decorated with ropings of evergreens, with hemlock boughs and with palms. The congregation was large.

Rev. C. E. Goodrich, the pastor, preached a message of Christmas cheer from the familiar text from St. Luke, "I bring good tiding to all people." He dwelt on the universality of the Christian religion; the good tidings were fitted to the people of all the world.

The church choir sang special numbers with splendid effect. Mrs. Thomas B. McDonald sang a solo. W. Paulding DeNike, cellist, assisted in the music.

Carols were the feature of the Sunday-school service. The Sunday-school choir sang finely. E. C. Martin, violin, and Miss Alice Morgan, piano, played a duet. Mr. Goodrich gave a report talk.

First M. E.

There was a carol by the girls in Mrs. Judd Stewart and in the Junior department there were recitations by Vera Stiles, Alice Joy and Harry Staats and songs by Edward Crone, Violet Sutton, Lillian Apgar and Harold Tile. A chorus selection by the primary department followed and a recitation by Douglass Stewart. In the beginners' department there were recitations by Carlton More, Elizabeth Hicks and Frank Rowley, Jr., a song by Charlotte Skiff and recitations by Jay Squire, Ella Vail, Roswell Ewart, Alfred Littell, Dorothy Plum, Loren Pope, Alice Beekman, Lois Beekman and the programme closed with a song by Frank Rowley, Jr.

Crescent Avenue and Chapels.

The Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue church and its chapels, Hope, Warren and Bethel, held a union service at Crescent Avenue church, yesterday afternoon, similar to those conducted in recent years at Easter. The attendance was very large and the exercises were entered into with a hearty Christmas spirit. They were opened by prayer from Rev. F. D. Tilden, of Bethel chapel, followed by responsive readings conducted at various times by Superintendent H. C. Cochran, of the Crescent Avenue school; Superintendent Parvin, of Warren chapel, and Superintendent H. R. Munger, of Hope chapel. Mr. Stanley, of the church choir, rendered a tenor solo and an appropriate Christmas address was made by Dr. Zelie. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, offered prayer and the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Zelie.

At all three of the chapels, the pastors preached special sermons yesterday morning and last night and the congregations sang carols.

Monroe M. E. Church.

The Sunday-school exercises took the place of the morning service at the Monroe Avenue church yesterday. Carols were the great feature of the programme; song filled the church church from the opening of the exercises to their close.

The decorations were striking. Two large Christmas trees flanked the platform; there was a floral bell, as well, and a fine display of evergreens.

The programme included recitations by Fred van Orden of the kindergarten department; Marion Stine, of the primary department; Miss May Stafford, Madeline Pennington and Edith Swartz, of the main school. Rev. E. E. Roberson, the pastor, gave a short talk. He was to have delivered an illustrated Christmas discourse, but the programme consumed so much time the talk was omitted.

Faith Chapel.

Under the direction of L. W. Randolph, superintendent, the Sunday-school at Faith chapel enjoyed a special Christmas programme, yesterday afternoon. The selections follow:

Song, "Hail to the King," school; Scripture lesson, Frank Stuart, assistant superintendent; prayer, Rev. J. W. Musson; welcome, Chris. Myers; violin solos, Clarence Lawrence, accompanied on the piano by Miss Elsie May Dunavan; recitations, "If I Had Been a Bethlehem Child," Bessie Carson; "Our Gifts," Lillian Ryno, May Messinger, Beatrice Overbaugh, Bessie Griffin; "What Do I Want For Christmas?" Helen Myers; "Christmas at Home," David Myers; "Christmas Wish," John Peterson; "Happy Day," the Misses Bicknell. There were also carols by the primary department and the school and a feature was a vocal solo by Miss Emily Conger.

First Presbyterian Church.

The musical feature of the morning service at the First Presbyterian church yesterday was a solo by Miss Etta Raybert. In the evening, E. D. Cutting and Miss Nichol sang solos. The Sunday-school held a carol service, under the direction of F. C. Iglehart, in the afternoon.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Marconnier chapel will hold their Christmas entertainment on the same night as the Baptist Sunday-school hold theirs in Washington Hall. Some of our children go to both Sunday-schools, but they will have to chose which entertainment will please them most.

A party from Plainfield anticipate a jolly time on Spring Lake, having a moonlight skate this evening. There will also be a hockey game on the lake tomorrow afternoon.

There will be no prayer meeting tomorrow evening, as most of the families will want to spend Christmas evening at home.

SCOTCH PLAINS PEOPLE ENJOY XMAS PROGRAMME.

"Santa's Substitutes" Attracts Last Congregation at Baptist Church.

"Santa's Substitutes," a Christmas cantata, attracted a large congregation to the Scotch Plains Baptist church, Saturday night, the entertainment being given by the Sunday-school. The Christmas sketch convinced all the little folks that there is but one Santa Claus and that even Mrs. Santa Claus is not able to take his place. When Santa was critically ill and was forbidden by Dr. Westcott to leave his bed, Mrs. Santa decided to take his place, after vainly trying to get a substitute. Her attempt was a complete failure, even with the help of fairies and the brownies. The latter added to her misery by mixing up the presents so that no one received what they expected.

Finally, Old Santa, contrary to the wish of his doctor, left his bed and arrived in time to save the day for the little ones and made everyone happy. Santa and well as Jack Frost was impersonated by L. D. H. Gilmour, and Miss Louise Mygrant took the part of Mrs. Santa. Captain H. B. Saunders was the sand-man, Miss Elsie Cook, the old woman who lived in a shoe, Howard Gilmore was Ananias Bond, Charles R. Vincent was the grandpa and Mrs. C. R. Vincent was Aunt Maria.

Other parts of the programme included a cornet solo by W. S. Mygrant. Much credit is due Mrs. Chas. R. Vincent and her assistants for the excellent entertainment and the drilling of the children. After the cantata presents were distributed to young and old. Superintendent Charles R. Vincent was remembered by a handsome volume by one of the well-known authors and the pastor, Rev. T. Moore-Smith was surprised with a purse of $100 as an evidence of esteem and appreciation.

No Court Tomorrow.

The December term of county courts will not open at Somerville tomorrow, the legal luminaries and judges taking the day off to observe Christmas. On Wednesday morning court will be open and the first thing to be disposed of, after the calendar has been gone over and the licenses granted, will be the rule to show cause, in the case of Miss Florinda Illario, why a new trial should not be granted on the ground that during the trial the jury went to the scene of the crime without the order of the court. Miss Illario was convicted of manslaughter for shooting Alex. Di Poolo in Somerville June 2. The Supreme and Circuit lists are not heavy this term.

Somerset Bar Dinner.

The annual dinner of the Somerset County Bar Association was held Saturday at George Schenck's county hotel in Somerville. There were about fifteen guests and an elaborate repast was served. Hon. Wm. V. Steele, who is president of the association, presided, and addresses were made by former Assemblyman Sam'l S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield; Willard P. Voorhees, of New Brunswick, Vice Chancellor James J. Bergen, Judge Louis H. Schenck and former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville.

HOT FIGHT ON FOR SENATE PRESIDENCY

RACE CLOSE BETWEEN HILLERY AND MINCH—CAUCUS THURSDAY NIGHT.

Political interest centres this week in the caucus of the Republican majority of the Senate, which is to be held Thursday evening at the home of the Republican Club, in Trenton. At that time will be decided the fight between Senator Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris county, and Senator Bloomfield H. Minch, of Cumberland county, for the office of president for the coming session.

At the present time the c ontest is close. Both Mr. Hillery and Mr. Minch are confident of winning. The chances of each seem to be about even, with possibly a slight advantage in favor of Minch.

Senator Hillery is the logical candidate, and he would have been elected without doubt if the Northern counties of the State had not gone Democratic in the last election. Their defection leaves Mr. Hillery with less support than he would otherwise have, and on the p rinciple that to the victors belong the spoils, South Jersey, which remained loyal to the Republicans, claims the office. The friends of Hillery pledged to him last winter when he was made floor leader, a position which entailed much hard work during all of the session.

The Senate leadership will probably go to South Jersey. Senator J. Boyd Avis, of Gloucester, will, it is believed, be chosen for this position. It is not likely that the United States Senatorial situation will be discussed at the caucus.

ALFRED COCKS DEAD.

Passed Away at His Home in Newark Last Night.

Alfred Cocks, for twenty-five years a resident of the Netherwood section, died last night at his home, No. 17 East Park street, Newark. Death was due to pneumonia.

Mr. Cocks was fifty-seven years old and left Plainfield about two years ago. He enjoyed a very wide acquaintance throughout the city. He was a brother-in-law to former Councilman Leonard Spangenberg and leaves a wife and one daughter. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Narrowly Escaped Asphyxiation.

While roasting peanuts in their father's new store at Scotch Plains, Saturday, Walter and Robert Ianson, sons of Frank Ianson, narrowly escaped asphyxiation from charcoal fumes. They were in a rear room by themselves and the father was attracted by the sudden cessation of the roasters' turning and a heavy fall. Rushing in he found Walter unconscious and Robert nearly so from the effects of the fumes. He threw the windows open and by adopting other methods brought the boys around. Both suffered severe nausea but no other ill effects.

Wayfaring Youths.

Thomas Meyers, 20 years old; Charles Carlson, 20; Edward Dixon, 19, all of New York, were found hanging about the North Avenue station by Patrolman O'Keefe, at 1:20 Saturday morning. They looked suspicious and the officer took them to the station house. Dixon had a .32 calibre revolver, loaded, on him. They told Judge Runyon they were going to Trenton this morning, and made such a good impression that he suspended sentence.

Borough Tax Receipts Heavy.

At the close of his office hours, Saturday, Collector Geoge F. Brown had received about $6,000 from borough taxpayers. The rush during the last few days kept the entire office force on the jump and they have since been hard at work getting figures in shape for the close of the year. There still remains about $8,000 to be collected and as a rule the greater part of it is paid in directly after New Year's.

In Somerset Criminal Court.

In the Somerset County Courts on Saturday, John Littlejohn and Arthur Jones, charged with assault on George Coombs at Harlingen, were arraigned on allegation and pleaded guilty. Judge Schenck will sentence them next Friday. Andrew Beno, who had pleaded guilty to stealing a boat, the property of William H. Arkenburgh, at Raritan, was fined $10 and placed in charge of the Probation Officer for one year.

Tendered Surprise Party.

Henry Jaeger, of West Third street, was tendered a surprise party by twenty-five of his friends, Saturday night. Games, dancing and music were features of an informal programme at the close of which refreshments were served. The affair was arranged by Miss Annie Jaeger and Miss Mary Thomas.

A Chimney Blaze.

A still alarm was reserved at fire headquarters at 12:16 yesterday noon for a chimney blaze at 2:55 East Second street. A hose waon was sent out and the fire was put out with an extinguisher.

Dr. Schenck Improves.

Further improvement was reported today in the condition of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck and the physician as well as the family feel much encouraged.

BRISBANE GETS A RAISE.

Visits Old Sunday-school Teacher Here and Tells About It.

Arthur Brisbane, the chief editorial writer for all of William Randolph Hearst's Americans, was in Plainfield yesterday to look over his property in Netherwood. He contemplates improving it, and may make his home here. He spent part of his boyhood on the place. He was the guest yesterday of David Hand, who taught at the Jackson school, where he was a pupil. Mr. Brisbane's home is on Terrill road.

He told Mr. Hand he was making out in his business. His employer likes him and he has told him he will get a raise on January 1. He will receive $72,000 a year after that, an increase of $20,000, and have an interest in the business.

Unknown Man Killed on the Central.

An unknown young man, aged about twenty years, well dressed, was found dead on the tracks of the New Jersey Central between Roselle and Elizabeth, this morning, by a trackwalker. The body was clothed in an expensive suit, patent leather shoes and gave every appearance that the man had been well-to-do. The body was removed to the morgue in Elizabeth, where it awaits identification. The man was evidently struck by a train, but just when nobody can learn.

Knights of Columbus Will Not Take Drastic Action Against French Goods.

FEELING IS BITTER

The State Organization, However, May Follow the Example of Order in Massachusetts.

Although it is considered probable that the State Council of the Knights of Columbus will follow the action of the Massachusetts State Council and declare a boycott on all goods manufactured in France, it is not likely that the local societies affiliated with the Catholic church will make formal and recorded expression on the battle between the State and Church in France. Members high in both the Knights of Columbus and Holy Name Societies in this city said this morning that they did not expect any action by their organizations. Sympathy was expressed with the French Catholics, and the French Government was denounced as unjust and tyrannical, but it was the opinion of those interviewed that the Plainfield organizations would not feel it to be proper or worth while to pass formal resolutions. If the members felt strongly enough on the subject to desire nothing of French make in their possession, they would as readily ban the products of French manufacture, it was argued, without a formal boycott resolution as with it.

State Deputy Charles J. Barrett, of the K. of C., in discussing the situation in the country and State, said:

"The sympathy of all members of the Knights of Columbus, not only in New Jersey, but throughout the world, is with the Church. So far no time has been set for a discussion regarding the advisability of placing a boycott upon French goods."

Another prominent K. of C. man said: "The action of the Massachusetts Knights is in accord with the general feeling among Catholics throughotu the country who have been made acquainted with the true condition of affairs through the medium of a free press. A demonstration by American Catholics and a vigorous protest would probably avail much. The merchants of France would soon awaken to the fact that the Government had injured their interests.

"It is to be deplored that the innocent clergy of France are being persecuted. It should be remembered that the Catholics of this country did more than all others to establish the greatness of France as a nation in America. Let France liberate the Catholic church and American Catholics will be satisfied. Catholics, not French Freemasons, made France, and it will be found advantageous for the people of France to express sincere regret that they allowed the present situation to be brought about."

Rescued Everybody.

New York, Dec. 24.—By rare presence of mind Winan W. Freeman, general manager of the Brooklyn Edison Electric Light Company, saved the lives of his wife and three small children when their home, at No. 7,801 Second avenue, Bay Ridge, was on fire yesterday morning. Hemmed in from all means of escape by dense clouds of smoke, the Freeman family, who slept on the second floor, and two servants occupying the top floor were in grave danger. Mr. Freeman groped his way to the wash basin in his room, seized a wet towel and, placing it over their heads, carried his wife to the street. Dashing back into the house Mr. Freeman found his three children frantic with fear, with flames eating up the carpet of their rooms. With a mighty effort he gathered the little one to him and brought them safely to the sidewalk while neighbors cheered him. Remembering that two servants were yet in the building Mr. Freeman made another attempt, with like success, assisting the women, who had slept through the excitement, to safety.

Tried to Shoot Judge.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 24.—A desperate effort was made yesterday to assassinate Judge Charles S. Cutting, of the Probate Court, the assailant being Frank F. Ellerbrock, of No. 810 North California avenue. Ellerbrock is believed to be instane. Judge Cutting overpowered his assailant after a fierce fight. As the Judge entered the Criminal Court building on his way to his chambers Ellerbrock, who was standing in the hallway, stepped forward and when within two feet of Judge Cutting drew a revolver and fired. Judge Cutting instantly turned and struck his assailant a heavy blow in the face, almost knocking his down. Before Ellerbrock could recover Judge Cutting grabbed him by the throat and threw him backwards over a steam radiator, where he held him despite the man's desperate efforts to escape.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

The following Tuesday he continued so to Cedar City, the most populous of the southern settlements. Here he learned of the campaign's progress. Brigham's courier had preceded the train on its way south, bearing written orders to the faithful to hold no dealings with its people; to sell them neither forage for their stock nor food for themselves. They had, it was reported, been much distressed as a result of this order, and their stock was greatly weakened. At Cedar City, it being feared that they might for want of supplies be forced to halt permanently so near the settlement that it would be inconvenient to destroy them, they were permitted to buy 50 bushels of wheat and to have it and some corn the Indians had sold to them ground at the mill of Major Lee.

As Joel's informant, the fiery Bishop Klingensmith, remarked, this was not so generous as it seemed, since, while it would serve to decoy them on their way toward San Bernardino, they would never get out of the valley with it. The train had started on, but the animals were so weak that three days had been required to reach Iron creek, 20 miles beyond, and two more days to reach Mountain Meadows, 15 miles further south.

Here at daybreak the morning before, Klingensmith told him, a band of Piede Indians, under Lee's direction, had attacked the train, killing and wounding a number of the men. It had been hoped, explained Klingensmith, that the train would be destroyed at once by the Indians, thus avoiding any call upon the militia; but the emigrants had behaved with such effectiveness that the Indians were unable to complete the task. They had corralled their wagons, dug a rifle-pit in the center, and returned the fire, killing one Indian and wounding two of the chiefs. The siege was being continued.

Late on the following day, Wednesday, while they were anxiously waiting for news, a messenger from Lee came with a call for reinforcements. The Indians, although there were 300 of them, had been unable to prevail over the little entrenched band of Gentiles. Ten minutes after the messenger's arrival, the militia, which had been waiting under arms, set out for the scene in wagons. From Cedar City went every able-bodied man but two.

Joel Rae was with them, wondering why he went. He wanted not to go. He preferred that news of the approaching victory should be brought to him, yet invisible hands had forced him, even while it seemed that frenzied voices—voices without sound—warned him back.

The ride was long, but not long enough for his mind to clear. It was still clouded with doubts and questionings and fears when they at last saw the flaring of many fires with figures loitering or moving briskly about them. As they came nearer, a strange, rhythmic throbbing crept to his ears; nearer still, he resolved it into the slow, regular beatings of a flat-toned drum. The monotonous, deliberate, incessant, changeless—the same tones, the same intervals,—worked upon his strained nerves, at first soothingly and then as a pleasant stimulant.

The wagons now pulled up near the largest camp fire, and the arrivals were greeted by a dozen or so of the Saints, who, with Major Lee, had been directing and helping the Indians in their assaults upon the enemy. Several of these had disguised themselves as Indians for the better deception of the besieged.

At fires near by the Indians were broiling beef cut from animals they had slaughtered belonging to the wagon-train. Still others were cutting the hides into strips to be made into lariats. As far down as the line could be seen, there were dusky figures darting in and out of the firelight.

A council was at once called of the Presidents, Bishops, Elders, High Priests, and the officers of the militia who were present. Bishop Klingensmith bared his massive head in the firelight and opened the council with prayer, invoking the aid of God to guide them aright. Then Major Higbee, presiding as chairman, announced the orders under which they were assembled and under which the train had been attacked.

"It is ordered from headquarters that this party must be used upon except such as are too young to tell tales. We got to do it. They been acting terrible mean ever since we wouldn't send them anything. If we let them go on now, they been making their brag that they'll raise a force in California and come back and wipe us out—and there's an army already marching on us from the east. Are we going to stand back and let what we got in Missouri and in Illinois? No! Everybody is agreed about that. Now the Indians have failed to do it like we thought they would, so we got to finish it up, that's all."

Joel Rae spoke for the first time.

"You say except such as are too young to tell tales, Brother Higbee; what does that mean?"

"Why, all but the very smallest children, of course."

"Are there children here?"

Lee answered:

"Oh, a fair sprinkling—about what you'd look for in a train of a hundred and thirty people. The boys got two of the kids yesterday; the fools had dressed them up in white dresses and sent them out for a bucket of water. You can see their bodies lying over there this side of the spring."

"And there are women?" he asked, feeling a great sickness coming upon him.

"Plenty of them," answered Klingensmith, "some mighty fine women, too; I could see one yesterday, a monstrous fine figure and hair shiny like a crow's wing, and a litle one, powerful pretty, and one kind of between the two—it's a shame we can't keep some of them, but orders is orders!"

"These women must be killed, too?"

"That's the orders from headquarters, Brother Rae."

"From the military headquarters at Parowan, or from the spiritual headquarters at Salt Lake?"

"Better not inquire how far back that order started, Brother Rae—not of me, anyway.

"But women and children——"

"The great Elohim has spoken from the heavens, Brother Rae—that's enough for me. I can't put my human standards against the revealed will of God."

"But women and children——" He repeated the words as if he sought to comprehend them. He seemed like a man with defective sight who has come suddenly against a wall that he had thought far off. Higbee now addressed him.

"Brother Rae, in religion you have to eat the bran along with the flour. Did you suppose we were going to milk the Gentiles and not ever shed any blood?"

"But innocent blood——"

"There ain't a drop of innocent blood in the whole damned train. And what are you, to be questioning this way about orders from on high? I've heard you preach many a time about the sin of such doings as that. You preach in the pulpit about stubborn clay in the hands of the potter having to be put through the mill again, and now that you're out here in the field, seems to me you get limber like a tallowed rag when an order comes along."

"Defenseless women and little children——" He was still trying to regain his lost equilibrium.

Otter Battles With Dog.

Winsted, Conn., Dec. 24. While skating on Indian Pond near Millerton, N. Y., Charles, Robert and Roy Dakin saw an animal emerge from a hole in the ice and start up the mountain side. With a dog and gun the boys gave chase and near the Moravian monument the dog overtook the animal, which proved to be a large otter, and a fierce fight ensued. None of the boys dared to shoot, fearing they might hit the dog. As Roy Dakin approached the combatants the otter turned on him, but a well directed blow with the stock of the gun killed it. The otter measured sixty-seven inches in length.

BOTH Y. M. C. A. FIVES LOST TO ORANGE TEAMS

DISASTER ON FOREIGN FLOORS FOLLOWS THE LOCAL PENNANT CHASERS.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball teams lost two games Saturday night to the Orange Y. M. C. A. in the Orange Y. M. C. A. The first team lost by a score of 53 to 40. The second team by a score of 51 to 26.

In the contest with the first teams it was truly a fight for blood. Both fives exhibited excellent team work. Throughout the first period of play it was a case of nip-and-tuck on both sides. As fast as Orange would cage the ball the Plainfield boys would follow suit with one for them.

Throughout the second half of play Orange succeeded in maintaining a lead. Several times it looked as though the visitors would overcome this, but the home team held to its slight advantage until the end of the c ontest. The line-up:

ORANGE.		PLAINFIELD.
Hand	right forward	Denton
Wachenfeld	center	Scull
Poeller	right guard	Schoonmaker

Score at end of first half—Orange 27, Plainfield 20. Final score—Orange 53, Plainfield, 40. Goals from field—Hand 11, Schroder 7, Wachenfeld 5, Poeller 1, Denton 2, Collier 5, Scull 3, Schoonmaker 4, Jacot 1. Free throws—Schroder 4, Denton 7, Collier 2, Jacot 1. Referee—Morse. Umpire—Short. Time of halves—20m. and 15m.

The second team defeated Plainfield in easy fashion. The home team outclassed their opponents at every point of the game. The Plainfield boys put up a hard struggle, but it of the contest. The line-up:

Orange Juniors.		Plainfield Juniors.
Austin	right forward	Collier
Leimer	left forward	Gilmore
Poeller	center	Aaholm
Freiday	right guard	Loizeaux

P. H. S. FIVE TROUNCED BY MONTCLAIR BOYS.

Game On Local Court Saturday Resulted in Victory For Visitors Score Being 44-11.

A defeat for the Plainfield High School basketball team by the score of 44 to 11 was the result of the game with the team from the Montclair High School, played Saturday afternoon on the Plainfield High School court. In spite of the one-sided score it was a well played game; and clean, there being but few fouls made on either side.

The Montclair team surpassed the P. H. S. in passes and gave one of the best exhibitions of team work witnessed in the High School this year. Caldwell and Morris played well for P. H. S.

The local line-up:

J. Gavett, Morris, forwards; Caldwell, center; Bogardus, Fountain, guards.

Referee, J. Loizeaux; timer, B. Leggett.

Golf Committees.

President Morgan, of the Metropolitan Golf Association, has appointed these committees: Tournament—Paul Wilcox, Montclair, chairman; Simeon Ford, Apawamis; John R. Maxwell, Jr., Nassau. Handicap—Leighton Calkins, Plainfield, chairman; F. J. Phillips, Dyker Meadow; Findlay S. Douglas, Nassau. Mr. Caklins as secretary, is in correspondence with the Massachusetts and Philadelphia associations with regard to an all-Eastern open championship.

DIAMOND DUST.

Harry Taylor, the former president of the Eeastern League, who lives in Buffalo, has been appointed County Judge of Erie county by Gov. Higgins. Taylor is a graduate of the Cornell law school and was at one time prominent as a professional baseball player. He was a crack first baseman.

It is expected that Billy Murray, manager of the Philadelphias, who has been ill with typhoid fever, will be able to leave the hospital by January 1.

Manager Cantillon of the Washingtons says the quickest thinking in baseball is needed by a coacher at third base to decide wnether or not to hold a base runner at third on a hit to the outfield.

If the Tri-State League receives protection from the National Commission many major league players who jumped their contracts to play with the "outlaws" will be in a state of worriment as to their futures. Among them are James Sebring, Harry Wolverton, Harry Gleason, Tom Delehanty, Jack Bressler, Lew Witse, Mike O'Neill, George Starnagle, Red Owens, John Doescher and others who forsook the big leagues for the more liberal salaries offered by Tri-State clubs. Three years of high priced baseball in the "outlaw" circuit has caused the backers of the various clubs to suffer from cold feet. If they receive recognition, under the protecting wing of organized baseball, they are sure to cut down salaries to a man. This means that if the jumpers are allowed to remain with them there will be a reduction in pay, while in the event of the rebels being returned to their original employers they will have to contend with similar conditions. It has ever been thus with ball players who have jumped contracts. They have always received the worst of it in the long run, because of the inevitable weakening of the men who were sufficiently shortsighted to buck up against the system.

That Ban Johnson and Charley Comiskey are warm friends once more is shown by the announcement that Comiskey has invited the president of the American League to accompany the Chicago White Sox on their spring training trip to the City of Mexico. Frank Farrell, of the New York Americans, deserves the sole credit for patching up the differences between these big baseball chiefs. Nobody else cared to undertake the job at the recent meeting of the magnates in the Windy City.

All of the American League teams have selected quarters for spring training next year. The New York Americans will go to Atlanta about March 1, Manager Griffith having enough men in line to make up two nines. The Bostons will go to Little Rock, Ark., where many new players will be tried out. The Philadelphias will get ready for the championship race at Marlin Springs, Tex., Connie Mack having nearly forty men on his staff. The Washingtons will prepare for the fray at Galveston, Tex., while the Detroits will go to Augusta, Ga., and the St. Louis Browns to Houston, Tex. The world's champion Chicagos are booked for training stunts at the city of Mexico, where Comiskey's men will get a warm welcome from the American residents.

Kills Sister in Duel for Love.

Havana, Cuba, Dec. 24.—Reports of a duel between two sisters have just reached here. Maria and Carmen Hidalguez lived on a farm near Las Lajas. Not far away, on another plantation, worked a handsome chap named Juanillo, with whom both girls were in love. Juanillo seems to have been divided in his attentions. The sisters had their first open quarrel about the young man a few days ago and the next morning left the house together at daylight. Carmen came back alone. Investigation showed that each sister had taken a revolver and gone to a lonely vega, or tobacco field one to live and the other to die for the object of their affection. Rural guards were informed by neighbors who heard the story and a search revealed the body of Maria Hidalguez on the adjoining estate of Maguajara.

JUSTICE CLARK FOUND UNCONSCIOUS ON ROADSIDE.

Well-known Scotch Plains Resident Believed to Have Been Waylaid and Robbed.

Joseph Clark, the well-known justice of the peace of Scotch Plains, who was stricken with paralysis Wednesday night while walking home, is improving slowly. He fell on Front street, where he laid for over an hour before assistance reached him. Mr. Clark's failure to return home on time caused his family much anxiety, and his son, Clinton B. Clark, started out to look for him. The aged man was found lying on the street unconscious and helpless and at first was thought to be the victim of foul play owing to a bruise on the head. The affair was kept quiet for a few days while an investigation was made.

Dr. Westcott is convinced that Justice Clark's injuries were due to his fall, yet when he left home he had several dollars in his pocket and when found he did not have a cent. There was a supposition that some one of Mr. Clark's enemies may have way-laid and robbed him.

Japanese Ends Life Oddly.

New York, Dec. 24.—Lying on the floor, just beneath the picture of a beautiful American girl which he had recently framed in fresh flowers, Akiru Kanamaru, a Japanese salesman, was found dead in his room at No. 256 Third avenue, last night. He had sealed up the crevices of the doors and windows of his room and ended his life by inhaling gas.

Dr. and Mrs. Guy Hillman, of West Front street, have gone to their former home in New York State, where they will spend the holidays.

SOMERSET COURT OPENS

December Term Begins With Justice Garretson and Judge Schenck on the Bench.

THE ILLARIO CASE UP

Taking Testimony On Rule For New Trial in Manslaughter Case—Judge Lloyd to Sit at Somerville.

The December term of the Somerset county courts opened in Somerville at 10:30 this morning with Justice Garretson and Judge Schenck presiding. There was a large attendance of lawyers and the calendar, which is not a very heavy one this term, was gone over.

The cases of interest to Plainfielders are:

Supreme—Lester Pach against H. M. Herbert & Co., Malcolm MacLear, Dungan & Reger. Gilbert A. VanDoren against Elias Bodenwieser; Beekman & Vasseller, Edward A. Kenney. Faile Secor against D., L. & W. Ormiston; Vreeland, King, Wilson & Lindabury; Lindabury, Depue & Faulks. Wm. C. Carman against Percy Koechlein; Charles T. Cowenhoven; Dungan & Reger.

Circuit—Louis B. Lamareaux against Ballantine & VanFleet; Beekman & Vosseller; Clark & Case and Dungan & Reger. Dora Dater against Wilhelimina Weigand; Horace Codington; Dungan & Reger. Lizzie C. Pope against Harry Courter; John A. Frech; Charles A. Rathbun. Ada D. Clayton against John B. Dunster; H. V. Osborne; Clark & Case. David Binst against Frank Bergen; F. A. Pope; Frank Bergenprose. Joel Codington; Justice Kitchen; Reed & Coddington; Horace Codington. Albert Voorhees ads. Henry S. Van Nuys; Justice Sutphen; Frederick A. Pope; Dungan & Reger.

The Grand Jury summoned contained the following members from North Plainfield: William G. Debele, George H. Schmidt, Frank Mobus, John F. Mundy, William H. Rogers and George W. Winans.

The rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted Miss Florence Illario, who was convicted of manslaughter in the killing of Alexander De Poolo at the home of Mrs. Jane Warwick in Somerville on June 2 last, was returnable today, and Justice Garretson began taking testimony. The main argument for a new trial is based in the constables taking the jury to the scene of the crime during the progress of the trial without the consent of the Justice.

Justice Garretson, owing to a press of court work in other ends of his district, has summoned Judge Lloyd, of Camden, who was recently appointed, for the purpose of trying the Supreme and Circuit cases ready for trial.

Former Senator L. A. Thompson is foreman of the Grand Jury and among the other members of the jury is Rev. Charles Fiske, rector of St. John's church, Somerville.

Attained His Majority.

In honor of the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday, a party was given to Chris. Utzinger at his home on Grandview avenue, Monday night. The affair was arranged by his brother, Albert Utzinger. The evening was spent in playing games, vocal and instrumental music and at a late hour refreshments were served.

A prison evangelist will be the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting Sunday afternoon. He is Thomas Elgar, of New York. His topic will be "Trumpet Blasts from Prisons North and South."

CRANFORD WITHOLDS PART OF COUNTY TAX

CONTENDS THAT IN COMPARISON WITH ROSELLE IT HAS BEEN OVER-ASSESSED

There was a stir in the office of the County Board of Taxation Monday morning when it became known that Cranford had decided to withhold a portion of its share of the county tax and appeal to the State Board of Equalization of Taxes for what they call fair play.

The total amount due from Cranford is $16,709.63. The town has paid to County Collector Leavitt $14,244, but will refuse to pay the balance, $2,466.63.

The reason of this is that they have examined the work of the assessors who sized up the property of their neighbors in Roselle and have come to the conclusion that they have been over assessed while the people of Roselle have not had their property assessed to the full value. In other words, they claim that Roselle has not been assessed dollar for dollar with them according to true valuations and they mean to know why or kick up a rumpus.

It was supposed that they would wait until the State Board came to Elizabeth next month, but it was stated that Cranford believes it is time matters were brought to a head as there has been a great deal of grumbling and next Thursday has been set as the day on which they will present their grievances at Trenton.

The action of Cranford has upset the peaceful calculations of the board which has been happy since the conclusion of its labors in hearing appeals over the fact that they had done so well without any great trouble. Every other township and municipality has paid in its share of the county burden of taxes, and now it seems to the board exasperating to have little Cranford step out of line and threaten no end of trouble.

POOR BOYS DINE.

Y. M. C. A. Juniors Give Their Annual Dinner to Humbler Youths.

Small boys of humble fortune to the number of forty were the guests of the Y. M. C. A. Junior Department at a Christmas dinner yesterday. The dinner is an annual event.

It was served in the small hall, at six o'clock. The hall was prettily decorated with holly and greens. The dinner was served by members of the Boys' Department and Boys' Secretary Haydn W. Barrows sat at the head of the table.

The dinner was not formal. It was designed to make small boys who have not, ordinarily, too many joys, feel some of the Christmas joyousness. They were filled to repletion with turkey and "fixins," mince pie, ice cream and cake, and when it was all over each boy departed with a big orange. Before the dinner party broke up the hall was photographed.

SECT ASKS PROTECTION.

"Feetwashers'" Services Disturbed By Irreverence.

Elder Trent, head of the Church of God and Saints of Christ, colored, which is known to the man on the street as "The Feetwashers," has applied to Chief Kiely for the protection of his services from annoyance by irreverent and noisy visitors at the Sunday night services in Reform Hall. The officer on the post has been told to watch over the saints and see that their religious observances are not disturbed.

The saint who brought the complaint to headquarters told Chief Kiely that the sect was growing here. There are two white members, according to the messenger—Mrs. Sarah Sullivan, of West Fourth street, and Ashwell Copeland. The sect has a white bishop in Kansas.

Juniors Could Not Elect.

Owing to the fact that Monday night was Christmas Eve it was impossible to get a quorum out at the meeting of Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and hence the officers could not be elected. The nominations were made a week previous with the intention of electing this week. The matter was deferred for one week, but as next Monday night will be New Year's Eve there is little prospect of holding an election then and another adjournment may be necessary.

A Stubborn Chimney Fire.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 9:15 Monday night for a chimney blaze at the home of Lewis Timpson on East Sixth street. It proved to be one of the most stubborn of this kind the department has had in a long time and nine extinguishers were used in putting it out. The damage was slight.

Christmas Tree at the Home.

The usual Christmas tree will be lighted at the Children's Home on Jackson and Westervelt avenues, the borough, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

HUSBAND'S DEATH SOON FOLLOWED BY HIS WIFE'S

MRS. DANIEL BAKER LIVED BUT FEW HOURS AFTER HER COMPANION.

Faithful and loving companions in life for more than fifty years, death came but a few hours apart to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baker, numbered among Scotch Plains' oldest nd best known residents. Both were taken ill a short time ago from the infirmities of old age and despite the fact that their casese were almost hopeless from the start, they cheered each other with comforting words and admonitions that the sickness would only be temporary. Mr. Baker passed away Sunday morning but the fact was kept from his helpmate who was then barely clinging to life.

His funeral was set for Christmas morning but Monday night the summons came to Mrs. Baker and it was postponed so that a service could be held jointly. It was conducted at Cole's undertaking rooms by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, this morning, and was attended by many friends from this city and the Plains. Interment followed in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

Mr. Baker was in his seventy-fifth year and was known all over Union county. His wife was Miss Susannah Murray and was eighty-one years old. Everybody in Scotch Plains knew both and they had a wide acquaintance in this city. They leave no near relatives beyond a sistes of Mrs. Baker.

HAPPY FAMILY REUNIONS ON CHRISTMAS DAY.

Holiday the Occasion or Many Gatherings in City and Borough.

According to the annual custom there were a number of family reunions held throughout the city and borough, yesterday, and the celebration of the day was principally confined to home affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver, of Fairview avenue, entertained their relatives at a Christmas dinner and family re-union, yesterday. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Reiber, parents of Mrs. Dolliver, and their family. There were twelve at dinner.

Among the pleasant family reunions yesterday was one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Babcock, on Clinton avenue. They entertained Mrs. Phillips and daughters, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Phillips and son, of West Front street; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Douglass and children, of the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. James Trimmer, of West Fourth street, entertained at a family re-union, yesterday, sixteen members being present, including Mr. and Mrs. William Wyman, of East Front street; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey F. Colthar, of Duer street; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Runyon, of Manning avenue; Mr. and Mrs. John Van Horn, of Somerset street, together with their children.

BOY'S SUDDEN DEATH.

C. Harold Hunter Passes Away on Christmas Morn.

C. Harold Hunter, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hunter, died at the home of his parents on West Fourth street at two o'clock yesterday morning. His death was unexpected as he had been sick only two or three days. He was troubled with a small carbuncle on the back of his neck which suddenly developed a form of blood poisoning. Dr. Murray was called and it was planned to remove him to the hospital but he grew weak so quickly it could not be done. He sank rapidly Monday night despite the efforts of Dr. Murray and other physicians who sought to check the trouble.

Harold was a pupil at the Irving school and also a member of Hope chapel. He was an unusually bright boy and his death came as a great shock to his many young acquaintances. He leaves three brothers and three sisters, one of the latter being Miss Gertrude Hunter who graduated from the Plainfield High School last June with first honors.

The funeral will be held at Hope chapel tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock and interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

Entertained Senior Class.

Principal and Mrs. I. W. Travell gave a reception to the senior class of the Plainfield High School Saturday night. It was held in the High School auditorium and proved to be a delightful affair. Dancing was enjoyed; music being furnished by Miss Mabel Maxson, piano, and Percy Mygrant, cornet. Refreshments were served.

Restricted Admission.

On account of lack of room the Sunday-school entertainment of Warren chapel, tomorrow night at eight o'clock, will be only for the congregation and Sunday-school. Free tickets may be had from J. W. Gavett.

MANY WENT TO CHURCH

Episcopal and Catholic Christmas Services Were Largely Attended.

MASS BEFORE DAWN

Seven Services at St. Mary's, Beginning With Solemn Celebration at 5:30—Father Bogan's Christmas Message.

Christmas Day was observed in all the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches with the services prescribed by their laws. Two or more services were held; at St. Mary's church the masses numbered seven. Special musical programmes were rendered and the churches were bright with Christmas decorations. The congregations were large.

St. Mary's.

Seven masses were celebrated at St. Mary's R. C. church yesterday morning. The first, a solemn celebration, was at 5:30 o'clock; the others were held at 7:00, 7:30, 8:00, 8:30, 9:30 and at 10:30 o'clock. The masses were largely attended; it is estimated that the total number of worshippers was 2,800.

The augmented church choir of thirty-two voices and the chancel choir of twenty-five voices sang at the 5:30, the 9:30 and the 10:30 masses. The music was splendid. The church was strikingly decorated with Christmas greens.

At the early mass, Rev. Father Bogan, the rector, was the celebrant; Rev. Father Henry J. Rache, of Jersey City, was deacon; Rev. Father Sciolla was subdeacon; and Rev. Father Delahanty was master of ceremonies.

Father Bogan prached formal sermons at the 5:30, 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock services. Among other things, he said:

"To the mind that meets no mystery in religious considerations, or, meeting it, rejects it because it tallies not with human measurement, Christmas Day has no significance. It is a day of mere friendly intercourse and kindly greetings, a day born of fancy and adopted by custom, devoted to pleasure and joyful family gathering. But to him who sees beyond the mere festivity, and studies the reason for Christmas joy, the world of mystery unfolds, and God makes known, not in uncanny but eminently human way, the reason of His birth among men. It becomes for him a day hallowed by sacred commemorations; a day of promise fulfilled.

"What is the fact commemorated? Man was created by Almighty God in rectitude, justice, and consequently in power. He was made little less than the angels, he was crowned with honor and with glory; but he fell from God, and lost all his graces, the innocence, the justice in which he had been created, and in order to restore h im to all he has lost, God becomes man, takes to Himself our humanity, and unites it to Himself in His own Divine Person. In looking for a proof of the fitness that God should become man we ground our argument on the infinite goodness of God; for whatever belongs to the nature of any person or thiny is fitting for it, as it is fitting that man should reason because intellect belongs to his nature. Now, it is in the very nature of goodness that it should communicate itself to thers; therefore, it is the very nature of supreme goodness that it should communicate itself in a supreme, that is, in a most intimate manner. The extraordinary dignity thus conferred on mankind, arises out of the personal union of our nature with the Divine Nature in Him. To the Christian believer, seeing in this day the commemoration of the most important fact in human history, there is above and beyond a most commendable significance, that well may draw from him an act of faith and humility.

"The angels' song above His crib, as we hear it through the ages, tells us of 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace to men of good will.' The world todays sings the songs in a different strain. It sings 'Peace and good will to men,' but the justice of God as seen in the economy of redemption demands that the will of man be attuned to the will of God, and therefore 'peace on earth to men of good will.'"

St. Stephen's.

Both services at St. Stephen's P. E. church yesterday were well attended. The early celebration was at 7:30, matins and the high celebration at 10:30 o'clock. The church was decorated with holly, ropings of evergreens, and with shields on which emblems of the faith were drawn in gold.

Rev. Arthur Scaring Peck, the rector, preached a sermon on the first Christmas song of the angels, from the text: Ezekial 32:37, "A very lovely song." The music was elaborate; a heavy offertory anthem was the feature of the programme.

CHILDREN RECEIVE GIFTS FROM THE LOCAL ELKS

475 LITTLE ONES THE GUESTS OF PLAINFIELD LODGE.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., made Christmas a happy day for nearly 500 of the city's children by entertaining them at Reform hall and presenting them with useful gifts, Monday afternoon. The big-hearted Elks conduct an affair of this nature every year and the last was attended by more little ones than ever before. Exactly 475 girls and boys enjoyed the lodge's beneficence and the beaming faces showed the pleasure they felt.

The lodge was assisted in distributing tickets of admission by Miss Holly, of the Plainfield Relief Association, who saw to it that they went where they would be most needed. When the children first gathered in the hall at 3 o'clock they were treated to an entertainment provided by professional talent. There was a ventriloquist, who imitated lots of things, a funny musical team, a Punch and Judy show and "Yogi, the mysterious," a sleight-of-hand performer with an abundance of puzzling tricks. After that every one of the attendants was presented with two pairs of stockings, a pair of warm mittens and a cap. As they passed out they were also given a box of candy and an orange, the best that could be bought.

The committee from the lodge which arranged and supervised the affair comprised Fred Sandford, chairman; H. C. VanEmbrough, John J. Kenney, Maze Edwards and Chas. C. Burnett.

SALVATION ARMY GAVE 100 CHRISTMAS DINNERS.

Worthy Undertaking Helped to Make the Day Bright for Many Poor Families.

One hundred poor and deserving families of the city and borough were provided with generous Christmas dinners, yesterday, through the medium of the Salvation Army. For several days the officers of the local corps were engaged in collecting and receiving contributions with which to supply the dinners and people generally were liberal in their donations. Each one of the hundred baskets contained a chicken, bread, butter, coffee, vegetables, pie and some knick-knacks.

The deserving families were reached chiefly through Overseer-of-the-Poor Alex Ayres. In some instances the families sent for their dinners, while in other the baskets were sent to the various homes. All were greatly received and the army was thanked for the provisions furnished. On New Year's Eve there will be a Christmas and New Year celebration at the army barracks with a Christmas tree.

HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Blaze Originated in Blind Flue and Caused Total Loss of $200.

An alarm from box 84 shortly after 4 o'clock Monday afternoon called the city fire department to the home of Woodruff Titsworth at 227 Grant avenue where a blaze had been started from a stove-pipe leading into a blind flue. It had spread through the flooring of the second story and crept into one of the side walls. Lines of hose were laid in but they were not used as the West End chemical engine coped with the flames successfully.

The damage to the house is placed at $150 with an aditional loss of $50 on furniture. The house is occupied jointly by Mr. Titsworth and his daughter, Mrs. Randolph.

Christmas Dinner at the Home.

Although the regular Christmas festivities will not be held at the Children's Home until Friday afternoon when the tree will be lighted, the twenty little members of the family there enjoyed a fine Christmas dinner yesterday and nearly everyone received a useful present. All are looking forward with much pleasure to the celebration on Friday when there will be a general distribution of gifts. The tree will be lighted at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Well Known Scotchman Dead.

J. C. Low, a native of Dundee, Scotland, the founder of Clan Gordon in Elizabeth and for over forty years employed by the Singer Sewing Machine Company, of Elizabethport, died yesterday at his home, 241 Inslee place, Elizabeth, from a complication of diseases. He was well-known throughout Union county and had many friends in this city.

Funeral of Alfred Cocks.

The funeral of Alfred Cocks, the former well known Plainfielder, was held at his late home, No. 17 East Park street, Newark, this morning. It was attended by a number of local friends. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, at the convenience of the family.

POLITICS WILL DIVIDE MEMBER IN ASSEMBLY

INNOVATION IN THE SEATING OF THE OF THE LEGISLATORS TO TRENTON.

An innovation in the seating of the members of the House of Assembly will go into effect with the opening of the Legislature. There will be thirty Democrats on the floor and twenty-nine Republicans and a Democratic speaker in the chair.

The thirty Democrats will sit on one side of the centre aisle of the Assembly chamber—to the right of the speaker—and the twenty-nine Republicans will sit on the left. The thirtieth desk on the Republican side of the chamber will be given to the Democratic speaker, although it is not expected that he will use it.

Heretofore the Democrats and the Republicans have been scattered about the house rather promiscuously, although an effort has always been made to keep the county delegations together.

With the lines so sharply drawn between the rival factions it is expected that there will be numerous and spectacular displays of political fireworks shot from one side of the house to the other. The Democratic speaker, Edgar E. Lethbridge, of Essex, will have his hands full in keeping the old ship of state from the shoals and quicksands. Assemblyman Alfred N. Barber, of Mercer, will doubtless be the Republican floor leader. He would have been made speaker had the Republicans remained in control.

The Democratic leader will be Abram Klenert, of Passaic. Between Mr. Klenert and Mr. Barber there will doubtless be many lively bouts. There are other good speakers for both the Republican and the Democratic sides of the house including Mr. Perkins, the Republican leader of last winter; Mr. Elvins, Republican, of Atlantic; Dr. Crouthers, Republican, of Middlesex, and Democratic Assemblymen-elect Riordan, Alexander and Tumulty, of Hudson.

The Democrats have already outlined enough to their programme for the session to give an inkling of what they intend to do. They will attack the appropriation of $250,000 for the proposed new normal school in North Jersey; fight against further expenditure for the State Tuberculosis sanitarium at Glen Gardner, and endeavor to bring about a radical change in the methods of imposing taxes on the railroad property by assessing all local rates for local benefit.

VETERAN DAIRYMAN RESCUED WHILE HOUSE WAS IN FLAMES

Orlando Van Arsdale Falls Down Stairs, Breaks Three Ribs and Is Otherwise Injured.

Fire destroyed the home of Orlando VanArsdale, a veteran dairyman at East Somerville, at an early hour this morning. Mr. VanArsdale, who was asleep on the second floor, fell down stairs in his efforts to get out of the house, fractured three ribs, received other internal injuries and his condition is critical.

The fire started from the kitchen range, which set too close to the woodwork, and before the fire department arrived the flames had spread throughout the first and second floors. The dwelling, which was an old one and was owned by W. C. Veghte, was ruined by fire and water and the contents destroyed. It was while groping about seeking an exit from the burning building that Mr. Van Arsdale stumbled and fell. He was afterwards rescued from the flames by neighbors.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DEAD.

Mrs. William Reese Passes Away While Visiting Relatives.

Mrs. Minnie Reese, wife of William Reese, of Easton, Pa., and daughter of Jesse A. Oakley, the architect of Elizabeth, died yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles E. Bishop on Chilton street, Elizabeth, while visiting there. Death was due to Bright's disease.

Mrs. Reese was thirty-one years of age and was born in Plainfield. She had been a resident of Easton during the past six years, her husband being engaged in business there. The funeral services will be held from the home of Mrs. Bishop on Clinton place, Elizabeth, Friday afternoon and the interment will be in Evergreen cemetery that city.

At Brooklyn Gathering.

A pleasant family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore H. Harding, 515 Madison street, Brooklyn, N. Y., yesterday, at which A. L. Force and family, of Duer street, were present. Gifts were exchanged, and with music and games a happy Christmas was enjoyed by all.

Fred Ford Parsons, of Chicago, has been visiting his parents, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Parsons, of Park place.

DIVORCE LONG A SECRET

Separation Learned Through Engagement Announcment of Mrs. Rowland Cox, Jr.

TO WED F. B. HARRISON

Husband, Former Plainfield, Secretly Obtained Annulment of Marriage Ties—She Was Mary Judson.

A report comes from Cannes, France, today that Francis Burton Harrison, whose wife was killed in an automobile crash in Long Island City, in November, 1905, is to marry Mrs. Mabel Judson Cox, divorced wife of Dr. Rowland Cox, Jr., of New York, and formerly of this city. Both are at Cannes. It is said the wedding will take place early in 1907.

The news makes public for the first time the fact that Dr. and Mrs. Cox were divorced. It is confirmed by relatives of Mrs. Cox.

So secret was the trouble of the Coxes kept that no hint was obtainable as to who was the plaintiff and who the defendant in the suit.

But it is a fact that the custody of their child was awarded to Dr. Cox, who has offices at No. 47 West Forty-fourth street, New York.

After having been separated from her husband for several months, Mrs. Cox went abroad six weeks ago with her mother and sister, shortly after the decree had been granted.

Mrs. Cox was noted for her beauty when she was married in the Second Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, to Dr. Cox, December 11, 1901. Her father, Henry I. Judson, is a wealthy resident of Brooklyn, and their home, No. 116 Willow street, is in the fashionable Heights district.

Reports of domestic disagreement were heard about two years ago. Dr. Cox took a house in Madison avenue soon after the marriage, and he and his wife were active socially.

Francis Burton Harrison, whose mother gained fame in the literary world, is a lawyer and vice-president of a wealthy realty company. He was born in 1873 and was graduated from Yale in 1895.

He had just entered the practice of the law in New York when the war with Spain began, and he enlisted as a private in Troop A, New York Volunteer Cavalry. He was afterward made captain of volunteers and continued in the service till 1899.

He was elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress from the Thirteenth district, and before the expiration of his term resigned to accept the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor on the ticket headed by D. Cady Herrick, and was defeated.

He married in San Francisco June 7, 1900, Miss Mary Crocker, daughter of the late Charles F. Crocker, and they had two children, daughters. Mrs. Harrison was killed when an automobile overturned in Thompson avenue, Long Island City, the wheel striking her neck and breaking it.

When her will was admitted to probate her estate was valued at $3,082,000, and this she directed should be divided equally among her husband and her two children.

Mr. Harrison went abroad several weeks ago and was reported recently as registered in the hotel in Cannes where Mrs. Cox and her mother and sister were then staying.

"My lips are sealed, and I cannot talk on the matter," said Dr. Rowland B. Cox when he was asked about the reported engagement. Dr. Cox would make no comment whatever.

Christmas at St. Joseph's Church.

The annual Christmas festival held under the auspices of the Sunday-school of St. Joseph's church, Sunday afternoon, was enjoyed by a large number of children and older members of the school. Rev. William H. Miller, pastor of the church, had charge of the celebration. A feature was an address of welcome by Edmund Kenney. Then followed the usual good time with distribution of gifts to all the children and the serving of ice cream and cake to all.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of Daniel Baker, who died at his home on Terrill road Sunday morning after a lingering illness, were held from Cole's undertaking parlors yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment was made in the Plainfield avenue cemetery. The deceased was the last of the old time hunters and trappers in this section, following the occupation until a few years ago, when his advancing years compelled him to abandon the trail. Dan, as he was always called by the older residents, could always tell when there was a fox on the mountain sides. His daily trips with his dogs and gun made him familiar with every foot of mountain ground in this section and his services as a guide to the amateur sportsman was much sought after, and made his name well known as one of the old-time characters of this section of the State. Since his retirement several years ago he has lived quietly at his home on Terrill road.

A family reunion was held yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark, of Front street, all the children gathering about the festive board. Owing to the serious illness of Mr. Clark the reunion was observed in a quiet manner. Beside the immediate family, the children present were Mr. and Mrs. Cass Acheson, of Matawan; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, of Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clawson, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick K. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Clark, of the Plains.

The Christmas exercises of the Methodist Sunday-school, held Christmas Eve in the church, was one of the pleasantest and happiest of the school's Christmas celebrations. The church was filled with the members and their friends, who gathered to enjoy the event with them. A pleasing programme of recitations, carols and responsive reading was enjoyed, after which Santa Claus paid his annual visit and helped distribute the many presents for both young and old.

One thing the young people could enjoy yesterday was good skating, the zero weather of the past few days havings covered the several lakes with a fine coating of ice several inches thick. Many indulged in the sport notwithstanding the cold weather.

The Plains residents [illegible] looked happy yesterday and we take this as an indication that everyone had a merry Christmas and in the majority of cases received what they were looking for.

The Owl Club's dance Monday night in the Fanwood fire house was well attended and everyone had a good time, dancing being continued until a late hour.

RIPARIAN BOARD MAKES REPORT.

Governor Stokes has received from the State Board of Riparian commissioners its annual report for the year. The document shows that the amount of business done by the commission during the year is greater than for any in the past five years, with the exception of 1905; and in addition to the business done, conveyances, the prices for which have been accepted by applicants, to the amount of over a quarter of a million dollars, are held in abeyance pending the conclusion and report of the committee appointed by the Legislature to investigate the subject of disposing of the State's riparian lands.

The summary of cash receipts to the board and the sources of the income show that from grants $74,861.02 was received; from leases $32,532; from licenses $820; from conversions $84,738.30, and rentals on leases $29,676.06, making a total for the last fiscal year of $222,627.38.

During the year the board made 109 grants, 8 leases, 7 licenses and 19 conversions.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Digby Bell, who is not seen in Plainfield as often as local theatre-patrons would like, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night in "The Education of Mr. Pipp." This is the play which Augustus Thomas made from the familiar humorous drawings by Chas. Dana Gibson, and it is said to be one of his best and most diverting comedies. Indeed, it must be, for this is its third season, and in no other place is the survival of the fittest better exemplified than on the stage. It ran for over 200 nights in New York the first year and its success on the road last season was of a like popular nature.

On Friday next, matinee and night, D. W. Robertson will present another one of his matchless moving picture entertainments, at the New Plainfield theatre, with everything entirely new. Among the pictures that will be presented there will be one of the most magnificent moving picture ever secured, showing all the beautiful colors of nature, and describing in over ten thrilling and marvelous scenes the adventures of "The Rajah's Casket." This is conceded to be the finest thing ever gotten out in moving photography, and has been one tremendous hit wherever shown.

May Irwin will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night in a new play by George V. Hobart called "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," with which she has been entertaining New Yorkers for the past two months at the Bijou theatre. It is said that the new offering is of a more legitimate character than those which she has had in the past, but still gives a character of the kind in which she revels. The part played by the star herself is that of a society woman with a liking for bridge whist, the fondness for which gets her into all sorts of trouble.

All the sunshine of the south, all the chivalry of its gentlemen, all the beauty of its women, in truth, the whole atmosphere of the Magnolia-scented South is in "Under Southern Skies," which will be at the New Plainfield theatre New Year's, afternoon and night. The art of Lottie Blair Parker is a natural one, as witness her "Way Down East." This art, she has brought to bear in "Under Southern Skies" with remarkable success.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Walcott, only daughter of James Walcott, to "The Man of Her Choice," will take place at the New Plainfield theatre January 3. True love never does run smooth, and there is likely to be very lively times before the actual ceremony is performed on the stage, as Nellie's father is very much opposed to the match, and is likely to make trouble, so be on hand early if you want to be in on all that goes on.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Christmas entertainment will be held at the Congregational church Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

The offering at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday will be for Muhlenberg Hospital.

The Young People's Association meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be omitted on Friday night.

The smaller children of the First M. E. church will hold their Christmas entertainment in Vincent chapel tomorrow afternoon.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Zelie will be "at home" at the parsonage, 813 Park avenue, New Year's Day afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock.

The officers of the Faith chapel Sunday-school have arranged an elaborate programme for the annual Christmas entertainment Friday night.

The Christmas entertainment at the First Presbyterian church will be held in the afternoon for the smaller children and at night for the older members of the school.

The prayer meeting at the First Baptist church tonight will be the last one for the year and will be appropriate to the occasion. The subject will be "Reflections."

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Ike Richards, of Somerset street, buys second-hand clothing and pays highest prices.

If you contemplate building consult Titus H. Laury, of East Front street. He will give you a right estimate.

If M. F. Gano, of Park avenue, cannot please you with his large list of desirable real estate to buy, sell or exchange, no one can.

James Harper, of Manning avenue, is an expert plumber and he also promptly attends to all kinds of jobbing. His work is the best.

R. L. Cline, successor to C. H. Rugg & Co., coal dealers, sells the best Lehigh coal and keeps his coal well protected from the elements. When you buy of him you receive full satisfaction.

—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lederer, who were obliged to leave their apartment in the New Madison on account of the fire, are now living temporarily on West Ninth street. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davison, who lost their household effects in the New Madison fire, are living for the present in Netherwood.

Entombed Miner Saved.

Bakersville, Cal., Dec. 26.—Lindsay B. Hicks, the miner delivered late Saturday night from fifteen days' imprisonment in the wrecked tunnel of the Edison company, was able to tell the story of his experiences. Now that he has been brought back to earth, alive and but little the worse for his frightful predicament, he realizes fully the miraculous character of his escape and the self-sacrifice of the men who toiled day and night to snatch him back from what seemed certain death. Aside from its being one of the most remarkable and dramatic rescues on record, it affords an interesting study for the psychologist. Terribly tragic at times and suggesting the crying out of a soul against the tortures of the damned, Hicks yet found excuse for humor and jesting in the situation. It is well, says his physician, that he tried to cultivate this mental attitude as much as possible, else he might have become a raving maniac long before the rescuing party came within reach. Although his mental faculties are sound, Hicks seems like a man who has lapsed back to childhood, frightened at the dark, and looking out on the world with wondering eyes. His physician says it is a temporary phenomenon growing out of the long strain and the utter joy of the victim over his deliverance.

Killed Wife for a Cent.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 26.—Because his wife had only four cents when he demanded a nickel, William Woodrich, a teamster, fifty-five years old, yesterday shot her to death and then committed suicide. The tragedy occurred in a bedroom adjoining a kitchen where two daughters of Mrs. Woodrich were sitting. The husband wanted a nickel to buy beer. Mrs. Woodrich searched the house and, finding noly four cents, offered them to her husband. He struck the coins from her hand and after venting his rage verbally followed her into the bedroom and after killing her turned the weapon upon himself.

Monument to Leo XIII.

Rome, Dec. 26.—The work of erecting a monument to Pope Leo XIII. inside the Church of St. John Lateran is proceeding rapidly. A large statue flanking the monument and representing Religion has already been placed in position. The monument will be ready at the end of January. Nothing, however, has been decided about the removal of the remains of Pope Leo, Pope Pius being desirous of avoiding disturbances similar to those attending the funeral of Pious IX., when the coffin bearing his body was almost thrown into the Tiber.

Indians to Organize Bank.

Hastings, Okla., Dec. 26.—A party of Chicasaw Indians from the vicinity of Durant passed through here on their way to the new town site of Randlett. Col. Sol McLisk, who is reputed to be one of the wealthiest Indians of his nation, leads the party and explains their mission. They expect to organize a banking, trust and real estate company, with a capital stock of about half a million dollars. All the stockholders are to be Indians, and the business will be transacted by Indians. All the members of the party are well dressed and speak good English.

Saving Souls at 101.

Honolulu, Dec. 26.—A remarkable case of longevity was celebrated here December 10, when "Mother" Parker, one of the first missionaries to these islands, became 101 years of age. Her mind is still very active and bright concerning her extreme age and her health is in some respects better than it was some years ago. She was born in Brandford, Conn., December 10, 1805, and came to these islands in 1833 with her husband. Both were missionaries. She has lived in Hawaii seventy-three years and been a missionary sixty-five years among the native Hawaiians.

Holy Cross.

Three services were held at Holy Cross P. E. church yesterday. Communion was celebrated at 6 o'clock and at 8 o'clock a. m., and morning prayer and communion at 11 o'clock. Anthems marked the musical programme at the latter service. Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, preached on the simplicity of the Christmas religious idea. The church was prettily decorated with holly, evergreens and ropings.

Grace P. E.

Beginning at 7 o'clock, Grace P. E. church observed Christmas with three morning services. Communion was celebrated at 7 and 8 o'clock, and morning prayer and communion at 10:30 o'clock. The congregations were large. The altar and sanctuary were strikingly decorated with holly, greens, poinsettia and white calla lillies.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, preached on the power of the divine life. The musical programme at the main service was elaborate. Arthur Chamberlain, William Tallamy and Mrs. Theodore Mantz sang solo parts.

Jap Veterans in Honolulu.

Honolulu, T. H., Dec. 26.—Whatever may be the sentiment of the mainland relative to the existing Japanese war scare and the recommendation of the President that the Japanese be admitted to citizenship, the people of the Hawaiian Islands regard the present situation as exceedingly grave, and, furthermore, view with the keenest alarm the future of Hawaii in event of the President's recommendation being enacted by Congress. Notwithstanding denials from Washington, the rumor still prevails here that two regiments of Japanese veterans, fully officered from a colonel down, are in and about Honolulu, waiting the signal to take possession of this city. No outward evidence of such military organization is given, but the secret agents of the United States government have obtained details that caused them to cable the information to Washington. The members of these regiments are working in various capacities in and about the city. A very significant fact has been observed about the character of the Japanese who have been coming to Honolulu lately from Japan. It has been noticed that the recent arrivals have been a hardier and better set up class of men than those who formerly came. Many of them have been wearing their war medals, and this display of war records has been especially noted by observers.

Thoroughgoing Burglars.

New York, Dec. 26.—Burglars stupefied the entire family of Matthew P. Murray at Freeport, L. I., with chloroform, early yesterday morning, and carried away about $3,000 worth of jewelry, silverware and clothing, besides eating a large Christmas cake that had been left on the dining room table. Before entering the house they cut the telephone wires on the outside. They made three attempts to get in through side windows by melting the glass, and finally cut the lock out of the front door, and went in that way. All told the lott must have made a bulky bundle, and it is suspected that it was carried away in an automobile, as no trains or trolley cars pass through Freeport within several hours of the time the burglary is supposed to have been committed.

Shovels Himself to Death.

New York, Dec. 26.—Down in the engine room of the Hotel Astor, several stories under ground, the men tried feats of endurance yesterday afternoon. John Faulkner, forty years old, of No. 400 West Fortieth street, a coal passer, tried to break the record. He sent an incredible number of shovelfuls into the furnace every minute. Each weighed forty pounds and was shot across a wide space. But Faulkner did not last long. Accompanying one of the full body swings that sends forty pounds of coal across many feet of space, came a cry of distress. The man straightened up, and toppled over backward. Before Dr. Paulding, the hotel physician, got to the man he was dead. Heart disease was given as the cause of death.

Platt Will Resign.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—Senator Thomas C. Platt, of New York, is serving his last year in Congress. It is known to his intimate friends that Mr. Platt plans to resign soon after the end of the present Congress on March 4, 1907, and some of these have been in mortal dread lest the fact should become generally known. It is possible the Senator will declare he does not intend to resign, but his intention has been expressed several times and it has been communicated to President Roosevelt.

Her 102d Christmas.

New York, Dec. 26.—Enjoying the anniversary of her one hundred and second birthday, Mrs. Jane Eliza Hemmings, once a slave, smoked her pipe, the only recreation she can find in life at the almhouse. She is totally blind and partly deaf. The last twenty years she has been an inmate of the public institution in Flatbush and is the oldest person there. Next to her in age is another negro patient one hundred years old.

UNKNOWN DRUNK DROWNS HIMSELF IN ELIZABETH JAIL.

Puts His Head in a Pail of Water and Is Found Dead This Morning.

An unknown drunken man was picked up on the streets in Elizabeth, yesterday, and locked up at headquarters to sober up. Being in no condition to even tell his name, the police decided to wait until today to get his pedigree. When his cell was opened this morning, the officer in charge was shocked to find that the man was dead.

Investigation proved that the stranger had committed suicide and in a strange manner. During the night he had removed his coat, wrapped it about his head and stuck his head in a pail of water and thus drowned himself. A search was made through the man's clothes but nothing was discovered that would disclose his identity. The man was fairly well dressed, but showed signs of having been on a spree for several days.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

He walked about the fires or impelled by the groups in consultation until the first signs of dawn. Then he climbed the low, rocky hill to the east and peered over the top, the drum-beats still pulsing through him, still coercing him. As the light grew, he could make out the details of the scene below. He was looking down into a narrow valley running north and south, formed by two ranges of rugged, rocky hills 500 yards or so apart. To the north this valley widened; to the south it narrowed until it became a mere gap leading out into the desert.

Directly below him, half-way between the ranges of hills, was a circle of covered wagons wheel to wheel. In the center of this a pit had been dug, and here the besieged were finding such protection as they could from the rifle-fire that came down from the hills on either side. Even now he could see Indians lying in watch for any who might attempt to escape. The camp had been attacked on Monday morning after the wagons had moved a hundred yards away from the spring. It was now Friday. For four days, therefore, with only what water they could bring by dashes to the spring under fire, they had held their own in the pit.

When it grew still lighter he descried, out on his left near the spring, two spots of white close together, and remembered Lee's tale the night before of the two little girls sent for water.

At that instant, the chanting and the beat of the drum stopped, and in the silence a flood of light seemed to shine in upon his mind, showing him in something of its true aspect the thing they were about to do. Not clearly did he see it, for he was still torn and dazed—and not in its real proportions, moreover; for he saw it against the background of his teaching from the cradle; the murder of their Prophet, the persecution of the Saints, the outrages put upon his own family, the murder of his father, and the death of his mother; the coming of an army upon them now to repeat these persecutions; the reported offenses of this particular lot of Gentiles. And then, too, he saw it against his own flawless faith in the authority of the priesthood, his implicit belief that whatsoever they ordered was to be obeyed as the literal command of God, his unshaken conviction that to disobey the priesthood was to commit the unforgivable sin of blasphemy against the Holy Ghost.

The plan of assault was now again rehearsed, and its details communicated to their Indian allies. By ten o'clock all was ready.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Meadow Shambles.

They chose William Bateman to go forward with a flag of truce. He was short and plump, with a full, round, ingenuous face. He was chosen, so said Klingensmith, for his plausible ways. He could look right at you when he said anything; and the moment needed a man of this talent. He was to enter the camp and say to the people that the Mormons had come to save them; that on giving up their arms they would be safely conducted to Cedar City, there to await a proper time for continuing their journey.

From the hill to the west of the besieged camp they watched the plausible Bateman with his flag of truce meet one of the emigrants who came out, also with a white flag, and saw them stand talking a little time. Bateman then came back around the end of the hill that separated the two camps. His proposal had been gratefully accepted. The besieged emigrants were in desperate straits; their dead were unburied in the narrow enclosure, and they were suffering greatly for want of water.

Major Higbee, in command of the militia, now directed Lee to enter the camp and see that the plan was carried out. With him went two men with wagons. Lee was to have them load their weapons into one wagon, to separate the adults from the children and wounded, who were to be put into the other, and then march the party out.

As Lee approached the corral its occupants swarmed out to meet him,—gaunt men, unkempt women and children, with the look of hunted animals in their eyes. Some of the men cheered feebly; some were silent and plainly distrustful. But the women laughed and wept for joy as they crowded about their deliverer; and wide-eyed children stared at him in a friendly way, understanding but little of it all except that the newcomer was a desirable person.

It took Lee but a little time to overcome the hesitation of the few suspicious ones. The plan he proposed was too plainly their only way of escape from a terrible death. Their animals had been shot down or run off so that they could neither advance nor retreat. Their ammunition was almost gone, so that they could not give battle. And, lastly, their provisions were low, with no chance to replenish them; for on the south was the most to be dreaded of all American deserts, while on the north they had for some reason unknown to themselves been unable to buy of the abundance through which they passed.

Arrangements for the departure were quickly completed under Lee's supervision. In one wagon were piled the guns and pistols of the emigrants, together with half a dozen men who had been wounded in the four days' fighting. In the other wagon a score of the smaller children were placed, some with tear-stained faces, some crying, and some gravely apprehensive. At Lee's command the two wagons moved forward. After these the women followed, marching singly or in pairs; some with little bundles of their most precious belongings; some carrying babes too young to be sent ahead in the wagon. A few had kept even their older children to walk beside them, fearing some evil—they knew not what.

One such, a young woman near the last of the line, was leading by the hand a little girl of three or four, while on her left there marched a sturdy, pink-faced boy of seven or eight, whose almost white hair and eyebrows gave him a look of fright which his demeanor belied. The woman, looking anxiously back over her shoulder to the line of men, spoke warningly to the boy as the line moved slowly forward.

"Take her other hand, and stay close. I'm afraid something will happen—that man who came is not an honest man. I tried to tell them, but they wouldn't believe me. Keep her hand in yours, and if anything does happen, run right back there and try to find her father. Remember now, just as if she were your own little sister."

The boy answered stoutly, with shrewd glances about for possible danger.

"Of course I'll stay by her. I wouldn't run away. If I'd only had a gun," he continued, in tones of regretful enthusiasm, "I know I could have shot some of those Indians—but these, what do you call them?—Mormons,—they'll keep the Indians away now."

"But remember—don't leave my child, for I'm afraid—something warns me."

Farther back the others had now fallen in, so that the whole company was in motion. The two wagons were in the lead; then came the women; and some distance back of these trailed the line of men.

SO DIFFERENT.

Lots of Claims Like This But So Different—Local Proof is What Plainfield People Want.

There are a great many of them.
Every paper has its share.
Statements hard to believe, harder to prove.
Statements from far-away places.
What people say in Florida.
Public expression from California.
Ofttimes good indorsement there.
But of little service here at home.
Plainfield people want local proof.
The sayings of neighbors, friends and citizens.
Home indorsement counts.
It disarms the skeptic; is beyond dispute.

This is the backing that stands behind every box of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 732 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave my any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over-exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies, but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

—There will be a business meeting of Co. K tonight to discuss several matters of importance.

DIAMOND DUST.

Archibald H. Douglass, the captain of the Naval Academy football team for next year and the star athlete of the institution, has announced his intention of coming out for the crew next season and has thus disappointed the baseball men. He is a good pitcher and was expected to take the place of Needham, who has been graduated. There is a strong feeling among the midshipmen that his services are more needed by the nine than by the crew. Douglass will, however, make an ideal oarsman. He is six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds in perfect training, besides being very strong. Other pitching candidates are Dague, the football player; Van Auken and Lamphire.

The veteran, Jack Doyle, once a favorite New York player at the Polo Grounds, has just signed to manage the Milwaukee American Association team. Doyle has been associated with so many different ball clubs during his career that it is a difficult matter to keep track of his movements. Doyle began his professional career with the Canton, Ohio, team in 1889, but he was quickly snapped up by the Clevelands, who turned him over to the New Yorks in 1892. He was a cather then, but John M. Ward made him a first baseman in 1894. Doyle for a time was the manager of the New Yorks in 1895, after which he was traded to the Baltimores, with whom he remained a couple of seasons. Then he went to the Washington club, only to be returned to the New Yorks. After that he was traded to Chicago, but New York got him again in 1902. Another deal shifted him to Brooklyn, where he wound up his major league career. For a time he knocked around on the Pacific Coast and then landed in Toledo. He managed the champion Des Moines team in the Western League and did such good work that he was readily selected to fill Joe Cantillon's shoes in Milwaukee. Doyle has always held out for fat salaries. He has saved his money and is a resident of Holyoke, Mass., in the winter. In spite of his long career he can still play fast ball in the minor leagues and is the same old aggressive hustler who helped the New Yorks to win the Temple cup in 1894.

Clark Griffith, manager of the New York Americans, who has been spending several weeks on his Montana ranch, will be in town shortly after New Year's Day, when he will begin to make arrangements for the coming campaign. Griffith is a member of the American League rules committee and he may have some suggestions to offer to the magnates when they convene in February. In the meantime it is probable that he will advise Frank Farrell to complete a couple of deals for new pitchers, at the same time sending out a bunch of contracts to the players who will represent New York in the championship race next summer. Griffith intends to take the New York Americans to Atlanta on or about March 1.

GOLF.

Regrets are expressed in many quarters that the decision of the M. G. A. handicap committee to substitute a published ranking list of players at nine strokes or less for the full list of all players rated was not voted down at the annual meeting. The 1906 list of 2,550 names was a monumental one, and, as blessings quicken as they take fight, there is annoyance among the players that it is to be discontinued. The expense of making up the list was considerable, but its benefits in the opinion of these players would warrant the continuance of the list in full. Aside from its value to open tournament committees, the rating was of consequence to the ordinary players who met at golf links and settled the odds on which they should play by the published list. In the open handicaps of the M. G. A. season three were won on the net pare score, three net scores were under the par and six were over the par. The summary was: Lakewood, par 73—S. K. deForest(83, 10—73. Garden City, par 76, 152 for 36 holes—A. M. Robbins, 166, 10—156. St. Andrews, par 72—F. S. Keeler, 83, 13—70. Knollwood, par 67, 134 for 36 holes—S. D. Bowers, 148, 12—136. Apawamis, par 74, 148 for 36 holes—A. E. Taylor, 172, 24—148. Shinnecock Hills, par 73, 146 for 36 holes—Adrian H. Larkin, 163, 12—151. Hollywood, par 72—G. P. Tiffany, 76, 4—72; F. E. Henderson, 82, 10—72. Deal, par 76—Jason Rogers, 88, 14—74. Fairfield, par 74, 148 for 36 holes—I. A. Powell, 167, 20—147. Morris County, par 73, 146 for 36 holes—B. H. Peizer, Jr., 179, 32—147. Richmond County, par 72, 144 for 36 holes—H. C. Richard, 171, 18—153. Lakewood, par 73—A. F. Houston, 84, 10—74. This was a splendid showing. Now, after having set the lead in national golf handicapping, it seems a shame that the M. G. A. should give up its list. The Massachusetts handicap list is as lengthy and quite as complete, yet there are no protests from that State as to the expense or trouble in making out the summary. The M. G. A., say the objectors, after having established a national par basis, should not now become a back-slider.

FOOTBALL.

Further details in the moves of those who are trying to obtain the restoration of football at Columbia became known yesterday when it was announced that the undergraduate committee would circulate a petition among the alumni, which is intended to answer arguments of those unfavorable to the game. The petition already has received the approval of several well known Columbia alumni, who will aid the student committee in obtaining signatures and in presenting the matter to President Butler. The tone of the petition is argumentative. It attempts to show that Dr. Butler's objections to the game, both on account of roughness and on the ground that it is an academic nuisance, have been answered, the first by the changes in the rules and the second by plans on which the committee is now at work, which limit the time given to the game. When the petition is presented an effort will be made to answer all the other objections. In order to show that Columbia men really want the game a list of men physically and academically qualified, who say that they want to engage in the game, will be presented to Dr. Butler.

PUBLIC SALE TOMORROW FOR "MRS. WILSON-ANDREWS."

Opportunity Today to Get Free Theatre Seat By Buying Ball Ticket.

The ball committee decided at a meeting last night to give the general public an opportunity to contribute to the hospital in accordance with their means, and also to witness Miss May Irwin in her great side-splitting play, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews." All theatre tickets remaining unsold tomorrow, Thursday morning, at 9 o'clock, will be placed on sale at the box office at the New Plainfield theatre at prices ranging from fifty cents to two dollars. Holders of ball tickets should exchange their theatre coupons for reserved seats at once. There is no question but that the whole affair will be an unprecedented success. All expenses are provided for and every ticket now sold is equal to a direct contribution to the hospital.

Edward Kiely and Joseph Stevens were arrested yesterday afternoon for fighting in Exchange alley. Frank Sprague was arrested yesterday afternoon for helpless drunkenness, and Walter Tripp, colored, was arrested last night, on complaint of Mrs. Ada Simons, colored, for drunkenness and disorder.

Judge Runyon was too ill to hold court this morning, and the cases were set for 2 o'clock, when, it was hoped, he would be able to come down town.

CUT IN A FIGHT.

Italian Fibbed To Police and Was Arrested With Assailant.

Antonio Treneno complained at police headquarters yesterday afternoon that Joseph Tonero had cut him with a razor in a fight on Lake street in the morning. He showed a bandaged hand and arm, and the wounds were so serious he had to have them dressed at the hospital.

Chief Kiely called up the hospital and asked about Antonio's hurts. The hospital authorities said Antonio lied when he said he was attended to there. Chief Kiely sent on officer to Lake street and Antonio was arrested with Joseph. The chief learned that the cuts were dressed by a Cranford doctor.

DROWNS HERSELF IN CISTERN.

New Jersey Organist Suffering From Nervous Trouble Commits Suicide.

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 26.—Miss Bessie Hill, organist of the Reaville Presbyterian church, committed suicide early yesterday morning by drowning herself in a cistern at the home of her mother, in Reaville. Miss Hill had been suffering from nervous trouble for a short time. She had been rehearsing for a Christmas cantata, which was presented in the church Monday night, but withdrew from the entertainment last week.

Early yesterday morning she told her mother she wanted a drink. She refused her mother's offer to go for the water, and went into the kitchen, where she pried open a trap door over the cistern, cut her throat with a cleaver and then jumped into the cistern. A few moments later Mrs. Hill became alarmed over her absence and called to her. Receiving no response, she hastened to the kitchen door, only to find it locked.

Neighbors were quickly summoned, but the young woman was dead when taken from the cistern.

Testimony in Brownville Case.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—President Roosevelt plans greatly to strengthen his position with regard to dismissal of the Brownville rioters before Congress meets again. Some of the President's friends hope that the result of the mission to the Southwest of Milton D. Purdy, special assistant to the Attorney General, will remove the demand for a Congressional investigation of the President's action, demanded by Senator Foraker, of Ohio. One of the Senator's telling points was that the evidence on which the President declared the negroes guilty of "shooting up" the town of Brownsville was not sworn testimony and was not conclusive. Time and again he returned to this criticism.

INVESTIGATING TWO LOCAL BENEFIT SOCIETIES

Attention of Authorities Directed to Washington Assurance and Abe Lincoln Societies.

ONE-MAN CONCERNS?

David T. Van Boskerck Most Conspicious in One and Lewis Van Nest in the Other.

Because of complaints regarding the business methods of the Abe Lincoln Assurance Society and the Washington Assurance Society, both of which, it is alleged, do their principal business in Plainfield and are really run by Plainfielders, the Department of Banking and Insurance has been investigating the affairs of the two institutions.

The result is that the department finds itself confronted with a knotty problem arising out of the construction of the pecuniary profit act under which both associations were chartered in the office of the Secretary of State. This act provides for the incorporation of societies or organizations not formed for the purpose of profit, and permits them to pay death and sick benefits, with certain restrictions, which do not bring them under the jurisdiction of the banking and insurance department.

The Lincoln Society was incorporated in July 1904, its registered office being at 222 Market street, Newark. The trustees named for the first year were Lewis Van Nest and Jacob S. Jones, both of this city; William Van Nest, Harry D. Kent and Henry B. Anderman, all of Newark.

The charter provides that the "sole and exclusive objects are the relief and support of such members and such other persons as shall by reason of sickness, casuality or old age, or other cause, be rendered incapable of attending to their usual occupation or calling; to promote the decent interment of deceased members or widows of deceased members, and to enter into any contract with the members of said corporation, to pay death benefits, according to the by-laws and constitution of said society, to the husband, wife, father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister or legal representative of such members."

The evidence offered the banking department by affidavit and otherwise indicated that only one meeting was held, and that no regular organization was effected.

This, at least, is the sworn testimony of several of the original incorporators. The investigation seemed to disclose that the affairs of the society have been run solely in the interest of Lewis Van Nest, of Plainfield, and very largely in his personal interest. He seems to have collected all the money, kept the books of the society, and by means of commissions and other charges to have received the personal benefit from a considerable portion of the funds collected.

Mr. VanBoskerck was not at home when a reporter called at his house in West Second street today. His wife said he was out of town and would not be back until night. In front of his home is a sign setting forth that the place is a branch office of the Washington Assurance Society.

Although the banking department had not clearly established its own jurisdiction in the case, it is understood to be dissatisfied with the methods pursued, inclining to the belief that if the society has not technically exceeded the powers in its charter, its affairs are in such condition that its continuance will jeopardize the interest of the public. Further action, however, has been postponed pending advice from the attorney-general.

The Washington Society at first declined to submit to an examination, upon the ground that the department was without jurisdiction. President David Van Boskerck, in response to a request from the commissioner of banking, was at Trenton this morning and had a long conference with the department. It is understood that his statement of the methods and status of the company was quite satisfactory in itself, although it did not entirely agree with the report received by the department. The upshot of the conference was that Mr. Van Boskerck consented to an investigation by the department, and it is likely that this will begin by Mr. Conklin tomorrow. Pending the results of the inquiry, the department is unwilling to make any statement, claiming that to do so might work an injustice and frighten the members of

ELKS WILL NOT GIVE MINSTREL SHOW THIS YEAR

LODGE WILL INSTEAD SECURE A REGULAR ROAD ATTRACTION.

At last night's meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., it was definitely decided that the Elks would not give a minstrel show this year. Although the affair conducted by the organization last winter was a success both artistically and financially, the undertaking demanded so much of the members time that they did not feel that they could do it again. The lodge will not forego having an entertinment, however, and has taken steps to secure a regular show as was done by the Knights of Columbus twice this season.

With this plan in view, a committee composed of W. J. Counihan, Maze Edwards and Clarence Teel, was appointed by Exalted Ruler George O. Stevens, last night, to make all arrangements. They will meet within the next few days to decide upon the attraction and the date.

The proceeds from the show will be used in equipping the lodge's meeting room as with the withdrawal of The Fraternal Order of Eagles as a tenant next April, the aerie will take all the fudniture. It was put in by the Eagles before the Elks secured the theatre building and has been used jointly.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO COLONEL CLIME.

Second Highest Officer In Second Regiment Dies at Burlington.

Company K will attend the funeral of Lieutenant Colonel Joseph F. Clime, the second highest commander of the Second Regiment of the New Jersey National Guard, who died at his home in Burlington, yesterday afternoon of pneumonia. Col. Clime was about fifty years of age and had been prominent in national guard matters in this State since 1873. He was also city clerk of Burlington.

The funeral of Colonel Clime will take place from his late home on Monday afternoon and will be in keeping with true military style. Colonel Collins has issued orders for the First battalion, Second Regiment, to act as escort at the funeral. The battalion is composed of Companies C and I, of Elizabeth; Company K, of Plainfield, and Company M, of Somerville.

He was elevated to the rank of lieutenant colonel July 8, 1902, after having worked his way to the office by his ability as a soldier. In the absence of Colonel Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, Colonel Clime assumed the duties of the office of Colonel Collins. Col. Clime mustered in ompany K six years ago.

Lewis Cook an Incorporator.

Percy A. Cook, of Scotch Plains, is one of the incorporators of the Trenton Incubator Company, the articles of which have just been filed. The registered office is Trenton, the agent in charge being Lewis Perrine. The capital stock is $200,000, divided into 20,000 shares at par value of $10 each. The company is organized to manufacture incubators, brooders, colony houses and fixtures pertaining to the raising of chickens. The other incorporators are Robert N. Oliphant and Lewis Perrine, of Trenton. Mr. Cook has a large chicken farm at Scotch Plains and is largely interested in the raising of chickens.

Last Meeting Tomorrow Night.

The Common Council will hold its last meeting for the year tomorrow night, when all business for the year will be closed up, preparatory to the first meeting of the 1907 body which will be held on New Year's night. The ordinance provides that the Common Council shall meet on the first night in the year to organize. It is not obligatory that any amount of business shall be transacted at that time, but the new president must be elected and announcement of committees made. An unusual thing occurs this year, that is that the present members of the Common Council will constitute next year's body.

Fighters Fined.

Edward Kiely and John Stevens, arrested for fighting in Exchange alley Christmas Day, were arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court yesterday afternoon. They pleaded guilty, and were fined $3 apiece.

It was John and not Frank Sprague who was arrested for drunkenness Christmas day. The police entered the wrong name on the docket.

GIRL GETS FIVE YEARS FOR KILLING A MAN

SHE HAD BEEN CONVICTED OF SHOOTING TO DEATH HER SWEETHEART.

Miss Florinda Illario, the pretty girl recently convicted in the Somerset court of manslaughter for shooting to death last June 4 her sweetheart, Alex Di Paolo, a contractor and hotel man of Raritan, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Garretson at Somerville to five years in State's prison at hard labor.

The girl had been awaiting sentence in the Somerset county jail for a month, while her counsel have been endeavoring to obtain a new trial for her on the ground that the jury which convicted her visited the scene of the murder and held conversation with a number of persons about the case during the progress of the trial without the knowledge or consent of the Court.

Justice Garretson decided the jury had not been influenced in its verdict by viewing the scene of the murder and refused to grant a new trial.

PRETENDED ILLNESS DIDN'T HELP PRISONER.

Got a Forty-Day Sentence In Spite of Carefully Faked Illness.

Walter Harris, colored, was sentenced to forty days in the county jail by City Judge Runyon this morning for raising a row and making threats while drunk at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. John B. Alston, 522 West Third street, last night.

Harris gave free reign to a turbulent jag before Officer Meyers, summoned by Mrs. Alston, suppressed him. He broke crockery and smashed windows, and when Mrs. Alston left the house to get the officer he threatened to burn down the place.

He told the court he was very ill, when arraigned this morning, and gave a correct imitation of a man in the grip of a debilitating disease. He staggered to a chair, and sank in it with a groan. The magistrate looked him over.

"I think forty days in jail will help you a lot," he said sympathetically.

HOG STILL GROWING.

New Market's Big Porker Will Smash All Records Hereabouts.

"Caruso," the big hog being raised by C. T. Rogers, of New Market, whose weight and tremendous appetite were reported several weeks ago, is still growing. Mr. Rogers thinks he will be able to smash all hog raising records for this section. He believes "Caruso" will take on weight enough to dress at 1,000 pounds in February. He will be slaughtered before March 1.

The hog's fame has spread over the country. W. J. Davis, a former New Marketer, now living in Los Angeles, Cal., has written Mr. Rogers that he saw an article on the big porker in a Pacific Coast paper.

Club Committee Meets Tonight.

The committee having charge of the drafting of a constitution and by-laws for the new club which purposes to take over the Casino property and make its home there, will meet tonight at the Casino. This will be the final meeting of this committee prior to making its report to a general meeting after the holidays. Already considerable progress has been made in formulating plans for organization and it is said that they will most likely be accepted at the general meeting. The committee is not prepared to make known the details of the constitution as yet, but it is understood that the ideas and opinions expressed at the original meeting will be adopted.

Three Sonata Recitals.

Arrangements have been completed for a series of three sonata recitals to be given by Miss Carolyn Beebe and Mons. Edouard Dethier, of New York. The first one will be given at the home of Mrs. John B. Dumont, Stelle avenue, on the afternoon of Thursday, January 3. The second will be at the home of Mrs. George P. Mellick, East Seventh street, on the morning of Wednesday, January 16. Th third will be given Wednesday evening, January 23, at the home of Mrs. A. H. Atterbury on West Seventh street.

Slasher and Slashed Fined.

Antonio Trenona and Joseph Tenera, the Italians arrested Christmas day for participation in a razor fight, were each fined $5 by Judge Runyon yesterday afternoon. The hearing disclosed an even balance of guilt. The fight grew out of an old grudge.

TORN BY HIS OWN DOG

William Holland Badly Bitten By an Enraged Bull Terrier.

RESCUED BY ARMED SON

Aroused Dog Desisted from Attack Only After Load of Buckshot Had Been Poured Into Its Body.

Enraged over his interference in a fight with another dog, a big bull terrier attacked William Holland, a Union Village farmer, this morning, and injured him severely. A load of buckshot was necessary to check the dog's attack.

The dog belonged to Holland. It engaged another of his pets, a bird dog, in combat in the farmyard, and the noise attracted Holland. The dogs were fighting fiercely, and he hurried to separate them to prevent a fatal ending to the battle. Commands and slaps had no effect on the struggling animals, and Holland armed himself with a pitchfork to make the dogs heed. He struck the bird dog, and it broke loose. It ran swiftly, and the terrier after a vain chase, turned back.

Apparently wild with rage over its master's interference, it made straight for him when it reached the yard. It seized him by the leg, and despite his hardest efforts pulled him down. He struck at it with his clenched first as he fell, and the dog seized his arm in a crushing grip. It held on and shook him until he was almost exhausted. His calls for help were heard by his son, and the latter ran out to his assistance.

The dog defied the son's efforts to loose it, and the young man ran into the house for his shotgun. It was not until the weapon was emptied into its body that the dog's grip relaxed. The shots killed it.

Holland's leg was badly bitten, and the big muscle of his right arm was terribly torn. He was taken to Dr. Magrah, of Gillette, who cauterized the wounds. It is not believed the dog was mad, but Holland will be watcher carefully for signs of rabies.

BLOOD POISONING FATAL TO OLD HARNESS MAKER.

John H. Sayers' Death Indirectly Due to the Paring of a Corn.

The funeral of John H. Sayers, who died at Muhlenberg hospital, yesterday morning, will be held at his late home on East Third street, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Mr. Sayers' death was indirectly due to paring of a corn too closely. Blood poisoning developed and he was removed to Muhlenberg hospital, where eventually an operation was performed for the amputation of his leg. The operation was successful but the patient's weakened condition prevented his recovery. He died at the hospital yesterday, having been under treatment seven weeks.

Mr. Sayers was a harness maker and had lived in Plainfield for forty years, coming here from Newark. He was a native of Toronto, Ont., and so far as known leaves no relatives. He has been in business since 1872 and for thirty years of the time was located in the Frazee Lee building on East Front street, now owned by Harry Marshall. His last location was in the Voehl building on East Front street where the business is being conducted by his associate, Oscar Philpott.

Rector Gave Turkey Supper.

Rev. Arthur S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church, entertained his Sunday-school class at a turkey supper, last night. A social time followed.

ACKERMAN FOR MINCH FOR THE PRESIDENCY

SENATE CAUCUS TONIGHT TO CHOOSE BETWEEN HILLERY AND MINCH.

The caucus of Republican members of the Senate will be held at Trenton tonight. The contest for the presidency between Senators Minch, of Cumberland, and Hillery, of Morris, has become keen, but it is thought that Minch has the votes necessary to a choice. There was a story current of opinion that the Dryden interests were back of Minch, fearing that if the President of the Senate should come from North Jersey, those opposing Mr. Dryden's return to the United States Senate, on the ground that the two United States Senators should not come from the north of the State, would have fresh cause for complaint.

Senator Colby will take part in this caucus, but has no choice for the Presidency. If he should discover, however, that the Dryden interests were back of Minch, he would vote for Hillery, it is said. Senator Ackerman, of Union, who has announced that he would not abide by the decision of the caucus for United States Senator if Mr. Dryden was a candidate, will vote for Minch, it is said, on the ground that this will be Mr. Minch's last year as Senator, and that he should receive the honor. Mr. Hillery was Republican leader of the last session, and if Minch is chosen President, will, it is thought, lead the Republicans again.

THE MISSES M'CUTCHEON GIVE A BABY PARTY.

Lots of Fun at the Affair; Prizes Won by Mr. McGee and Miss Hooley.

The Misses McCutcheon, of Plainfield avenue, entertained a company of over fifty young people at a "baby party" at their home, last night. It was a unique affair, all of the grown-ups appearing in the dress of juvenile folks. There was a Buster Brown, Mary Jane, Red Riding Hood, Mary and her lamb, Teddy and the bear, sailor boys, milk-maid and many other characters familiar to children as well as older folks.

Donald McGee, who received the prize for the most original dressed man, appeared as a small child, dressed in baby clothes with a profusion of pink ribbons. He acted the part exceedingly well, as did also Miss Rae Hooley, who was awarded the prize as the most original dressed woman. Her dress was that of the period of 1860 and was complete in every detail.

Other features during the evening were the playing of games, a peanut hunt, a dance and a Christmas tree. George S. Clay appeared in the guise of Santa Claus, with a pack on his back, and he was generous in his distribution of gifts. Every one received a present as a reminder of the happy occasion. Mr. Clay made a jolly good Santa and made lots of fun for the company. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

JESSE A. OAKLEY DIES SUDDENLY IN ELIZABETH.

Former Plainfield Architect Passes Away Three Days After Death of His Daughter.

Jesse A. Oakley, aged fifty-six years, well-known throughout Union county as an architect, and a former resident of this city, died suddenly this morning at his home in Elizabeth from paralysis. He had been ill about two years. Mr. Oakley's death closely follows that of his daughter, Mrs. William Reese, of Easton, Pa., who died on Christmas Day at the home of her sister, Mrs. Bishop, in Elizabeth, while on a visit. She was born in this city and lived here for several years.

While a resident of this city Mr. Oakley had an office in the Babcock building and he supervised the construction of many fine buildings here. Since moving to Elizabeth he had charge of the construction of some of the largest private and business houses. He was for many years a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of this city. A wife, two daughters and a son survive.

INDEPENDENTS WIN CONTROL OF COMMON COUNCIL

CONVENTION THAT OMITS RESOLUTIONS

ANNUAL STATE CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS IN FEBRUARY

The annual State Conference of Charities and Corrections will be held in Paterson Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, February 10, 11 and 12. Many Paterson pulpits will be occupied Sunday morning by members of the conference. A mass meeting will be held Sunday afternoon, the details of which will be announced later. Other meetings will be as follows:

Monday morning, Feb. 11—On Defectives. Rev. George H. Wight, chairman.

Monday afternoon—On Immigration. Prof. H. A. Garfield, chairman.

Monday evening—On Children. Mrs. E. E. Williamson, chairman.

Tuesday morning—On Treatment of Criminals. Rev. F. A. Foy, chairman.

Tuesday afternoon—On Public Health. Dr. Wm. H. Murray, chairman.

This body has no constitution, no charter, no tangible assets, and no commercial rating. It doesn't adopt resolutions, has no platform, and allows no one to commit it to any action or to express an opinion in its name. It collects and distributes facts, records, experiences, presents ideas, establishes standards, tabulates results, indicates the "next step," and applies the test of values in all social welfare work.

Its purpose is to bring together the hundreds of men and women who are dealing at first hand with the problems of human affliction and distress, so that they may learn how to do team work, instead of working blindly alone. It shows the points of contact and the need of co-operation between private benevolent agencies and public relief officers, and their inter-relation with health officers, truant officers, probation officers, tenement-house inspectors, factory inspectors, doctors, ministers, teachers, and the whole army of people who are trying to prevent evils as well as to remedy them. It traces the first causes of social evils, advertises good work and criticises faulty methods. It stands for efficiency and consecration in dealing with humanity. It emphasizes the value of training in social service, and the necessity of treating men, women and children as individuals instead of in the mass.

Anyone can be a member of the conference by signing the attendance roll. There is no membership fee. The proceedings are published by the State and sent by the secretary of the conference to all who register. The local committee finances the meeting and the other incidental expenses are met by voluntary contributions. The final program will be ready early in January and will contain particulars as to entertainment and a synopsis of the discussions. Further information will be given by the secretary, Mrs. F. C. Jacobson, 969 Broad street, Newark.

FLEEING NEGRO WAS HIT.

Bloody Trail Indicates That Escaping Prisoner Was Wounded.

The police are keeping up a deem search for the negro who stole all the eatables, including a 12-pound roast, from W. T. Kaufman's larder Sunday morning, and escaped from Patrolman Payne. They are certain he was wounded by one of Payne's shots, and believe the wound a dangerous one that compelled him to seek cover without delay.

Blood was found on the sidewalk from New street to Plainfield avenue, and the red trail indicated that the hurt was severe. The authorities are anxious to get their hands on the man, because he seemed so determined on getting out of the law's clutches despite Payne's treat to shoot. It is believed he has a record that makes him prefer bullet wounds to investigation.

Chief O'Neil, of the Westfield police, telephoned to Chief Kiely this morning that a negro robbed a refrigerator in his town last night. He thought it might have been the same man. The police here doubt it, because they are sure the Kaufman larder crook was painfully hit.

Christmas Entertainments.

Christmas entertainments will be held tonight in the following churches: First Baptist, Park Avenue Baptist, First Presbyterian, Crescent Avenue, Grace M. E., Monroe Avenue M. E., Grace Episcopal, Holy Cross, St. Stephen's, Warren chapel and Bethel chapel. In a majority of cases the smaller children hold their entertainment this afternoon. Among the entertainments to be held tomorrow night are those of the Congregational church, Hope chapel and Faith chapel.

With Montgomery Against "Organization," Daniel is Chosen President. For 1907.

TYLER AGAIN LEADER

Majority in Caucus Frown Upon Suggestions Made by Mayor-elect as to Committees—A "6-5" Body.

Councilman Leslie M. Daniel was chosen president of the 1907 Common Council at a caucus of the members held in the Council Chambers, last night. He was the choice by a vote of six to five, Councilman Francis Montgomery deserting the "organization," and voting with Councilmen Henry D. Hibbard, William S. Tyler, Daniel F. Ginna, George P. Mellick and Mr. Daniel, the last named being obliged to vote for himself. Mr. Tolles, who is president of the Common Council now, was the choice of the remaining members, Councilmen Herbert Buxton, Frank Randolph, Charles C. Randolph, William L. Gloak.

It is said that one reason why Mr. Montgomery left the organization was that he desired the chairmanship of the public affairs committee, and not being able to exact a promise, decided to cast his ballot with the opposition force. It will be remembered that Mayor-elect Charles J. Fisk counseled the incoming members in a speech made to them a week ago, not to form any combinations and that the worst thing that could happen to the city's interest would be a "6 to 5 combination." He urged the members to refrain from representing any particular factions or indulging in any petty jealousies. As a result of the caucus his wishes in this respect have apparently been disregarded entirely, and if the six members stand pat, the organization will be practically helpless to carry through any of its pet measures. The so-called independents will be in exactly the same position as they were last year when Councilman Tyler was the leader of the opponents to the organization members.

Aside from deciding on a president for next year, practically nothing else was done at the caucus. There was some little discussion about new committees, but nothing definite resulted. It will be up to President-elect Daniel to make up the list. Of course, no one questions his independence of thought and action in councilmanic affairs, but no doubt the make-up of the committees will be favorable to the members who elected him president.

A rather unusual thing occurred at the caucus in the discussion of new committees. Mayor-elect Fisk in his speech to the members among other things suggested that the police and license committees be consolidated. It is understood that the six members in control expressed a strong disapproval of this. It will be remembered that two years ago it was at the suggestion of Councilman Tyler that this very same thing was done and he was made the chairman of that joint committee.

It is also said that another suggestion of Mr. Fisk that a taxation committee, whose duties would be to secure a more equal assessment of taxes, was frowned upon by the same six members. It is further said that several other suggestions made by Mr. Fisk were looked upon with disfavor, the idea being given that the majority members would exercise their own judgment about such things.

Councilman Mellick was the only member absent from the caucus, but he was represented by proxy, Councilmen Hibbard and Ginna expressing his wishes and voting for him.

There is an opinion that Councilman Tyler is likely to be the new head of the public affairs committee. This is based on the fact that he has in mind certain reforms which he is anxious to have adopted and he believes that by being chairman of the committee and desired number of votes to support him, he will have no trouble in putting them through.

Among the things that Mr. Tyler is anxious to secure for Plainfield is municipal ownership of water supply. He has been pushing the committee on public affairs on this matter and it is known that he has been impatient over the manner in which the committee has handled the question.

One thing seems certain and that is that there will be a general shake-up of all committees and the plums

A comedy bubbling over with humor, characters so cleverly drawn that they seem like old friends, yet characterized enough to be excruciatingly funny, and above all a star whose delightful mastery of every detail of artistic acting is simply perfect, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The New York critics united in saying that "The Education of Mr. Pipp" is the best thing in the comedy line that has come from the pen of Augustus Thomas, the gifted author of "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," "The Earl of Pawtucket," "Arizona," "On the Quiet," and "The Other Girl," and this judgment has been amply confirmed by the critics in other cites where Mr. Bell played last season.

There are several different kinds of moving picture companies. The D. W. Robertsan Famous Moving Picture Company, and the other kinds. It is with great pleasure that the management announces the coming of this company with everything entirely new, at the New Plainfield theatre, matinee and night, Friday. The feature pictures will be "The Rajah's Casket," "The Arabian Magician," "Pals," or "My Friend the Dummy," and many others. In adidtion to the pictures there will be an entertainment by Winans & Cassler, celebrated black face musical team; Miss May Morning, soprano; Harry Willard, America's premier piccolo banjoist.

A stump speech dealing with women's rights which May Irwin delivers in her new play, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," has made one of the hits of the performance. It was written especially to suit Miss Irwin's style of humor and deals, as most woman's rights speeches do, principally with the oppresser, man. Years ago, before Miss Irwin had graduated into the legitimate stage, she was most successful in a speech of this character. Miss Irwin in "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. Miss Irwin has just finished a two months' run at the Bijou theatre, New York, in "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews."

Just as the magnolia blooms, and orange grove, that grows the Southern garden make it the fairiest landscape under the dome of heaven's blue, just so there is a sweet and low cadence associated with a play of the southland that makes the slumbering emotions bring memories of fair maids and brave men in its wake. Such a production is "Under Southern Skies," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre New Year's Day, afternoon and night. The hallowe'en party is a riotuously funny scene in which the entire dramatic personal make merry, the scene calling up memories of youthful days and reviving a troop of sentimental frolics. The scene is made very picturesque by genuine Jack O'Lanterns of boy and girlhood days.

The acme of stage realism is reached in the greatest melodramatic hit of the season, "The Man of Her Choice," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. In depicting the operating room at Bellevue hospital in which the operation of skin grafting is performed, the author, Edward M. Simmonds, has reached great heights in dramatic and realistic portrayal.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

It is a course of regret to every member of the Plainfield Country Club that Councilman George P. Mellick, who has served as the club's president for several years, will not stand for re-election. Much of the club's success in recent years has been due to the retiring efforts of Mr. Mellick. His liberal policy and willingness to devote much of his time to club affairs has been greatly appreciated and through his efforts many improvements have been made. Mr. Mellick is one of Plainfield's most public spirited men and never lets an opportunity pass to advance its interest. Of course the club will choose an able officer to lead the organization, and Mr. Mellick will still continue to be interested.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club will be held in February, when new officers will be elected and many important matters will be discussed, including several improvements now under consideration. These include the installation of an independent lighting system, which together with the new heating system will make it possible to have the clubhouse open the year around.

At Garden City links Tuesday there were forty or fifty players out and the feature was the annual Christmas day match between Walter J. Travis and Arden M. Robbins. Neither would state the odds on which they played, nor the result. They had turkey together at luncheon. Good times and the raffling of turkeys for the caddie boys made up the card at most of the clubs. There was a sweepstakes against bogey at the Dyker Meadow Golf Club, with twenty starters. Col. I. B. Holland, U. S. A., won first prize.

INDEPENDENTS IN CONTROL

will be given to the members in control. It is also safe to say that some of the pet measures of the organization will be upset. Especially is this likely to be true in the case of police matters.

In the plan to raise the salaries of the policemen and firemen on January 1, there was also made provision for increasing the number of officers, the scheme being to create the offices of captain and detective sergeant. The police committee also went so far as to make up its slate, Sergeant Frederickson being selected for captain, Roundsman John Flynn for sergeant and Patrolman McCarty for detective sergeant.

There is no doubt but that the police and firemen will receive the increased pay as provided by the ordinance introduced and adopted on first and second readings, but there are no assurances that the slate as made for the changes in officers will go through. From remarks made by Mr. Tyler on this subject at a previous meeting, it was learned that he and his friends do not favor increasing the number of officers in the police department. In fact, he said that when he was chairman of the police board he found that too many officers were found to be a handicap.

With Councilman Daniel in the chair and Mr. Tyler returning to the leadership of the majority members, there is every indication that there will be some lively times in the Common Council during 1907.

INVESTIGATING SOCIETIES

the society unnecessarily.

The Abe Lincoln Society has an office in Watchung avenue but Mr. VanNest lives at No. 146 Duer street. His wife told the reporter that Mr. VanNest is in Rahway and will not be back until night. A large sign in front of the house bearing the picture of Lincoln advertises the concern. It contains Mr. VanNest's name. There are a large number of colored men in Plainfield insured in his society.

One of the complaints against the Washington Society was that it has been issuing straight life insurance policies of a face valued of $1,000. The society claims that the form of these policies are such that they do not conflict with the insurance law.

This has been one of the problems with which the department has been confronted in the past. The distinction between what may be done in the way of insurance by a fraternal organization and a regularly incorporated insurance company is not clearly defined and consequently the department frequently has trouble in establishing its right to take a hand in its affairs.

As far as can be learned, neither of the two societies has ever adopted any by-laws, and each seems to be in the hands of one man.

The Washington Society was formed in August, 1899. Its registered office is at 188 Market street, Newark. The trustees for the first year were Anthony T. Brennan, Thomas E. Warman, Hiram E. Johnston, George Ohl and Thomas J. Regan.

Strangely Lost at Fire.

New York, Dec. 27.—During a fire last night in a five story building in No. 20 Beekman street, while the flames were shooting high through the roof, a woman, whose identity the police have been unable to learn, appeared on an adjoining building, apparently panic stricken. After two policemen had climbed to the roof the woman had disappeared. The police and firemen searched for several hours, but failed to find any trace of her, and it is supposed she escaped.

ONE POLICEMAN SHOOTS A FELLOW OFFICER.

Bullet Ended Quarrel that Had Been Started in a Bar-room.

George Brant, forty-one years old, of No. 852 Bergen street, and Albert Benkert, Avon and Ridgewood avenues, Newark, both special policemen, became involved in a quarrel yesterday morning in a saloon at No. 285 Waverly avenue, the dispute arising from a discussion as to the relative merits of each as a policeman.

William Gessner, proprietor of the saloon, ejected the belligerents, and they resumed their battle on the sidewalk. It came to a sudden end when Brant, who was getting worsted, drew a revolver and fired a shot at his antagonist. Benkert immediately disappeared and Brant walked away in another direction.

Later Benkert returned, holding his hand to his left side and apparently in pain. When asked if he was shot, Benkert refused to say. He again disappeared, and when the news of the shooting reached the ears of Chief of Police Adams, and men were sent to investigate, they were unable to find Benkert either at his home or at any of his haunts.

The policemen were in uniform when the quarrel happened, and according to eye-witnesses Brant had been felled to the ground and was lying down when he fired at Benkert.

DOGS RUN AMUCK AND BITES THREE PERSONS.

It Also Attacks Two Cows and Several Other Dogs Before It Is Shot.

A big mongrel dog ran amuck yesterday morning in Scobeyville, near Red Bank, and before any one could shoot it had bitten three persons, a number of other dogs and a couple of cows. It was finally cornered and shot by Martin Rafferty.

The dog first attacked John Riordan and then bit a small dog. A couple of blocks further on Frank Johnson was bitten and then the animal ran into a farm and bit a farm hand named O'Connor and two cows.

Before any one could get close enough to shoot it the dog ran off. It tackled several more dogs, bitting each, before Rafferty put a bullet into it and ended its career.

The victims all had their wounds cauterized and they will be carefully watched for symptoms of rabies.

Fay Templeton Coming.

Fay Templeton and the original New York cast that produced "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway," has been secured by Manager Counihan for appearance at the New Plainfield theatre on Monday night, January 7. It will be one of the most pretentious offerings ever seen at the local playhouse and from the interest already displayed will be greeted by a capacity audience. The company will include Victor Moore, who, as "Kid Burns," made one of the biggest hits New York has known in years when the play was first produced last season.

—Frank Hedden, who was driven out of his apartment in the New Madison by fire, has returned there to live. His family will remain on West Fifth street for the present. They expect to return to Madison avenue in a few weeks.

APPEAL FOR THE STARVING CHINESE

RED CROSS SOCIETY ASKS FOR AID FROM NEW JERSEY.

Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, who is the State secretary of the American Red Cross Society, yesterday received the following dispatch from Major General George W. Davis, chairman of the central committee of the organization, with headquarters at Washington, appealing for aid for the thousands of sufferers by the famine in China:

"Please publish in the daily papers an appeal for contributions with which to purchase flour and other appropriate foodstuffs to be shipped by the Red Cross Society to China, for the relief of the famine sufferers there. Official reports to the State Department says that millions are on the verge of starvation. Name the local Red Cross treasurer to receive contributions."

Accompanying the dispatch is a statement that United States Consul Rogers has cabled from Shanghai to the State Department that the famine conditions are daily growing worse, and that immense numbers are unquestionably starving.

The sick and aged are left in the famine district while thousands of refugees are concentrating in adjacent cities where there is no provision for them. All supplies will be forwarded, with the consent of Congress in Government transports.

The Chinese Minister received from China and from his countrymen in the United States $222,000 for the relief of the Chinese in San Francisco. Fifty thousand dollars of this amount was, however, given to the general relief fund of Oakland for the assistance of all refugees.

Frank O. Briggs is the State Treasurer of the New Jersey Red Cross Society. Governor Stokes is president, and Hamilton F. Kean, secretary of the executive committee.

To Stop Absenteeism.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—Representative John Wesley Gaines, of Tennessee, who is in favor of a law providing that members of Congress shall forfeit $13.70 for every day they are absent, announces he has found that a statute, passed in 1856, which prohibits absent members from collecting their salaries unless they are kept from their official duties by illness, has never been repealed. An effort was made to enforce this law, he says, in the Fifty-second Congress, which resulted in a strenuous effort to repeal the statute in 1894, when the Democrats had control of the House. Mr. Gaines will call the attention of Congress to the statute, he says, and insist that it be enforced.

Frick Pennsy President?

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 27.—Henry C. Frick, of New York and Pittsburg, steel magnate and former partner of Andrew Carnegie in the great industrial works of Western Pennsylvania, may soon be named as successor to President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He took a long step in that direction yesterday when he was named a director in the company to succeed the late Amos R. Little. When Mr. Cassatt was quite indisposed last summer and it seemed that he was no longer able to struggle with his old vigor with the vast problems presented to the head of that great system, the directors, it is said, cast about for a possible successor in the event of Mr. Cassatt being incapacitated. They fixed upon Mr. Frick, who is the largest individual owner of Pennsylvania Railroad stock, he holding about thirty thousand shares and being closely allied with the holders of as much more.

Gets $1,000 for Slander.

Burlington, Vt., Dec. 27.—The slander suit of S. D. Wilson, of Boston, against Percival W. Clement, formerly president of the Rutland Railroad and twice a candidate for Governor of the State, reached its final stage yesterday, when an application for stay of execution in the payment of the judgment of Mr. Clement was denied. The suit, which has been pending four years, was brought by Wilson after a political campaign during which it was alleged he was called a murderer by Mr. Clement in a stump speech. At the second trial of the case a verdict of $1,000 and costs was given for the plaintiff.

Chilian Earthquake.

Valparaiso, Chili, via Galveston, Texas, Dec. 27.—A great earthquake has just visited the Pacific coast, extending over the entire province of Tacna. Half of the city of Arica is reported to have been destroyed and other towns in the neighborhood have suffered more or less severely. The port of Iquique, one hundred and twenty miles south of Arica, however, was not damaged. Terror reigns among the population in the earthquake zone, the August disaster being fresh in the minds of the people. Tacna is the northern province of Chili, bordering on Peru. Arica, on the sea coast, has about three thousand population.

Hicks to Get $500 a Week.

Bakersfield, Cal., Dec. 27.—Lindsey Hicks, the miner whose sudden rise to notoriety through his entombment of fifteen days made him the object of many theatrical offers, was engaged yesterday by N. J. Schmidt, of Berkeley, at a salary of $500 per week for a year. The first exhibition will be held in Bakersfield tonight, and thereafter Hicks will travel up the valley as far as Fresno and will then go south to Los Angeles. Harry Linville, prominent in the rescue work, has been engaged to act as lecturer, and two of the miners will also be taken along.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 30: "Our Purposes For 1906. Have They Been Accomplished?"
By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

As to growth and grace.—II Pet. iii, 18. Perseverance in the observance of the quiet hour.—Matt. vi. 6. Faithfulness in the fellow worker's covenant.—II Cor. vi, 1. Fidelity in Christian stewardship.—I Pet. ii, 10. Diligence in Bible study.—Acts xvii, 11. Loyalty to my church.—Col. i, 24.

The year is past. Mistakes have been made by all of us. Some things have been done which we regret and would gladly undo, but we are not going back over that track, and they will remain forever done, and no power can undo them. "It is useless to cry over spilled milk." We boys learned that on the old farm years back. You learned it in different words in the city streets where you had your early training. It is useless to brood over the things we regret, but it is wise at the close of the run to look over the field and see where we tripped and note what threw us. We cannot play that game over, but we can talk it over and see where we lost it, and then we shall be better fixed to lose no more, or at least not to lose them by the same mistakes.

Now as to growth. It is easy to step on the scales and see at what figure we tip them. Most of us know our normal weight and the point below which is danger or safety. Most men know something as to their height and the weight they can easily lift, the distance jump, the speed in running and many other like things. How many know their power in moral and religious things, the resisting strength against certain temptations, their weight in any cause requiring spiritual force?

In our best colleges and in many schools of lower grade every student at entrance is examined carefully by a physical director, who measures and records every item of importance regarding the bodily condition and notes in what particulars the student is below the normal average for his age. It is scarcely possible to do this in spiritual things, but it certainly is possible for us to know our capacity and attainments and our deficiencies far better than most people ever do know them.

Some teachers of religion dislike all self examination or will have as little of it as possible, thinking such exercise of soul is apt to make one morbid, oversensitive and moody. There is danger that if too much time is spent in introspection and anxiety as to one's inner condition there may come an unhealthy spiritual condition from too much concentration of thought on self. But it is a mistake no less serious to never take time for self examination of any kind.

There is no great progress possible except as we stop and find out where we are. We must at intervals note our condition and see where it falls below the standard of healthy religious experience. We must clearly apprehend the points in which we are deficient as well as those where we have unusual strength.

It is more agreeable to our feelings to cultivate those points in which we easily excel, but prudence and due regard for harmonious development dictate that we give particular attention to our deficiencies. We need well rounded development and not onesidedness.

This being so, why not sit down at the close of the year and honestly investigate your condition? Find out not only where you now stand, but also inquire if you are making advancement and, if you are doing so, is it sufficiently rapid considering the circumstances in which you are placed?

No one e'er yawned a virtue into being with a wish. If you want to get somewhere, you will need to get up and start. Are you started? Then climb up on some hill by the roadside occasionally and look over the path you have come. If it looks to be not the best possible, then look ahead and see if you cannot find the best possible road to the next turn in advance.

We ought to grow and grow in grace as well as in ability to do. Will you not make the coming year better than the past because you see now how you can do so and are resolved to put your best endeavors into the work for Christ and yourself?

Something to Be Thankful For.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance, self control, diligence, strength of will, content and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—Charles Kingsley.

Constituents of Life.

Life is made up not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.—Sir Humphry Davy.

An Autumn Song.

My Father is painting the landscape
In colors beyond compare;
The valleys, the hills and the mountains
Are beautiful everywhere.
He touches the trees of the forest,
And the leaves clap their hands in delight;
His colors He takes from the sunshine,
And His brush is the frost of the night.

On a bright early morning behold Him
As the sun o'er the mountains doth shine
And the birds sing their anthems to praise him
Mid the beauties of nature sublime.
He changes the green into crimson
With the brown and the yellow and gold;
His love is so great for His children
The view is for them to behold.

Oh, the wonderful love of the Father,
How tender and sweet it must be!
He lovingly cares for His children,
Though unmindful of Him they may be.
He sends them the rain and the sunshine,
And the seed time and harvest are sure.
His bow in the heavens reminds Him
Of His promise to man evermore.
—William Watt.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 30.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Reaching faith.—Phil. iii, 12-14.

There are times and seasons in our lives when we cannot but take a view of life and be filled with desire at least to make the future better than the past. One of these times is at the beginning of a new year. It is undoubtedly the season of all seasons when the heart of man is most inclined to make an effort to improve upon his past life. Some may consciously make definite resolutions to accomplish this result, and others, while they may have wearied of the resolution habit, yet perhaps even unconsciously do feel the desire as a new year approaches to make it the very best year of their lives. And it is most reasonable to have such feelings and desires. Any year of life may be our last year, and how natural that we should want our last year to be our best, both temporally and spiritually.

The apostle Paul in the familiar words selected for our topical reference seems, as it were, to be taking stock of his life—of just how he stood in his relation to God and to life—and no words in Scripture are more suggestive for such an occasion as a new year than these words of the apostle written to the Philippians. He reviews the situation in his own life, and sets before us the supreme aim of his life. His attitude toward the future is one of desired progress, and to progress as he desires to do he sets but one aim before him and with all energy reaches forth to the goal before him. His description of his aim and his reasons for it and methods by which it is to be attained may well guide us in our consideration of the subject, "Reaching forth," especially as applied to this season of the year.

1. Paul was led to desire future advancement for the reason that he had not yet attained to the objects which he had in view. "Not as though I had already attained or were already perfect." This should be our supreme reason for reaching forth, for desiring to improve upon 1906 in 1907. We have not yet reached perfection. We cannot say, "There is nothing beyond." With the best of us there is still room for improvement. No matter to what Christian experiences we may have attained, there are still richer and higher experiences possible to us. No matter how faithfully we may have served our Master, there is still the possibility of more and improved work for Christ. Regardless of the high standard of our personal lives, they can be improved. Realizing these things, let us determine to do better and be better in the coming year than ever before.

2. In Paul's desire to improve upon the past he determined to forget it. "Forgetting those things that are behind," he reached forth. The remembrance of the past may hinder present and future progress. We may be depressed by its weaknesses. The recollection of its sins may lead us to commit them again. Forget the past. Make a new start and let the past bury the past. Reach forward to the future.

3. Paul had a single, definite aim before him. "This one thing I do * * * I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Definite aim is necessary to success in anything, and not less so in the moral and spiritual life. And what a goal Paul selected toward which to aim! His one ambition was not gold or fame or pleasure or power, but the salvation of his soul. This should be the supreme aim of our lives, and everything else should be subordinated to it. "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

The Endeavor Badge In Greece.

Several of the foreign countries now have their Christian Endeavor badges. In the streets of Athens may sometimes be seen a simple device bearing the letter Z. This is the Greek Christian Endeavor badge, a symbol that is becoming more widely known every year in the land of Socrates and Demosthenes.—The Irish Endeavorer.

GREEK BADGE.

A Greater Mission.

This is the white heat enthusiasm General Secretary Von Ogden Vogt puts into the closing paragraph of his account of a recent Christian Endeavor town in the Mississippi valley:

"The more of this great western half of the Mississippi valley I get over the more I marvel at the greatness and promise of our land. I get into a regular 'wild white horses champ and foam' mood when I think of it—the vast resources, the institutions that we the youth of today will develop before we are old. Truly let us pray for strength of mind and heart and will to know what a chance we have and to seize it like men. Christian Endeavor is alert in this vast region. It will have a greater and greater mission."

Told In Figures.

General Secretary Von Ogden Vogt's latest report contains these noteworthy figures: The total number of societies enrolled June 1, 1906, was 67,410. The number of June 1, 1905, was [illegible]; the net gain for the past year being 1,488.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

BY HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

When the latter reached the place where the column of militia stood drawn up in line by the roadside, they swung their hats and cheered their deliverers; again and again the cheers rang in tones that were full of gratitude. As they passed on, an armed Mormon stepped to the side of each man and walked with him, thus convincing the last doubter of their sincerity in wishing to guard them from any unexpected attack by the Indians.

He Defended Himself Easily, Feeling His Assailant's Strength Already Waning.

In such fashion marched the long, loosely extended line until the rear had gone some two hundred yards away from the circle of wagons. At the head, the two wagons containing the children and wounded had now fallen out of sight over a gentle rise to the north. The women also were well ahead, passing at that moment through a lane of low cedars that grew close to the road on either side. The men were now stepping briskly, sure at last of the honesty of their rescuers.

Then, while all promised fair, a call came from the head of the line of men,—a clear, high call of command that rang to the very rear of the column:

"Israel, do your duty!"

Before the faces of the marching men had even shown surprise or questioning, each Mormon had turned and shot the man who walked beside him. The same instant brought piercing screams from the column of women ahead; for the signal had been given while they were in the lane of cedars where the Indian allies of the Saints had been ambushed. Shots and screams echoed and re-echoed across the narrow valley, and clouds of smoke, pearl gray in the morning sun, floated near the ground.

The plan of attack had been well laid for quick success. Most of the men had fallen at the first volley, either killed or wounded. Here and there along the all but prostrate line would be seen a struggling pair, or one of the emigrants running toward cover under a fire that always brought him low before he reached it.

On the women, too, the quick attack had been almost instantly successful. The first great volume of mad shrieks had quickly died low as if the victims were being smothered; and now could be heard only the single scream of some woman caught in flight,—short, despairing screams, and others that seemed to be cut short—strangled at their height.

Joel Rae found himself on the line after the first volley, drawn by some dread power he could not resist. Yet one look had been enough. He shut his eyes to the writhing forms, the jets of flame spitting through the fog of smoke, and turned to flee.

Then in an instant—how it had come about he never knew—he was struggling with a man who shouted his name and cursed him,—a dark man with blood streaming from a wound in his throat. He defended himself easily, feeling his assailant's strength already waning. Time after time the man called him by name and cursed him, now in low tones, as they swayed. Then the Saint whose allotted victim this man had been, having reloaded his pistol, ran up, held it close to his head, fired, and ran back to the line.

He felt the man's grasp of his shoulders relax, and his body grow suddenly limp, as if boneless. He let it down to the ground, looking at last full upon the face. At first glance it told him nothing. Then a faint sense of its familiarity pushed up through many old memories. Sometime, somewhere, he had known the face.

The dying man opened his eyes wide, not seeing, but convulsively, and then he felt himself enlightened by something in their dark color,—something in the line of the brow under the black hair;—a face was brought back to him, the handsome face of the jaunty militia captain at Nauvoo, the man who had helped expel his people, who had patronized them with his airs of protector,—the man who had—

It did not come to him until that instant—this man was Girnway. In the flash of awful comprehension he dropped, a sickened and nerveless heap, beside the dead man, turning his head on the ground, and feeling for any sign of life at his heart.

Forward there, where the yells of the Indians had all but replaced the screams of frantic women—butchered already perhaps, subjected to he knew not what infamy at the hands of savage or Saint—was the yellow-haired, pink-faced girl he had loved and kept so long imaged in his heart; yet she might have escaped, she might still live—she might even not have been in the party.

He sprang up and found himself facing a white-haired boy, who held a little crying girl by a tight grasp of her arm, and who eyed him aggressively.

"What did you hurt Prudence's father for? He was a good man. Did you shoot him?"

He seized the boy roughly by the shoulder.

"Prudence — Prudence — where is she?"

"Here."

He looked down at the little girl, who still cried. Even in that glance he saw her mother's prettiness, her pink and white daintiness, and the yellow shine of her hair.

"Her mother, then,—quick!"

The boy pointed ahead.

"Up there—she told me to take care of Prudence, and when the Indians came out she made me run back here to look for him." He pointed to the still figure on the ground before them. And then, making a brave effort to keep back the tears:

"If I had a gun I'd shoot some Indians;—I'd shoot you, too—you killed him. When I grow up to be a man, I'll have a gun and come here—"

He had the child in his arms, and called to the boy:

"Come, fast now! Go as near as you can to where you left her."

They ran forward through the gray smoke, stepping over and around bodies as they went. When they reached the first of the women he would have stopped to search, but the boy lead him on, pointing. And then, half-way up the line, a little to the right of the road, at the edge of the cedars, his eye caught the glimpse of a great mass of yellow hair on the ground. She seemed to have been only wounded, for, as he looked, she was up on her knees striving to stand.

TOURNEY BOWLERS FELT EFFECTS OF CHRISTMAS

MOST OF THEM WERE SADLY OUT OF FORM LAST NIGHT.

Six teams again jumped into the limelight at McLaughlin's, last night and matched aims and arms in the big tourney. McLaughlin and Causebrook emerged triumphant with a record of three games wrested from VanEmburgh and Blatz, though the scores were nothing to brag about. Radin and Ackor took two from the Schaubs and Skinner defeated the "candy kids," Britton and Willett, two out of three. In his third game Ed Britton smashed the pins for 227, high score for the night. At the same time his partner made 173, giving them the best team figures for the evening.

VanEmburgh and Blatz were woefully out of form and with one exception their scores were about what an average beginner would roll. In the second game VanEmburgh was guilty of 114 and Blatz shook hands with him on 127. The Schaubs were also suffering from Christmas dinners or some other complaint and fell below their average.

The scores:

McLaughlin	154	156	145
Causebrook	179	138	224
	328	294	369
vs.
VanEmburgh	144	114	170
Blatz	145	127	162

vs.
J. Schaub	137	193	159
W. Schaub	175	155	173
	312	348	332
Koons	152	212	156
Skinner	191	173	145
	343	385	301
vs.

Willett	166	195	173

DIAMOND DUST.

"I never crow," said Pitcher Earl Moore of the Clevelands the other day, "as baseball is too uncertain an occupation. One day you pitch your arm off, you have control and speed, and yet you loose. Another day you just lob the ball over the plate, giving numerous bases on balls, and then get away with victory. A pitcher under these circumstances has no reason to become chesty. The same thing applies to ball players in general. Stars come and go and are forgotten. Today you are at the top of the heap and the fans declare you are the only ball player that ever lived. Tomorrow some other man may be filling your shoes, and if he makes good you are quickly lost sight of. Star players have their part in the game and their army of friends while they last, but after all it's the old game that people go out to see, and a winning team, no matter who the members of it may be, gains the loyal support of the fans."

With the idea of making indelible baseball history it has been suggested that moving pictures should be made at once to reproduce the startling offer of $15,000 for three Chicago ball players, which has just been credited to President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club. If the public had not been looking intently at the Brooklyn magnate, baseball men insist that he would have turned over Jordan and Lumley to Manager McGraw for $25,000 in real money.

While Ban Johnson has not yet appointed a schedule committee to represent the American League at a conference with the National League committee on playing dates a meeting of the rival schedule makers will be held in Cincinnati on January 8. As both of the big leagues will play 154 games next season there should be no trouble about conflicting dates.

Coach Hutchins, of Wisconsin, who has great admiration for indoor baseball, has started the sport at Wisconsin, and class teams are to be formed to compete for trophies during the winter and spring. There is also a possibility that an intercollegiate schedule will be arranged with other Western universities.

Jack Dunn speaks glowingly of the ability of Storkes, the Amherst third basemen secured by Pittsburg from Providence. In style and biuld he resembles Devlin and Bradley. Another collegian to keep an eye on is Grant, whom Billy Murray takes from Jersey City to Philadelphia. Grant is a Harvard man.

The American League has a monopoly on the tribe of Jones. Davy plays with Detroit, Fielder with Chicago, Tom with St. Louis and Charley with Washington.

FOOTBALL.

Walter Camp says he favors no radical changes in the football rules. Camp declares that the game as it stands is balanced by various plays that not even the most expert coach could have foreseen and also gives all kinds of men opportunities to develop. The light, artful dodger is sought after, but he has not wholly supplanted the big, powerful man for the middle of the line. The heavyweight who may be too clumsy for other sports may be just the bulwark for the centre positions. A fast man and a good kicker cannot be dispensed with. The long, accurate passer is also a necessary factor, while a sure catcher of punts, clever drop and place kickers and good tacklers must always be in evidence. With such a well balanced game, developing these different qualities and plenty of spectacular play, Camp says he sees no good reason why the rules should be tinkered with. In this opinion, incidentally, Yale's football mentor has the support of many conservative judges, who pronounced the new style of football last fall the best they ever had seen.

PURSE FOR PASTOR.

Feature of the Giving at Marconnier Chapel's Biggest Xmas Party.

Marconnier chapel, Oak Tree, held its Christmas tree exercises for the Sunday-school children last night. The attendance was large, and the pleasing programme was much enjoyed. The chapel was prettily decorated.

The entertainment included numbers by Rankin, the magician, carol sining by the school and recitations. Santa Claus himself attended, and distributed gifts to all the children. The pastor, Rev. J. T. Lansdale, and the organist, Miss Mary Marrison, were not forgotten when Santa unpacked his bag. There was a purse of $10 for Mr. Lansdale and one of $5 for Miss Morrison.

It was the largest and most successful Christmas tree celebration in the history of the chapel. Horace J. Martin, of this city, drilled the children in their singing, and led them last night.

P. S. C. INCREASES WAGES

Motormen and Conductors on All Lines Share in Christmas Present..

3,000 ARE BENEFITED

New Scale Takes Effect January 1—A. H. Stanley Is Made General Manager.

The Public Service Corporation, through its Board of Directors, which met yesterday, unanimously decided to grant an increase in wages to the motormen and conductors employed on all its various lines, the same to take effect January 1, 1907. The increase will benefit 3,000 employes. The action is expected to have a good effect on the service of the men, making it an object for the men to remain in the employ of the company and to attract a better grade of help. The resolution adopted by the board was entirely voluntary.

The scale of wages adopted January 1, 1903, provided a wage of 19 cents a hour for the first and second year, 20 cents from the third to fifth year, 21 cents from the sixth to tenth year and 22 cents for the eleventh year and thereafter. Prior to that time the rate was 17½ cents an hour for the first six months and 18½ cents an hour for the second six months and 20 cents an hour thereafter.

The scale adopted yesterday provides 20 cents an hour for the first year, 21 cents from the second to the fifth year, 22 cents an hour from the sixth to tenth year and 23 cents an hour for the eleventh year and thereafter.

Another important action yesterday was that conferring upon Albert H. Stanley, general superintendent of the northern and central Jersey systhem, the title of general manager of all divisions, including the above named, as well as the South Jersey division. Mr. Stanley came to the Public Service Corporation three years ago from Detroit, where he was general superintendent of the trolley system. His recent promotion is made in appreciation of his efficient service while with the Public Service Corporation.

DAUGHTER FINDS FATHER DEAD IN A YARD.

Stricken With Paralysis, William Parsch Dies Suddenly.

William Parsch, an old and well-known resident of the Prideville section of the borough, left his home on Harrison avenue at 6:30 to do some work in the yard. A short time later his daughter, Miss Minnie Parsch, had occasion to go outside and she found her father lying on the ground about thirty feet from the rear porch. She secured assistance to get him to the house where it was found that he was dead. He had been stricken with paralysis and had passed away almost immediately.

Mr. Parsch was in his eighty-fourth year and came to the borough from Germank, thirty-six years ago. In the old country he was a builder by occupation and followed it to some extent here. He leaves one son, William Parsch, Jr., and two daughters, Mrs. David Allen and Miss Minnie Parsch.

FORGAVE HIS ENEMY.

Joe Shockok Melted Suddenly and Shook Hands In Court.

Mike Sapelo, a Pole, was arraigned in the city court this morning, charged by Joseph Schockok, a fellow-countryman, who charged the prisoner with having assaulted him with a bottle. Through interpreters, Judge Runyon gleaned the fact that the men quarrelled after an afternoon of cards and drinking at a Jackson avenue house. Joe said rude things about Mrs. Sapelo and Mike hurled a beer bottle. It struck him on the head.

Judge Runyon ordered the men to shake hands and patch up the quarrel. Mike was willing, and even anxious, but Joe hung back. He looked bitterly at his left arm, which he claimed was partly paralyzed as a result of the bottle throwing. The court despairing of an amicable adjustment, closed the case and dismissed the men, when Joe suddenly melted and extended his hand. The court attendants applauded.

FARMER'S HOME FIRED WHILE FAMILY'S AWAY

HOUSE, BARNS AND OUTBUILDINGS OF DANIEL SCHENCK DESTROYED.

Fire destroyed the house, barn and two outbuildings owned by Daniel Schenck and located on what is known as the Ephrain Boice farm, two miles from South Plainfield, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Schenck was away at the time and his wife and several children were visiting neighbors on the Fred Endress farm across the road. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. Schenck, who arrived before the house was consumed, discovered that the fire started in the west end of the dwelling, but unable to ascertain the cause.

It was between 3 and 4 o'clock when the fire was first discovered, and the farmers in the vicinity turned out to lend assistance, believing that the family was home. By the time the farmers arrived the house was beyond saving and it was only possible to save some of the contents.

Attention was then directed to the barn, where there were several horses, cows and farming implements. These were all rescued from the barn which caught fire soon after the house did. The two outbuilings were also destroyed by the flames. William Norman, of South Plainfield, rendered valuable assistance at the fire. He made the trip to the farm in his automobile, arriving in time to save a number of things from the house and barn.

The house is one of the oldest in Piscataway township, the late Ephraim Boice having lived there for many years. Mr. Schenck, who is a farmer, resided on the farm several years.

WOMAN, HURT, HELPLESS IN CELLAR FOR AN HUUR

MRS. D. S. CAMPBELL INJURED BY A FALL DOWNSTAIRS.

Carrying an armful of wood up the cellar stairway at her home yesterday morning, Mrs. David S. Campbell, wife of the Dunellen recorder, slipped backward and fell to the bottom. Injured so badly that she could not make her way upstairs, and being alone in the house, she was compelled to suffer in the cellar until neighbors heard her faint cries for help an hour later.

The accident happened at 10:30 o'clock. The fall wrenched Mrs. Campbell's right hip so severely that she could not stand. She tried to crawl upstairs, but could not find the strength. She called for help, but her cries, faint in themselves, scarcely pierced the walls of the cellar. It was not until 11:30 that a neighbor heard the call, and responded. Mrs. Campbell was found, almost exhausted at the bottom of the sairs.

She was carried to her room and Dr. Brakeley was summoned. It was thought at first that the hip was broken, but examination showed that only a severe sprain had resulted from the fall.

Funeral of Harold Hunter.

With a large gathering of relatives and young friends in attendance, the funeral of Harold Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hunter, of West Fourth street, who died Christmas morning, was held at Hope chapel, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. L. R. Howard, who made a touching address. The Eighth C Grade, of the Whittier School, of which Harold was a member, contributed a set floral piece and there were others from various friends. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, six of his playmates acting as pall bearers. They were Allen Snyder, Frank Rimmer, Robert Cuzens, Earl Moran, James Kenney and Donald Mortimer.

MINCH CHOSEN SPEAKER

Hillery Not a Condidate and Cumberland Man Unanimous Choice.

ALL OFFICERS PICKED

Morris Senator Made Floor Leader—Senator Colby On Steering Committee.

The Republican members of the next Senate met in caucus at Trenton last night and selected officers for the next session without a contest.

Senator Bloomfield H. Minch, of Cumberland county, was selected President of the Senate. Senator Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris county, his opponent for the honor, would not permit his name to be presented to the caucus. Mr. Minch received the full vote of 15 Republican Senators.

Senator Hillery was made floor leader. He held this position last winter. Because he did not enter the contest for the Presidednc he will be made President next year in case he is re-elected, which is almost assured. Senator William J. Bradley, of Camden, who was President last winter, nominated Senator Minch. Senator Hillery seconded the nomination.

Other officers elected are: President's Private Secretary, salary $600, William C. Murphy, of Camden; Secretary of the Senate, salary $1,500, Howard L. Tyler, of Camden; Assistant Secretary, $1,200, William T. Albright, of Gloucester; Journal Clerk, $1,000, John W. Clift, of Union; Assistant Journal Clerk, $500, U. S. Grant, of Salem; Sergeant at Arms, $700, Capt. John F. Lovett, Mercer county; Supervisor of Bills, $1,200, Charles L. Grubb, of Morris; Asssisstant Supervisor of Bills, $600, Edward N. Sexsmith, of Monmouth; Bill Clerk, $500, to Essex county, to be named later; Assistant Bill Clerk, $500, William M. Conklin, of Somerset; Calendar Clerk, $500, to Bergen county, to be named later; Clerk to Committee on Printed Bills, $500, Howard Keasly, of Salem; Stenographer to President, $500, to Atlantic county, to be named later.

Five doorkeepers at $350 each, two gallery keepers at $350 each and four pages at $200 each will be apportioned by a steering committee consisting of Senators Frelinghuysen, Brown, Colby, Avis and Wakelee.

The caucus was precided over by Senator Hillery. Senator Colby was placed on the steering committee and got an important clerkship for his home county of Essex. Senator Hand, of Cape May, was given nothing for his county.

The caucus was behind closed doors. No discussion took place over the United States Senatorship according to reports given out after the caucus. Everybody seemed to be of the opinion that United States Senator Dryden will be re-elected.

A THEATRE TICKET WITHOUT BALL COUPON.

Plan for Convenience of Those Who Do Not Care to Go to the Dance.

The box office sale of seats for the performance New Year's Eve at the New Plainfield theatre for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital is now in progress and holders of ball tickets desirious of attending the performance should secure their reservations without delay. Those who do not care to purchase ball tickets need have no hesitancy in buying regular theatre tickets, because in so doing they are contributing to the grand charity. The committee desires to call subscribers attention to fact that all theatre coupons must be exchanged for tickets for admission to the play at the box office of the theatre and ball tickets must be presented for admission to the Casino.

The prices for seats at theatre are placed at regular rates as per advertisement, and tickets for the performance only are now ready. Ball tickets, including theatre and Casino admissions, are also on sale at theatre and casino. Arrangements for the grand event are nearly complete and the affair promises to be a big success.

REFUSES LICENSE TO KERWIN'S HOTEL

Judge Booraem's Act is the Result of Expose In City Court Here.

KERWIN FOUGHT HARD

Tried to Prove He Conducted Orderly Place, But the Court Had Investigated Privately and Knew Facts.

The application of Lawrence Kerwin, proprietor of the Guinea Egg Hotel, for a renewal of his liquor license, was refused by Judge Booraem, of the Middlesex County Court today.

There was an open charge made in the police court here that Kerwin was doing a fine Sunday business in spite of the provisions of the Bishops' law. It came about through the arrest of Abram Wilde, of 306 Monroe avenue, for drunkenness. He claimed that he had just come from the Guinea Egg Hotel. Wilde told the Plainfield Chief of Police that Kerwin did such a Sunday business that his wife and daughter had to help him tend bar. Judge Booraem saw the published accounts of this and although no formal complaint had been made to him he decided to investigate the story before renewing Kerwin's license.

Kerwin, represented by Lawyer A. S. Marsh, of New Brunswick, made a strong effort to save himself from business ruin, but without avail. He swore that his place was orderly and that he never sold on Sundays. William Wilson testified for him that Wilde got his booze from him, Wilson. The court had made an investigation, however, and Kerwin's case could not counterbalance the evidence in Judge Mooraem's hands to the contrary.

In the course of the hearing, Kerwin complained that the police authorities here had openly declared they would have him run out of business. The police here have never denied that they would like to have done it.

WRONG ENGINEER HEARD AT CORONER'S INQUEST

PENNY'S QUEER ACTION IN THE DUNN DEATH CASE.

Could the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., through traffic regulation, have prevented the shocking accident at the Stelton crossing on Tuesday night, December 28, and saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Campbell Dunn? This, practically, was the question which confronted the coroner's jury at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon, when it sat to hear evidence at the court house. And the answer to the question will have a significant relation to this other question.

Peter O'Brien, the flagman, said he was flagging an eastbound train when Mr. and Mrs. Dunn came along. They stopped when he swung the white lamp at them. He didn't speak to them. After the eastbound train had passed he went behind it, looking to see if a westbound train was coming, and swinging his lamp in front of him. He had his back to the Dunns. He said he saw the approaching wild cat engine. The Dunns were then right behind him, he said. Then came the crash.

Several residents of Stelton were on the stand, and all of them testified that the crossing was dangerous and inadequately guarded.

The supposed crew of the engine that killed the Dunns was sent to the hearing at the request of Prosecutor Berdine, and it was not until after the engineer had been on the stand for twenty minutes, and puzzled everybody by his answers, that it was discovered that the road superintendent had sent the crew of an engine which passed through Stelton an hour before the crash. The engineer seemed to have made no effort to clear up a situation that must have been plain to him. In response to a sharp note from the Prosecutor, the railroad authorities promised to have the right crew on hand Monday, when the hearing will be resumed. G. W. V. Moy, of this city, was at the hearing, representing the family of the Dunns.

KROM GETS WARRANTS

Charges Special Agent Jacobson and Robert Jackson With Assault.

ALLEGES NIGHT ATTACK

Machinists' Agent and Three Others Said to Have Assailed Machine Works Head and His Coachman.

After weeks of quiet, succeeding series of fights and gunplays, trouble again developed in the strike situation at the Krom Machine Works last night. According to a complaint made by Arthur Krom, head of the machine works, this morning, he and his coachman were assaulted by Arthur Jacobson and Robert Jackson, alleged strike supporters, at Third and Washington streets. Jacobson, from all available accounts, was badly used up while Mr. Krom came up smiling and ready for further moves in the game.

In filing complaints against Jacobson and Jackson, Mr. Krom told City Judge Runyon that he was attracted to the men and two other alleged strike sympathizers as he was being driven home from the shop at six o'clock. The firm, he said, had one of his employees backed up against a wall at the Union Beef Company corner, and he had his carriage stopped to investigate.

He walked over toward the group, he said, and Jacobson, he alleges, turned and said:

"Here's the —— now; let's do him up."

He alleges the assault followed, all four alleged strikers attacking under the head of of Jacobson and Jackson. He didn't recognize the other two. An attempt was made, it is asserted, to pull the coachman from his seat.

Mr. Krom says he fought back hard. He is a well set up young man. The coachman, who is not unhealthy or weak, used his whip. Mr. Krom says Jacobson, being the leader, received most of his attention. He says he hammered him with no consideration from the appearance of his features, and the coachman is said to have broken his whip across the alleged leader's face.

Mr. Krom and his coachman drove off after exchanging swings and jabs with the quartette, annd reported the alleged row at police headquarters.

Chief Kiely sent Patrolman Overbaugh to the scene with the coachman to lock up the quartette. The coachman pointed out a man near the corner, whom he said was Jacobson. The man jumped over a fence when he saw the officer and disappeared. Overbaugh said it looked like Jacobson.

Jacobson is a special agent of the Machinists' Union. He has figured, in one way or another, in every row growing out of the Krom strike. Another complaint is to be made by the coachman.

BOYS URGED DOG TO BITE WILLIAM TIER, JR.

Canine Imbedded Its Teeth In His Leg Inflicting Severe Laceration.

William Tier, Jr., the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Tier, of East Front street, was bitten by a dog, while he was skating with some companions on Tier's pond this morning. The dog which belongs to Charles M. Slocum, of Central avenue, was on the pond with his young son and some other boys. They noticed young Tier skating about and in a spirit of mischief set the dog on him.

The canine instantly attacked the boy. He imbedded his teeth in the fleshy part of the boy's leg above the knee severely lacerating it. The boy screamed with fright and pain and soon there was a big crowd attracted to the scene. Through the combined efforts of several bystanders the bay was rescued and carried to his home, where Dr. Albert Pittis was summoned and gave the customary treatment.

In the meantime the Slocum boy and his dog made their escape. They were followed through Front street, Park avenue and into West Second sereet, by a crowd of boys, but the lad and his dog disappeared in Second street and could not be found. Patrolman Charles Flynn's attention was called to the trouble and he made a fruitless search. Mr. Tier, father of the injured boy, intends to bring action against the owner of the dog.

Mrs. Jane E. Sill.

Mrs. Jane E. Sill, widow of Horace Sill, died this morning at the residence of her niece, Mrs. G. H. Robins, of Norwood avenue. She was in her seventy-eighth year and came to Plainfield two months ago from Brooklyn. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Dr. F. W. Cornwell has removed from Truell Court to the MacDonald house at East Front street and Watchung avenue.

EXAMINING THE WASHINGTON ASSURANCE SOCIETY

SOMERSET'S GRAND JURY FINDS FOUR INDCITMENTS

TWENTY CASES IN ALL INVESTIGATED BY THE DECEMBER BODY.

John F. Reger, who has had a rather strenuous time of it since he was appointed Prosecutor of Somerset county, will have only four indictments to try as a result of the work of the December grand jury, which finished its labors yesterday at noon in Somerville. Twenty cases were investigated.

The recent convictions obtained in the Criminal courts at Somerville seem to have had a detefrent effect upon the criminal propensities of the lower classes of citizens of Somerset.

Judge Lloyd, of Camden, who is to try the Supreme and Circuit cases at Somerville, has sent word both to Judge Schenck and Justice Garretson that he will not be able to take up the cases ready for trial until Tuesday, January 29.

The following licenses were granted by Judge Schenck: Hotels—Richard A. Boyce, North Plainfield; Richard A. Crawford, Franklin Park; Joseph A. Blatz, North Plainfield; John W. Hoffman, Basking Ridge; Lentz Kuhn, Somerville; J. Ross Lake, Somerville; William Zimmerman, South Bound Brook; William Wheeler, Bernardsville. Saloon—James A. McCloskey, Rock Hill.

The application of Charles Kiszonak to keep a hotel at Raritan was laid over for a week.

PLAINFIELDER CLAIMS PATENT INFRINGEMENT

BRINGS SUIT AGAINST CONSOLIDATED FRUIT JAR COMPYNY

Joseph Allen, of this city, and Lewis A. Allen, of Passaic, have commenced suit in the Court of Chancery at Trenton against the Consolidated Fruit Jar Company alleging an infringement of patent rights and asking the court to compel an accounting for royalties which the complainants allege the defendant has agreed to pay them, but in which it had defaulted.

The complainants aver that they are the inventors of an improved top for bottles and cans, that they assigned the rights to the defendant company and that for this assignment certain royalties were to be paid by the defendant.

The bill of complaint charges that the Consolidated company has infringed on the patent referred to and is manufacturing tops under the infringement. It is averred also that the defendant refuses to pay the royalties under the agreement.

SOCIETY GATHERS FOR CHRISTMAS DANCE.

Annual Event at Park Club Attracts Two Hundred People.

Society folk of the city and borough turned out in large numbers last night at the usual Christmas dance at the Park Club. The clubhouse was lavishly decorated in holiday style with the Christmas greens, holly and red colorings. The affair was given under the direction of the entertainment committee, of which Mrs. Charles A. Reed is the chairman, and by a number of patronesses. Excellent music was furnished by von DerHeide's orchestra, of Newark.

Included among the 200 or more guests, were many young people home from college for the holiday season, and a number of out-of-town people. The evening was given up entirely to dancing and this was continued until a late hour.

The next social event at the Park Club will be the Junior dance on New Year's Eve. This is an annual affair and preparations are being made for the usual god time. A previous statement that there would be no dance on New Year's Eve was incorrect. On New Year's Day there will be the customary reception and, in addition a short play will be given.

Investigation Began Yesterday According to Mr. Van Buskirk Who Denies Illegalities.

WELCOMES THE PROBE

Mrs. Louis VanNest Makes An Authorized Statement For the Abe Lincoln Society in Which Her Husband Is Concerned.

"The Washington Assurance Socoiety welcomes investigation," said David Van Buskirk, at his home on West Second street, to a Daily Press reporter last night. "We will come out strengthened from it."

Mr. VanBuskirk was interviewed regarding the published reports that the State Insurance Department was anxious to probe the Society, and that the latter had been unwilling to submit to examination. He talked readil, and seemed quite composed over the developements of the last day or two.

"To begin with," said Mr. VanBuskirk, "the Washington has not been investigated. Perhaps it will be, but it hasn't so far. We did deny the right of the Insurance Department to investigate, and it really has no right to examine. As a matter of courtesy, we have consented to the examination."

"Is it true that the Washington is issuing what is in effect a $1,000 life policy?"

"The report was that the Washington issued such a policy, but such is not true," said Mr. VanBuskirk with emphasis. The highest that has been taken is $500 for funeral benefits, and that is lawful, so far as we know. Everything is coming out all right," continued. Mr. VanBuskirk "The Washington Society is willing to stand examination, which will be started in a day or two."

"Do you know on what date the investigation will begin?"

"No date is set. The investigation begins when the examiner and the Society representatives can get together."

"Will you let us know when they meet?"

"They met today at the Society's office in Newark."

"Then the examination began today?"

"Yes; and it went all right. Everything is satisfactory so far."

Mr. VanBuskirk said a statement as to the progress of the examination was not to be made until after it ended. All the papers in the State would get one then. The examination might take a week.

"Are you president of the company?" Mr. VanBuskirk was asked.

"I am not. I am general manager. William A. Marshall, of Newark, is president, and L. M. Seeley, of Westfield, is secretary. The head office is at 28 Market street, Newark.

"Last night," said Mr. VanBuskirk in concluding the interview, "the Newark News said we issued a $1,000 policy and had no by-laws. I wish to repeat emphatically that we do not issue a $1,000 policy and we have got by-laws. Everything is done straight forward and according to law."

Mrs. Lewis C. VanNest, whose husband is district superintendent for the Abe Lincoln Assurance Society, made a statement today regarding the story published yesterday, Mr. VanNest being absent from the city.

"The Abe Lincoln Assurance Society," she said, "is backed by the National Casualty Society of Detroit, Mich., which has offices all over the country. Its Newark place of business is at 22 Clinton street and meeting of the Lincoln Society officials are held there twice a year for the election of directors and the transaction of all business. The present board was published yesterday and the members are all residents of Newark with the exception of Mr. VanNest. The society pays sick and death benefits and has never disputed a just claim. When the department of Banking and Insurance asked for the concern's books they were handed over without the least hesitation and the investigation were given every bit of information they asked. Mr. Van Nest has nothing to conceal and welcomes any further investigation of the Abe Lincoln Society. It is a reputable concern and has never done business in any but a legitimate way."

Arthur Ludovice, who lives nearby, saved the Maltbie barn from fire Wednesday afternoon. A grass fire, started by boys, had reached a small outbuilding, and would have gone on to the barn, when Ludovice passed. He could not save the small building, but he set to work with a shovel to beat out the burning grass. He had to work hard, but succeeded.

Nothing Exempt from This Duty.

A manicure seems hardly a requisite in the tool stock of a motor car. Yet it may sometimes play a very useful part when it becomes necessary to clean the contact points of the ignition coil. The tiny file may also come in handy in other delicate tasks.—Motor World.

Laughing Aat J. Wesley.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—"Waltz Me Around Again, Willie," has been changed to "Chase Me Around Again, Wesley," as the result of a bloodless but ludicrous affray between Representative John Welesy Gaines, of Tennessee, and a man in Washington who is known as a publicity agent. As the story goes, Gaines and the publicity agent engaged in an altercation in the rotunda of a leading hotel, which concluded in an invitation to Gaines to "step out on the sidewalk and take a licking." The alacrity with which the invitation was accepted somewhat discouraged Gaines' would-be antagonist, who led the way toward the street. When a big revolving door leading into Pennsylvania avenue was reached, the publicity agent's courage shrunk completely. Instead of passing into the street he calmly followed the door around in a circle, the irate Gaines at his heels. Around and around went the pursued and the pursuer with ever increasing velocity, each in his separate compartment dragging his heels from under the door, following relentlessly upon his footsteps. As the compartments flew by the open space leading into the hotel and into the street loud words resounded, only to be muffled a moment later as the compartment sped into the "tunnel" on either side of the doorway. Finally Gaines is reported to have become exhausted from the chase, the publicity agent vanished, and when the police arrived Gaines was found alone on the field of battle with a smoking revolving door in both hands.

Spectacular New York Fire.

New York, Dec. 28.—One of the most stubborn and spectacular fires the Fire Department has had to fight in many weeks started last evening during the rush hour on the top floor of a five story office building at Nos. 136 to 140 West Twenty-third street. Before the firemen had the flames under control three street car lines had been held up for two hours, and the opening of Keith and Proctor's theatre, opposite the burning building, was postponed for more than an hour, the performers and audience being held outside of the police lines. Thousands on their way home from business stopped to see the fire, and it required the reserves from five precincts to handle the crowds.

Deeds and Contracts.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded at Elizabeth: Highland Park Realty Co. to J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Co., northeasterly side Leland avenue, 250 feet southeasterly of Midway, Plainfield, $350. Nelson Runyon et ux. to Sarah T. Manning, Front street, corner Classon Dunn, Plainfield, $1. Lemuel E. Hart et al. to Emily Merle, northwesterly side West Second street, corner Charlotte L. DeMeza, Plainfield, $1. These contracts have also been filed: Anna B. McCready with Geo. J. Tobin, plumbing work new building, Denmark road, Plainfield, $1,515. Same with Charles H. Dutcher, heating, $995.

Little Helps.

Old glove fasteners may be used by sewing on shirt waist band and skirt for the desired supporter. Wornout hose supporters can be sewed by the side to bottom edge of belt on back of skirt on either side of closing, making a most satisfactory skirt adjuster, which never tears the waist and never bends or slips out of place.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

There are several different kinds of moving picture companies, The D. W. Robertson Famous Moving Picture Co., and the other kinds. It is with great pleasure that the management announces the coming of this company with everything entirely new at the New Plainfield theatre, matinee and night, today.

May Irwin's new play, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," which is to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, is by George V. Hobart, who is also responsible for "Mrs. Black is Back," the piece in which the comedienne has appeared for the past two seasons. It is said that Mr. Hobart has fitted Miss Irwin most admirably in the new vehicle and gives her a character in the title role of the sort in which she revels. May Irwin is one of the most popular actresses before the public and a new play by her is always worthy of attention. Miss Irwin's new songs this season includes "Save a Little Money for a Rainy Day," "Matrimony," "Moonshine," "Honora Doolin," "My Papina," "Sunshine Sue."

Lottie Blair Parker has already made a reputation with her "Way Down East," but she added to it appreciably when she wrote "Under Southern Skies." Her plays are all of the clear variety, with action galore. In addition she works in a prettiness of detail that a man might strive for all time to bring about, but which a woman can do innately. "Under Southern Skies" tells of life in lower Louisiana in the period around 1875 and necessarily brings in the quaint costumes of that day. The scenery used in "Under Southern Skies" is suggestive of the South in every one of its details showing some of the courtesies of the old regime and other interesting phases of southern life. The play will be at the New Plainfield theatre New Year's, afternoon and night.

The Four Huntings in their musical comedy, "The Fool House," will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. There is a completeness about the Four Hastings' production that stamps them with the mark of individuality. When one enters the theatre, where the celebrated Four Hastings are playing, it is with a consciousness that they will have an evening of clean amusement, and and that the performance will be artistic in the minuetest detail. A large chorus has been added this season, the play entirely re-written and the scenery and costumes all new.

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night will be "The Man of Her Choice," written and produced by Edw. M. Simmonds. Being the producer of his own play Mr. Simmonds has tried to eclipse anything ever before offered to patrons of melodrama. That he has entirely succeeded in this is the verdict of the critics whereever the play has been presented. He has been most lavish in its scenic endowment and has introduced a number of novel mechanical and electrical effects. Of sensations, there are sufficient for a half dozen dramas and still many as there are, it is said that they all dovetail perfectly into the plot.

"Forty-five Minutes from Broadway" is to have its first local hearing at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night, January 7. George M. Cohan is the author of both comedy and music. The character of "The Kid," which will be played by Victor Moore, is said to be even funnier than "The Unknown" in "Little Johnny Jones." Fay Templeton, who hasn't appeared in years, is the most welcome principal of the promising cast, which includes Victor Moore, Donald Brian, Charles Prince, James H. Manning, Louis Griel, Maurice Elliott, Floyd E. Francis, Julia Ralph, Marian Singer, Emma Littlefield, Jennie Franklyn, Elizabeth Young, Madeline La Bour and Clara Dollard.

Thought He Was Murderer.

Roslyn, L. I., Dec. 28.—Dominick Danasto, of Franklin Square, L. I., gave himself up yesterday to the authorities, saying he had heard that two men whom he had shot in a fight at McCormick's Hotel, Westbury, last month, had died in the Nassau Hospital, in Mineola, and that he wished to be placed on trial, as he had done the shooting in self-defence and felt sure of acquittal. The men whom Danasto supposed he had killed are Andrew and John Lagrano, brothers, who live in Corona. Both have left the Nassau Hospital, having fully recovered from their wounds. The brothers and Danasto had a quarrel over some real estate matter and Danasto alleges that the brothers attacked him and that when he shot them he feared for his life. Danasto was taken before Magistrate Remsen, who held him in $3,000 bail on a charge of assault in the second degree. Danasto was greatly surprised to learn that the Lagrano brothers were still alive.

Mrs. Trautman Vindicated.

New York, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Alexander Trautman was completely vindicated yesterday in the Jefferson Market Court. The sensational accusation made against her by Peter J. Hogan was dismissed and she was honorably discharged. As the verdict was announced the crowd in the court room rushed forward to congratulate her and from the throng in the street came cheers for Mrs. Trautman and hisses for her accuser.

DRIVES MEN INSANE.

Mysterious Problems in Nature Which Have Wrecked Many Minds.

A scientist who has been traveling in Africa in search of an answer to some questions concerning rainfall gives as his opinion that the expression of imperturbable calm on the face of the Sphinx arises from the fact that she has never tried to find the answers to the riddles of nature, which have sent many men to their graves.

What is gravity? Is one of them. Hundreds of men have gone insane trying to answer it, says the Chicago Chronicle. Some, in fact, have gone so far as to try to disprove the theory entirely. An English naval captain wrote a book on this subject and sent it to all the learned societies in Europe.

Why cannot force be created by human power? Trying to accomplish this has hastened the end of many a worthy man. Perpetual motion will be an accomplished fact if we can discover how force is made. Keeley, with his motor, who claimed to have discovered perpetual motion, was a swindler, whose death revealed his ingenious counterfeit of perpetual motion. If this discovery could be made it would revolutionize the world.

What source of heat supply has the planet Mars? This is another riddle. Our earth gets much more heat from the sun than does Mars, yet that planet has a beautifully mild climate. Astronomers have watched the ice cap thawing on Mars, and they have proved that water flows and clouds rise. This shows that Mars has heat. But if not supplied by the sun, from what source does it come?

Where the tide is born is another of nature's secrets. On the island of Papete, in the southern Pacific, there is every day at 12 midday and two in the afternoon high tide. Why, no one is able to explain. A scientist has been able to turn gold into silver, but no one so far has been able to make a magnet which will attract gold. Could this be accomplished its enormous value could scarcely be realized, for it would make it possible to work rock from which no known process has been able to attract gold in paying quantities.

PIGS MILKING COWS.

The Farmer Tells of Wonders That Beat the City Man.

"Strange things happen in the city," said the pallid boarder.

"Strange things happen in the country, too, be gum," the farmer interrupted.

The city man, rocking on the porch in the twilight over his cheap cigar, had had the floor for half an hour. Now, it was the farmer's turn.

"Strange things, rather," the old man resumed. "Milkin', frinstance. O' course ye've heerd o' snakes milkin' cows, hangin' and danglin' from under, while the cows, skairt, cavorted all over the kentry? O' course, ye've heerd o' that, but did ye ever hear, Mr. Clay, o' pigs milkin' cows?"

"No, can't say as I have," the other answered languidly.

"It's bin done," said the farmer. "It's bin done to me, gosh dast it. It wuz done only last month. My black an' tan sow guv birth to a litter o' nine pigs, an', blast my buttons if them pigs, as soon as they got to be a month or two old, wouldn't milk my cows reg'lar.

"At noon, when the cows laid down in the shade, the little pigs would come up an' drink all their milk. The cows didn't mind. The milk was no good to them, so o' course, they didn't keer who got it."

All from the Same Cask.

William Jennings Bryan, during his sojourn in London, dined with some Americans at the Savoy, in the cafe overlooking the Thames embankment. The talk turned to wine, and Mr. Bryan said:

"It is of advantage in France to know good wine, and it is also of advantage to know French.

"Three friends of mine, traveling in the French provinces, thought at dinner that they would go a little higher than the vin ordinaire included in their three-franc table d'hote, and accordingly one ordered a bottle of margaux. The second ordered pontet canet. The third ordered haut brion.

"The waiter, suitably impressed with these orders, retired. But he incautiously, as he retired, left the door open, and thus it was that my three stupefied friends heard him give their order in these terms:

"'Baptiste, three bottles of the red.'"

Ins and Outs.

Bronzed by foreign suns, he entered the office of his colleague. But the cashier's chair was vacant.

"Is Mr. Smith out?" he asked, anxiously. "I am an old friend of his."

"No, sir," returned the clerk. "Mr. Smith is not out. He won't be out for 16 years."

Here the clerk smiled grimly.

"The firm is out, though," he went on, "one hundred thousand, just."

Versatile Youth.

"That new clerk of yours is rather versatile, isn't he?" said the drummer.

"That's what," replied the village merchant. "He makes three or four different kinds of a fool of himself every day."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

One reason given as an explanation for the strenuous efforts being made by the University of Chicago to secure a game with either Yale or Pennsylvania for the next football season is that the Chicago team has better prospects for a successful season than it has had in several years past, as Captain-elect De Tray expects fifteen men who have won their football "C" in harness next fall. This would mean a splendid reserve force of substitutes on the side lines, and if a game with Yale cannot be clinched, an endeavor will be made to get a match with some other team of the Big Four in order to show that quartet that the West can play football.

The University of Pennsylvania football eleven will meet two crack Western elevens next fall. The Quakers will play a return game with Michigan at Ann Arbor on November 9 and will then meet the famous Chicago University team at Philadelphia on November 16. Pennsylvania will play Cornell on Franklin Field as usual on Thanksgiving Day, which means that the Quakers will have three strenuous contests to play right off the reel. The games with the two Western elevens will probably excite unusual interest.

Edward Hart, Exeter's crack football player, shotputter and all around athlete, has decided to enter Princeton. He is said to be one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Exeter, having put the shot more than forty-three feet and having played a remarkable game as halfback on the eleven. Hart tried to enter Pennsylvania last fall, but failed to pass the entrance examination.

John M. Cates, who coached the Naval Academy football team so successfully last season and played on the Yale eleven the season previous, is to go into business. Everybody at the academy was anxious for him to return next season, but he has decided to do no more coaching. He is now visiting in Annapolis.

Until the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of the United States appoints its new football rules committee to amalgamate with representatives of those universities which are not convinced of the need of joining the new organization, futher legislation in the gridiron game is at a standstill; but there is nothing to indicate that the next rules committee will not proceed along the same sane and disinterested lines as this year's committee. The good of the game is quite likely to be the actuating motive of the next body of legislators, just as with the body which reconstructed the rules so satisfactorily. In any event, if such proves to be the case little or no changes may be looked for. That is the hope of Walter Eckersall, of the University of Chicago, the greatest of all quarterbacks, and of Capt. De Tray, of the same team. If the present rules are unchanged, say these two players, it will pave the way for "the best game in the kingdom of sports."

"Many reports of displeasure over the new rules were heard last season, especially in regard to the ten yards rule," says Eckersall in the Chicago Tribune. "I am mighty glad the committee refused to listen to the appeal for another down in which to make the necessary distance. This would have demoralized the game completely and set back every advance made. We now have an open game, in which there are possibilities undreamed of. The coach who has the head now will be the coach of the future. It no longer is a question of reteaching what one already has learned from the old game. The coach must figure and think, and I believe accordingly some of our so-called best coaches soon may take a back seat. Mr. Stagg got a long way with the new game last fall, but, as he himself admits, he came nowhere near solving half its possibilities. From what I saw I would not hesitate to say his was the best style of play from practically every viewpoint. Next year we can expect great things from Mr. Stagg, and I believe he will make good with our expectations.

It has been expected that the Yale football association would announce its financial account ever since the season closed, but it was learned yesterday that the statement is now in the hands of the faculty, where it is being carefully examined. The members of that body are reticent on the subject, but it is learned from a reliable source that every item is undergoing careful scrutiny and that suggestions are being formulated as to ways for eliminating and cutting down the outlay another season. The examination of the statement was taken up just before the close of the fall term and has not been finished. One member of the faculty said yesterday: "When the statement is returned to the athletic association certain suggestions and recommendations will accompany it. They will point out where in the opinion of the faculty there should have been curtailment and where needless expenses have been incurred. It was learned yesterday that the faculty believe that there has been a too lavish expenditure of funds this season, although the expenses were cut materially from those of former seasons.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Boston Americans are confident that Lou Criger, their star catcher of two years ago, will be in splendid shape next season, which, they say, means that the Hub team will again be a factor in the championship race. Criger, one of the greates catchers that ever put on a mask, was practically helpless from spinal trouble last winter and was compelled to retire temporarily from the game. He recovered sufficiently to play a few mages last fall, and since then he has regained all of his former health and strength. With Criger behind the bat the Boston pitchers will probably prove more effective, with a general brace up among the rest of the players. A star catcher is nearly half a ball team. Without Criger the Boston Americans went to pieces. In addition to this great backstop the Hub team will have another excellent catcher in Shaw, of last year's Louisville team, who was previously with the Buffalo Eastern League team. This will be Shaw's first experience in a major league, but success is predicted for him, as he is a seasoned and finished player.

Jack Chesbro, of the New York Americans, wants another chance to prove to local fans that he can still pitch high class ball. He is spending the winter at his home in Massachusetts and is working on the roads daily to keep down his weikht. Chesbro writes to Secretary Mahon that he feels sure that he can pitch winning ball from the first tap of the gon. If Chesbro had been able to hold his own last season Griffith's men would probably have beaten the White Sox out for the pennant. The big twirler lost many games by weakening at critical moments and as the Sox only captured the flag by the narrowest of margins Chesbro's failures were fatal. If Jack can get back his effectiveness of two years ago Griffith will be one of the happiest managers in he land. But it is seldom that boxmen, once they lose their grip, are able to regain. Chesbro, however, always takes care of himself and is so earnest about his work that he may prove an exception to the rule.

Insurance Indictments.

New York, Dec. 28.—Indictments against at least two of the former officers of the New York Life Insurance Company will be handed in by the Grand Jury to Recorder Goff, in General Sessions Court, yesterday. They will be for forgery in the third degree, based on the concealment of the company's stock transactions by false entries in its books. Who the persons are who will be charged with a violation of the law in the conduct of the company no one who knows would openly divulge yesterday. It is the belief that one of them is a man who held a high position in the company, but whose connection with it has been severed and who appeared on more than one occasion before the Grand Jury. The other, it is said, was not called before the Grand Jury.

The Yorkshire Hog.

A strong demand is spring up for a hog capable of making the highest quality of bacon, says Farming. For this reason the long bodied rather than the wide type is required. A good representative of this type is the large improved Yorkshire. As now fixed, they should be long bodied with deep, straight lines and triangular hams, standing well up from the ground; the back arched, ribs well sprung to the edge of the loin, and full flanks. Constitution and vigor are among the greatest requisites. Some strains approach the wide back and too fat carcass, but these are to be avoided.

We'd Rather See Than Be One.

"Oh, the next act is in the somersault act," said the young lady to her escort at the circus.

"Oh, well, if you'll excuse me, I'll go out for a breath of air while that act is on," replied the man.

"Why, they say it's great!"

"Oh, well, I've seen so much of that sort of thing. I own an automobile, you know!"—Yonkers Statesman.

HAS MUNCHAUSEN BEATEN.

The Newark News thinks that James Martine, the farmer orator of Union county, should be the nominee of the Democratic party for Governor next fall. It bases its suggestion upon the fact that, according to the returns, Martine came very near beating Fowler in the race for Congress last fall. But it happens that Martine's vote was largely increased by cantankerous voting machines. It would be a difficult matter for Martine to secure the nnomination for Governor unless he first promised to do all the things that James Smith, Jr., asked him to do, and he is not that sort of a fellow.—Trenton State Gazette.

That is just on a par with what the Trenton State Gazette furnishes its gullible readers every day in the year; that is, it is as far from the truth as where the Gazette usually gets. In the first place, the Newark News never advocated James E. Martine for the Democratic nomination and in the second place, Mr. Martine's vote was not largely increased by cantankerous voting machines and the editor of the Gazette knows it. Only one voting machine made a mistake and its returns were rectified when the county election officers announced that Martine had beaten Fowler in Union county. The editor of the Gazette is entitled to a job on a yellow journal for by past performances he has surely earned it.

MACHINE TALKING GREEK.

State Senator E. R. Ackerman has received a carbonized letter from a Greek society in Newark threatening that all the naturalized Greeks in New Jersey would throw their strength to the Democratic ticket next fall unless John F. Dryden should be elected. Even these poor, innocent, deluded foreigners are being used by the friends of the hard-pressed Newarker in his effort to get back to Washington, but as Senator Ackerman is a man of common sense it is to be supposed that he will consign their request—or rather of Dryden's political friends—to the waste-paper basket.

Following the example of the majority of other concerns throughout the country, the P. S. C. has raised wages of employes. Considering the tremendous increase in the cost of living, only simple justice is done the men. When the average wage-earner today tries to make out on what he was paid a year ago, he can do so only so long as his credit holds good.

Woman Killed Oddly.

Middletown, N. Y., Dec. 28.—Miss Minnie Thayer, of Burnside, this county, was killed by a fall in an odd way yesterday. Miss Thayer saw a mail carrier coming and started to meet him and see if he had brought a Christmas present for her. Throwing a golf cape over her head, she started down the walk. The wind blew the cape over her face and to throw it back, she gave her head a sudden toss, threw her arms up and fell to the ground. In falling she struck her head and died almost instantly. She was forty-three years old and was a member of one of the most prominent families in Orange county.

Mr. Bryan "Is Willin'."

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 28.—William J. Bryan virtually admitted yesterday that he would be a candiated for the Presidential nomination before the next Democratic National Convention. "While I have not yet announced that I would be a candidate," said Mr. Bryan, "I have not stated that I would not be a candidate. Such a high honor as the Presidential nomination is something that no American citizen should decline." Mr. Bryan said there was no foundation for the story that he would, if nominated, favor the election of Senator William J. Stone, of Missouri, as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

SHALL THEY MARRY? THAT'S THE QUESTION.

If Jersey Women Teachers Do They Lose Rights in Pension Fund.

Atlantic City, Dec. 28.—That women teachers insist on getting married is one of the principal reasons assigned for lack of interest displayed in promoting the retirement and pension fund of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association. Miss Elizabeth M. Allen, of Hoboken, general secretary of the fund, intimated that some teachers seemed to find retirement to a domestic life preferable to a life work in educational fields and then retirement by the teachers' fund. There were many smiles and some knowing winks exchanged among younger teachers gathered in the room where Miss Allen was talking, and all seemed to indicate that retirement to married life was not for a moment to be scorned and, was indeed even preferable to the noble calling of teaching the young idea to shoot.

There is every indication that the bickerings among teachers over the administration of the large amount of money now controlled by the retirement fund are about to cease, for it is practically assured the whole matter will be controlled by the State, and before the expiration of another year there will be a separation of the retirement and pension funds.

"I wish they might be separated," declared Superintendent Clarence E. Morse. "There is forever discussion over the beggarly money, and it seems to me some of the women in the upper section of the State are giving the administration of those funds a deal more and deeper thought than to the honorable work to which they are supposed to be called, and, if not called, then paid for."

It was expected the separation would come today, but it was found after the teachers had gathered that officials had failed of giving the required thirty days' notice, and therefore all action had to be deferred. Supporters of the separation project are so certain of coming out on top before the expiration of another year that the same officers were re-elected.

B. C. Wooster, superintendent of Bergen county, said the public was in need of enlightenment on educational lines, and he believed it would be better for education in general if money now expended to instruct licensed teachers was devoted to engaging campaign speakers to address the public.

John H. Haaran, district superintendent of New York, said there need be no fears as to the future of this country if children of foreign parents can be made to attend the public schools. He urged that an effort be made also to get foreign born residents to enter the night schools of the city, and they in turn would see that the children were educated. Addresses were made yesterday by United States Commission Elmer Elsworth Brown, of Washington; State Superintendent Charles J. Baxter, M. G. Brumbergh, Ph. D., of Philadelphia, and last night's meeting was addressed by J. C. Monaghan, of Washington.

RAILROAD DEFEATS THE JERSEY CITY ASSESSORS.

New Appraisement Must be Made of Second-Class Property of Central.

Trenton, Dec. 28.—The State Board of Equalization of Taxes, by a vote of four to one, ordered yesterday a re-assessment of all property in Jersey City. This decision was given in connection with the appeal of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, which claims that second-class railroad property in that city was assessed at a higher relative value by the Jersey City assessors than the property of private individuals.

The negative vote was cast by Charles C. Black, of Jersey City, who was the Democratic candidate for Governor two years ago.

There was no board opinnion filed and each member was left to file an individual opinion. Major Carl Lentz, President of the Board, filed his opinion in which he said the testimony taken showed that second-class railroad property in Jersey City has been assessed at an average of 75 per cent. of its true value and that private property had been assessed at only 63 per cent.

Murphy Owns Tammany.

New York, Dec. 28.—Charles F. Murphy carried out his programme for organization of the Executive and General committees of Tammany without a hitch last night. He rode houghshod over the followers of Mayor McClellan and achived the distinction of being echeered many minutes by the very men whom he was excluding from membership in the organization. While Mr. Murphy triumphed without opposition in the General Committee friends of Mayor McClellan tried to upset his programme in the meeting of the Executive Committee, which preceded that of the General Committee. They succeeded in mustering only two votes, however, those of Maurice Featherson, leader of the Twentieth, and Francis J. Lantry, leader of the Sixteenth district, after an ineffectual effort to obtain a roll call to make every district leader place himself on record for either the Mayor or Mr. Murphy.

25 YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maynard Celebrate Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Maynard, of North avenue, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, last night, the event being attended by over one hundred guests from this city, Newark, New York, Long Branch, Philadelphia and Trenton. The couple was showered with best wishes and also received a great many handsome gifts.

Those who received with Mr. and Mrs. Maynard were Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, of this city; Mrs. D. E. Robinson, of Newark, and Mrs. Sarah E. Reilly, of New York. The receiving party stood beneath large crayon portraits of the bride and groom and their wedding certificate which also bore their pictures as well as that of the officiating minister. The rooms were attractive in holiday decorations.

Among the gifts were included a silver service from members of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, with a card bearing the names of the donors; a silver candelabra from Alpha Lodge, No. 116, F. and A. M., of Newark, of which Mr. Maynard is a member. Seven members of the lodge conveyed the gift. There was also a silver comb and brush from Mayor James F. Buckle and numerous other gifts.

During the evening there were piano selections by Alfred White and soprana solos by Miss Mary Barnes, of New York. Refreshments were served afterward.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard were married at Harlingen, the home of the bride, December 27, 1881, by Rev. H. B. Garner, of Philadelphia, who was then pastor of the Hopewell church. Mrs. Maynard was Miss Alletta J. Holmes. At the time Mr. Maynard was living here and was engaged in the barber business, his shop being located at the Hotel Kensington, then the Hotel Grenada. He has been in the same business continuously ever since. Both he and his wife ar held in high esteem by a large circle of acquaintances. Among those who attended their wedding twenty-five years ago are Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Garretson and daughter, Miss Anna L. Garretson, of Sherman avenue, and James L. Manning, of Dunellen.

FESTIVALS OF CHRISTMAS

Celebrated in Majority of Local Protestant Churches Last Night.

GIFTS DISTRIBUTED

Carols, Recitations and Addresses Features of the Exercises—Trees Add to Enjoyment.

Christmas festivals, most of them more or less elaborate and all enjoyable, were held in the majority of the Protestant churches last night. Recitations, carols and addresses were the features. In some a lighted tree added to the brilliancy of the festivities.

First M. E.

The little folks of the First M. E. church Sunday-school had a jolly good time at their Christmas entertainment yesterday afternoon. The affair was under the direction of a committee comprised of Mrs. Arthur E. Crone, Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, Mrs. Maurice McGrath, Miss Mattie Humble and Miss Miller, assisted by the teachers of the school.

The programme consisted of games, recitations and songs while H. W. Rankin, of Sandford avenue, entertained the children with sleight-of-hand and magic. There was a song by six children from the primary department, Edward Crone, Violet Sutton, Howard Hile, Lillian Apgar, Gladys Sherwood and Chester Alpaugh. Caryl Dunavan, Alice Joy, Gladys Sherwood and Harry Staats gave recitations and the class sang a carol. In addition the programme given on Sunday by the beginners' department was repeated.

After the entertainment the mothers and friends of the children were served with chocolate and cake, while the children were given ice cream and cake. Not the least enjoyable feature was the appearance of Santa Claus, in the person of Arthur Humble, who delighted the children and made them happy by the distribution of gifts to all.

In the evening the entertainment for the senior members of the school and friends was held. This consisted of moving pictures and sleight-of-hand and magic by H. W. Rankin. The combination furnished an evening of pleasure for all and was enjoyed by a gathering that filled Vincent chapel to the limit.

There was the distribution of special gifts and souvenirs in the form of booklets to members of the school. Among the special gifts were a purse for Mr. Kennedy, the sexton, another one for Miss Gertrude Sharp, the pianist; a picture for Miss Eunice Coddington from her class and a book for Miss Anna H. Smalley from her class.

First Baptist.

"Johnnie Doubter," a Christmas cantata, was given by members of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, last night, as the holiday entertainment, under the direction of William Holmes, who drilled them in the several parts. The lecture room of the church was filled to overflowing with children and friends of the church.

"Johnnie Doubter," in the person of Lawrence French, did not believe in Santa Claus and all the various other characters were employed to convince him of the error of his way. There were many of the Mother Goose characters in the cantata and each one had an appropriate song. The children sang and acted their parts well. William Holmes took the part of Santa Claus and kept everyone in good humor. The characters were as follows:

Santa Claus, William Holmes; Mother Goose, Miss Carro Bird; Uncle Sam, Ernest Conover; Mother Hubbard, Miss Henrietta Winn; Old Woman in the Shoe, Miss Violet Van Winkle; Miss Nobody, Miss Elizabeth Winn; Bo-Peep, Miss Beulah Van Winkle; Little Miss Muffett, Dorothy Hall; Red Riding Hood, Miriam Hall; fairy, Emeline Manning; Jack, Harold Marsh; Jill, Miss Elsie Moore; Joe Shiner, Herbert Hillman; Boy Blue, Elmer French; John Bull, Randolph Chandler; German, Leslie Powlison; Scotchman, Gledon Fountain; French, William Flanders; Irishman, Stanley Robins; Italian, Fred Serrell; Negro, Jere Manning; newsboy, Robert Butler; teacher, Miss Marguerite Serrell; pupils, the Misses Lucy and Mabel Douglass; Hazel and Belle Godown; Carrie Demler, Ruth Moore, Alice Drake, Edna White and Alice Chandler; Mr. Millionaire, Guyon Fountain.

After the entertainment there was the usual distribution of candy to the members of the school. Howard Case presided at the piano during the rendition of the cantata.

The primary department of the First Baptist church Sunday-school enjoyed their Christmas festival yesterday afternoon, when an interesting programme was presented under the direction of Mrs. J. A. Powlison, superintendent, assisted by the other teachers in the department. The programme opened with a carol, "Two Little Eyes," the singing of Luther's Cradle Hymn, and a carol, "I Wonder," by the department. It was reported that the names of two new babies have been added to the cradle roll.

Then followed a semi-chorus, "The Bethlehem Baby," by Mildred Wise, Dorothy Lee, Erma Gordon Dobbins, Anna Sherwin and Ruth Johnson. A feature was a piano solo by Beth Martin. The children then spent some time playing various games, after which they sang "Christ Was Once a Little Baby." There was the distribution of gifts, every child being remembered.

Trinity Church.

The infants, the Beginners and the tots of the Cradle Roll of the Trinity church Sunday-school had a good time without a tree yesterday afternoon. There are 143 Infants, 67 Beginners and 41 Cradlers, and pretty nearly all of them were there and had a lovely time. Mrs. Josie Tier, head of the Infant Department, was in charge, assisted by all the teachers. Mrs. H. E. Gayle was in charge of the Beginners'.

The programme included carols by the Beginners, and exercises in which Wilma Tier, Elsie Kurzhals, Dorothy Seader, Grace Soden, Marjory Dufford, Walter Conrad, Warren Kellogg, Margaret Smith, Leroy Mowen, George Weida and Floyd Emmons took part; recitations, by Raymond Stevens and Edson Day; and refreshments.

The Christmas committee of the church is made up of C. M. Dolliver, chairman; Mrs. Frank Woodruff, John Hoffman and Edgar Sheppard.

Grace P. E. Church.

The main school pupils of Grace P. E. church had their annual Christmas tree party yesterday from 5 o'clock until 8. There was no set programme. Under the guidance of the teachers, the children romped and played games, ate refreshments, received a book and a box of candy, and romped and played again. There was a big tree on the platform of the parish house lecture room, from where the gifts were given out. As is customary at Grace, the children gave, instead of receiving, things of value. They made an offering for the diocesan poor two weeks ago, which went to the episcopal headquarters at Trenton.

All the teachers assisted Supt. Howard Fleming and Assistant Superintendent J. Paul Nolting in making the party a pleasant affair.

Crescent Avenue.

The entertainment for the members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Sunday-school was held yesterday afternoon and comprised a fine series of moving pictures. There were many new subjects presented and they were greatly enjoyed by the young people. William D. Murray was in charge of the gathering and he was assisted by teachers from the Primary department, Miss Halloway, Miss Dewey, Miss Brown, Mis Vandeventer and Miss Harmon.

Park Avenue Baptist.

Owing to various circumstances it was impossible for the Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church to arrange its usual form of entertainment consisting of home talent. Instead professional talent from New York furnished the programme of instrumental music, sleight-of-hand and humorous recitations. Afterward there was distribution of gifts. George E. Hall, superintendent of the school, was in charge of the affair.

During the evening there was a surprise in the nature of a presentation of a handsome Bible to Rev. A. E. Finn by the members of his class of young men. The presentation was made by Harry C. Runyon on behalf of the class.

Seventh-Day Baptist.

The Sabbath-school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church enjoyed an excellent Christmas programme at the church, last night, and the attendance was large. Two Christmas trees, one at either end of the platform, were well filled with ornaments and brilliantly illuminated with small incandescent lights.

The programme opened with an organ and piano selection, by Miss Jessie Utter and Miss Mabel Maxson. The school sang "Joy to the World," which was followed with a reading; "The German Legend of Christians," by Miss Nellie Williams; a recitation, "The Fir Tree," by Miss Celia Cottrell; a song, "The Christmas Spirit," school; a dialogue, "What the Christmas Tree Means," Miss Helen Rogers, fairy; the Misses Hannah Shaw, Helen Shaw, Dorothy Hubbard, Mary Hunting, Celia and Beatrice Cottrell, Katherine Shaw and Laura Stillman.

"Song of the Fairies," was given by eight girls from the primary department, followed by recitations, "The Pine Tree Bough," by Miss Dorothy Hubbard; "When Addy Lights the Tree," by Miss Hannah Shaw, and a song, "What Say the Bells," by the school. A feature was an original Christmas story by the pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw. The story was largely the personal experience of Mr. Shaw when he lived on the western frontier. The school then sang, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," after which the gifts were distributed to the school, and the programme closed with a selection on the piano and organ by Miss Utter and Miss Maxson.

The entertainment committee consisted of J. B. Cottrell, chairman; Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Mary Ross, Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis and C. L. Ford. The refreshment committee consisted of Mrs. F. J. Hubbard, chairman; Mrs. Asa F. Randolph and Miss Mildred Greene.

Holy Cross P. E. Church.

Carols, led by the full church choir, were the features of the Holy Cross Sunday-school Christmas tree gathering last night. The observance was held in the church. A big Christmas tree, strung with colored electric lights, was in front of the altar.

As is customary at Holy Cross church, the children brought gifts for the poor, instead of receiving them. The offering, three basketful of substantials, will go to the Children's Home. Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, was too ill to come out, and J. B. Calder took his place in speaking. H. Raymond Loder was in charge of the music.

Bethel Chapel.

The Bethel chapel Sunday-school held its Christmas festival last night at the chapel and it was enjoyed by a large number of persons. The entertainment which was furnished by the young people of the school was in charge of Miss Helen Lovell, teacher of the boys' primary class and superintendent of the Boys' Club of the chapel. A. W. Duxbury, superintendent of the Sunday-school, acted as master of ceremonies and Mrs. Harry Lovell presided at the piano. The programme consisted of a number of recitations, drills and choruses by the girls and a march by the Boys' Club.

After the exercises Santa Claus, empersonated by Richard Lovell, distributed from a handsomely trimmed tree numerous Christmas presents to the little folks. A box of candy was also given to each member of the school, while all who were present were served with refreshments of cream and cake.

Warren Chapel.

Moving pictures formed both the afternoon and evening entertainments at Warren chapel. The children assembled in the afternoon in charge of Miss Swain and Miss Laura Lovell and after enjoying the wonderful moving views exhibited were treated to oranges and candy. The boys received toys and the girls books. At night another series of motion pictures was given before the older members of the chapel and afterward ice cream and cake was served. In the absence of Mrs. Snyder, chairman of the entertainment committee, of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. Geo. Demarest presided. Her assistants were Mrs. Gibson Smith, Mrs. F. G. Burner, Mrs. David Sharp, Mrs. William Bacon, Mrs. Elmer Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Wheeler and Mrs. John Higgins. William Demarest had charge of the ice cream.

Insulted by Negro Soldier.

El Reno, Okla., Dec. 28.—Mrs. T. S. Clifford, wife of a prominent physician, and her sister, Mrs. S. H. Clarke, were trying to pass a negro soldier of the Twenty-fifth infantry yesterday afternoon when he grabbed Mrs. Clifford around the waist and threw her into the street, exclaiming that the sidewalk belonged to him. Mrs. Clarke screamed and the assailant fled. News of the attack spread rapidly. The entire Police Department, reinforced by several hundred men and boys, searched the town and surrounding country, but last night the chase was given up. The negro was in uniform and must return to the post or become a deserter. Word was sent to Fort Reno and all absentees were noted. Both Mrs. Clifford and her sister are positive they can identify the man and they will go to Fort Reno tomorrow and try to find him among the soldiers who were out of the post when the assault occurred.

—William McNamarra, charged with drunkenness and disorder, was released under suspended sentence this morning in the city court.

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

INTERESTING INFORMATION BY OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

EFFORT TO RECLAIM LAND

Important National Movement Begun in Portugal—Natural Advantages Awaiting Development in Mexican State.

LISBON, PORTUGAL.

Portugal has started in on a system of land reclamation which, if as successful as it promises to be, must result in similar movements in various parts of Europe.

In the south of Portugal a serious attempt is being made with some chance of success to bring back into cultivation a large tract of land. This country being essentially agricultural, any steps to reclaim land that has gone out of cultivation, estimated at 4,314,000 hectares (about 10,000,000 acres), or 44 per cent. of the total area of Portugal, are a move in the right direction.

Some energetic members of society in the district of Serpa, in combination with the municipal authorities, have set to work upon 100,000 acres, dividing it up into allotments of 15 acres each and letting it at a nominal rent, calculated according to the estimated value of the land, which has, as it were, four classifications, the highest quit rent being placed at $3.20 and the lowest at 40 cents per allotment, free of local rates and taxes for ten years.

Quite a heterogeneous mixture of settlers has already taken possession of their tenements. Carpenters, masons, doctors, chemists, barbers, seamstresses, tailors, and even beggars, figure in the list.

One of the chief difficulties to be overcome before making the allotments was to deal with the proprietary rights of bee keepers, who centuries ago had certain privileges conferred upon them whereby they did a thriving trade in honey and wax. This trade has in later times diminished, owing to the destruction of the floral produce of the land, chiefly by firing when portions thereof were cleared for wheat and other cereals. Matters have been amicably settled for the bee keepers and the embryo agriculturists. The success of the scheme as far as it has gone has stirred the ambition of the residents in a large part of the north of Portugal, where a project on similar lines is being set on foot to bring back into cultivation something like half a million acres.

BAD TEETH OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

FRANKFORT, GERMANY.

The result of an examination of the teeth of the pupils of a school at Hochheide is very suggestive. Of the 1,020 children examined 482 were boys and 538 girls. The boys had 12,826 defective teeth and only 2,116 sound ones. Only 19 of the boys had perfectly sound sets of teeth, 397 sets were unfit for chewing food, with 192 boys disturbances in their general condition were observed, due to decayed teeth. Of the teeth of the girls 15,745 were found defective and only 931 sound. Only 16 girls had perfect sets of teeth; 205 girls were suffering in their general condition in consequence of decayed teeth.

The total result showed that 90 per cent. of all the teeth examined were defective; only 35 out of 1,020 children had sound sets of teeth. In 396 children a poor bodily constitution was due to poor teeth. The result shows that caries, or decay of the teeth, has extremely noxious consequences.

RESOURCEFUL MEXICAN STATE.

JALAPA, MEXICO.

This region is rich in resources and full of promise.

The State of Veracruz is now of great interest to foreigners and will be for years to come. It includes both temperate and tropical zones and extends from the gulf coast to a mountain elevation of 10,000 feet. Thus soil and climate are varied. The markets of Jalapa, 4,600 feet high, have in season apples, peaches, pears, quinces, plums, grapes, oranges, lemons, figs, melons, etc., of the temperate zone, and mangos, zapotes, chirimollas, papayas, breadfruit, cocoanuts, nanches, pineapples, coffee, etc., of the tropics.

The map suggests the ease and profit of railroad extension. The suggested Mexican link in the Pan-American system will doubtless be under construction soon. It will be built a few miles back from the coast along the foothills, tapping fertile and well-populated valleys, extending back into the sierras, opening and settling a most healthful and delightful region. The state lacks many things that are prime necessities elsewhere. There is need of good roads and city improvement crusades. In many sections carriages, two or four wheeled, are unknown. Enterprising automobile builders are eager to supply this territory. It would be much to the point if they would combine and inaugurate a good-roads movement, thus creating a recognizable demand. It is hard to convince the natives that there is any improvement over the saddle for pleasure or the burro or cargadore porter for business. Yet it is a beautiful state, rich in its possessions and possibilities. It needs no booming; it does need capital.

PLANTATIONS IN SAMOA.

SAMOA, APIA.

Land suitable for planting can be leased here from natives from 25 to 75 cents per annum. The area of freehold land is limited and the cost varies from $10 to $20 per acre, clearing expenses running up to $14. The cost of planting cocoanuts and bringing them up to the eighth year, when a return can be expected, is $135 per acre. The cost for cacao plantations until the sixth year runs from $150 to $175 per acre, and rubber $150 to $165. Vanilla does not pay to fertilize.

In Samoa most of the land near the water front is owned by the natives and is studded thickly with cocoanut palms, planted without order or system. They extend back from the coast for miles to an elevation not exceeding 600 feet, and in such proximity to the coast that the palms get the benefit of the moisture carried by the trade winds from the sea. In plantation systems the trees are placed 20 to 30 feet apart. The average yield per acre is from 700 to 1,000 pounds, though 1,200 to 1,400 pounds is not an uncommon yield. The large planters use the hot-air system for drying copra, and copra thus treated can be used for confectionery purposes. The average price of copra in Apia during 1905 was $67.50 per ton, delivered f. o. b. ship.

COOPERATIVE FARMING.

SEVILLE, SPAIN.

Cooperative farming associations in Germany are interesting the Spanish people.

At the close of 1905, 17,162 cooperative farming associations existed in the German empire, comprising a membership of over 1,000,000 farmers; 16,230 of the above number of associations were confederated. Out of the 9,411 associations operating in Prussia 6,059 facilitated credits to farmers, 776 attended to the supply and demand, and 1,728 to dairying. In Bavaria 2,613 of the 3,294 associations dedicated their work to furnishing credits to agricultural undertakings, 234 to supply and demand, 247 to dairying, and 200 to various other purposes, all, however, fostering mutual assistance to husbandmen and thus redounding to their benefit.

The cooperative associations of credit expend loans amounting to, on the average, from $71,410,000 to $83,340,000 annually. In 1905 the cooperative bodies for the creation of demand purchased fertilizers, forage, seed, coal and other items amounting to $12,062,500. On the other hand, the centers of supply and dairying, which, in a comparatively short time, have entered a career of great prosperity, realized over $965,000 on their transactions.

CHARLES KARMINSKI.

Much Mail Goes Astray.

More than 11,000,000 pieces of mail went astray in the United States last year because they were not directed even well enough for the experts to decipher the names and addresses. Millions of this immense total went to the dead letter office, where a lot of it was opened, the addresses of the writers ascertained and the letters or packages returned. But in a good many cases the writer's address is never found and the letter is really "dead" when neither the sender nor the prospective receiver can be discovered.

Improvement in Photography.

An inventor has succeeded in evolving a novel improvement upon the ordinary celluloid film used for cinematographic purposes. The pictures are taken in a spiral manner upon circular glass plates, thereby enabling a long series comprising several hundred pictures to be obtained in a small space. The diameter of the plate is 15 inches, while the photographs themselves do not exceed half an inch in length. In this way it is possible to record a story lasting about four minutes upon one plate.

HARROWING RIDE IN A RUNAWAY AIRSHIP

AERONAUT TELLS OF VOYAGE ABOVE LAKE MICHIGAN.

CLOTHES FROZE TO BODY.

Capt. William Matteray Gives Graphic Account of Unwelcome Trip—Single Misstep Meant Plunge Into Eternity.

Gaylord, Mich.—Dressed in a natty, gray flannel yachting suit, Capt. William Matteray was seen the other morning at Wolverine shortly before he started off in search of his airship, the Columbia, which he left anchored to some trees in a big swamp 15 miles east of Wolverine. His experience, both while on board the disabled ship and after landing, will be enough to fill a book. He was nearly drowned three different times; encountered wild animals after making the landing, slept in the dense forest, miles from any human inhabitant, lost himself in the woods after waking and wandered around all day before he finally reached a place where he could be directed back to civilization.

Capt. Matteray was 25 years old on the day he started his famous trip. He is a native of Paris, France, where he got his early training. He has crossed the English channel by the air route. Has exhibited in the east and middle states and as far west as the Iowa cities. He gives a graphic description of his adventures.

"The crowd was so great at the fair grounds, I at first did not care to make the trip, on account of the high winds which I could see by the traveling clouds. The crowd, which had come over 100 miles to see the big ship, which had been on exhibition for two days, began to talk fake, and I saw no way out of it. I started to make the trip between 5:30 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, and in about two minutes after she got under way I ran into the high winds which threw the gasoline engine out of kilter. I was already over Green Bay. I got there so fast that landing was impossible. It began to get dark. I tried to land again, but got into the water. I threw out some ballast and rose above the clouds. The next time I tried to land it was in a big lake. I think it was Lake Michigan. I could see nothing but water.

"I had thrown the engine out shortly after I started, as I wished to save the lighter ballast to make a landing if I got a good chance.

"The next time when I arose I got into the higher atmosphere and my wet clothes froze to my body, the big gas bag was dripping, and as soon as we struck the higher air it was covered with a thick coating of ice. I expected to get killed any moment, but made up my mind I would stick till the finish, but was going to cut the ropes from the frame work of the ship and float with the gas bag if the worst came. The frame work was so frail that one misstep would have thrown me out into space.

"I was hungry and thirsty from being in the high air and nearly frozen and became exhausted, so I made a net out of the landing rope across the frame of the ship, tied myself to it and fell asleep. I must have slept a long time and was awakened by the basket striking on a tree. I untied myself, made a lasso out of the drag rope and after striking several trees finally got the rope over one and fastened it, climbing down to the ground and pulled the ship with me. Unfastening the canvas rudder I made a bed of it at the foot of the tree and went to sleep.

Again and Again He Was Dashed Into the Water.

"I was awakened in the night by a big black bear which came sniffing around, but he did not attempt to do any harm. I saw all kinds of wild animals and dozens of deer, which would give a stare at the big thing in the air and run away in alarm.

"I arose in the morning and walked around for four hours, covering about ten miles, and found myself at the starting point. Took another start and late yetserday arrived here in an exhausted condition. I am now going after the ship."

Capt. Matteray has been sailing the air for 15 years and has had several narrow escapes.

GLEANINGS.

Men go about the streets of Alexandria selling drinks. In one hand they carry their cup basket and in the other a can filled with coffee.

The strong feature of the New South Wales liquor law is when a person is found on licensed premises during prohibited hours he must go before the court and prove himself to be a traveler or regular boarder or submit to a fine.

NOTES ABOUT HOGS.

Large herds of swine should be divided, so that not more than a few dozen animals are kept together.

Each sow should have a separate pen for herself and her pigs.

The pens, troughs and all the surroundings of the hog should not only be cleaned frequently, but disinfected. The food for swine should be selected carefully.

Do not feed corn exclusively, and be careful to supply enough green food in the winter time.

Sorghum is especially recommended as a winter food.

Always heat the hog's food in cold weather, for the animal's comfort and well being.

Mob Seizer Tax Goods.

Olive Hill, Ky., Dec. 28.—Determined to prevent the collection of either principal or interest on railroad bonds issued sixty-six years ago for the construction of a road never built, the men of Carter and Elliott counties have formed a sort of Ku Klux band.

The first result was the invasion of this place early yesterday by an armed band, which went to the house of Levi White, collector of taxes, and forced him to turn over a stock of goods levied on for taxes. Then the band, which is said by some to have numbered fully one thousand men, celebrated by firing shots which frightened residents. Deputy Sheriff John Armstrong was shot in the foot, but it is believed the bullet was a wild one.

The trouble is due to litigation over taxes levied to pay on bonds issued sixty-six years ago to pay for the building of the Lexington and Big Sandy Railroad, which was never constructed. A recent test of the matter was made in court by Levi Oppenheimer, owning a store here, but he lost. His stock of goods was taken to be sold to satisfy the judgment and was removed to the tax collector's home.

Buying a Gift Book.

The principal of choice should in general follow the taste or need of the friend for whom you are selecting a book. Yet it is also well now and then to open a new channel of interest by giving a volume outside of your friend's habitual line. We are often thankful to a friend who has drawn us out of our mental sheep tracks. There are a few writers that stand as permanent figures in the modern literary world—writers who have given out seminal ideas that seed and beautify the field of thought. Chief among these men are Shakespeare, Carlyle, Ruskin, Emerson and Victor Hugo. Until a library possesses at least the best writings of these five men it is sadly deficient. You are doing kingly service when you make these men known to any thoughtful mind.—Edwin Markham in Success.

Miss Mary Staats, of New York, has returned from a visit with friends here.

Fred Dayton, of Mariners place, employed in the business office of the Newark Evening News, has been promoted to the position of cashier.

—James Cuzen, of West End, has built an elaborate toboggan slide for the son of Percy Stewart, of West Seventh street, and the boy is now anxiously awaiting a heavy fall of snow.

READING GIVES ORDER FOR 27 NEW ENGINES.

This With Directions for New Cars Will Tend to Help Out on the Freight Shortage.

The Reading Railway has just placed orders for 25 locomotives and 1,000 steel hopper coal cars of 100,000 pounds capacity. The order for the locomotives, which is for switching engines, has been placed with the Baldwin works and the car order with the Cambria Steel Company.

That the efforts of the railroads to meet the demands upon them for more cars is sometimes frustrated by the inability of the car builders to turn out the cars promptly is indicated by the statement made by President Baer yesterday in connection with this latest car order, that nearly 1,000 cars ordered by the company more than a year ago have not yet been delivered. While President Baer declined to name the delinquent car builders, it was ascertained that the cars whose delivery had been delayed were ordered in December, 1905, and consisted of about 900 coal cars and 11 of an original order for 80 passenger coaches.

Locomotive builders, by reason of the great crush of orders, are also behind in their deliveries, and 15 large freight locomotives, which were to be delivered to the Reading during the current month will not be ready for delivery until some time in January.

POPE PIUS X GIVES NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

The thoughtfulness of Pope Pius X for Christians in all parts of the world is beautifully exemplified in a signed portrait given to the Philadelphia North American as a New Year's greeting to the people of Pennsylvania. The portrait is inscribed in the Pope's own handwriting with the words of the opostolic benediction.

The portrait and inscription have been artistically reproduced in the most expensive photogravure process, and a copy of it, 11x15 inches, will be a part of every copy of the Sunday North American for December 30. No handsomer work of art and no more fitting souvenir of a great and good personage has ever been published.

Teh publication of the portrait of His Holiness is made with the consent of His Grace, Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia.

Copies of this artistic work are being displayed by all newsdealers.

Wounded Man Vengeful.

New York, Dec. 28.—Suffering from a dangerous bullet wound in his back, Matthew Leddy, a machinist, climbed from his cot in Bellevue hospital last night and fiercely attacked an old enemy, Patrick Hickey, when the latter was brought before him to be identified as the man who shot him. It required the efforts of four physicians and a policeman to ge the man back into his cot and keep him from again attacking Hickery. Leddy, who is twenty-five years old, and lives at No. 335 West Fortieth street, was shot by Hickery, the police say, while they were in an argument on a hay barge in the North river. Hicery was taken to Bellevue by Detective Sergeant Flood and led up to the cot occupied by Leddy. Without a word Leddy sprang upon Hicery before the physicians could prevent his action. The wounnded man had his fingers around Hickey's neck and was strangling him when Flood and the physicians tried to break his grip. "Let me alone!" shouted Leddy, "I will square this fight right now if I die for it." When at last they released the man's grip he sank back on his cot and for several moments was unable to speak from weakness. The physicians quieted the man, and when he found that it was useless to fight Leddy identified Hickey as the man who had shot him.

Wretched New York Paupers.

New York, Dec. 28.—Robert W. Hebberd, Commissioner of Public Charities, received yesterday from several persons who had visited Blackwell's Island on Christmas Day a bitter complaint about the wretched housing and care of the 5,000 inmates and the 1,000 men and women who are employed in the two hospitals and the almhouse, where the city's destitute are provided for. Mr. Hebbard himself characterized as "inhuman" some of the hardships which are now imposed on these helpless men and women, but said he was doing the best that was possible to be done under the circumstances. One of the places chiefly complained of was the old shed known as the "Klondike," where 800 to 1,000 aged and infirm men are daily herded together. It is a low, dismal pavilion, with scarcely any light or ventilation, where these men huddle in cold weather in an atmosphere that could hardly be endured for more than a few minutes by one accustomed to breathing pure air. There are not benches enough for all of the men who crowd in there and stormy days, and from daylight until bedtime they surge about moaning and muttering dismally.

Odd Blunders.

Anthony Trollope was heartily laughed at by his acquaintances for causing Andy Scott to "come whistling up the street with a cigar in his mouth." But what a slight error of this sort in comparison with Amelia B. Edwards' description in "Hand and Glove" of her hero "passing backward and forward like an overseer on a Massachusetts cotton plantation."

DILKS AND GADDIS LEAD BOWLING TOURNEY

"STEADY BILL" ALSO HOLDS THE INDIVIDUAL AVERAGE.

"Steady Bill" Dilks and his partner, P. L. Gaddis, captured three straight in the bowling tourney at McLaughlin's last night, thereby gaining the honor of first place among the contestants. Mack and Meyers comprised the team that went down before them and they were no mean opponents either. Dilks and Gaddis have now eight wins and but one loss to their credit while Dilks holds the individual average so far.

In other tourney games bowled last night, Nash and Skelly took two from Cunningham and Woolston and Vail and Myers took two from Felver and Reville. High score for the night was made by Dilks, a 211. Woolston was the only other man to make over 200.

The scores:

DR. WILSON AND U. S. SENATORSHIP.

Friends of Colonel Stevens Have Interview With University President.

Newark, Dec. 28.—Charles C. Black, of Jersey City; Robert Stevens, brother of Colonel Edwin A. Stevens, of Hoboken, and Franklin H. Halliday, the colonel's private secretary, paid a visit to Princton Wednesday and had an interview with President Woodrow Wilson, of the university. The object of the call was to get, if possible, a statement from Dr. Wilson regarding his attitude on the United States Senatorship question, with particular reference to the use of his name before the Democratic caucus as a candidate.

The visitors had a pleasant hour and a quarter with the university president, but they were reticent as to whether the journey was fruitful in the object sought to be accomplished. Mr. Halliday was asked today what Dr. Wison had to say on the Senatorial question, but he was reluctant to repeat any of the conversation that had passed between them. Pressed for an answer as to whether Dr. Wilson would be a candidate for Senator, Mr. Halliday said:

"Dr. Wilson some time in October made a public statement on that question, and I feel that I might say without any breach of confidence that yesterday he reiterated what he has already publicly said, namely, that he has not been, and would not be, a candidate for the United States Senatorship; that if the Democratic party had succeeded in electing a majority of the Legislature on joint ballot, and tendered him an election he could not, and would not, accept the same."

Whether Dr. Wilson, knowing that the Democrats are not in a position to elect a United States Senator, would permit his name to be used for a complimentary nomination, is a matter which Mr. Halliday did not discuss.

No Doctor for Mrs. Eddy.

New York, Dec. 28.—Reports emanating from Boston have been in circulation for several weeks that Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science, is under the constant care of a physician. According to the stories, she has had such attendance for several months and an effort has been made to show that she has had occasion to undergo a surgical operation. The tendency of such tales is to shake the belief of persons who are interested in Christian Science, for it is one of the principles of the cult that medical advice is never necessary. If it could be demonstrated that Mrs. Eddy did receive treatment from a regular physician it is pointed out that those opposed to her would be justified in saying she did not practise what she taught. Investigation of these stories was carefully made in every direction both in Boston and in Concord, N. H., where Mrs. Eddy resides, and it was ascertained that they were without foundation. They were denied also by all the authorities of the Christian Science church who were in touch with its administration. Both in Boston and elsewhere it was declared there never had been any reason for the reports; that Mrs. Eddy was in good health considering her advanced years, and that she never had summoned a physician.

GOLD IN BIG CHUNKS.

Indian Chief Says Legend of Tribe Tells of It.

Chief Good of the Nanaimo tribe says there has been a legend in his tribe for several generations that about the center of Vancouver Island there is a stream with a small falls. Over the falls gold descends all the time and if a basin is thrust into the water golden grains can be caught therein. "There," says the chief, "is plenty of the stuff that the white man worships in blind obliteration of all that is good and noble. At the base of the falls is almost a solid mass of gold and in earlier days many Indians cut away chunks to make bullets so that he might hunt and get his daily food."

It is a matter of history that in 1862 two Frenchmen left Victoria to hunt for the Midas stream. They returned some months later with well filled pokes, but money or persuasion could not induce them to make the trip again, and their faces blanched with terror when they spoke of this curious Eldorado. This bears out the superstition of the Indians that a terrible god holds guard over the treasure, that there is something supernatural, something dreadful about the golden river.

On this account few redskins have ever been induced to joint the white parties which from time to time have been made up to look for the source of the gold.

Which Did He Take?

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, was sauntering down a shady lane one day in the early summer when he met a tall, handsome youth who had just been graduated. He was poor but very intelligent. In all his courses he had taken honors, including athletics.

"Well, Smith," said Dr. Wilson, "through at last, eh?"

"Yes, sir," said the young man, smiling and blushing.

"And now what are you going to do?"

"I hardly know, sir. I have had two offers."

"Two? Wonderful!"

"Yes, sir. One from a scientific society, offering me a secretaryship at $5 a week and the other is from a baseball magnate offering me a five years' contract to pitch at $5,000 a season."

Once there was a man, says Harper's Weekly, who thought Uncle Russell Sage ought to stop work. He spoke to him about it. "Why get together any more money, Mr. Sage? You can't eat it; you can't drink it. What good will it do you?"

"Ever play marbles?" Uncle Russell asked.

"Yes, when I was a boy."

"Couldn't eat 'em, could you? Couldn't drink 'em, could you? No use to you, were they? What did you play marbles for?"

PRETTY YOUNG WOMAN HANDY WITH HER FISTS

Wife of Amateur Boxer Answers an Offensive Note with a Knockout Blow.

New York.—In a certain office building in this city is a cigar stand in the lower hallway, presided over by a young woman. She to-day is telling the young and the old men of the building, occupants of the various offices and daily acquaintances, how a young woman, a pretty blonde and wife of an amateur champion boxer, knocked out a fresh young man known to them all, whose father is a broker in the building.

The knockout took place the other day just after the closing of the stock exchange. The fair cigar counter attendant and the amateur champion's wife, who is the actress Julia Morrison, were conversing over the counter. They are friends. The broker's son, tall, handsome, but presuming, stopped to purchase a perfecto. On a finger of his right hand sparkled a brilliant diamond in a rare setting. The blonde gazed at the ring and admired it, saying so to her friend, as the young man lighted his cigar and turned away.

He overheard the whispered utterance and smiled upon the blonde.

Back Went His Head Before Her Right Fist.

Presently he returned, purchased half a dozen cigars and then nodded familiarly to the blonde young woman. As he leaned upon the counter he pressed a note into her hand and hurried away. The language was couched in such a manner as to be particularly offensive, and just as the blonde finished reading the epistle the broker's son reappeared.

He smiled. The blonde young woman smiled falsely. Encouraged by the cordial response to his smile he walked close up to her and began to speak in a low tone, when back went his head and off came his hat as the right fist of the young woman shot full into his face. Another blow was planted on the knockout point of the jaw sent the young man sprawling, his head striking the edge of an iron cuspidor and out he went.

"I guess that will hold that fellow for awhile," she said. Several men and two women stenographers of the building stopped on their way out to compliment the young woman.

The young man Miss Morrison struck threatened to cause her arrest, but a few minutes later the father stepped to the cigar stand, grasped Miss Morrison's hand and said:

"You were quite right. My son, I am sorry to say, acted like a pup, and you gave him only a part of what he deserved. There will be no trouble for you, I assure you, and if you wish it I will make him come to you here and publicly apologize."

STRANGELY LED TO BABY'S BODY

Parents of Drowned Child Impelled by Mysterious Force.

Clinton, Ia.—Guided by some strange power, Mr. and Mrs. James Donohue, of this city, journeyed to a wild spot on the shore of the Mississippi river and there found the body of their baby daughter, for which parties of men had been dragging the river for several days. The child was knocked from the deck of their houseboat and drowned and all efforts to recover the body had been unsuccessful.

The mysterious force led the grief-stricken parents to arise at five o'clock in the morning, although they had made no plans to do so. Without saying a word to each other they got into a skiff and the man began rowing down the stream. In silence they continued for two miles until they reached Beaver island. On the upper side of the island stands a great cottonwood tree, whose branches rise high above the other foliage on the shore. Straight for the tree the skiff went, and when its bow touched the gnarled roots, which extend into the water, father and mother turned, to see the little dress of the baby caught on a jagged root. Just under the surface the body lay on the sand.

Another thing which has aroused the curiosity of students of the mysterious is the fact that the body was found on the third anniversary of the baby's birth.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT, 1905 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

He ran faster, leaving the boy behind now, but while he was still far off he saw an Indian, knife in hand, run to her and strike her down. Then before he had gained the Indian, the savage had gathered the long hair into his left hand, made a swift circling of the knife with his right, and the thing was done before his eyes. He screamed in terror as he ran, and now he was near enough to be heard. The Indian at his cry arose and for one long second shook, almost in his face as he came running up, the long, shining yellow hair with the gory patch at the end. Before his staring eyes the hair was twisting, writhing, and undulating like a golden flame licking the bronzed arm that held it. And then, as he reached the spot, the Indian, with a long yell of defiance and a final flourish of his trophy, ran off to other prizes.

He stood a moment, breathless and faint, looking with fearful eyes down at the little lifeless still figure at his feet. One slender bare arm was flung out as if she had grasped at the whole big earth in her last agony.

The spell of fear was broken by the boy, who came trotting up. He had given way to his tears now, and was crying loudly from fright. Joel made him take the little girl and sit under a cedar out of sight of the spot.

He was never able to recall the events of that day, or of the months following, in anything like their proper sequence. The effort to do so brought a pain shooting through his head. It was the moment when the yellow hair had waved in his face everything had kept a ghastly pitch thereafter. He remembered each incident and each emotion. All else is a blur. He reached, in consequent memory, a state of vividness.

He remembered later that he had buried the child on the other side of the hill, where a clump of cedars grew, and he had cut a piece of sandstone for a stone that the Indian had brought back from a distant camp. By her side he had found the scattered contents of the little bundle she had carried, a small Bible, a locket, a worn gold bracelet, and a picture of herself as he had known her, a half-tinted daguerreotype set in a gilt oval, in a square rubber case that shut with a snap. The little limp-backed Bible had lain open on the ground in the midst of the other trinkets. He remembered picking these things up and rolling them in the blue silk handkerchief, and then he had twice driven away an Indian who, finding no other life, came up to kill the two children huddled at the foot of the cedar.

Some of the men had camped on the spot. Others had gone to Hamblin's ranch near the Meadows, where the children were taken. He had sent the boy there with them, and he could recall distinctly the struggle he had with the little fellow, for the boy had wished not to be taken from the girl, and had fought valiantly with fists and feet, and his sharp little teeth. The little girl with her mother's bundle he had taken to another ranch farther south in the Pine mountains. He told the woman the child was his own, and that she was to be kept until he came again.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Host of Israel Goes Forth to Battle

He went north in answer to the call for soldiers. He went gladly. It promised activity—and company.

The day he reached Salt Lake City, Joel Rae was made major of militia. The following day, he attended the meeting at the tabernacle. He needed for reasons he did not fully explain to himself, to receive fresh assurance of Brigham's infallibility, of his touch with the Holy Ghost, of his godliness as well as his might; to be caught once more by the compelling magnetism of his presence, the flash of his eye, and the inciting tones of his voice. All this he found.

Joel Rae was again under the sway of his old warlike feelings. Brigham had revived his fainting faith. He went out into the noise and hurry of war preparations in a sort of intoxication. Underneath he never ceased to be conscious of the dreadful specter that would not be gone—that stood impassive and immovable as one of the mountains about him, waiting for him to come to it and face it and live his day of reckoning—the day of his own judgment upon himself. But he drank thirstily of the martial draught and lived the time in a fever of tumultuous gladsomeness to the awful truth.

Forces were sent into Echo canyon, the narrow gorge between the mountains through which an army would have to pass. On the east side men were put to building stone ramparts as a protection for riflemen. On the west, where the side was sloping, they dug pits for the same purpose. They also built dams to throw large bodies of water along the west side of the canyon so that an army would be forced to the east side, and here at the top of the cliff great quantities of boulders were placed so that a slight leverage would suffice to hail them down upon the army as it marched below.

When word came that the invaders had crossed the Utah line, Brigham sent forward a copy of his proclamation and a friendly note of warning to the officer in command. In this he directed that officer to retire from the Territory by the same route he had entered it; adding, however, should you deem this impracticable and prefer to remain until spring in the vicinity of your present position at Black's fork or Green river, you can do so in peace and unmolested on condition that you deposit your arms and ammunition with Lewis Robinson, quartermaster general of the Territory, and leave as soon in the spring as the roads will permit you to march. And should you fall short of provisions they will be furnished you upon making the proper application." The officer who received this note had replied somewhat curtly that the forces he commanded were in Utah by order of the President of the United States and that their future movements would depend wholly upon orders issued by competent military authority. Thus the issue was forced.

In addition to the defense of Echo canyon, certain agressive moves were made. To Joel Rae was allotted command of one of these. His orders promised all he could wish of action. He read them and felt something like his old truculent enthusiasm.

"You will proceed with all possible dispatch without injuring your animals to the Green River ford near the bend of Bear river, to east of this place. When there, by the road, send scouts you will think best to ascertain if the invading troops have passed that way. Should they have, you will take a concealed route and place yourself in their front, ascertaining the strength of the troops proceed at once to and take, if really possible so, the ford against the enemy's attempt to cross. Use every exertion to slaughter their animals and destroy their wagons. Burn the wagons and, if you can, keep them from sleeping, by harassing them with fire. Kill the road by which the enemy is traversing river for its whole length. Watch for opportunities to run the guns on their wind, that we may be able to employ their guns if possible. Leave no grass before them that can be burned. Keep your men together as much as possible, and guard against surprise. God bless you and give you success.

YOUR BROTHER IN CHRIST."

Forty-four men were placed under his command to perform this work, and all of them were soon impressed, even to alarm, by the very evident reliance of their leader upon the God of Israel rather than upon any merely human wisdom of his own.

The first capture was not difficult. After an all-night ride they came up with a supply-train of 25 wagons drawn by oxen. The captain of this train was ordered to "go the other way" until he reached the states. He started, but as he retraced his steps as often as they moved away, they at length burned his train and left him.

And so the campaign went forward. As the winter came on colder, the scouts brought in moving tales of the enemy's discomfiture. Colonel Alexander of the Federal forces, deciding that the canyons could be defended by the Saints, planned to approach Salt Lake City over a roundabout route to the north. He started in heavy snow, cutting a road through the greasewood and sage brush. Often his men made but three miles a day, and his supply-train was so long that sometimes half of it would be camped for the night before the rear wagons had moved. As there was no cavalry in the force the hosts of Israel harassed them sorely on this march, on one day consecrating 800 head of their oxen and driving them to Salt Lake.

Albert Sidney Johnston, commanding the expedition, had also suffered greatly with his forces. The early snows deprived his stock of forage, and the unusual cold froze many oxen and mules.

Lieut. Col. Cooke of the Second Dragoons, with whom traveled the newly appointed governor, was another to suffer. At Fort Laramie so many of his animals had dropped out that numbers of his men were dismounted, and the ambulances used to carry grain. Night after night they huddled at the base of cliffs in the fearful eddies of the snow, and heard above the blast the piteous cries of their famished and freezing stock. Day after day they pushed against the keen blades of the wind, toiling through frozen clouds and stinging ice blasts. The last 35 miles to Fort Bridger had required 15 days, and at one camp on Black's fork, which they called the "camp of Death," 500 animals perished in a night.

Nor did the hardships of the troops end when they had all reached what was to be their winter quarters. Still a hundred and fifteen miles from the City of the Saints, they were poorly housed against the bitter cold, poorly fed, and insufficiently clothed for the burning of the trains by the Lord's hosts had to feed all supplies.

Reports of this distress were duly carried to Brigham and published to the Saints. Their soldiers had made good their resolve to prevent the Federal army from passing the Wasatch mountains. Aggressive operations ceased for the winter, and the greater part of the militia returned to their homes. A small outpost of 50 men under the command of Major Joel Rae—who had earnestly requested this assignment—was left to guard the narrows of Echo canyon and to keep watch over the enemy during the winter. This officer was now persuaded that the Lord's hand was with them. For the enemy had been wasted away even by the elements from the time he had crossed the forbidden line.

In Salt Lake City that winter, the same opinion prevailed. They were henceforth to be the free and independent State of Deseret.

"Do you want to know," asked Brigham, in the tabernacle, "what is to be done with the enemy now on our borders? As soon as they start to come into our settlements, let sleep depart from their eyes until they sleep in death! Men shall be secreted along the route and shall waste them away in the name of the God of Battles. The United States will have to make peace with us. Never again shall we make peace with them."

CHAPTER XVIII.

How the Lion of the Lord Roared Soft.

But with the coming of spring some fever that had burned in the blood of the Saints from high to low was felt to be losing its heat. They had held the Gentile army at bay during the winter—with the winter's help. But spring was now melting the snows. Reports from Washington, moreover, indicated that a perverse generation in the states had declined to accept the decrees of Israel's God without further proofs of their authenticity.

With a view to determining this issue, Congress had voted more money for troops. Three thousand men were to march to the reinforcement of the army of Johnston on Black's fork; forty-five hundred wagons were to transport their supplies; and 50,000 oxen and 4,000 mules were to pull these wagons. War, in short, was to be waged upon this Israel hidden in the chamber of the mountains. To Major Rae, watching on the outposts of Zion from behind the icy ramparts of Echo canyon, the news was welcome, even enlivening. The more glory there would be in that ultimate triumph which the Lord was about to secure for them.

In Brigham and the other leaders, however, this report induced deep thought. And finally, on a day, they let it be known that there could no longer be any thought of actual war with the armies of the Gentile.

When he heard that the new governor, who had been in the snow with Johnston's army all winter, was to enter Salt Lake City and take his office—a Gentile officer to sit on the throne of Brigham—he felt that the Ark of the Covenant had been thrown down. "Let us not," he implored Brigham in a letter sent him from Echo canyon, "be again dragooned into servile obedience to any one less than the Christ of God."

But Brigham's reply was an order to pass the new governor through Echo canyon. According to the terms of this order he was escorted through at night, in a manner to convince him that he was passing between the lines of a mighty and far-flung host. Fires were kindled along the heights and the small force attending him was cunningly distributed and duplicated, a few of its numbers going ahead from time to time, halting the rest of the party and demanding the countersign.

Joel Rae found himself believing that he could now have been a fiercer Lion of the Lord than Brigham was; for he would have fought, while Brigham was stooping to petty strategies—as if God were needing to rely upon deceit.

Late in June the army of Johnston descended Emigration canyon, passed through the streets of the city and camped on the River Jordan. But, to the deep despair of one observer, these invaders committed no depredation or overt act. After resting inoffensively two days on the Jordan, they marched 40 miles south to Cedar valley, where Camp Floyd was established.

Thus, no one fully comprehending how it had come about, peace was seen suddenly to have been restored. The people, from Brigham down, had been offered a free pardon for all past treasons and seditions if they would return to their allegiance to the Federal government; the new officers of the Territory were installed, sons of perdition in the seats of the Lord's mighty; and sermons of wrath against Uncle Sam ceased for the moment to resound in the tabernacle. Early in July, Brigham ordered the people to return to their homes. They had offered these as a sacrifice, even as Abraham had offered Isaac, and the Lord had caught them a timely ram in the thicket.

In the midst of the general rejoicing, Joel Rae was overwhelmed with humiliation and despair.

Off to the south was the desert. There he could be alone; there face God and his own conscience and have his inmost soul declare the truth about himself. In his sadness he would have liked to lead the people with him, lead them away from some evil, some falsity that had crept in about them; he knew not what it was nor how it had come, but Zion had been defiled. Something was gone from the Church, something from Brigham, something from himself—something, it almost seemed, even from the God of Israel. When the summer waned, his plan was formed to go to one of the southern settlements to live. Brigham had approved. The Church needed new blood there.

He rode out of the city one early morning in September, facing to the south over the rolling valley that lay between the hills now haunting their first autumn colors. He was in haste to go, yet fearful of what he should meet there.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Farmer Orator Martine.

Farmer Orator Martine, who came near being elected to Congress in the Fifth District, last month, frankly says he is not a candidate for Governor. He has no special liking for the office, would not care for the position if it were offered him, as it has been the ambition of his life to go to Washington rather than to Trenton. As for running for office again, he never expects to do it. There is no reason to doubt that Mr. Martine means just what he says, and yet if he were called by the rank and file of the Democratic party to carry their banner, there is hardly a question but that he would take it in hand and make as fierce a fight for it as his strength would permit. He has suffered nothing but defeat, but in no degree has his devotion to Democratic principles and to honest politics abated. He is in no wise responsible for the suggestion that he be nominated for Governor. It came originally from former United States Senator Blodgett. At the present time the Democratic party hardly knows whether it is entirely free from bossism or not; whether it must look to the "same old gang" for its candidates or select its own. For this reason no one can accurately foretell whether Martine will have a chance to become a candidate or not. Whenever the people have called him he has always responded, but he is not of the kind that is bossed and driven.—Newark Evening News.

Wants A Business-Like Administration.

Mayor-elect Fisk, of Plainfield, talks like a man who is going to give his city a straightforward and business-like adminisration. He declined to participate in the Common Council caucus, but he took advantage of the opportunity to give the members some valuable advice and suggestions in a series of "Don'ts" which the Plainfield councilmen will do well to heed. Mr. Fisk's most timely advice is that in which he cautioned the councilmen not to uermit themselves to be used to pull anybody's chestnuts out of the fire. It is too frequently the case that councilmen allow themselves to be used as catspaws for this purpose, and they never realize it until the other fellows get the chestnuts, and do not even give the councilmen the price of arnica to ease the pain of the burned fingers. If the Plainfield councilmen shall adhere strictly to the lines laid down by Mayor-elect Fisk, and if they work in harmony with him for the best interests of the city in general and not for individual interests they will give Plainfield such an administration as will convince the voters that they made no mistake when they entrusted them with the reins of government. The affairs of a municipality should be conducted strictly along business lines. This is apparently the view taken by Mayor-elect Fisk, and he should have the earnest and enthusiastic backing of the members of City Council.—Elizabeth Journal.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mme. Bernhardt and Signora Duse have a mutual horror of being alone while traveling.

Mrs. Felix Adler is no less active for reform than her husband. As chairman of a special committee of the Woman's Municipal League she is working for cleaner streets in New York.

Mrs. Anna C. Spreckels has filed an application with the San Francisco board of works for a permit to reconstruct the Spreckels mansion at the southwest corner of Clay street and Van Ness avenue at an estimated cost of $200.

Miss Jane Thornewill, sister of Lady Burton, enjoys the distinction not only of being a wonderful bridge player—she is sometimes King Edward's partner at the game—but of being one of the few women in English society who, like Mr. Chamberlain, can wear monocles with distinction.

Mrs. Caroline Bache Barnes, a great-granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin, is seventy-two years old, but never fails to take a daily spin on her bicycle, sometimes making a twenty mile jaunt. Mrs. Barnes is a professional nurse and is regarded as the youngest old woman in Vineland, N. J., where she resides.

There is living in Norway, Me. the pioneer orange shipper of California, Mrs. Rebecca Warren. Mrs. Warren, who is seventy, went to San Francisco on Vanderbilt's steamer, the North Star, and speculated in land. In fifteen years she had $17,000 at interest. She was the first orange grower to ship fruit by the carload out of the State, beginning with cattle cars, which she has cleaned out and loaded. She later married Mr. Warren, and their brand of oranges was known as the "W. H. W."

"Congo Stories All Lies."

New York, Dec. 28.—"I have no great love for King Leopold," said R. C. Mathot, a consulting engineer, who arrived from Antwerp yesterday on board the steamship Zealand of the Red Star line, but I believe in the square deal, and, from a twelve years' residence in the Vongo, I know that the stories now being circulated are atrocious falsehoods. There has been no mutilation of natives and no ill treatment of them. The lies that are being circulated about the Congo I believe to be inspired by a clique of British financiers to serve their own ends."

A COMBINATION OF QUALITIES.

Go for the thing you want. You can get anything you ask for providing you make a straightforward appeal.

If you wish to increase the value of your business it can be done by persistent and effective advertising.

Intelligent management of your advertising is the most important branch of your business. Upon it depends your lasting success.

You cannot afford to cease advertising. The moment you do, the gap will be filled by your energetic competitor.

Neither can you afford to advertise spasmodically. It is not the fellow who sprints that first twenty yards and then stops for breath, who wins the race; it's the one who keeps "plugging."

The secret of success in advertising is not one thing alone; it is a combination of qualities. First, the idea, means that what you have to offer the public must have actual value.

IDEAS OF HEAVEN.

The Romans believed in the Elysian fields of the Greeks.

The Haitians locate heaven in one of the beautiful valleys of their island.

The Assyrians believe heaven is in the bowels of the earth or far away in the east.

Some natives of the south Pacific think heaven a place where they will be white.

The Greek belief, according to Socrates, was that the pious went to heaven, like prisoners set free, to dwell in unclouded peace.

According to the ancient astronomers, heaven was seven or eight solid spheres, with a planet for the center of each. Some even ran the number up to seventy.

The Egyptians thought heaven to be on many islands at the foot of the the Milky way. Those worthy spent the time harvesting beans and in feasting, singing and playing.

New York, with the longest water line of any city on earth, has the unenviable reputation of having the poorest, most out of repair, ragged, tumbledown, and disreputable water front of them all. This condition is little varied excepting for a short distance at the Battery.—New York Herald.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Books of Travel and History Recently Added to the Public Library.

Bradley, A. G.—Sketches from old Virginia.

"A series of sketches relating to the period covered by fifteen years or so following the late war. The picturesque, humorous and pathetic side of life in the Old Dominion have found expression in the stories here collected."

Browning, Oscar.—Guelphs and Chibellines: a short history of mediaeval Italy, 1250-1409.

"A very able book." Westminster gazette.

"A vivid picture of mediaevai Italy." Standard.

Compton, Herbert.—Indian life in town and country. (Our Asiatic neighbors.)

Dawson, Samuel Edward.—St. Lawrence basin and its borderlands.

"Mr. Dawson is not only a painstaking chronicler, but a writer with a true gift of style. In spite of the mass of geographical detail, the interest never flaggs. . . . . His style is always clear and picturesque, and the wealth of scientific detail is never allowed to obscure the narrative. Illustrated throughout with excellent maps." Spectator.

Dickinson, G. Lowes.—Letters from a Chinese official.

"This little book presents an estimate of the Anglo-Saxon from the point of view of a Chinaman, and is calculated to make the American reader wonder whether we have really reached the high socal and political organization that we pride ourselves upon having attained." Publisher's note.

Eggleston, Edward.—New ctneury history of the United States.

"The last work of the author, the final editing of this book being done by the author's brother, Mrs. George Cary Eggleston, who is also well known for his literary work."

Foreman, John.—Philippine Islands. Ed. 3, rev. & enl.

"In addition to presenting a revised, comprehensive, cyclopaedic general history of the Philippine Islands, this third edition of Mr. Foreman's work devotes several chapters to an account of our administration there since Feb. 6, 1899. . . . . The later events, civil and military, are carefully and lucidly narrated." New York Times.

Hopkins, Edward Washburn.—Within the purdah.

Hulbert, Homer B.—Passing of Korea.

"It is an important and absorbing book covering the whole history of Korea from the earliest times, with an exhaustive account of the manners, customs and personality of the country."

Humphrey, Seth K.—The Indian dispossessed.

"Describes the treatment by the U. S. Government during the last three decades of the Reservation, or peaceful Indian. The book consists principally of extracts from the reports of Indian agents, and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, connected by a thread of narrative." Dial, Jan. 1, '06.

Menpes, Mortimer.—World's children: colored illustrations, with text by Dorothy Menpes.

"One of the most exquisitely illustrated books we can recall. There are one hundred illustrations of typical children of every well-known country of the world."

Moore, John Bassett.—American diplomacy.

"This book is stimulating to one's patriotic ardor; it presents a fine record and it is certainly clearly set forth in sound and straightforward English. It would appear not unreasonable to suppose that such omissions as have been noted may have caused the emphasis to be improperly distributed." William E. Dodd in N. Y. Times, Dec. 2, 1905.

Quintard, Charles Todd, Bishop of Tennessee.—Dr. Quintard, Chaplain C. S. A. and leading Bishop of Tennessee; his story of the war (1861-'65).

"Presents the Southern side."

Robinson, James Harvey.—Readings in European history.

"Extracts illustrating the progress of culture in western Europe since the German invasions."

Root, F. H., and Connelly, W. E.—Overland stage to California.

Russell, Norman.—Village life in India.

Schafer, J.—History of the Pacific northwest.

"Leaves the impression that it is the work of one who knows his field and whose conclusions may be relied upon. The author evidently believes economy in style and accuracy in statement are virtues to be practiced even when writing primarily for young readers." Publisher's note.

Schillings, C. G.—Flashlights in the jungle.

"It is probably no exaggeration to say that this is the most remarkable book of wild animal photography that has ever been printed, but there our praise is inclined to stop. We can commend the laborious efforts of Mr. Schillings in gathering his elaborate scientific data, but we can hardly praise his narrative or descriptive skill." Dial, Ap. 1, 1906.

Scott, R. F.—Voyage of the Discovery. 2v.

"Easily takes rank among the foremost books of travel and discovery which a half-century has brought out, and it will be read with the same pleasure that both old and young like to associate with the reading of Livingstone and Kane." Nation.

Snider, Denton J.—America's ten years' ar.

Weale, B. Y. Putnam.—Re-shaping of the far east. 2v.

"Despite some loose history, exaggerated statements, and rather wild speculations, the work is the best account of twentieth-century China in existence, and affords useful, though far from infallible hints as to the possibilities of the next decade in the Far East." Athenaeum, Feb. 17, 1906.

Zimmern, Alice.—Old tales from Rome.

"Story of Aeneas and other tales founded on the poems of Virgil, Livy, and Ovid. Similar to the author's "Old tales from Greece."

ORIGIN OF GAMES.

Chess, the most ancient and intellectual of games, is generally supposed to have originated with the Hindoos, and its age is about 1,000 years.

Billiards is claimed by some to have originated in the far east, while others declare the game can be traced to the English and that it is a first cousin to the game of bowls. The first person to give form and rule to the game was Henrique Devigne, who lived in the reign of Charles IX.

Football came into England with the Romans and is older than the English national game of cricket. It is played in many parts of the world, having been one of the most popular games with the Greeks.

Polo has from prehistoric times been a favorite game in the eastern countries, the Persians, Turks and Ttartars engaging in the pastime with great zeal. In China and Japan there is a game closely resembling the Persian sport, but going by a different name.

As an inducement for men to marry ugly and crippled women, prizes are offered yearly in the town of Haschmann, Germany. The money was left by a big banker, who provided in his will that not less than $80 shall go with the ugliest girl and the cripple shall receive $60.

Silence and Nerves.

A physician who makes a specialty of modern nerves says that an hour of silence should be rigorously imposed on each patient daily. In serious cases it may even be desirable to enforce silence for two hours each day. It may be that a large part of this doctor's patients with "nerves" are women.

Miss Terry's Patience.

A dramatic critic, in an interesting account of Miss Ellen Terry, tells of a somewhat self-satisfied, vainglorious and grumpy actor who complained that the famous actress continually laughed in one of his most important scenes. He had not the courage to tell her his objections, so he wrote her a letter of heartbroken complaint, in which he said: "I am extremely sorry to tell you that it is impossible for me to make any effect in such-and-such a scene if you persist in laughing at me on the stage, and so spoiling the situation. May I ask you to change your attitude, as the scene is a most trying one?" Miss Terry's answer was very direct and to the point, for she wrote: "You are quite mistaken. I never laugh at you on the stage. I wait till I get home." Tit-Bits.

Evening Gowns.

In selecting a gown to be worn in the evening it is advisable to find out if the shade is becoming before purchasing. Frequently colors show an entirely different effect by artificial light. In matching the new colors, too, some care is necessary to make sure that they correspond in daylight, for the degrees in shading are so light that colors matched by electric light are entirely different when exposed to the sun.

Good Luncheon Dish.

To use cold lamb, ham or beef, mince it fine, with half the quantity of ham and a quarter as much breadcrumbs. Season with a small onion (if not objectionable), salt and pepper. Mix this with an egg and any gravy that may have been left from the roast. Put in a baking pan, cover with breadcrumbs and bake for half an hour. This is a good dish for luncheon.

SCHOOLS IN EUROPE.

Austria has a school to every 104 pupils and every 1,300 inhabitants at a cost of 19.1 cents.

In Russia there is a school to every 2,300 inhabitants, and the school expenditure of a Russian amounts to 5.5 cents.

In Italy, where there is a school to every 600 inhabitants, a school is visited by fifty-six children, and a pupil costs 16.17 cents.

In France there is a school to every 500 inhabitants, a school is attended by sixty-six children, and every Frenchman contributes 29.5 cents to the expenditure.

In Germany there is one school to every 700 inhabitants, and on an average 100 children attend one school. The expense amounts to 38.25 cents a head of population.

In Spain there is a school to every 600 inhabitants, and fifty-six children constitute the average attendance. Every child, however, requires an annual expenditure of 25 cents. In England conditions are similar, but the costs amounts to 27.25 cents for each child.

Humors of Translation.

Victor Hugo always translated the Firth of Forth as "the First of the Fourth" and swore that he was right, too, while Disraeli noted with amusement "woebegone" as "douleur va t'en." An early translator of Scott's "Bride of Lammermoor" had it as "La Bride de Lammermoor," the second word meaning "bridle," and the same man rendered "Welsh rabbit" by "Lapin Derniere Chemise de lAmour" for "Love's Last Shift" is classic, and when the farce "Hit or Miss" was done into French it almost was billed as "Frappe on Mademoiselle." That delightful piece in which Toole was at his funniest, "Walker, London," was referred to in a French newspaper as "Londres qui se Promene." The best that the translator could do for the "Stickit Minister" was "Le Ministre Assassine."

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFCIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Dec. 6th, 1906, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed the following members present: Director King, and Freeholders Adams, Cady, Chandler, Cladek, Darby, Gruener, Jensen, Krouse, Meisel, Murphy, Perry, Robison, Smith, Swain, Wahl, Westphal, Wilbul and Woodruff, 19; absent, Freeholder Kline, 1.

The minutes of regular meeting Nov. 1st, 1906, and of adjourned meeting Nov. 22d, 1906, (reading of bills of both meetings being omitted), were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the city of Elizabeth two bills for taxes for the year 1906, one for South Union street, $54.02, and the other for Broad street, land, $556.26.

Freeholder Chandler moved that the two bills be referred to the auditing committee with power, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

From General J. Madison Drake, as follows:

Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 21st, 1906.

Gentlemen: Some time ago your board was pleased to accept from the Veteran Zouaves, of this city, whom I have commanded since 1867, many relics of the civil war, which they had gathered and carefully preserved, I now have the honor of tendering to your honorable body, for preservation by the county, three historic flags that have often waved in the f orefront of battle, my own personal property, together with the valuable and artistic silken banner, presented the Veteran Zouaves by thethe Geo. H. Thomas Veteran Guard of San Francisco, Cal., in August, 1886, while that command, the only military company that ever crossed the American continent on a pleasure excursion, was in that city as its guests. Of the three bullent rent colors, of which but fragments remain, one was ever borne at the side of the gallant General Philip Kearny, of our own State, while the other two were carried through the war by the Fourth United States Infantry. If agreeable to your honorable board I will formally present these colors to the county at such tme and place as you may decide.

Your obedient servant, very resp'y,
J. MADISON DRAKE,
Bt. Brig. Gen: Comd'g Veteran Zouaves.

Referred to public buildings committee and Freeholder Adams to arrange date.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The following report was presented and read:

Plainfield, Dec. 5th, 1906.

Gentlemen: Your committee to whom the application of the N. Y. and N. J. Telephone Company for permission to place c onduits over Elm street bridge, Plainfield, N. J., was referred, would respectfully report, that they met with a similar committee of the Somerset county board, and the company's representatives, and have agreed on the conduits being placed there, upon terms embraced in the agreement herewith submitted.

S. P. T. Wilbur, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

The agreement was as follows:

Whereas, The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company are desirous of placing their conduits and cables upon and over the bride across Green Brook, which is the dividing line between Union and Somerset counties, at the foot of Elm street in the city of Plainfield, N. J.; and

Whereas, The Boards of Chosen Freeholders of the Counties of Union and Somerset are willing that said Telephone Company shall place said conduits and wires on and over said bridge, upon the conditions and restrictions herein set forth:

Now Therefore, This agreement witnesseth, that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, a corporation, doth hereby agree to and with the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, and the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Somerset, and their successors in office, in consideration of One Dollar, and the privilege of extending and placing its conduits and cables upon and over the bridge at the foot of Elm street over Green Brook in the city of Plainfield, N. J., to place said cables and conduits in manner as herein provided, and to keep and perform the covenants herein expressed, namely:

1. The cables so placed in and upon said bridge shall consist of four cables extending from the top of the abutment on the northerly side of said bridge to and upon the abutment on the southerly side thereof, and shall each be enclosed in an iron pipe of not more than three inches in diameter; said pipe shall rest on the top of the abutment wall on either side, and on top of the iron girders, and beneath the plank roadway of said bridge.

2. The said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company shall make good any and all damage occasioned to said bridge or the abutments thereof, or approaches thereto, by reason of placing said cables and conduits thereon, and agree to be responsible for all damage which may occur by reason thereof at any time hereafter.

3. The said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company further agree to pay one third of the cost of painting said bridge whenever hereafter the same may be painted.

Freeholder Chandler moved that the report and agreement be received, accepted and filer, which was so ordered, after Freeholder Wilbur had briefly explained that he had obtained the thirty dollars mentioned in the agreement to cover expenses occasioned to the county in arranging for the said agreement, and that a check for the said sum was attached to the agreement.

Freeholder Gruener moved the report be received and recommendation contained therein adopted, which was so ordered without dissent.

By committe on West End avenue bridge, Plainfield:

Signed, W. A. Westphal, John Robison, Adolph H. Gruener, C. S. Chandler, Charles A. Smith, Committee.

Freeholder Woodruff moved the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the bill of the W. T. Kirk Co. for furnishing iron work for bridge on Alston Road, town of Westfield, for $250, be paid when properly audited by committee and engineer.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the bill of A. P. Stiles for concrete and mason work on the bridge on Alston Road, town of Westfield, amounting to $490, be paid when properly audited by the committee and engineer.

Freeholder Cady moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

On mition of Freeholder Chandler it was ordered that when this board adjourn it adjourns to meet at the call of the director.

At this time county attorney Codington presented to the board a photograph containing the pictrues of Chairman J. Frank Hubbard, John Farrell and Jacob Brucklacher, who constituted the building commissioners of the new court house, Architect William S. Ackerman, County Collector Edward M. Wood and Director Benjamin King. The picture was presented as a memorial tribute to the members of the commission and those associated with it who have died (Chairman Hubbard and County Collector Wood) since the commission was appointed.

The county attorney referred to the old court house and its great lack of facilities for public business and then to the magnificent building which was now completed and occupied, possessing every modern convenience, as the result of the labors of the commission and others whose pictures were contained in the photograph. He referred feelingly to the great services rendered by the late Chairman and Director Hubbard and County Collector Wood, and said that the photograph would doubtless recall for many years to come the services so rendered. He said that the photograph was presented by those contained in the same who were still living. Freeholder Cady in a few remarks accepted the photograph on behelf of the board and presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the photograph of the Union county court house commissioners and associates be hereby gratefully accepted by this board and placed upon the wall of this room; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this meeting.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

LITERARY.

The National for January is a "snappy" number. "Affairs at Washington," by its editor, Joe Mitchell Chapple, is exceptionally strong in character; and several additional pages are added to this department, giving to the reader an insight into the affairs at the National Capital such as can be obtained from no other publication. "Cuba's Malady" is the title of one of the most timely articles of the month, and is written by John Vavasour Noel, who has been in Cuba for some time, and has made a study of the conditions that led up to the intervention by the United States. Kate Restieaux contributes an interesting article upon John Greenleaf Whittier, the great American poet.

The January Everybody's is another holiday number full of purposeful undertakings and rare surprises—a fit beginning to a new year of magazine achievement. After a year of world-circling travel and research, of pause wrerever men are squarely shouldering the responsibilities of mankind, Charles Edward Russell brings to a close his "Soldiers of the Common Good" in a remarkable summing-up. It is difficult to estimate the importance to Americans of this conclusion. It will be read by every dissatisfied patriotic citizen. It is to be hoped that all satisfied ones will see it. "The Mere Incident of Failure," by Will Payne, is an interesting discussion of the alleged rules governing success. Its conclusions are surprising and convincing.

The new editors of The American Magazine are making good. Their periodical grows better every month. The January number is excellent. Ray Stannard Baker leads off with a description of an extraordinary experiment in brotherhood now being conducted in America—The Theosophical Institution at Point Loma, Cal. Katherine Tingley, the power in the organization, is a wonderful leader, reminding one of Mary Baker G. Eddy in the ability she has exhibted. William Allen White, the famous Emporia (Kansas) editor and novelist, compares Emporia and New York City. Of course the article is compact of wit and wisdom. Ida M. Tarbell, proceeding with her story "The Tariff in our Times" tells about the outbreak of protectiinism that followed the Civil War.

REVIEW OF CITY WORK

Annual Reports of Various Departments Submitted to Common Council.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED

Street Committee, Fire Chief and Police Chief Present Lengthy Statement of Departmental Work.

According to the usual custom the annual reports of the various committees were received at the final meeting of the 1906 Common Council, held last night. These reports, including those of the street committee, Chief Kiely, of the police department, and Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, were presented and portions of them read. They were afterward ordered filed.

Following is the report submitted by the street committee:

We submit herewith our annual report of work done and moneys received and expended on streets and sewers during the year 1906:

Permanent Pavement.

Owing to the large amount of general work requiring attention this year, your committee has been unable to use any part of the street appropriation for permanent pavements. A committee report was received by the Common Council from the Board of Trade, in which the suggestion was made that the sum of $5,0000 be set aside each year for the purpose of constructing a section of brick, bitulithic or wood pavement, and that a part of the cost should be assessed upon the property owners. The latter suggestion was not received favorably by the majority of the Board of Trade, so the report was submitted to the Common Council without recommendation on this point.

New Macadamizing.

Division street was macadamized by subscription between West Sixth and West Seventh streets, the owners paying $167.40; the block between West Fifth and West Sixth streets was done by contract. This contract includes Park terrace, Berkeley avenue between Park terrace and Leland avenue, Webster place south of Putnam avenue, Berckman street between South avenue and East Seventh street, Richmond street, between Putnam and Watchung avenues, Kensington avenue between Watchung and Prospect avenues and John street. Owing to the late start and early frost, this contract has not been completed.

The committee has paid $2,001.54 from the year's appropriation as a part of the assessment against the city for macadamizing under the contract completed last winter, leaving $2,243.74 still unpaid. The assessment for the work now under construction will probably be made during the coming year, requiring an additional draft on the appropriation for 1907.

A part of the city force, including the steam roller, has been employed in finishing streets done by contract, but the cost of this work has been paid by the contractor; it is included in the amounts shown on the schedule for those streets.

The prices for macadamizing are higher this year than ever before, running from 90 cents to $1.10 per lineal foot for macadam 16 feet wide.

Street Repairs.

The following macadamized streets have been resurfaced during the year:

Park avenue from Randolph road nearly to Cedar brook, also between Front and Fourth streets; East Front street between Park and Watchung avenues; Watchung avenue between Front and Fifth streets; East Fifth street between Watchung avenue and Richmond streets; Richmond street, part, between Fifth and Seventh streets; South avenue between Belvidere avenue and Richmond street; Grant avenue, between Eighth street and Sherman avenue; West Front street.

On East Fifth street, Watchung avenue and parts of East and West Front streets, new tracks were laid by the Street Railway Company, necessitating a large amount of street resurfacing, the part of the street between the rails and eighteen inches on each side being paid for by the company. These streets are now in excellent condition, and as the track is well ballasted with trap rock, there is good reason to believe that the tearing up of the streets to repair tracks will now be infrequent.

Slag Streets.

All the slag produced by the Pond Machine Tool Works, has, by kind permission of the company, been placed upon the streets at the west end of the city.—Clinton avenue and Mariners place, between Front street and Dunellen avenue, have been completed and nearly all of Evona avenue. It is recommended that the next work be done on Clinton avenue, south of Third street and on Third street, connecting Clinton and Evona avenues.

The application of slag to the sandy streets in this section of the city results in a good firm roadway, and prevents the washing away of the sand. Considerable work is required every year in repairing damage caused by the washing away of the sand, especially on West Third street west of Monroe avenue.

Grading.

In connection with the improvement of the Cole property east of Leland avenue, it became necessary to lower the street railway track and grade a portion of Leland avenue in accordance with the established grade; further grading is needed on this street, particularly between Front and Second streets.

On East Sixth street, east of Richmond street, flag and curb were laid, requiring the grading of the roadway. The work of grading Central street has been continued this year, and the remaining work

GRACE P.E. CHURCH ENDS CHRISTMAS OBSERVANCES

FINE CAROL SERVICE AND INFANT DEPARTMENT TREE PARTY.

The last of the Christmas observances were held at Grace P. E. church yesterday, when the infant department of the Sunday-school had its tree party, and a Christmas carol service was held.

Games and a wholly informal jollification marked the Christmas tree celebration of the infant department in the afternoon. Mrs. Osmon's class joined with the kindergarten tots in celebrating.

Gifts were given to all the children. The department presented Rev. E. V. Stevenson, the rector, with a handsome framed picture. It was bought with pennies which the tots have been carefully saving for the purpose. Miss Edith B. Little and Miss Anna Davis were in charge of the affair, assisted by Miss Louise Egan and J. P. Nolting, the assistant superintendent.

The carol service, in the church at night, was a succession of splendid numbers. The choir, under the direction of William E. MacClymont, the organist and choirmaster, rendered the programme finely. Rev. E. V. Stevenson, the rector, made a short address. He complimented the choir on their work.

The order of service was as follows:

Prelude, variations on "Good King Wenceslas," Helmore's Christmas Carols; processional, "The First Nowell,' Traditional; confession, Lord's prayer, versicles; Psalms—23, 65; lesson; carol, "Ring Out Ye Bells," Wallis; lesson; carol, "Good King Wenceslas," Helmore's Christmas Carols; creed; prayers; carol, "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen," Traditional; address; offertory carol, "The Anthem of Peace," Barnby; benediction; vesper carol, "Sleep Holy Babe," Field; recessional, "Shepherds! Shake Off Your Drowsy Sleep," Besancon Carol; postlude, Offertory on Christmas Carols," Guilmant.

Foresters' Annual Entertainment.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting last night, received one application and initiated three applicants. The new paraphernalia was used by the degree team to the satisfaction of the candidates and others. The annual entertainment and dance will be held in Saengerbund Hall on Friday, January 18, when Prof. Howard's vaudeville aggregation, of Newark, will furnish the entertainment and Professor Heinmeyer, of Elizabeth, the music for the dance. High Chief Ranger D. S. Howell, of Newark, and other High Court officers will attend. After the business there was an informal programme of songs and remarks by the members, followed by a smoker. The officers-elect will be installed at the first meeing in January.

APPEAL OF MUHLENBERG

Offerings in Local Churches Tomorrow For Benefit of the Hospital.

IN NEED FOR FUNDS

Finance Committee Reviews Work Done and Explains Why Money Is Urgently Needed to Continue Worthy Charity.

In many of the churches tomorrow the offerings will be for the support of Muhlenberg Hospital. This has become an annual custom in the city and borough and quite a fund is raised annually by such means.

The following letter has been issued by the finance committee of the hospital relative to the work of that institution and its needs:

"Muhlenberg Hospital was formally opened for the reception of patients November 28, 1881, and has therefore just completed its twenty-fifth year of service. The following figures show the growth of its work during the last ten years; number of patients treated during the year ending June 1st, 1906, 665, against 525 the previous year, 376 five years ago and 222 ten years ago; number of operations performed last year 587, against 376 the previous year, 213 five years ago and 84 ten years ago; these figures include only the indoor patients; last year there were 596 outdoor patients treated in the dispensary, the total number of dispensary visits 1,514, the total number of dispensary operations 152.

"The continued expansion of the hospital work has necessarily increased the cost of maintenance; the sum of money required for this purpose last year (excluding improvements of $1,405.62) was $27,609.41; about one-half of this amount was met by the receipts from pay patients, interest on trust funds and the sum of $1,000 paid by the city of Plainfield for the care of its indigent sick; of the balance $4,800 was received from the Freeholders of Union County and the remainder from other sources, (individual donations, Hospital Sunday, Charity Ball and Carnival).

"Of the 665 individual patients treated last year 117 were private patients and 548 were ward patients. The charge for ward patients does not cover the cost of treatment and a majority of the ward patients pay nothing for their treatment. The Governors of the Hospital, therefore, have to look to the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield to support this great charity.

"The cost of the new hospital plant as it stands today—about $109,000—was entirely met by cash subscriptions, the proceeds of the old hospital property and about $15,000 from Memorial Funds, and the property today is free from any mortgage debt. No person is ever refused admission to the hospital because of inability to pay. Last year the Mayor of the city of Plainfield was made a member ex officio of the Board of Governors so that the taxpayers of Plainfield are now officially represented in the management of the institution. Recently the Board of Governors appointed as a member of the Medical Board of the hospital a homeopathic attending physician, so that now the school of homeopathy as well as the school of allopathy is represented upon the Medical Board.

"Any person or society may endow a bed by an annual payment of $200: any person or society may endow a bed in perpetuity by the payment of $5,000 and have the right to name the patient to occupy it, subject to the rules of the hospital, and also to designate by will or other declaration in writing the individual in whom this right shall be vested, such endowment will be kept invested in interest bearing securities and only the interest or income applied to the maintenance of such bed or of the hospital. A payment of $1,000 to the hospital for the Endowment Fund will entitle the donor to name a private room to be permanently designated by such name.

"Those desiring a more intimate knowledge of the hospital and its practical work are invited to visit the institution where they will be welcomed by the superintendent. (The special days for visitors are Sundays, Tuesdays and Fridays from 2 to 4 p. m.)

"The Finance Committee regrets the necessity of making frequent appeals to the people for funds. Carnivals and other entertainments might be abolished if a larger number of people would pledge a fixed sum each year towards the support of the hospital. Annual subscriptions, however small, are earnestly solicited."

First Meeting of New Council.

The Common Council for 1907 will hold its first meeting on Tuesday night, January 1, when an organization will be perfected and the committees for the year announced by President-elect Leslie M. Daniel.

DRYDEN OUT OF RACE?

And So is Stokes According to Opinion of Republican Senators.

DARK HORSE MAYBE

Pow-Wow at Conference For President of Senate—What May Happen to Kean.

While there was no formal discussion of the United States Senatorship at the Republican senatorial conference Thursday night at Trenton, the problem was quietly discussed by the Senators present, and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that neither John F. Dryden nor Governor Stokes will be Senator John Kean's colleague in the next Congress.

Serious doubts were expressed by some of the openly avowed advocates of Senator Dryden's re-election of the possibility of the forty-one members necessary to elect consenting to go into caucus as long as Mr. Dryden remains in the field as a candidate.

Others seemed equally as positive that even were Mr. Dryden to withdraw at least four, and probably more, Senators and Assemblymen would refuse to enter a joint caucus until assured that the name of Governor Stokes would not be presented.

The reason advanced for the latter attitude is that the members in question would not violate their oath to uphold the State Constitution, no matter what the national instrument or constitutional lawyers may have to say as to the eligibility of Governor Stokes.

Another, and perhaps the true explanation, is that the Dryden influence, even if the latter is defeated, will be sufficient to prevent the election of any person whose candidacy, active or implied, may have contributed to Dryden's failure to win.

The latter course is the one said to be responsible for keeping in the background now more than one available aspirant, who is ready and willing to fight for and accept the office.

Several Senators, while saying they intend to vote for Dryden, because the latter was made the primary issue and won out in South Jersey, express regret that the junior Senator did not promptly withdraw from the contest when so overwhelmingly defeated in his home county.

That, they argue, was due to the section of the State which remained loyal and to the party which they fear will face inevitable defeat next election if by any chance Mr. Dryden, in defiance of the forcibly expressed objection of Essex, should be continued in office.

Had the inevitable been accepted by Mr. Dryden, these Senators say, it would be regarded as an expression on his part of devotion to party rather than self and keep Mr. Dryden in line for a return to Washington four years hence, if more successful in his own county.

Senator Dryden, they argued, would be justified in contesting Senator Kean's seat in the election of 1910, because of the manifest opposition of the members from Union county to Dryden's re-election now, which shows that Mr. Kean either has little influence in his own county or is not over-anxious to see his colleague returned to the Senate. None of the Senators spoken to could see any change in the situation in Dryden's favor, with the possible exception of Senator Ackerman, of Union, who was the first Senator to declare over his own signature that he was opposed to Dryden. Thursday night was the first time he had met all his colleagues since the adjournment of the last session and he said he was surprised to learn what a unanimity of sentiment favorable to Dryden existed in South Jersey. The southern Senators told him they had received no letters at all opposing Dryden and he concluded that the opposition to the latter's re-election was confined to North Jersey and some people who are not legislators in Burlington county.

As for Governor Stokes, while his second annual message is not yet complete he already has in mind some thoughts for his last annual message, and that would indicate that at present he proposes to serve out his full term as Governor.

His election as United States Senator would not preclude such a course, but with the possibility of President Roosevelt convening a special session next spring, and the regular session opening in December, it is not probable that Governor Stokes or the legislative majority would care to see the office vacant from March 4, 1907, to the third Wednesday in January, 1908.

A Chimney Blaze.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters shortly before 12 o'clock today for a chimney blaze at the Rink building on Watchung avenue. It was put out with a couple of extinguishers.

MARTIN MAY BE MAJOR

Dungan's Promotion to Lieut. Colonelcy Will Bring Higher Honors For Co. K. Captain.

ELECTION NECESSARY

Both Offices to Be Filled by Vote of Commissioned Officers of the Second Regiment.

Major Nelson Y. Dungan, now senior major of the Second Regiment, National Guard, State of New Jersey, of which Col. Dennis F. Capt. W. B. Martin.

ton, on Monday. If Major Dungan is elected, Captain W. B. Martin, of Co. K, will, if report be true, succeed to the then vacant majorate.

Both offices will be filled by the votes of all the commissioned officers of the whole regiment.

Major Dungan was judge advocate of the old organization of the Third Regiment and captain of the Somerville company and is very highly regarded by Col. Collins and the military board of the State, especially for his knowledge of military tactics and his selection will be a popular one with both officers and privates, as will also be the election of Captain Martin as major. Captain Martin is in command of Company K, of this city.

In general orders No. 52, Colonel Collins, by Captain John M. Rogers, adjutant, announces the death of Lieut.-Col. Joseph E. Clime, who became lieutenant-colonel of the regiment July 8, 1902, and announces that his funeral will be at Burlington on Monday, on which day the First Battalion, Companies C, I, K and M, Major Nelson Y. Dungan commanding, will report for escort duty. The officers of the regiment will attend the funeral, in uniform, side arms and white gloves. The usual badge of mourning will be worn by the officers for thirty days.

The companies which are to have the honor of being the escort will leave Elizabeth Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock on a special train.

EXPECT GREAT CROWD AT THE CHARITY BALL.

Tickets are Selling Rapidly for Double Attraction on Monday Night.

The success of the annual charity ball for the benefit of Muhlenberg hospital Monday night is fully assured, the returns thus far having exceeded the expectations of the several committees having the matter in charge. At both the casino and theatre there undoubtedly will be overflowing attendance, for many who do not care to indulge in terpsichorean delights will avail themselves of the opportunity to witness a fine theatrical performance by one of the foremost stars in the dramatic profession. Miss May Irwin in her particular line is unrivalled, and her new play, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," affords full scope for her superior abilities. Anyone who has not already secured seats should give this matter his immediate attention. The finance committee would be greatly obliged if those to whom tickets were sent would make immediate report as to disposition of same, so as to enable them to get at definite results Monday. The sale to date surpasses all records.

James F. Fosbre Remembered.

The members of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting last night made an award for the benefit of James F. Fosbre, who has been ill for nearly a year. The prize was a ten dollar gold piece and was awarded to Bernard Clark, who held ticket 844, and a check for $172.35 was presented to Mr. Fosbre this morning. During the latter's illness he has been under the care of the Court physician, Fred D. Wilbee resigned his office of financial secretary and Obey Wilson was elected in his place.

POLICE COURT NETS $511.50 FOR YEAR

ROUTINE MATTERS AT FINAL MEETING OF 1906 COUNCIL.

In closing up the year's work the Common Council transacted a considerable amount of routine business, last night, at its final meeting. The report of Clerk Adams, of the district court, showed the receipts for the past month to be $123.09 and the disbursements $43.53. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that fourteen permits were granted in December and 259 for the year.

City Judge William N. Runyon reported that during the year $614 had been received and $102.50 disbursed, the balance, $511.50, being turned over to the city treasurer, W. F. Arnold. The report of City Treasurer Arnold was presented and filed. It will be published in full in The Daily Press in a few days, and in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Daniel, 200 copies in pamphlet form were ordered printed. The resolution also authorized the publication of the report in The Daily Press and another paper.

Councilman Frank Randolph offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the finance committee to have 200 copies of the police, fire and street committees' report printed in pamphlet form, as usual.

Several petitions for lights were referred by Chairman Hubbard, of the light committee, to the 1907 Common Council, and Mr. Daniel reported back the reports of the collector and district court clerk and they were filed. After the transaction of the business the minutes of the meeting were read by Stenographer George B. Wean and adopted, after which the Common Council for 1906 passed into history.

Before the members departed last night Mr. Daniel moved that a vote of thanks be extended to President Tolles for his many courtesies and skill as a presiding officer during the year. The retiring president thanked his colleagues for the kindly expression of their esteem. The motion will be spread on the minutes.

CHANGE OF CATECHISMS.

First Presbyterian School Considering Blakeslee in Place of Westminster.

The Sunday-school officers and teachers of the First Presbyterian church are considering the advisability of using the Blakeslee catechism in place of the Westminster catechism in the school lessons. The subject was discussed at length at a recent meeting, and the question was laid over for further consideration.

The difference between the catechisms is one of system. The Westminster, which is the older of the two and recognized and put out by the Presbyterian publication board, is a course based on the study of the Scriptures by sections. It covers practically the whole Bible, and takes about seven years for completion. The Blakeslee is a system on topical lines, wherein the study of Scriptural characters is prominent. It is published by a private concern.

Rev. C. E. Herring, the pastor, said this morning that sentiment as to the change was about evenly divided in the school. The consideration, he said, was quite calm and without warmth.

Hope chapel clings to the Westminister system, while the Crescent Avenue church now uses the Blakeslee system.

CITY BUYS TRACT.

Gives $1,500 for Pumping Station Site.

The ordinance providing for the purchase of Clifton & Campbell's land on Randolph road to be used for a sanitary sewer pumping station, was adopted on final reading at the meeting of the Common Council, last night, and the land was purchased by the city for $1,500. Mr. Gloak offerer a resolution that the land be purchased and that the contracts be executed.

It was arranged to have Mr. Gavett buy the land from Clifton & Campbell and then sell it to the city, the firm being out of the city, and it being desirous that the land be acquired at this time. The contracts have been executed and the land is now owned by the city. However, no efforts will be made to locate the proposed pumping station there before spring, when the southside sanitary sewer will be built.

Dr. Schenck Improving.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck is improving every day, according to a statement made today by his physician, Dr. J. B. Probasco. The speech is much better and there is a returning of feeling on the right side which was effected by the paralysis.

Mrs. W. W. St. John was taken ill this morning and is detained in her apartment at the Hotel Kensington.

CITY EMPLOYEES RAISED

Ordinances Increasing Pay of Firemen and Policemen Pass Common Council.

EFFECTIVE ON JAN. 1

No Need for More Officers in the Police Department Says Mr. Tyler In Voting Against Measure.

The ordinance granting an increase in pay to the policemen and firemen were adopted at the final meeting of the 1906 Common Council, last night, but not without considerable sparring on the part of members who opposed and those who favored them. The ordinances had previously been adopted on first and second reading, but on that occasion Councilman Tyler stated in voting in the affirmative that, after more mature consideration, he would reserve the right to change his vote.

In explaining that he would vote against the ordinance to grant increase pay to the policemen and create three new offices, Mr. Tyler said that he had given the matter very careful consideration and had come to the conclusion that it would be a mistake to pass the ordinance as now drafted. He did not think that with the present size of the police department an increased number of officers was needed.

He said that he favored an increase of pay to the firemen and policemen, realizing the increased cost of living. He had understood that this was one of the chief reasons for the increase, that the present salary was not enough for the men to live on, but he did not think that the heads of the departments should receive as much of an increase as the ordinances call for, that is 16 per cent. increase for the chiefs, while the men under them were to receive an increase of 10 per cent.

In place of that, Mr. Tyler said that he favored a general increase of 10 per cent. for the men and an additional $100 for each chief. He did not think that the ordinances as drafted carried out the original intent, in fact it appeared to him that they worked in the opposite direction. By giving the chiefs such a large increase the action had wrought discontent among the men under them and in certain instances had resulted in a strong feeling of resentment. He had been informed, so he stated, that certain members of the department would rather have the ordinances killed than be adopted in the present form. Mr. Tyler said in closing that he would like to see the ordinances go over until next year, when certain changes could be made.

Chairman Frank Randolph, of the police committee, spoke in support of the police ordinance. He said that it was not with the idea of increasing the salaries of the policemen, especially those who would fill the newly-created offices, as it was for the purpose of giving the men an incentive to work for that the changes were proposed. He thought that the new offices would be an advantage and would not be any more than are to be found in cities of Plainfield's class. In speaking of the increase to be given Chief Doane, of the fire department, he said that he would receive $1,100 as chief and $500 as building inspector, a total of $1,600, and Chief Kiely who now receive $1,400 would get $1,600.

At this time a vote was taken on the final adoption of the ordinance relating to the police department and it was adopted by a vote of six to one, Councilmen Buxton, Daniel, Gloak, Montgomery, Frank Randolph and Tolles voting in the affirmative and Councilman Tyler in the negative.

The above action was followed by a motion by Councilman Frank Randolph that the ordinance relating to a similar increase for the firemen be adopted on third reading. This brought forth a protest on the part of Mr. Montgomery, who said that he was opposed to the amendment proposed. He said that it did not go far enough. He favored a larger increase in pay and intimated that he would be willing to vote for it. He then said that the growth of Plainfield had been such as to warrant the separation of the offices of chief of the fire department and building inspector. One man he believed is unable to take proper care of both offices. In supporting his contention he stated that during the past year Chief Doane had granted 259 building permits, which represents lots of work, if properly attended to.

Mr. Montgomery said that under such conditions Chief Doane could not give the time to the fire department it deserves. He cited the fact that the chief had been connected with the department forty-two years, had never had charges preferred against him, his acts had never been investigated and he believed that he was entitled to every consideration. He also believed that the salaries of the men in both the fire and police

New York Central Humble.

New York, Dec. 29.—For the first time within the memory of the present generation the New York Central Railroad Company yesterday got down on its knees to the city. It humbly asked Corporation Counsel Ellison if he would not kindly smooth over the Twelfth avenue situation until it could get action by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. Mr. Ellison politely but firmly informed the company's representatives that he would not do any smoothing. As a result Mr. Ellison's stand the tracks which John J. Scannell, Superintendent of Highways, took up in Twelfth avenue, between Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth streets, on Thursday, will remain up, unless the Board of Estimate grants permission for relaying or the company finds the police reserves asleep at their post. All yesterday, while the company's legal department was trying to find some way out of the difficulty, a band of workmen capable of relaying the tracks in a half hour stood by. But there were a half dozen policemen on hand, and they had instructions to prevent any one from molesting the track.

REVIEW OF CITY WORK

can be done at moderate cost.

Grading has also been done on the following streets: West End avenue, Stebbins place extension, Cottage place, East Fourth street, Ravine road and on Sycamore street where widened.

The erection of a new concrete bridge over Green brook at West End avenue necessitates a large amount of grading on the approach, also the construction of about two hundred feet of 18 inch storm sewer.

Tarred Streets.

East Front street, between Richmond and Berckman streets and West Ninth street between College place and Arlington avenue, have been treated with "Tarvia," a grade of tar adapted for this purpose. Streets on which it is used promise to be less dusty than plain macadam, less liable to "ravel" and they have an agreeable surface for driving. It should, however, be swept regularly, and a light coating of "Tarvia" should be applied after a year's use.

Curbing and Flagging.

During the year, 9,626 lineal feet of curbing and 14,074 lineal feet of flagging have been laid. A large proportion of the flagging ordered was laid by the city, the owners having failed to comply with the notices served, but a large amount of curab and flag were laid voluntarily. Requests have been received that New street, John street, Spooner avenue and portions of East Seventh street be flagged during the coming year.

A considerable amount of concrete sidewalks have been laid during the year, both as new work and for replacing flag walks; concrete slabs are also being used quite extensively, the amended ordinance permitting their use.

Cross-walks.

The usual work of repairing and replacing old culverts and crosswalks and of constructing new ones has been continued during the year. As far as possible, heavy, square-edged stones of hard, North River bluestone have been used for crosswalks and iron covers for culverts. Wneh these become more general throughout the city, the annoying breakages will be a thing of the past.

Storm Sewers.

The year 1906 has been free from violent storms, and no damage has been done to the streets by freshets. The section of reinforced concrete storm sewer constructed last year in Richmond street, between East Fifth and East Seventh streets, has kept that part of the street free of storm water, and the extension to North avenue now being built will be of even greater service, as it will drain the depression under the railroad bridge. Storm sewers are needed on a number of other streets, especially where street railway tracks cross the gutter culverts, in which cases but little room is left below the rails for storm water.

The total length of storm sewers is now 4.87 miles.

Brook Overflows.

Last winter being a comparatively mild one, some good work was done in clearing out and widening Cedar brook from South avenue to Randolph road except where the brook is confined by stone walls. We believe that this work should be continued.

The attempt to secure the co-operation of adjoining county and township authorities in deepening Green brook having failed, it would seem that the city must undertake the work in self-protection, and also continue in the effort to secure the improvement of dams and the construction of sluice-gates where needed. We recommend that this matter be kept before the Council until the overflow of our streets shall be made impossible.

Street Widenings and Extensions.

The widening of Park avenue on the westerly side, between Second street and the railroad, and of Sycamore street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, also the extension of Stebbins place through private property to Fourth street, have been completed. Progress has been made in the voluntary widening of Sycamore street to Sixth street, but it may be necessary to have an assessment made by commissioners to complete this work. Other improvements which are desirable for the public convenience are the widening of East Fourth street at the angle point east of Washington street, and of Madison and Central avenues between Front street and the C. R. R. of N. J.

Street Sprinkling.

The cost of street sprinking, $6,002.10, made a heavy draft upon the street appropriation, and the expense must continue to increase as more streets are macadamized, if the present system be continued. The service as a whole has been appreciated, but there is room for much improvement in the details of operation. We suggest the employment of a man who shall give his whole time during the summer to controlling and regulating the sprinkling of streets.

Miscellaneous.

In the replacing and repair of street railway tracks before referred to, the Public Service Corporation has used about 4,000 tons of trap rock, and the amount paid by the company for removing snow and for repair of tracks was $978.43. The assessment against the company for macadamizing Monroe avenue was $409.57.

The following streets are in urgent need of resurfacing: West Third, West Fourth and West Seventh streets, and parts of Park avenue.

Sewers.

The following sewers were constructed this year under contract with Callahan & Chamberlin:

Darrow avenue, North Front street, Park lane, Park terrace, Irving place; Essex street between Spooner avenue and Darrow avenue, Midway avenue, between East Third street and Berckman street; East Sixth street, between Richmond street and Central street; Columbia avenue, between Frederick street and Leland avenue; East Seventh street, between Leland avenue and Belvidere avenue; Berckman street, between East Front street and North avenue; East Fourth street, from Richmond street 250 feet west; East Second street, from Berckman street to Netherwood avenue; Leland avenue, from Columbia avenue to North avenue.

In addition to these sewers have been constructed in Denmark road extension and in Dixie lane, two new streets opened by the Plainfield Land and Building Company. In order to save the time required for the adoption of an ordinance and advertising for bids, these sewers were constructed entirely at the expense of the company, the city furnishing only the services of an inspector.

It was hoped to begin work this year on the low level sewer and pumping station, but owing to delays in receiving bids and the difficulty of securing cast iron pipe, the beginning of the work will be delayed until spring. As soon as the pumping station is in operation, a large number of sewers will be called for in the district to be served by this station.

It would be well to decide, early in the year, on the total amount of work to be done during 1907, and have the necessary legal formalities completed in time to begin construction in early summer.

In order to provide a larger water-way in Cedar brook, the sewer crossing the brook at Richmond street near Watchung avenue was lowered and a manhole was constructed at each end of the inverted syphon.

There have been two stoppages of sewers during the year, one caused by roots and the other by defective flush tank. Fifteen house connections have been taken up and relaid on account of the instrusion of roots.

The year having been a dry one, less ground water than usual has entered the sewers; the total flow is now about a million gallons per day, received through 2,613 house connections, 261 of which have been made since last report. The total length of sanitary sewers is now 36.14 miles.

The new septic tanks and contact beds were put in operation on February first, and some improvements have been made to the works during the year, including a 24 inch by-pass around the screen tank for use while cleaning or repairing the latter, and a 15 inch pipe connecting the new tanks with the old contact beds. The material is on hand for constructing baffles in one of the septic tanks, intended to reduce the amount of scum by checking the velocity of flow more gradually.

The whole plant is now in successful operation and is frequently visited by representatives from other places.

Fire Chief Doane's report follows:

"In accordance with the requirements of your Honorable Body, I herewith submit a report of the condition and operation of the Fire Department, giving the number of fires and alarms, with the amount of insurance and losses as nearly as could be ascertained for the year ending December 26, 1906.

"The manual force of the Department is divided into two classes, permanent and call men. The permanent force consists of—

1 Chief Engineer.
1 Assistant Engineer.
3 Captains of Companies.
1 Driver of Chief's Wagon.
1 Tillerman.
5 Drivers of Apparatus.
3 Hose and Pipe men.

"The call force consists of—

1 Captain.
1 Veterinary Surgeon.
1 Engineer of Steamer.
23 Privates.

Houses.

"The city now owns and occupies three engine houses. The headquarter building, Nos. 145, 147 and 149 East Second street, is occupied by No. 2 Hose Wagon, No. 1 Hook and Ladder Truck, Chemical Engine No. 1, Chief's Wagon and exercise wagon. The Chief's office is located in this building.

"Nos. 206 and 208 West Second street is occupied by No. 1 Hose Company and No. 1 Steamer.

"No. 3 Engine House is located at 730 and 732 Fourth street, and is occupied by No. 3 Combination Chemical and Hose Wagon, the spare Truck and exercise wagon.

"The Headquarters building, as a whole, is in good repair, except that the main or apparatus floor will soon have to be renewed.

"No. 1 Engine House needs extensive repairs. The front doors are about ready to fall to pieces; the floors need renewing. The center partition should be taken out, making one room of the apparatus floor. The stone pavement in the sidewalk, never a good job, is now in a very bad state. The stones should be taken up and the walk relaid with brick or cement.

"No. 3 Engine House is in good repair except that the interior needs painting.

Apparatus.

"The Department has in service—

1 Third size Amoskeag Steam Fire Engine, 600-gallon rated capacity.

1 Hayes Aerial Turntable Hook and Ladder Truck; 65-foot extension ladder; one 40-foot ground extension; 173 feet of side and nest ladders.

1 Double Tank 60-gallon Halloway Chemical Engine.

1 Double Tank 35-gallon Halloway Combination Chemical and Hose Wagon.

2 Hose Wagons.
2 Exercise Wagons.
1 Chief's Wagon (good).
1 Chief's Wagon (old).
1 Iron Frame Hook and Ladder Truck (on call).
8 Three-gallon Halloway Extinguishers.

"During the year, the Aerial Truck has been repaired and painted, and the steel tires removed and replaced with rubber tires. All of the Hose Wagons and the Chief's Wagon have been touched up and varnished. This puts all of our apparatus in good order. I hope that the Council will be able next year to place rubber tires on the two Hose Wagons, then all of the apparatus will be equipped with rubber tires.

Hose.

"We have in use in the Department 5,000 feet of hose that is good; about 1,500 feet of hose which should be sold. We need 2,000 feet of new hose, as some of that which we have has been in use for seven or eight years.

Horses.

"Thirteen horses are owned by the city, twelve of which are doing duty. One is lame and is used only a part of the time. This horse should be sold and replaced with a good one. The two horses used for the Steamer are hired, and are on call during the day, but are stabled at the Engine House at night. This team should be owned by the city.

Fire Alarm.

"This very important branch of the service has been well taken care of during the year by the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Company under the management of Mr. C. W. Runyon, but directly in charge of Mr. A. C. Applegate. All of our wire (24 miles) is strung overhead and requires a great deal of care to keep in order. There are 41 boxes or stations virtually on one circuit; two promote one twelve-inch steam gong located at the Electric Light station; four fifteen inch house gongs (one located at the Pumping station); three mechanical and five electrical tappers located in the houses of officers and members of the Department. One bank of storage, forty cells, type B. One power switch board; Motor Generator (Cabot) 120 Volt owned by the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Co.

"I would call the attention of your Honorable Body to my reports for the last three years in regard to the need of a repeater and switchboard, and would add that the Buss Bar now in use in the battery room is dangerous even for an expert to handle under certain conditions. With the exception of a few electric light wires, our fire alarm wires are the only wires overhead in the center of the city.

Fires and Alarms.

"There have been 99 alarms during the year, 7 less than last year. Telephone alarms, 44; box alarms, 43; verbal or still alarms, 12.

Insurance and Losses.

Loss on buildings	$ 10,286.88
Insurance on buildings	112,650.00
Loss of contents	10,977.20
Insurance on contents	62,310.00
Total amount of Insurance	174,960.00
Total amount of insurance collected	20,444.08
Total loss insured and uninsured	21,264.08
Total value of property involved	243,403.00

Consisting of real estate, $149,075.00; personal $94,328.00.

Deaths.

"We lost one member of the permanent force by death during the year. William Ross was killed by being thrown from a trolley car. He had served 35 years as a fireman in the Volunteer and Paid Department. A good, faithful man.

Water Supply.

There are in service 327 hydrants, 24 of which are four way; 303 two way, an increase of seven over last year. The water pressure throughout the city is about seventy-five pounds except in the East End of the city, and especially at Netherwood Heights, where the pressure will average about forty pounds. I hope that next year the Council will make some arrangement to increase our water pressure. The Water company placed a new seven million gallon pump in service in addition to the five million gallon pump now in use, replacing a three million gallon pump formerly used.

Recapitulation.

All of the apparatus in use in the department has been touched up and varnished. The Hook and Ladder Truck has been painted and varnished and the steel tires replaced by rubber tires. The old electric wire wiring in headquarters building, condemned by the insurance companies, was all removed and replaced with new wires placed in iron conduits, and it is now in first class, up-to-date condition. The fire alarm wires throughout this building were all rearranged and placed in iron conduits by the members of the department located there.

"I again call your attention to the need of a few more permanent men. A steam heater should be attached to our steam fire engine, and we need more hydrants in the business section of Front street. I trust the new Council will see the necessity of erecting a new engine house in the East End of the city.

"Respectfully submitted,
"CHIEF ENGINEER,
"Fire Department."

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR COL. CLIME.

In true military style the funeral of Lieutenant Colonel Joseph F. Clime, of the Second Regiment of the New Jersey National Guard, will take place from his late home in Burlington Monday afternoon at three o'clock.

Orders were issued yesterday by Captain John M. Rogers, adjutant of the Second Regiment, detailing the First batalion of the Second Regiment, Major Nelson Y. Dungan commanding, as the funeral escort. The First battalion is made up of Companies C and I of Elizabeth, K of Plainfield, and M of Somerville.

The battalion is selected because the late Colonel Clime was at one time commander of it, and because many members of the companies served with him in the Third New Jersey volunteers in the war with Spain.

The First battalion will leave Elizabeth Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock on a special train. A stop will be made here to pick up the Second Regiment band and field music and national guard officers of this city who will attend the funeral. All attending officers will be in full uniform with side arms and white gloves. The usual badge of mourning will be worn by officers of the Second Regiment for thirty days.

Herbert Brooks, of North Plainfield, is convalescing from a serious attack of appendicitis.

THE CHARITY BALL.

It is expected that the annual charity ball on Monday night will surpass any undertaking of the kind in this city. The novelty of being able to attend a performance given by America's leading singing comedienne without any cost has swelled the box receipts for the ball phenomenally. The dance at the Casino will not begin until after the curtain rings down on "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" at the theatre. Supper will be served at midnight. Austin's orchestra will be one of the added attractions at the Casino.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

The Daily Press publishes in this issue the annual reports of the several departments of the city government for the year 1906 believing that they will prove both interesting and instructive to the general public. A lot of good solid information concerning the present condition of municipal affairs may be gained in no better way than by carefully perusing these reports. That of the street department particularly should prove of value to those interested in the community's welfare.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Past High Priest Samuel Bingaman installed the officers-elect of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 24, R. A. M., Thursday night. A banquet followed.

Drew; keeper of records and seals, Frank Putnam; master of finance, Horace J. Martin; master of exchequer, Frank Humpston; master at arms, Eugene V. MANY ACCEPTANCES RECEIVED FOR UNIVERSITY SMOKER.

Indications of an Over-flow Meeting at the Second Annual to be Held at the Casino.

All the details for the second annual university smoker to be held at the Casino on January 24, are being perfected in a satisfactory manner. It now looks as though it will be impossible to accommodate the crowd at the rate the acceptances are being received by Owen H. Fleming. As one member of the committee has expressed it the indications are that there will be an over-flow meeting on the outside.

The committee has been assured of a quartette from Yale and one from Princeton to help enliven the occasion, while an excellent vaudeville show will be well worth seeing. The promptness with which replies are being sent in already assures a successful affair, as the acceptances now exceed those of last year.

—The Potter Press Works has shut down until Wednesday morning to make the necessary repairs to boilers and machinery and to take the annual inventory.

department should be on the same basis.

He quoted figures showing the salaries paid in the Newark fire department, stating that the chief receives $3,600, the deputy $2,700, the batallion chiefs $2,000 each, and each captain $1,600, while the building inspector receives $2,500, and has several assistants. "Of course," said Mr. Montgomery, "the great objection to an increase of salaries is the heavy tax it imposes, but I believe that this could be lightened somewhat by imposing a small fee for the issuance of every building permit, say $2.50. In Newark it is $10. I would like to see this ordinance go over until next year when a new one can be framed, one that will better meet the requirements." Mr. Montgomery's motion to lay the ordinance over was not seconded, though Mr. Randolph's motion to adopt it was, but when the roll was called there was only five votes in favor and two against, hence the ordinance was killed, six votes being necessary to adopt.

Later Councilman Buxton got busy with the idea of having the ordinance reconsidered, Councilman Hibbard having arrived in the meantime and agreeing to vote in favor of its adoption if it should be brought up again. It was then necessary to get either Mr. Tyler or Mr. Montgomery to move to reconsider but at first neither one would do so.

Mr. Buxton finally made the motion, but Mr. Montgomery instantly arose to a point of order, claiming that he could not make such a motion as he had voted with the minority. After being informed that Mr. Buxton had voted with the majority, he declared Mr. Buxton's motion in order, and was about to put it to a vote, when Mr. Tyler arose and explained that he originally intended to vote in favor of the ordinance, but that the vote was taken so quickly that he didn't fully realize at the time his decision. He then moved to reconsider the vote and the ordinance and on the second vote it was adopted, all but Mr. Montgomery voting in the affirmative. Both the fire and police ordinances go into effect January 1, and it will be up to Mayor-elect Fisk to make appointments under the newly-created ordinances, provided the 1907 Council does not make a further amendment to the police ordinance abolishing them.

Will Decide About Wing Walls.

The question of co-operating with the Union County Board of Freeholders in building wing walls on the new West End avenue bridge will be considered at a meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders on Tuesday, January 8. The Union county members voted to build the walls at an expense not to exceed $2,600, that amount to be divided between the two counties. From present indications the proposition will meet with some opposition on the part of the Somerset county members. However, it has been decided that some protection must be provided for the bridge in high water.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Religious services will be held in the South Plainfield Baptist church, tomorrow, the morning subject being "Encouragement for the New Year;" evening subject, "The Old Year Out and the New Year In." The fire at New Durham, which destroyed the home of Daniel Schenck, left himself, wife and seven children wholly destitute, have rescued nothing and escaping with just the clothes upon their backs. It is said Mrs. Schenck is in a state of nervous prostration from which she will not soon recover.

The masquerade dance given last evening in Washington Hall by the Young People's Social Club was a unique affair, some of the costumes causing much merriment and laughter. Johnnie Bull and the clown were among the best. None were admitted unless disguised and by invitation only.

Rufus Delafield, owner of the Sunswick Poultry Farm, met with a serious accident in having one of his fingers cut off while assisting his foreman, Mr. May, to put in some new posts.

Mrs. Walter Sisty, of Netcong, is visiting at Lakeside Farm.

DINNER-DANCE GIVEN FOR MISS SULLIVANT.

Delightful Function Tendered by Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Sullivant.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Sullivant, of Watchung avenue, gave a delightful dinner-dance at the Park Club, last night, for their daughter, Miss Sullivant, which was in the nature of a holiday function. There were nearly 100 guests, including many boys and girls who are home from school for the holiday season. There were also a number of out-of-town guests.

The Christmas decorations used by the Park Club were left in a position and served the purpose well. The dinner was served about 7 o'clock by Mrs. Johnson, the club stewardess, and this was followed by the dance which continued until a late hour. Those who received with Mrs. Sullivant and her daughter, were Mrs. A. T. Slausson, Mrs. Anna Most and Mrs. W. A. Garrigues. The young people had a jolly good time and a feature was the attractive programme of music.

JOHN J. K. COARD'S FUNERAL.

Held At His Daughter's Home Before a Large Gathering.

Attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, the latter including many business associates, the funeral of John J. K. Coard was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Johnson, of Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon. Almost the entire directing, and business staff of Yates & Co., of Philadelphia, the firm with which Mr. Coard was connected, was present, the store being closed during the day.

Prayer was offered and scripture read by Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, while the remarks were made by Rev. Dr. J. W. Richardson, of Stamford, Conn., a former pastor. At the close he recited impressively the poem, "Sometime." During the service several selections were sung by James Stanley, of New York, a member of the choir of the Crescent Avenue church. The floral tributes were numerous and included set pieces from Yates & Co., and Smith, Gray & Co., the latter firm of New York.

Interment was deferred, pending the arrival of Mr. Coard's son, George Coard, who is on his way to Plainfield from San Francisco.

The class decided to adopt the name "The Yerkes Bible Class," in memory of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, who was pastor of the First Baptist church for nearly fifty years.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

May Irwin in her new play, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night in connection with the Charity ball. The new comedy is of the farcical order, in character something like the others in which she has been seen and was written for her by George V. Hobart who it will be remembered is also the author of other comedies in which she has appeared. In "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," Miss Irwin is said to have a role that is much to her liking, of the kind which means a laugh every minute that she is on the stage.

Few women dramatists have scored lasting success, but Lottie Blair Parker's two big successes, "Way Down East," which has been seen here on several occasions, and "Under Southern Skies," which is underlined for presentation at the New Plainfield theatre New Year's, afternoon and night, have placed her in the front rank of American playwrights.

In presenting the unimitable Four Huntings and their merry company of 25, including the big beauty chorus, to the patrons of the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night, Manager Counihan has surely provided the amusement lovers of our city a treat. This is the second edition of the Four Huntings musical comedy, "The Fool House," and everything is new this season. The stars have added new songs, dances and funny sayings, until you laugh from the start to the finish, while the cast has been carefully selected. The chorus will be seen in some beautiful costumes.

"The Man of Her Choice," the season's biggest melodramatic hit which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, is the biggest thing for the money ever sent out. It's a Broadway production at popular prices.

The lovers of comedy in a picturesque musical dress will welcome Paula Edwardes' return in "Princess Beggar" at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night, prior to her appearances in New York at the Casino. To those familiar with the greatest successes of modern musical comedy, the name of Paula Edwardes recalls her winsome charm and her inimitable comedy at the New York Casino in the days of "The Belle of New York" and later her unequalled popularity in Augustin Daly's greatest musical comedy triumphs, "The Runaway Girl," "The Geisha" and "The Circus Girl." In "Princess Beggar," Edward Paulton, writer of "Erminie," the greatest comic opera success for years, has provided Miss Edwardes with a remarkable role, combining opportunities for her petite, charming personality, her quaint, droll humor and her dramatic talents, one that is unique in its scope.

You may not believe it, but Fay Templeton is billed as "Plain Mary" in "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night, January 7. Also, she sings "So-Long, Mary," and "Mary is a Grand Old Name," thus indicating that Mary is it in the new Klaw & Erlanger offering. Nevertheless, Victor Moore's in the cast as "Kid Burns," a retired prize-fighter, and he hit New York a telling blow right in the reliable ribs during the play's long metropolitan run. The original company comes to Plainfield. The cast includes Victor Moore, Donald Brian, Charles Prince, James H. Manning, Louis Grisel, Maurice Elliott, Floyd E. Francis, Julia Ralph, Marion Singer, Emma Littlefield, Jennie Franklyn, Elizabeth Young, Madeline Le Bouf and Clara Dollard.

HORTICULTURISTS TO MEET AT TRENTON.

Annual Session Will Occur at State House Next Week.

The New Jersey Horticultural Society will conduct its annual meeting at the State House on Thursday and Friday of next week. Sessions will be held in the assembly chamber at Trenton and it has been arranged to have experts on horticultural matters address the delegates on various matters relating to the growth of fruits and flowers. President Horace Roberts, of Moorestown, has been actively engaged for some weeks past in arranging the details for the meeting which it is planned to make it the most successful in the history of the organization. Mr. Roberts will be among the speakers as will also Secretary Franklin Dye of the State Board of Agriculture.

The subject of fruit productions will consume considerable of the time of at least one session. Mr. Dye declared yesterday that interest in fruit culture in this State was by no means waning and he stated that in so far as the quality of fruit is concerned, New Jersey still stands premier among the States of the Union. This statement, Mr. Dye declared, he made without fear of controdiction and he stated that the scientific growing and caring for fruit trees in this State was a matter on which the horticultural during the past few years. The delegates to attend the society's meeting are appointed by the various county boards of agriculture through the State.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

One of the most important musical productions of the New York season is on at Daly's theatre, Thos. W. Ryley making known the beauties of the new musical comedy, "The Belle of Mayfair," which is now filling the playhouse nightly. The book is written by two of the cleverest men in all England, Chas. H. E. Brookfield and Cosmo Hamilton, while the music is by the peer of modern composers, Leslie Stuart, whose earlier works in this country of "Florodora," "The Silver Slipper," and "The School Girl," have won for him great fame. The story is a modernized version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," although departing from the tragedy by the happy termination of the lovers. Mr. Ryley has assembled perhaps the most noteworthy cast that will have graced Broadway in a decade and which consists of the Misses Christie Macdonald, Irene Bentley, Bessie Clayton, Valeska Suratt, Annabelle Whitford and the Messrs. Van Renseller Wheeler, Ignaccio Martinetti, Richard F. Carroll, Jack Gardner, Harry B. Burcher and J. Louis Mintz.

In presenting to the public Reginald DeKoven's new romantic opera, "The Student King," which was given its New York premiere at the Garden theatre on Christmas night, and which marked the New York debut in American light opera of Lina Abarbanell, the grand opera soubrette, Henry W. Savage is endeavoring to eclipse his former efforts in the realm of light opera. It is also designed to build up a new singing organization that may even divide attention with his famous English Grand Opera company, for the production of higher grade operas. The story of "The Student King" is founded on an old sixteenth century custom in Bohemia that permitted the students of Prague University each year to elect one of their popular fellows to reign as king from noon to midnight on the annual feast day. Francis, a herpic young student who supposes himself to be of humble birth, is chosen in the year 1600 as the Carnival King. On this day the bridal train of Princess Ilsa of Tyrol passes through Prague to meet King Rudolph, to whom she is betrothed. The Princess attends the festivities and meets the Student King under the impression that he is the real monarch. It is a case of love at first sight. After many complications and ludicrous misunderstandings at the masked ball, the lovers plan an elopement. The plan is frustarted by Rudolph, and while Francis is endeavoring to exert his brief authority as ruling monarch, the hour of midnight arrives when he must give up his sceptre. His supposed mother on learning of his peril appears before Rudolph, and confesses that Francis is the long lost heir apparent who has been stolen in his infancy by a designing pretender to the throne. Amidst great rejoicing Francis is released and Rudolph abdicates in favor of the new sovereign who then marries Ilsa.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT, 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHAPTER XIX.

The Blood on the Page.

Along the level lane between the mountain ranges he went, a lane that runs almost from Bear creek on the north to the Colorado on the south, with a width of 20 miles or so. But for Joel Rae it became a ride down the valley of lost illusions. Some saving grace of faith was gone from the people. He passed through sturdy little settlements, bowered in gardens and orchards, and girded about by now fertile acres where once had been the bare, gray desert. Slowly, mile by mile, the Saints had pushed down the valley, battling with the Indians and the elements for every acre of land they gained. Yet it seemed to him now that they had achieved but a mere Godless prosperity. They had worked a miracle of abundance in the desert—but of what avail? For the soul of their faith was gone. He felt or heard the proof of it on every hand.

Through Battle Creek, Provo, and Springville he went; through Spanish Fork, Payson, Salt Creek, and Fillmore. He stopped to preach at each place, but he did it perfunctorily, and with shame for himself in his secret heart. Some impalpable essence of spirituality was gone from himself and from the people. He felt himself wickedly agreeing with a pessimistic elder at Fillmore, who remarked: "I tell you what, Brother Rae, it seems like when the Book of Mormon goes again the Constitution of the United States, there's sure to be hell to pay, and the Saints allus has to pay it." He could not tell the man in words of fire, as once he would have done, that they had been punished for lack of faith.

The next evening he reached Cedar City. Memories of this locality began to crowd back upon him with torturing clearness; especially of the morning he had left Hamblin's ranch. As he mounted his horse two of the children saved from the wagon-train had stood near him,—a boy of seven and another a little older, the one who had fought so viciously with him when he was separated from the little girl. He remembered that the younger of the two boys had forgotten all but the first of his name. He had told them that it was John Calvin—something; he could not remember what, so great had been his fright; the people at the ranch, because of his forlorn appearance, had thereupon named him John Calvin Sorrow.

These two boys had watched him closely as he mounted his horse, and the older one had called to him, "When I get to be a man, I'm coming back with a gun and kill you till you are dead yourself," and the other, little John Calvin Sorrow, had clenched his fists and echoed the threat, "We'll come back here and kill you! Mormons is worse'n Indians!"

He had ridden quickly away, not noting that some of the men standing by had looked sharply at the boys and then significantly at one another. One of those who had been present, whom he now met, told him of these two boys.

"You see, Elder, the orders from headquarters was to save only them that was too young to give evidence in a court. But these two was very forward and knowing. They shouldn't have been kept in the first place. So two men—no need of naming names—took both of them out one night. They got along all right with the little one they called John Calvin Sorrow—only the little cuss kicked and scrambled so that we both had to see to him for a minute, and when we was ready for the other, there he was at least ten rods away, a-legging it into the scrub oak. Well, they looked and looked and hunted around till day break, but he'd got away all right, the moon going under a cloud. They tracked him quite a ways when it come light, till his tracks run into the trail of a big band of Navajos that had been up north trading ponies and was going back south. He was the one that talked so much about you, but you needn't ever have any fear of his talking any more. He'd be done for one way or another."

For the first time in his life that night, he was afraid to pray,—afraid even to give thanks that others were sleeping in the room with him so that he could hear their breathing and know that he was not alone.

He was up betimes to press on to the south, again afraid to pray, and dreading what was still in store for him. For sooner or later he would have to be alone in the night. Thus far since that day in the Meadows he had slept near others, whether in cabins or in camp, in some freighter's wagon or bivouacking in the snows of Echo canyon. Each night he had been conscious, at certain terrible moments of awakening, that others were near him. He heard their breathing, or in the silence a fire's light had shown him a sleeping face, the lines of a form, or an arm tossed out. What would happen on the night he found himself alone, he knew not—death, or the loss of reason.

His way lay through the Meadows, yet he hardly realized this until he was fairly on the ground in the midst of a thousand evil signs of the day. Here, a year after, were skulls and whitening bones, some in heaps, some scattered through the sage-brush where the wolves had left them. Many of the skulls were pierced with bullet holes, shattered as by heavy blows, or cleft as with a sharp-edged weapon. Even more terrifying than these were certain traces caught here and there on the low scrub oaks along the way,—children's sunbonnets; shreds of coarse lace, muslin, and calico; a child's shoe, the tattered sleeve of a woman's dress—all faded, dead, whipped by the wind.

He pressed through it all with set jaws, trying to keep his eyes fixed upon the ground beyond his horse's head; but his ears were at the mercy of the cries that rang from every thicket.

Once out of it, he rode hard, for it must not come yet—his first night alone. By dusk he had reached the new settlement of Amalon, a little off the main road in a valley of the Pine mountains. Here he sought the house where he had left the child. When he had picketed his horse he went in and had her brought to him,—a fresh little flower-like woman-child, with hair and eyes that told of her mother, with reminders of her mother's ways as she stood before him, a waiting poise of the head, a lift of the chin. They looked at each other in the candle-light, the child standing by the woman who had brought her, looking up at him curiously, and he not daring to touch her or go nearer. She became uneasy and frightened at last, under his scrutiny, and when the woman would have held her from running away, began to cry, so that he gave the word to let her go. She ran quickly into the other room of the cabin, from which she called back with tears of indignation in her voice, "You're not my papa—not my real papa!"

When the people were asleep, he sat before the blaze in the big fireplace, on the hearth cleanly swept with its turkey-wing and buffalo-tail. There was to be one more night of his reprieve from solitude. The three women of the house and the man were sleeping around the room in bunks. The child's bed had been placed near him on the floor after she slept, as he had asked it to be. He had no thought of sleep for himself. He was too intensely awake with apprehension. On the floor beside his chair was a little bundle the woman had brought him,—the bundle he had found loosened by her side, that day, with the trinkets scattered about and the limp-backed little Bible lying open where it had fallen.

He picked the bundle up and untied it, touching the contents timidly. He took up the Bible last, and as he did so a memory flooded back upon him that sickened him and left him trembling. It was the book he had given her on her seventeenth birthday, the one she had told him she was keeping when they parted that morning at Nauvoo. He knew the truth before he opened it at the yellowed fly-leaf and read in faded ink, "From Aunt Prudence on this day when she is 17 years old—June 2d, 1843."

In a daze of feeling he turned the pages, trying to clear his mind, glancing at the chapter headings as he turned,—"Abraham is Justified by Faith," "God Instructeth Isaac," "Pharaoh's Heart Is Hardened," "The Laws of Murder," "The Curses for Disobedience." He turned rapidly and at last began to run the leaves from between his thumb and finger, and then, well over in the book something dark caught his eye. He turned the leaves back again to see what it was; but not until the book was opened flat before him and he held the page close to the light did he see what it was his eye had caught. A wash of blood was across the page.

He stared blankly at the reddish, dark stain, as if its spell had been laid upon him. Little by little he began to feel the horror of it, remembering now he picked the book up from where it had fallen before her. Slowly, but with relentless certainty, his mind cleared to what he saw.

Now for the first time he began to notice the words that showed dimly through the stain, began to read them, to puzzle them out, as if they were new to him:—

"But I say unto you which hear, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you.

"Bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you.

"And unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek, offer also the other; and him that taketh away thy cloke forbid not to take thy coat also.

"Give to every man that asketh of thee; and of him that taketh away thy goods ask them not again.

"And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

Again and again he read them. They were illumined with a strangely terrible meaning by the blood of her he had loved and sworn to keep himself clean for.

He could no longer fight off the truth. It was facing him now in all its nakedness, monstrous to obscenity, demanding its due measure from his own soul's blood. He aroused himself, shivering, and looked out into the room where the shadows lay heavy, and from whence came the breathing of the sleepers. He picked up the now sputtering candle, set in its hole bored in a block of wood, and held it up for a last look at the little woman-child. He was full of an agony of wonder as he gazed, of piteous questioning why this should be as it was. The child stirred and flung one arm over her eyes as if to hide the light. He put out the candle and set it down. Then stooping over, he kissed the pillow beside the child's head and stepped lightly to the door. He had come to the end of his subterfuge—he could no longer delay his punishment.

Outside the moon was shining, and his horse moved about restlessly. He put on the saddle and rode off to the south, galloping rapidly after he reached the highway. Off there was a kindly desert where a man could take in peace such punishment as his body could bear and his soul decree; and where that soul could then pass on in decent privacy to be judged by its Maker.

SPREAD THE NEWS.

Plainfield Citizens Assisting in the Good Work.

Day by day and hour by hour the "Little Conqueror" becomes better known and more respected by the public. Nothing in modern times has reached the high pinnacle of popular favor in so short a time; people talk about it, and they have reason to. They tell their experience for the good of their fellow beings and through gratitude. To publish their expressions is but to show you that the same experience awaits you. Here is the experience of a Plainfield resident:

Albert Naylor, music teacher, of 436 East Fifth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull aching in the small of my back and sharp pains when stooping or lifting. I resorted to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills for same, as I had been told that they were a cure for such pain as I had been having. I took only two boxes before the pains left me, and I was soon feeling first-class in every respect. I have often endorsed and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to those suffering from backache as I was."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

KIELY AND RUNYON TAKE THREE STRAIGHT

MALTBY AND THIERS DIDN'T GET A "LOOK-IN" IN YESTERDAY'S GAMES.

In the present-day street parlance, the municipal team, Chief Kiely and Judge Runyon, "put it all over" "Marvellous" Maltby and his partner, Dr. Theirs, in the two-men tourney last night. Maltby even put in an extra thirty pounds pressure in his two-horse power ball so that the pin boys had to wear chest protectors and shin guards, but all to no purpose. The chief and the judge took three straight games with lots of leeway every time. It was a big surprise to the fans and some of them haven't recovered yet.

Another surprise was occasioned last night by the return of the "ponies," Willie Mullen and John Conklin who landed two out of three on Day and Gahagan. If Conklin hadn't run into a bunch of splits in his second game they could easily have made it three straight. The two youngsters are favorites with the pin-smashing enthusiasts and they got lots of encouragement as the series progressed. Day was sadly out of form when he first started off and his initial score was 98, the first one below 100 that has been made since the tourney started.

Sheelen and Alberts were also on deck again last night and took two from Dodge and Leland. This also occasioned some surprise as Orrie Dodge's "Cold Molasses Special" ball can generally be counted upon to do some tall execution. His highest score was but 178 while Leland's best was 189.

The scores:

Kiely	193	183	166
Runyon	170	197	157
	363	380	323
vs.
Theirs	162	155	153

BOWLING.

Frank Blatz, who is bowling in the tourney with Harry VanEmburgh, astonished the gallery at McLaughlin's alleys yesterday afternoon. He hit the pins for 215, 205 and 240 in succession. His partner was swamped by the rolling.

There was a hot game on No. 1 alley at McLaughlin's, last night, following the tourney series and it resulted in a lemon almost as large as a grape fruit being handed "Candy Kid" Britton. There were seven entries and though he hit the timber for 196, Britton was ten cent man. John Conklin barely pulled through with 199 and Jack McNulty and Dan Mack escaped by rolling 200 and 213 respectively. The unfortunates beside Britton were "Billy" Leland 176, Roger Cooley 162 and Wilson Geary 129. Geary started out well but when he saw Dan Mack and McNulty get five straight strikes he got faint heart and went to pieces.

ROD AND GUN.

CHILDREN MADE HAPPY.

Xmas Tree Pleases Little Ones at the Home.

The Christmas festivities at the Children's Home, yesterday afternoon, were greatly enjoyed not only by the twenty children, but others who returned for the celebration, as well as people in the city and borough who are specially interested in this work. At 2 o'clock the children had their Christmas dinner, which included turkey and all the good things which accompany it.

The tree was lighted at 4 o'clock followed by a generous distribution of gifts to all the children. It was the opinion of all that it was the best celebration ever held at the Home and both young and old shared in the festivities. Mrs. Horace Kimball, president of the association, assisted by the matron, Mrs. Hendrickson and other officers, had charge of the affair.

Greetings From a Distance.

Chief Doane is in receipt of Christmas postals from Chief Gilbert, of the Auckland, New Zealand, fire department, and Auguste Saltzman, former chief of the Plainfield department, now living in Switzerland. Chief Doane and Chief Gilbert met at a convention in Charlestown, S. C., several years ago and the latter has always sent a card to Plainfield at Christmas.

James E. Martine is confined to his home with a severe attack of grippe.

LAST OF SANTA'S VISITS

Several Sunday-Schools Held Christmas Exercises Last Night.

LIVELY PROGRAMMES

Carols, Recitations and In Some Instances, Professional Performers, Entertain the Children.

Several more Sunday-schools held Christmas exercises last night. The programmes were bright, and the audiences large. It was Santa Claus' last appearance in church circles here for 1906.

Hope Chapel.

The Christmas exercises at Hope chapel consisted of the presentation of a drama entitled "Christmas Folk and the Children," depicting the Christmas long ago as it occurred in Northern Germany. The leading characters were as follows. "Mother," Miss Edna Eckert; "King Christmas," David Bowden; "Babouska," Miss Elsie Rimmer; "Santa Claus," James Penny; "The Waits," Tom Muir; "the Knight Rupert," Ralph Eckert; the "Lord of Misrule," Benjamin Evans; a group of mummers, Walter Firstbrook, Allen Snyder, James Kenny and George Mead; children, Alice Rimmer, Josie Snyder, Katharine Gray, Margaret Overland, Clara Weber and David Hendry.

As the mother sits by the fireplace on Christmas eve, King Christmas appears, followed by a rout of his noisy mummers. The mummers are soon banished, except the minstrel "waits," who sings his Christmas carols. Presently the old woman Babouska enters, bent on errands of mercy in the service of the Christ child, and the Knight Rupert follows on a similar mission. Suddenly the jolly Santa Claus appears; with pack full of toys for the children, and the children rush in at the sound of jingling bells. "Toys for good children and a rod for the bad" says Old Santa, and each one receives the toys.

The whole play was carried through with a spirit and dash that delighted the audience. Particularly good in their parts were Mr. Bowden, Elsie Rimmer, James Penny and Miss Eckert. The entertainment was followed by the usual distribution of candy and oranges to members of the school.

The children of the primary department received additional gifts, a doll for each girl and a book for each boy.

The committee in charge comprised I. W. Travell, chairman, G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Simons, Miss Elsie Rimmer, Miss Edna Eckert, Miss Mary Mortimer, Miss Elizabeth Storah, Miss Bertha Jones, Miss Eunice Eckert, Miss Lillian Duckworth, Benjamin Evans, Tom Muir and Donald Mortimer.

The participants in the cantata were drilled by Mrs. Stuart Simons and its successful presentation was due to her tireless energy and artistic arranging.

Grace M. E.

The feature of the exercises at Grace M. E. church was a cantata entitled, "The Widow Mullins Christmas," an elaborate affair of its kind in three scenes. It was presented by members of the Sunday-school and was witnessed by a gathering that filled the main room to its capacity.

The character were taken as follows: "Santa Claus," George Parsons; "Jack Frost," Carl Steiner; "Widow Mullin," Reba Klein; "Mrs. Appleby," Florence Smalley; "Mullin children," Rowland Conroy, Clara Bodenheimer, Edna Mantz, Gladys Brokaw, Samuel and Clarence Bodine and Edna Beeching. Miss Edith Major acted as accompanist. One of the best things in the cantata was a song by Edna Mantz, a little tot of four years. She has a very sweet voice and about three times the volume ordinarily possessed by a child of her age; and what is best, she knows how to use it.

The school sang the usual Christmas carols and at the close of the exercises, the customary candy, oranges and gifts were distributed. Miss Mary Steiner arranged the programme and drilled the cantata participants while Superintendent W. J. Conroy had charge during the evening.

Faith Chapel.

The Sunday-school members of Faith chapel enjoyed their Christmas festivities last night, the chapel being crowded to the doors with the children, their parents and friends. The decorations were elaborate, including an old-fashioned chimney and fire-place through which Santa Claus made his appearance.

Under the direction of Frank Stewart, assistant superintendent, who was chairman of the committee, an excellent programme was provided. The features were the piano solos by Mrs. Ida Randolph-Smalley and the recitations by Miss Justine Roberts. Both captivated the audience from the first. Mrs. Smalley's selections were greatly enjoyed, while Miss Roberts held the attention of all by her work, which included many child impersonations. They opened the programme with a piano duett and interspersed it with several selections. Then followed the singing of carols by the school, address of welcome by David Myers, violin selections by Clarence Lawrence, accompannied by Miss Viebrock; a song by Emily Conger; dialogue, Edna Stewart and Roy Haffner; remarks by Kenneth Robbie, cornet solos by Whitney Frazee, accompanied by Mrs. Smalley; recitations, Bessie Conger and Helen Myers and the singing of other carols.

Santa Claus appeared in the person of U. B. Crane and made lots of fun as he distributed toys, dolls, oranges, candy, perfumery and books to the children. There were also some special gifts. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson received a gold watch from the members of the chapel; Frank Stewart was presented with a gold watch fob, L. W. Randolph, superintendent, and W. A. Conger, organist, each a quilt made by the Ladies' Aid Society; Isaac Alexander, sexton, an umbrella and a candy cant; Mrs. J. W. Musson a large stocking filled with many useful things, U. B. Crane a chair from his Bible class and Percy Cannon a talking doll. The presentations were made by Superintendent L. W. Randolph and all the recipients were appreciative.

Congregational Church.

The young people of the Congregational church and their attendant elders were entertained by professional as well as amaeur talent at the Christmas tree exercises last night. Besides carols, an address by J. M. Whiton, and a series of tableaux, a vaudeville sleight-of-hand team furnished a lot of fun for the small folks. They made the children part of the entertainment.

The tableauxs were the last feature of the entertainment. Mics Catherine Phillips, as a fairy godmother, called familiar characters of fairyland from a chimney composed largely of boxes of candy. Emma VanAlstine, Florence Nielsen, Dorothy Barrett and Netta Steiner took part in the tableaux. Harold Nomer, as Santa Claus, distributed sections of the chimney, assisted by the fairybook characters.

MAYORS TO HOLD NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION.

Outgoing and Incoming Executives of Plainfield to Hold a Levee On January 1.

Mayor James F. Buckle and Mayor-elect Charles J. Fisk will hold a joint reception at the Mayor's office, the Smalley Buildings New Year's Day, from 11 o'clock in the morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The whole citizenry is invited. There will be cigars and the glad hand for the men, and pleasant words for the women.

A large attendance is expected. All the local politicians will be at the levee, and the plain people, it is hoped, will follow suit by the hundreds. The early closing hour will give all the political lights ample time to attend the annual function at Ursino, Senator Kean's humble cot near Elizabeth.

John H. Sayers' Funeral.

The funeral of John H. Sayers, whose death occurred at Muhlenberg Hospital, Wednesday, was held at his late home on East Third street, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman in the presence of a gathering of friends. Seteral selections were sung by Mrs. John Manley. There were numerous floral tributes. Interment was made at Hillside cemtery, the pall bearers being William C. Emith, Noah Pike, Albert Romond, Dr. C. M. Luckey, Charles Rice and S. C. Boice.

No "Bix Six."

Councilman William S. Tyler states that there was no concerted action at the recent Councilmanic caucus to oppose the suggestions made by Mayor-elect Fisk regarding the arrangement of committees. There was a constantly changing division of sentiment on the several propositions as they were taken up in turn and no factional lines were instrumental in bringing about the results. A great many of Mr. Fisk's ideas met with hearty approval.

No Rectory Reception.

Because of the absence of Rev. E. V. Stevenson from town, the regular New Year's reception at the rectory of Grace P. E. church will not be held January 1.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Egar, of Rockview avenue, returned last evening from a visit to Rome, N. Y., where Dr. Egar officiated at the marriage of Copeland Morton, of Baltimore, and Frances Eloise, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Comstock, of Rome. Dr. Egar was rector of Zion church, Rome, for twenty-three years.

Peculiar Will Case in Which Three Plainfielders are Directly Interested.

FRAUD CHARGE MADE

Third Cousins Ignored By Stephen M. Wright Will Fight Bequest to Missing Housekeeper.

One million dollars in property; the eccentric idea of its owner to leave half of it to his housekeeper; the sudden disappearance of this housekeeper and the filing Saturday in Mineola, L. I., of an application for revocation of a will on sensational charges of fraud, have combined to reveal a remarkable story concerning the late Stephen Mott Wright, who recently died at Sea Cliff, L. I., and in which three Plainfielders are directly interested.

Stephen S. Dodge and his brother, William, both of New York, filed the application and disclosed the strange story of the life of their third cousin, Wright.

Wright died in September last, and the executors named were Mrs. Ida Beach Stuart, the housekeeper; Henry Storrs and C. A. Cohen. Surrogate Jackson probated the will last month, and everything seemed proper and legal.

Wright left half of his property to Mrs. Stuart. The remainder was to be distributed among his three cousins, Mary Louise Storrs, Henry J. Storrs and Electa Storrs Craft, all of Kensington avenue, this city.

With the protest made Saturday came the revelation that Wright, a long time before his death, had erected a splendid house at Sea Cliff for his housekeeper, and had furnished it like a palace. With the exception of some jewelry and wearing apparel in the house, everything therein contained, including the structure itself, is left to Mrs. Stuart.

A freak part of the will is that if Mrs. Stuart, whom the deceased designated as "friend," chooses to give furniture to the cousins, she may do so, or, if she pleases, may present it to an organization called "The Goats."

The Dodge brothers allege that this will was executed while Wright was under illegal influence, and that he did not make it of his own free will. They also set forth that they were not cited at the time the instrument was drawn up.

Surrogate Jackson, realizing the immense interests concerned, has given the parties time to prepare their cases, and will hear argument January 30.

A search for Mrs. Stuart Saturday was futile. Not a person knew where she was, or any of her plans.

The will was executed last January in the presence of Augustus Meyers, of No. 14 Riverside Drive, Augustus S. Mayer, of No. 53 West Ninety-fourth street, Manhattan, and Roland Taylor, No. 455 Greene avenue, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Craft, who is one of the heirs mentioned, was asked about the matter by a Daily Press reporter this morning, and she declared that she knew nothing of any plan to fight the will. She stated that Mrs. Stuart was at Glen Head, L. I., when she had heard from her last and to all intents and purposes was there at the present time. Miss Storrs, Henry J. Storrs and Mrs. Craft are all first cousins of Mr. Wright and are the nearest relatives.

SNEAKTHIEVES WORK.

Entered Three Houses In Scotch Plains Last Week.

Three Scotch Plains houses were entered by sneakthieves Friday night. They got $5 from two of the places; an inventory will be necessary to discover what is missing from the other place.

The houses entered were those of Township Committeeman-elect Ira G. Walker, George Marsh and R. B. Duycknek. It was the third visit of thieves to Mr. Walker's house in three years. He has learned to keep little money in the house, and only $1 in change disappeared from his place. Henry Schenck, caretaker of the Marsh place, says $4 was taken from his room. The Duycknek house was closed for the winter and what is missing there will not be known until the family tots up its possessions.

Funeral of Mrs. Varian.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah E. Varian was held at the home of her son, Clarence E. Varion, of East Ninth street, Saturday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. J. S. Zelie in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being four brothers, James K., William E., Charles E. and George W. Arnold, and two sons, Clarence E. and George W. Varian.

TOOTS AMATEUR AND TOOTS PROFESSIONAL

MR. MYGRANT FACES A DISCORD IN SCALE OF UNION ETHICS.

Is it possible for a band leader to wave the baton before amateurs six nights a week, and on the seventh engage professionals to give a concert without transgressing the rules of the musical union? This is a question that ten former members of the Thirteenth Regiment Band would like to have solved. They are not exactly impartial in the matter, as they were discharged because, it was alleged, they could not make music that suited the leader, W. S. Mygrant, of Fanwood. The soldier musicians assert that they have been discriminated against, and that, anyway, the bandmaster, Mr. Mygrant, isn't a simon pure union man. They assert that, while the Thirteenth Regiment Band is supposed to be made up of amateurs, whenever the band is to appear in public the bandmaster goes outside and hires a lot of professional musicians and calls the outfit the Thirteenth Regiment Band.

Mr. Mygrant maintains that the reason the men were put out was because they couldn't play and didn't give any indications that they would ever learn. He says that they stayed away from rehearsals and were of no benefit to the band. The men contend, on the other hand, that the bandmaster tried to induce them to take private lessons at a dollar an hour, and that when they refused he bean to ignore them.

The position taken by the bandmaster is borne out by Colonel David E. Austen, commander of the regiment, who says he is perfectly satisfied with the manner in which Mr. Mygrant conducts the band. The Colonel stated further that a new class was now being formed, and that there would be no trouble in keeping the band up to its high standard.

Edward McIntyre, a former drum major of the band, whose duty it was to train the members in military movements, sides with the bandmaster and says that the men who were discharged had no grievance whatever. He maintained that Mr. Mygrant had the uniton understand each other perfectly, and that the latter made no objection to his teaching the amateurs how to toot and pound the drum.

CHARITY BALL TONIGHT; AT THEATRE AND CASINO

FINAL ANNOUNCEMENTS MADE BY COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF THE AFFAIR.

The arrangements for the great closing event of the year, the charity ball, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, are about complete, and everything is in readiness for a night of pleasure both at the theatre and Casino. It is unnecessary to dwell on the excellence of the theatrical offering—Miss May Irwin in her new play, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews." The simple announcement is sufficient to fill the house, but visitors to the Casino will be greatly surprised at the novelties presented and the beautiful decorations, both in the main hall and supper rooms. The ball at the Casino will begin immediately after the performance at the theatre.

The committee in charge respectfully requests that all carriages approach from the theatre on West Second street, from Madison avenue, facing East, and leave via Park avenue, and all carriages approach the Casino on West Seventh street via Park avenue, facing west, and leave via Madison avenue. Every detail looking to the safety, comfort and convenience of guests has been fully attended to. At the ball, there will be two orchestras in the main hall, and continuous music and vaudeville in the supper room. At midnight—well, those present will be agreeably surprised, and the New Year ushered in with becoming ceremonies.

Prison Evangelist Spoke.

Thomas Elgar, prison evangelist, spoke at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting yesterday afternoon, on "Prison Blasts North and South." He recounted his experiences in prisons all over the East, and held up the records of the men behind the bars and warnings against the first steps in sin. Mr. Elgar has been engaged in prison work twenty-five years.

Grip Overcomes Watchman.

Patrolman Andrew Saffron went into the Rushmore Dynamo Works at 3:10 o'clock yesterday morning, and found John Jones, the watchman, lying on the floor. He seemed very sick. The officer called out the patrol wagon and Jones was hurried to the hospital. His illness was diagnosed as grip. He was put to bed in a ward.

TAKES OFFICE TOMORROW

Charles J. Fisk, Choice of All Parties, Assumes Office of Mayor on New Year's Day.

HE IS A MODEL CITIZEN

Member of a Great Banking Firm—Devoted to Business, but Politics is a Diversion.

Charles J. Fisk, the choice of both political parties for mayor, will take office tomorrow. Having had experience in the mayor business, he will not enter the position with the timid misgivings of a novice. Moreover, he has been going over the situation industriously with Mayor Buckle for a week or more, has been in touch with local governmental conditions right along, and will prosecute the duties of the mayoral office with vigor and understanding from the first minute he takes over the reins of office.

Mr. Fisks' energy and grasp of affairs has been a matter of comment and admiration in Plainfield for years. He comes by his pushful qualities naturally, his father had them to such a degree that they made him a great power in the world of finance. Mr. Fisk inherited them to such an extent that he has become recognized father as a manager of the great banking firm of Harvey Fisk & Sons.

Harvey Fisk was the direct descendant of William Fisk, who established the family in this country in 1637. Charles Joel Fisk was born in Jersey City on June 16, 1858. He entered his father's banking house in New York, Fisk & Hatch, in 1875.

Evincing marked aptitude for finance, Charles Joel Fisk became a valuable member of the managing staff, and in 1884, when Fisk & Hatch dissolved, he became associated with the firm's successor, Harvey Fisk & Sons, with which house he has since remained. He has helped to strengthen the house by the application of energy, throught and progressiveness, and is recognized as one of the chief supports today, when financiers fare problems of unusual difficulty and delicacy.

Mr. Fisk became a resident of Plainfield twenty years ago. He interested himself in local affairs very soon after his arrival here, and the people speedily recognized his value as a citizen and a leader in civic advancement. Political honors came swiftly, and today Mr. Fisk has an enviable record of public service. He served six years in the Council and became mayor; is now president of the Board of Health, a member of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, and is chairman of the Republican city committee. Several times he has been delegate to State and National conventions; he was a member of both conventions that nominated McKinley.

Mr. Fisk is regarded as one of the influential men in the State councils of the Republican party. It is said that he could have had nominations for higher offices than those of the municipality, but he steadfastly declined to consider them; regarding politics as a pleasureable diversion from the cares of business, to which he has always applied himself devotedly.

Mr. Fisk is the possessor of a fine array of social virtues, a sincere friend and an able leader. His ready philanthropy is too well known locally to require even reference to it. He is a member of the Plainfield Country Club, Riding and Driving Club, the Watchung Hunt Club, the County Club, of Lakewood; the Union League, the New York, the Republican, the Lawyers, and the Waywanda Fishing Club, of New York. He is also a member of Elk Lodge, No. 885; Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., and Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar.

Clarence Hand, of Fairview avenue, who has been visiting at home, will return to Cornell University on Thursday.

STATION THEFT MYSTERY

Way in Which Money and Mileage Books Disappear Puzzle Police.

MAGIC IN THE AFFAIR

Crook, Police Say, Must Have Entered Ticket Window, But Never a Mark Appears on Fresh Paint All About.

The ticket office on the westbound side of the North Avenue station was robbed of $363 in money and five mileage books, valued at $20 apiece, some time between 8:30 o'clock Saturday night and 8:25 yesterday morning. The robbery is a complete puzzle to both the local and the railroad police. The only way an intruder could have entered, judging from the appearance of things, was by one of the two windows through which tickets are sold, and the fresh paint that had been applied all about them on Saturday showed no mark.

Andrew Muford is the agent in charge of the office. He goes off duty at 7 o'clock on Saturday nights, and is not due to return until 8:30 o'clock the next morning. He says he left the office at 7 o'clock Saturday, as usual, and returned to see if everything was all right at 8:30 o'clock. He saw nothing wrong. When he opened the office yesterday morning at 8:25 o'clock, the money and mileage books were gone.

The money and tickets had been left in an unlocked drawer. There is no safe in the office. Only that drawer, the police say, was disturbed. The cash drawer, containing about $7, was not tampered with.

Because of the painting going on, the brass wickets that usually guard the ticket windows were left off Saturday night. The woodwork all about the windows was thickly coated with paint that was still wet yesterday morning. The police say that it is through those windows a crook would most likely get it, yet never a mark was left on the paint. Chief Kiely said this morning that he can think of no way in which a man could have gotten through the windows without leaving a mark.

Patrolman Dennis O'Keeffe, whose port includes the station, and Night Operator Fred Harding say they saw nothing suspicious all through the night. O'Keeffe says he was at the station for a while before and after every train, and Harding had to go out on the platform as each train passed or stopped, to get the numbers of the engines.

Detective Henry Gaffney, of the railroad police, went to work on the case with the local officers, but the combined efforts of the two departments had been unable to shed any light on the mystery up to noon.

PROTECTION FOR RABBITS

J. A. Staats Marshalling Sportsman in Support of Proposed Measure.

FAVORS 3-YEAR CHECK

Growing Scarcity of Cottontails, He Says, Makes a Suspension for Hunting For That Period Necessary.

Sportsmen of the northern and central sections of this State, among whom J. A. Staats, of this city, is prominent, are combining their efforts to have a bill introduced and passed by the incoming legislature that will prohibit the killing of rabbits for three years. The increased scarcity of the cottontails which has been noticeable for the past few hunting seasons is the chief cause for the agitation for the desired measure.

Mr. Staats is one of the best known wing shots in the State, and a former president of the North New Jersey Game Protective Association. He is one of the prime movers in the effort to secure the desired legislation. He is trying to interest the various game protective associations throughout the State, and is urging them to co-operate in the effort to check the slaughter of rabbits. He is confident of ultimate uccess in the crusade.

Mr. Staats maintains that the question is of prime importance and should interest every sportsman. He says that if the slaughter of rabbits is continued there will be practically no cottontails in the State in a year ro so. Mr. Staats also declares that every sportsman in the State should stand by the proposed bill as a matter of self-protection, claiming that most of the rabbits are shot by hunters from New York and Pennsylvania, who invade the State in large numbers at every hunting season.

Who will present the bill, Mr. Staats is not prepared to say. He declares, however, that the bill is now in course of preparation and will surely be introduced.

It is an undeniable fact that rabbits have been getting scarcer in this section every season. Fifteen years ago the Watchung range was filled with choice rabbits, but now it is seldom rabbits are seen in anything like goodly numbers. Of late years, Hunterdon and Warren counties have been the objective points of hunters who wanted a decent chance to bag spoil, but in the last five years the number of rabbits have greatly decreased there also. The Southern part of Morris county was at one time overrun with cottontails, as was the lowlands of Union, Middlesex and Monmouth counties. Sussex county and the northern part of Morris county were never good rabbit hunting territory because of the foxes that abound there.

Dr. Johnson at Trinity.

A good sized congregation greeted Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, yesterday morning in Trinity Reformed church, and listened to an excellent sermon from the text, "In Him We Live, and Move and Have Our Being," Acts 17-28. In the evening Dr. Johnson spoke to a small congregation. His text was: "The Joy of the Lord is Your Strength." He is a forcible extempore speaker and his arguments are driven home in a convincing manner. He will again occupy Dr. Schenck's pulpit next Sunday morning and evening.

First Meeting 1907 Council.

The 1907 Common Council will hold its first meeting for the year tomorrow night to perfect an organization. At that time Councilman Leslie M. Daniel will be elected president, a position he held two years ago and he will then announce the new committees for the year.

Library to Be Closed.

No books will be circulated at the Public Library tomorrow. The reading room will be open from 2 until 6 o'clock.

METHODIST CHURCH HAS VESTED CHOIR

ROBED CHORISTERS EDIFY CONGREGATION WITH HIGH-CLASS MUSIC.

The present choir of the First Methodist Episcopal church was organized under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, the organist and director, May 1st, 1904. The choir from its inception came into much prominence as a musical organization and has been a strong factor toward the upbuilding of the church and the sustaining of the congregation.

At its organization the officials of the church decided to take rather a radical step and to vest the choir in the regulation cassock and cotta of the Protestant Episcopal church. The choir also adopted the processional and recessional hymns adding a new feature to the service, which being such a wide step from the conventional that it at first met with some disfavor, but as the members of the church became accustomed to the innovation it has grown in favor until now it is universally enjoyed.

During the year and a half of its existence many musical services and cantatas have been given and it has obtained much an excellent reputation that the edifice is always filled to its capacity at any such services. Among the cantatas which have been sung during the past year might be mentioned Buck's "Triumph of David," Buck's "Coming of the King," Gounod's "Gallia," Mendelssohn's "42nd Psalm," and various selections from standard oratorios. Mr. Skiff is an untiring choirmaster and has the rare ability of holding his singers together for regular and systematic work. The choir is particularly free from the famed inner contention which so often prevails in church choirs.

The personnell of the choir is as follows: Sopranos, Miss Bertha van Nuise Willis, Miss Laura Gesswein, Miss Viola Leivers, Miss Jessica Piper, Miss Florence Conroy, Miss Ida Dunham, Mrs. Joseph Dunham, Mrs. J. Edmund Skiff, Miss Louise Stowell, Miss Carro Bird; altos, Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, Miss Agnes Bailey, Miss Jennnie DeMott, Miss Mary Searles, Miss Josephine Griffith, Miss Annette Beeching, Mrs. M. MacGrath; tenors, Harry Yaeger, Arthur Stiles, Jos. Dunham, Erwin Leland, Harry Weatherwax; bassos, Carlos Gallup, Oscar Moore, Vincent Miner, Walter Sampson and W. Williams.

Modishly Togged Vagrant.

A young man who described himself as John T. Brown, of Tennessee, clad in an English walking suit of correct cut and a fancy waistcoat, was arrested by Patrolman Payne nearly this morning, because he acted and talked like a vagrant. He told Judge Runyon this morning that he was making his way to Philadelphia to meet his wife. He talked like a bit of muff, and the court bade him continue his journey and wished him Godspeed. He didn't have the price for a breakfast and Chief Kiely gave him one.

THREATEN MR. BEEKMAN

Ugly Notices Posted Warns Fanwoodite to Leave That Borough.

AUTHOR IS UNKNOWN

Typewritten Cards Placed In Conspicuous Places Do Not Seem to Worry Man Who Is Object of Vengeance.

Fanwood borough has been thrown into a fervor of excitement by the posting of notices in public places informing C. A. Bettman, one of its best known citizens, that he must cease to be a resident under threats of tar and feathers and bodily harm. The warnings are typewritten and signed by "W. C., secretary of the Vigilance Committee of the State of New Jersey." Five of them were placed on poles in a conspicuous manner and another one was posted on the front door of Bettman's residence.

While the majority of the boroughites do not take the matter seriously, they assert that it shows there is a feeling against Bettman, who has feeling against Bettman, who was figured in the affairs of the place in past years, and that some irresponsible youths may do something rash. Bettman himself has paid no attention to the notices and goes on the even tenor of his way, refusing to make comment for publiation. A copy of the warning is in the hands of the authorities and an effort is being made to locate the members of "the Vigilance Committee of the State of New Jersey."

The notices were couched in proper English and the text showed that the authors were familiar with Bettman's affairs. After informing him that his presence in Fanwood is obnoxious to the other residents, they rehearse part of the troubles in which he and his wife figured some time ago and are familiar to Plainfield people. It was claimed that he had deserted and abandoned her and their child. After repeated attempts at reconciliation, Mrs. Bettman applied to the borough for relief and her husband was forced to contribute to her support. The trouble and publicity, however, had unsettled her mind and it finally became necessary to have her removed to the State Hospital at Morris Plains. She afterward recovered and went to the home of relatives in Texas.

The plight of the unfortunate wife and mother, it is said, engendered a strong feeling against Bettman at the time and it has evidently smoldered ever since. It is not known positively that he has done anything particular to fan it into a flame but it is asserted that he has gone out of his way several times to make trouble for the borough young men because of their harmless pranks. It is also said that a few nights ago he insisted on the arrest of several of them because they were laughing and joking at the entrance to the depot park.

The notice is the first open threat against Bettman and it has led to a rehearsal of all his domestic affairs and also started gossip as to whether some of the charges made in it are true. Several allegations are made that would permit of his taking drastic action himself.

After outlining the alleged causes of complaint against Mr. Beekman, the notice as posted concludes "Be it further resolved that the said C. A. Beekman is hereby notified to leave the borough of Fanwood on or before January 1, 1907, and never to return under penalty of being given a coat of tar and feathers, after which taken the public square, astride a rail, from hence to a pool known as the Back Pond and there be submerged until the tar washes from his body. Should the said C. A. Bettman offer any resistence while he is being driven from the borough, the senior member of the committee is deputized to cut off; First, the great toes, then the thumbs and last both arms from the body of C. A. Bettman. Should he die from the several amputations, the junior members of the committee shall take the heart and brains, if any, of C. A. Bettman, and feed them to swine. May God have mercy on his poor soul. Dated Dec. 26, 1906. Vigilance Committee of State of New Jersey, W. C., Secretary."

"Under Southern Skies," which will be Manager Counihan's New Year's afternoon and night offering, carries an acting company of twenty-three people and the same completeness of production that made its New York success notable, when it ran in that city for sixteen weeks at the Belasco theatre.

The "Fool House," a musical comedy introducing the famous Four Huntings, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. This is the second edition of this popular play, and has been re-written and brought up to date. A large chorus of shapely girls has been added. New scenery painted. In fact it is all new but the name. Mr. Lew Hunting will introduce new singing and dancing numbers. Miss Mollie Hunting, who is without doubt the best dancer on the American stage, will be seen in new dances. Mr. Jack Hunting has a lot of new comedy while Mr. Tony Hunting is irrepressible. The company has been selected with great care and Manager Hall is to be congratulated in having the best musical comedy of the season.

One of the most remarkable stage settings ever devised for a melodramatic production is used in the second act of "The Mirror of Her Choice," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. It consists of an exact reproduction of a modern New York apartment house showing several families living on the one floor. This scene will give an idea of the uniqueness of the entire production and play as written and produced by Mr. Edward M. Simmonds.

Pretty Paula Edwardes is coming back to the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night, and a new comedy opera not a "musical comedy,"—so called,—a hodge-podge of specialties and songs from various sources, served deceptively as a single composition, but a simon-pure comic opera wafting us back to the palmy days of Gilbert and Sullivan and "Erminie," whose author, by the way, has written "Princess Beggar" in which the dainty comedienne will appear here. It has plenty of plot, picturesque settings and handsome costumes on handsome girls, but it is an opera for all that. The company has been carefully selected, the accessories rich and everything in good taste. The music is by Alfred G. Robyn, who besides being the leading musical figure in the belt of States of which St. Louis is the metropolis, is a composer of national standing, as his "Yankee Counsul" abundantly testifies.

George M. Cohan's new musical play, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," will be the bill at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, with Fay Templeton, who plays the role of a housemaid. Others in the cast are Victor Moore, Emma Littlefield, John Ralph, Marion Singer, Donald Brian, Charles Prince, James H. Manning, Louis R. Grisel, Maurice Elliott, Frank Francis and Harry Watson. Although this is termed a music play, there are but six musical numbers, two of which—"Mary Is a Grand Old Name," and "So-Long, Mary,"—are sung by Miss Templeton, who has the role of "Plain Mary," a housemaid. The character opposite is "Kid Burns," a young man with an extraordinary vocabulary of piquant slang. One of the songs of the play, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," is sung by him.

Saved Mother From Jail.

New York, Dec. 31.—Mrs. Jessie Symonds was arraigned in the Court of Special Sessions Friday to answer a charge of shoplifting. Her daughter, Cecil, who was told in Tuesdays' papers, caused her mother to be released from jail Christmas eve, stood beside Mrs. Symonds in court. Sentence was suspended and Presiding Justice O'Keefe said to Mrs. Symonds: "Any woman might be proud to have such a daughter as yours. That mere child, by her earnest appeal in your behalf, held this court in session a full hour after its business was finished Christmas eve. Spurred on by the sympathy which she aroused all connected with the court labored earnestly to find some interpretation of the law which would give this court jurisdiction in your case that we might parole you in your daughter's custody. We felt certain that you would be sure to return for trial on this charge if paroled in her custody as if you had given bonds amounting to $500 as required by the lower court. We failed, as this court could not act and no court having power was then in session, but your daughter did not fail. She proved herself a Portia. She pleaded on for you and as a result of her pleading the interpreter of this court, although a stranger to you, spent his own time at night and found a bondsman that wour child might have its mother home for Christmas. If this recital of what your child did for love of you is not sufficient to prevent your again yielding to temptation nothing which I might say would do so. Take your child home and love her as truly and serve her as faithfully as she loves and serves you." The woman wept and was led away by her daughter and husband.

CRANFORD PUSHES ITS TAX APPEAL

State Board Will Give Township a Hearing in Elizabeth Jan. 24 and 25.

Trenton, Dec. 31.—Berkeley C. Austin, counsel for the township of Cranford, appeared before the State Board for Equalization of Taxes to continue the fight which that town has begun against the assessed valuations in Rahway, which he asserts has enabled that city to escape this year the payment of about $5,000 of county tax which it would have had to pay if Rahway valuations had been increased in the same way as has been done in Cranford and in other municipalities of Union county. Mr. Austin asked for an order from the State board preventing County Collector N. R. Leavitt from collecting a penalty of 10 per cent. interest for non-payment of the amount due from Cranford to the county on the tax levied.

This was denied by the board after objection by W. R. Codington, attorney for Union county, but the board arranged for a hearing to be given in Elizabeth, at the courthouse, on Thursday and Friday, January 24 and 25, when the appeal of the township of Cranford will be heard. All the cities, towns and boroughs of the county will have notice to appear by counsel on that day, and if Cranford is successful in its attack on the Rahway valuations, Cranford and every other place in the county will have a little less county tax to pay.

The board will also sit in Elizabeth on January 23 to hear the appeal of the Singer Manufacturing Company.

After hearing the Cranford case the State board decided to grant the appeal of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and ordered a reassessment of all property in Jersey City, as told elsewhere in detail.

FEAR ANOTHER STATEN ISLAND WATER SCHEME.

Supposed Plans of a Company to Make Use of Driven Well Supply.

Rahway, Dec. 31.—Title has passed to the Milton Mills Lake property and to the lowlands belonging to Mrs. C. E. Pratt, adjacent properties. Robert M. Kellogg is the name of the individual party, whose name as present owner is recorded in the deeds, but a water company that has been sinking wells about there for months is believed to be the real owner.

This property has been for over one hundred years in the unbroken possession of the Pratt family and heirs, the original deed from the government having been given the ancestors in about 1750. It is rumored that the ten to eleven million gallons of water that flow through the city may be largely diverted from its present course to the immense pipes that have already ben laid to Carteret, the object being to supply Saten Island with the water from here, it having been declared positively pure.

The matter is being thoroughly investigated, and the Rahway Water Board is watching to see that its own interests are not interfered with.

Aged Bookkeeper Freed.

New York, Dec. 31.—Seldom has any Judge of General Sessions Court received such a flood of petitions for clemency for a prisoner as came to Judge Cowing in behalf of William W. Bridgeman, and these, with a recommendation from Assistant District Attorney Smythe, led him to suspend sentence on the prisoner Friday, although he had admitted he had stolen thousands of dollars. Perhaps the most remarkable document of the lot was an affidavit from Clarence E. Thornall, lawyer for Bridgeman, which, after telling to what extremes he had gone to make restitution, said that John Hankin, who had caused Bridgeman's arrest, had told him he had the defendant's life insured in his own favor for $5,000 and that he had paid the premiums on the policy. An inquiry was made, and in Assistant District Attorney Smyth's recommendation for a suspension of sentence he said: "The conduct of the complainant arouses grave suspicion as to the sincerity of his motive."

Massacred by Indians.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 31.—Business men of Sonora, Mexico, recently arriving here say that within the last two months sixteen Americans have been killed by Yaqui Indians in Mexico. Most of the victims were settlers who fled three years ago during the Indian troubles, but recently returned, believing that the railroad building had progressed to a point where they would be protected from the Yaquis. They state that the recent news of the Yaqui massacres there is not surprising.

President A. J. Cassatt Dead.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 31.—Stricken with heart disease brought on by overwork for the great system of which he was the head, Alexander Johnston Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and one of the foremost railroad men in the United States, died at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Ill health for a year, increased by the exposures of the Interstate Commerce Commission, culminated in a heart attack known to science as "the Stokes-Adams syndrome."

Mrs. Samuel Milliken, Mr. and Mrs. James De Groff, Miss De Groff and Robert A. Suffern, of this city, are registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Happy New Year!

As tomorrow will be a legal holiday, The Daily Press will not be issued.

The Camden Post Telegram finds reason for Mr. Dryden's re-election in the fact that he is a strong Protectionist. That's just about as sensible an argument as any so far advanced. If Mr. Dryden wasn't a Protectionist he wouldn't be a Republican.

Among those who have heard the call and have made a New Year's resolution not to refuse a Presidential nomination should it come their way are William H. Taft, Charles W. Fairbanks, Joseph G. Cannon, Joseph W. Folk, Robert M. LaFollette and Elihu Root. When the proper time comes, they can all step up and join in cheers for the man who will be named against his will—Theodore Roosevelt.

There are a few more tickets remaining unsold for the charity ball. These may be obtained from members of the committee or by ringing up the Casino on the telephone. A ticket entitles the holder to a reserved seat at the theatre, where Miss May Irwin, America's leading comedienne, will present "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," and to admission to the Casino, where the ball and supper will be held.

TWO CONTESTED CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

Cornelius Loughlin Loses and Decision Reserved in Berkowitz Case Reserved.

There were two contested cases in the district court, this morning, before Judge Newcorn. The first was that of Cornelius Loughlin against the Alumnium mress and Plate Company, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $105 for services. G. W. V. Moy, Esq., representing the defendant, contended that the Aluminum Press and Plate Company was dissolved and that the plaintiff could not recover from that company. A verdict of no cause for action was given. J. P. Owens, Esq., represented the plaintiff.

The second case was that of Berkowitz, a local tailor, against the New Jersey Central, the former claiming damages to the extent of $300 for the failure of the company to deliver some goods to him. The company did not deny the failure to deliver the goods, but asked the court to decide about the amount to which the plaintiff was entitled under a special clause in the contract, which states that it will be liable to the extent of $5 a pound. J. P. Owens, Esq., represented the plaintiff, and Mayor Garvin, of Bayonne, represented the company. Decision was reserved.

NEW STATE DIVORCE LAW WILL SOON BE READY.

Infidelity, Desertion or Cruelty Only Causes for Petition in the Future.

New Jersey is to have a new and stringent divorce law to make more difficult the breaking of the matrimonial bonds and to render less easy the temporary location here of disgruntled married persons from other States who come merely for the purpose of filing and securing releases from their marital entanglements.

The next legislature will be asked to pass such a law to supplant the State's present divorce legislation and the legislators will undoubtedly enact the law desired. Governor Stokes is behind the movement, and three members of the National Divorce Congress are now preparing the bill. The divorce commissioners are United States Judge William M. Lanning and the Rev. Dr. Henry Collin Minton, a former moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, both of Trenton, and Vice-Chancellor John R. Emery, of Newark.

Vice-Chancellor Emery is now drawing the measure, and when it is completed another conference will be held previous to the introduction of the bill in the Legislature.

Judge Lanning and Dr. Minton are Presbyterians of the old school, who are much opposed to the general principal of divorce.

The New Jersey bill will permit divorce only for infidelity, desertion or cruelty. Provision will be made to prevent the abuse of the divorce laws by residents of other States who acquire legal residence here merely for the purpose of bringing suit. The measure will also include a number of the suggestions of the Divorce Congress.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB HAS ENJOYABLE CHASE.

Twenty Members Participate in Run From Country Club to Colonia.

Weather conditions permitted an enjoyable chase by twenty members of the Watchung Hunt Club, Saturday afternoon. There were sixteen men and four women in the party and the fact that a course was selected that eliminated all jumps, made it particularly attractive for some of the riders who have not yet learned to take the jumps.

The start was made at the Plainfield Country Club and at Oak Tree there was a check. Many times throughout the chase the riders were very close to the hounds and this furnished plenty of excitement for all. The chase ended about a mile from the clubhouse at Colonia.

Those in the party were Miss Marshall, Miss Gertrude Noe, Miss Wildey and Miss Chandor, Lewis E. Waring, C. C. Marshall, W. H. Wildey, T. H. Wildey, Harry A. Bourne, Fred Alpers, Charles W. Fisk, W. S. Lucas, Joseph Gatins, H. B. Smith, C. S. Bellowes, Louis Batjer, W. H. Powers, Richard Waring, Dr. M. O'M. Knott and Commins, the whip.

The club will have another run tomorrow morning starting from Dog Tavern at 10 o'clock and ending up at the clubhouse at Colonia.

Lock Your Doors.

Chief of Police Kiely, realizing that there will be many Plainfielders away from their homes tonight by reason of the New Year's Eve celebration, especially the charity ball and the theatre performance, suggests that extra precautions be taken by householders as their absence might afford an excellent opportunity for sneak thieves. A little forethought in this direction may prevent trouble.

Dr. Schenck Able to Sit Up.

Gradual improvement in the condition of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck is reported today. He is now able to sit up in bed at intervals.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Just a few good things that have come to the town in the past few years: Trolleys, electric lights, good roads, city water, telephone and gas. May 1907 bring better sidewalks, street sprinkling during the summer and at least one arc light at Park avenue and Front street; these, together with the continued enforcement of the Bishops' law, will make the Plains one of the most desirable residence places in the State. The building boom which started during the passing year will be continued, and within a few years the old timers will hardly be able to recognize the town. Plainfield spreading out, is helping the Plains and the thirteen houses built here during the past year were not born of a spasmodic boom but of a healthy growth and one that will continue. No better investment could be made at the present time than Plains improved real estate.

EDWARD A. ROSS VICTIM OF APPENDICITIS ATTACK

OPERATED ON AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL LAST NIGHT AND DIED TODAY.

Following an illness of little more than a week, Edward A. Ross, of Bank place, one of the best known and most popular young men of the city, died at Muhlenberg Hospital shortly before 9 o'clock this morning. He was taken to the institution last night in the vain hope that an operation for appendicitis might afford him relief and it was performed by Drs. Zeglio and Hughes, but came too late. The trouble had been so far advanced and combined with peritonitis that it caused his demise.

The young man was taken ill one week ago yesterday and the physician who was called diagnosed the trouble as acute indigestion. He continued to grew worse, however, and another physician was called but he also stated the cause to be indigestion. Finally Dr. Hughes was summoned and he declared at once that the patient had appendicitis and that it had progressed so far an operation could not be performed at that time. Attempts were made to strengthen him and he was doing nicely until Saturday night when a turn for the worse developed. The operation was decided upon yesterday as a last resort and the young man himself bravely consented to it.

Mr. Ross was twenty-five years old and had lived in Plainfield nearly all his life. He was connected for a long time with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, but recently held a responsible position as travelling salesman for Libby, McNeil & Libby's New York office. About four years ago he married Miss Gertrude Tier, daughter of William Tier, who, with one child survives him. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Ross, of Prospect place; and two sisters, Mrs. William Kirch and Mrs. Leonard VanCamp, both of this city. He was an attendant at Trinity Reformed church and was one of the organizers of the Criterion Club, a well known organization that flourished several years ago.

The funeral will be held at his late home, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

PASTOR SAYS FAREWELL

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market, Retires From the Ministry.

REAL FIGHTING PARSON

General Sherman Made Him Quit Sky-Piloting to Become An Aide On His Staff.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, who is retiring from the ministry after a service of forty-two years, preached his farewell sermon at the New Market Baptist church yesterday morning. He has been in charge of the New Market church thirteen years and eight months.

The farewell sermon was heard by a congregation that filled the church. Mr. Fletcher made only a brief personal reference, but the words evoked evidences of strong feeling. He said he could not trust himself to speak at length on the parting. Tears were shed by members of the congregation, and the venerable pastor nearly broke down.

After the service the people crowded about the pastor and said things that kept his eyes bright with moisture. A feature of the service was a solo by his daughter, Mrs. Robert Giddes, of the choir of the First Baptist church, this city.

After the church service, the congregation held a meeting, and adopted resolutions of appreciation and regret. They will be engrossed and presented to Mr. Fletcher.

The retiring pastor will continue to live in New Market. Although weakened by years of devoted service, he is still able to work in the Vineyard, and will supply pulpits occasionally, besides filling the office of secretary of the East Jersey Baptist Home Missionary Society.

Mr. Fletcher is a veteran of the Civil War, with an unusual record of advancement and service. He entered the army in a New York regiment when the conflict started; as a private. He had the stuff of which good soldiers are made and rose rapidly to a captaincy. He had been studying for the ministry when the war broke out, and as the struggle wore on his desire to serve in the church did not wane with the military glory that he won. He resigned his company command in February, 1863, to go to New York to be ordained. As soon as his ordination was accomplished he returned to his regiment as its chaplain.

But a chaplaincy was not long for him. His superiors hated to see so good a soldier confined by the cloth, and General Sherman finally induced the veteran soldier buried beneath the chaplain's garb to come forth again and show the youngsters how to war on the nation's foes. Chaplain Fletcher became Captain Fletcher once more, and rode a horse with a service marked sword at his side, as aide-de-camp to General Sherman. He was on the great leader's staff all through the march to the sea. That his service was always soldierly is evidenced by the fact that he was brevetted a major when the war closed, and could have had a commission in the United States army.

In the forty-two years of his ministry, Major, the Rev. Frank Fletcher, has attended 1,300 funerals and 520 marriages. In his service at New Market he has attended 153 funerals and 67 marriages.

No one has been mentioned yet as Mr. Fletcher's successor. The deacons will have charge of the pulpit supplies.

J. M. SCHORB, SR., DEAD.

Passed Away Today from Effects of Paralytic Stroke.

John Martin Schorb, Sr., one of the best known of Plainfield's early residents, died at his home on East Front street, shortly before noon today from the effects of a paralytic stroke which he sustained two weeks ago. He was born in Germany eighty-two years ago and came to Plainfield in 1851, locating on what is now East Front street, as a merchant tailor. He erected the brick building directly opposite Park avenue, occupied on the first floor by the Central cafe, when structures of that kind in this city were very much in the minority. It was his place of business originally and in recent years he had resided on the second floor. He retired from business about twenty years ago.

Mr. Schorb was one of the most prominent members of the German Reformed church and at the time of his death was its treasurer. He leaves a wife and three children by a former marriage, John M., Jr., and William, of this city, and Mrs. C. F. Mason, of Jersey City.

The funeral will be held at the German Reformed church, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Zimmer, of Brooklyn, have returned home after a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Nettie Rose, of Somerset street.

The Misses Eastons, of Morristown, and Miss Laura Lee, of New York city, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Leek, of East Fifth street.

SONG OF A BALLOON.

I'm getting now to be the style, and,
filled with dollar gas, far up above the crowds I smile at earthly things I pass. Nobody may run over me nor mangle me, indeed; and there's no limit, you'll agree, to my aerial speed.
With every current I may glide, nor do I turn quite pale, if eighty miles an hour
I ride they can't put me in jail!
Indeed, I am a swell affair, a rounder, you'll agree; and autos, as I sail
the air, must all look up to me
At times I have a lot of sand,
I'm full with such a load. The only oath that I command is this: "Well I'll be blowed!"
High O!
I sail in lordly state across the checkered sky, I do not even have to wait until the clouds roll by!

—Life.

It Was a Good Thing.

"Excuse me, madam," said the agent, addressing the lady of the house, "but I'd like to show you a little device that I am introducing. All you have to do is simply place it in your refrigerator and it will save half the ice."

"Indeed!" exclaimed the lady. "And do you guarantee that it will save half the ice?"

"Certainly, madam," answered the agent.

"Then I'll take two," said the practical woman, "so as to save all the ice."—Chicago Daily News.

Stinging.

The humorous writer smiled, for he enjoyed talking about his work, especially when the lady was pretty and young.

"How on earth," she remarked, "do you write ten jokes a day?"

"With a typewriter," rejoined the humorist, and his smile widened.

But she stared at him quizzically.

"Oh," she said, "I thought you used some copying process."—Cassell's Journal.

Needed Pressing.

He—She wouldn't give me an answer the other night.

She—That's strange.

"But I'm going to see her again tonight, and press her for an answer."

"Gracious! Didn't you press her the first time? No wonder she wouldn't give you an answer!"—Yonkers Statesman.

A Confident Assertion.

"What kind of a dog is that?" asked the inquisitive man.

"I dunno jes' what kind of a dog he is," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "but he's got good stock in 'im. Dat dog is so many kinds of dog dat dar's got to be a good dog somewhere."—Washington Star.

Cheap Information.

Gyer—If a man isn't feeling well, he is foolish to hand a doctor two dollars to ascertain what's the matter with him.

Myer—Why do you think so?

Gyer—Because he can find out free of charge by perusing a patent medicine almanac.—Chicago Daily News.

Barely Lived.

"How did you get along with the simple life?"

"I just got by."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

ONE BENEFIT OF MUSIC.

"Do you think that music is of any practical benefit?"

"Well," replied the cynic, "judging from the photographs of eminent violinists, it must keep the hair from falling out."—Chicago Journal.

Room for One More.

A visiting bishop in Washington was arguing with a gentleman friend of his on the desirability of attending church, says an exchange. At last he put the question squarely:

"What is your personal reason for not attending?"

The gentlemen smiled in a non-offense-intended way, as he replied:

"The fact is one finds so many hypocrites there."

Returning the smile, the bishop said:

"Don't let that keep you away; there is always room for one more."

GOVERNOR TO AVOID ISSUES IN MESSAGES

"GOVERNMENT FOR THE PEOPLE," HIS TEXT FOR COMMUNICATION..

The text of Governor Stokes' message to this coming Legislature, now nearly complete, will be "Government for the People." The last session of the Legislature was notable in its treatment and disposition of most of the important and acute problems before the people. It left but little for its successor.

There are some important questions yet to be settled. Many of these were anticipated through recommendations last year and the appointment of commissions to consider them, but all will be discussed and treated in the coming message. The Governor says that at this time, when there is little public agitation for any specific issue, the opportunity is ripe for the consideration of measures and public works that directly affect the happiness and welfare of the individual citizen.

Governor Stokes will pay special attention to the subject of taxation. After investigating the working out of last winter's tax laws he has prepared a classified table of this year's tax bills as compared with last year's in a number of the municipalities and rural districts of the State, thus securing an average of all the taxation imposed on the people.

He will include in his message, it is understood, a statement as to which system of taxation is the lowest and best for the taxpayers and as to how the future revenues of the State will be affected by the tax laws now in force.

These new tax laws were enacted along the line of subbestions made in the Governor's message of last winter. He has been watching the outcome very carefully and will this winter advise such changes as he may deem necessary, if he has found that changes are advisable.

The Governor last winter named a number of committees and commissions to investigate certain important questions, and reports from these bodies are expected to be incorporated in the message. Other important reports concerning various phases of the State government will also appear, and with them will be made suggestions for the improvement of conditions that do not seem to be up to the highest possible standard.

The Governor took advanced ground last winter on the question of corrupt practises in connection with elections and political campaigns, and at his instances some anti-bribery legislation and other reform acts were passed. It is expected that he will again refer to this subject and make further suggestions.

Taken altogether, the message will be a comprehensive document, dealing with questions that are of vital interest at this time. It will contain about 10,000 words.

CENTRAL RAILROAD GETS MORE LAND.

Slice of Senator Wetmore's Holdings Taken By Corporation.

The commission appointed by Justice Swayze to condemn several hundred feet of land between Division and Schiller streets, Elizabethport, owned by United States Senator Wetmore, of Rhode Island, which the Central Railroad wanted, finished its labors Friday afternoon by appraising the property at $1,538.75. The report was presented to the court yesterday by the commission, which was composed of Mayor Berry, Benjamin King and William Howard.

Insurance Chiefs Indicted.

New York, Dec. 31.—Six indictments for forgery in the third degree were handed down Friday against George W. Perkins, a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. and formerly vice-president of the New York Life Insurance Company, and also against Charles S. Fairchild, who, after he was Secretary of the Treasury, was a member of the Finance Committee of the New York Life and at the same time was president of the New York Security and Trust Company, one of the insurance company's subsidiary concerns. The indictments have for their foundation the charge of making false entries in the New York Life's books by the two men in their official capacity in an endeavor to conceal the true import of stock transactions in which the company was interested. The maximum penalty for forgery in the third degree is imprisonment for five years. Probably never before has a Grand Jury in finding indictments against men prominent in the community taken the precaution of accompanying the accusations with a presentment to the court, which is taken by many lawyers as a virtual apology for its action. But this body, which had considered the stock transactions of the New York Life since a week ago Tuesday, handed in such a presentment. It makes known that the members were constained, acting on the advice of District Attorney Jerome to return the indictments, while at the same time it expresses the opinion that the men accused were actuated by no desire for personal gain and that the policy holders of the company profited by the transactions.

William Field, of Somerville, has been spending a few days with friends in town.

Stole Bridegroom's Fined.

Clarksville, Va., Dec. 31.—Robert E. Chandler, father of Bessie Chandler, who on last Saturday was forced to wed Richard Elam after the latter had been practically kidnapped by the girls father and her cousin and forced into the marriage at the point of a gun, was fined $25 this afternoon by the magistrate by whom the case was tried upon a charge of abducting the young man. "Bob" Chandler, the cousin, was fined $50 upon a similar charge. The case was not concluded until after dark, having taken up the greater portion of the day. The next move in the case will probably be the institution of a suit on the part of young Elam to have the marriage annulled. The abduction of young Elam created a sensation throughout the county.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON AUTHOR OF THE SPENDERS

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHAPTER XX.

The Picture in the Sky.

If something of the peace of the night silence came to him as he rode, he counted it only the peace of surrender and despair. He knew now that he had been cheated of all his great long-nursed hopes of some superior exaltation. Nor this only; for he had sinned unforgivably and incurred perdition. He who had fasted, prayed, and endured, waiting for his Witness, for the spreading of the heavens and the glory of the open vision, had overreached himself and was cast down.

When at last he slowed his horse to a walk, it was the spring of the day. The moon had gone, and over on his left a soft grayness began to show above the line of the hills. The light grew until it glowed with the fire of opals; through the treetops ran little stirs of wakefulness, and all about him were faint, furtive rustlings and whispers of the new day. Then in this glorified dusk of the dawn a squirrel loosed his bark of alarm, a crested jay screamed in answer, and he knew his hour of atonement was come.

He pressed forward again toward the desert, eager to be on with it. The page with the wash of blood across it seemed to take on a new vividness in the stronger light. Under the stain, the letters of the words were magnified before his mind,—"And as ye would that men should do to you—" It seemed to him that the blood through which they came heated the words so that they burned his eyes.

An hour after daybreak the trail led him down out of the hills by a little watercourse to the edge of the desert. Along the sides of this the chaparral grew thickly, and the spring by which he halted made a little spot of green at the edge of the gray. But out in front of him was the infinite stretch of death, far sweeps of wind-furrowed sand burning under a sun made sullen red by the clouds of fine dust in the air. Sparsely over the dull surface grew the few shrubs that could survive the heat and dryness,—stunted, unlovely things of burr, spine, thorn, or saw-edged leaf,—all bent one ways by the sand blown against them,—bristling cactus and crouching mesquite bushes.

In the vast open of the blue above, a vulture wheeled with sinister alertness; and far out among the dwarfed growing things a coyote skulked knowingly. The weird, phantom-like beauty of it stole upon him, torn as he was, while he looked over the dry, flat reaches. It was a good place to die in, this lifeless waste languishing under an angry sun.

At last he gave his horse water, tied the [illegible] rein to the horn of the saddle, [illegible] back over the trail to [illegible] him loose. Then, after a long look toward the saving green of the hills, he started off through the yielding sand, his face white and haggard but hard-set. He was already weakening by fasting and loss of sleep, and the heat and dryness soon told upon him as the chill was warmed from the morning air.

When he had walked an hour, he felt he must stop, at least to rest. He looked back to see how far he had come. He was disappointed by the nearness of the hills; they seemed but a stone's throw away. If delirium came now he would probably wander back to the water.

He walked another hour, then turned, and was again disappointed—it was such a little distance; yet he knew now he must be too far out to find his way back when the madness came. So it was with a little sigh of contentment that he lay down to rest or to take what might come.

He was quite broken. Not since the long-gone night on the river-flat across from Nauvoo had tears wet his eyes. But they fell now, and from sheer, helpless grief he wept. And then for the first time in two days he prayed—this time the prayer of the publican:—

"God be merciful to me, a sinner."

Over and over he said the words, chokingly, watering the hot sands with his tears. When the paroxysm had passed, it left him, weak and prone, still faintly crying his prayer into the sand, "O God, be merciful to me, a sinner."

When he had said over the words as long as his parched throat would let him, he became quiet. To his amazement, some new, strange peace had filled him. He took it for the peace of death. He was glad to think it was coming so gently—like a kind mother soothing him to his last sleep.

His head on his arm, his whole tired body relaxing in this new restfulness, he opened his eyes and looked off to the south, idly scanning the horizon, his eyes level with the sandy plain. Then something made him sit quickly up and stare intently, his bared head craning forward. To the south, lying low, a mass of light clouds, volatile, changing with opalescent lights as he looked. A little to the left of these clouds, while his head was on the sand, he thought his eyes had detected certain squared lines.

Now he scanned the spot with a feverish eagerness. At first there was only the endless empty blue. Then, when his wonder was quite dead and he was about to lie down, there came a miracle of miracles,—a vision in the clear blue of the sky. And this time the lines were coherent. He, the dying sinner, had caught, clearly and positively for one awful second in that sky, the flashing impression of a cross. It faded as soon as it came, vanished while he gazed, leaving him in gasping, fainting wonder at the marvel.

And then, before he could think or question himself, the sky once more yielded its vision; again that image of a cross stayed for a second in his eyes, and this time he thought there were figures about it. Some picture was trying to show itself to him. Still reaching his body forward, gazing fearfully, his aroused body pulsing swiftly to the wonder of the thing, he began to pray again, striving to keep his excitement under.

"O God, have mercy on me, a sinner!"

Slowly at first, it grew before his fixed eyes, then quickly, so that at the last there was a complete picture where but an instant before had been but a meaningless mass of line and color. Set on a hill were many low, square, flat-topped houses, brown in color against the gray ground about them. In front of these houses was a larger structure of the same material, a church-like building such as he had once seen in a picture, with a wooden cross at the top. In an open square before this church were many moving persons strangely garbed, seeming to be Indians. They surged for a moment about the door of the church, then parted to either side as if in answer to a signal, and he saw a procession of the same people coming with bowed heads, scourging themselves with short whips and thorned branches. Ar their head walked a brown-cowled monk, holding aloft before him a small cross, attached by a chain to his waist. As he led the procession forward, another crowd, some of them being other brown-cowled monks, parted before the church door, and there, clearly before his wondering eyes was erected a great cross upon which he saw the crucified Savior.

He saw those in the procession form about the cross and fling themselves upon the ground before it, while all the others round about knelt. He saw the monk, standing alone, raise the smaller cross in his hands above them, as if in blessing. High above it all, he saw the Crucified One, the head lying over on the shoulder.

He sank back on the sands in an ecstasy. His Witness had come—not as he thought it would, in a moment of spiritual uplift; but when he had been sunk by his own sin to fearful depths. Nor had it brought any message of glory for himself, of gifts or powers. Only the mission of suffering and service and suffering again at the end. But it was enough.

How long he lay in the joy of the realization he never knew, but sleep or faintness at last overcame him.

He was revived by the sharp chill of night, and sat up to find his mind clear, alert, and active with new purposes. He had suffered greatly from thirst, so that when he tried to say a prayer of thanksgiving he could not move his swollen tongue. He was weakened, too, but the freezing cold of the desert night aroused all his latent force. He struggled to his feet, and laid a course by the light of the moon back to the spring he had left in the morning. How he reached the hills again he never knew, nor how he made his way over them and back to the settlement. But there he lay sick for many days, his mind, when he felt it at all, tossing idly upon the great sustaining consciousness of that vision in the desert.

The day which he next remembered clearly, and from which he dated his new life, was one when he was back in the Meadows. He had ridden there in the first vagueness and weakness of his recovery, without purpose, yet feeling that he must go. What he found there made him believe he had been led to the spot. Stark against the glow of the western sky as he rode up, was a huge cross. He stopped, staring in wonder, beliving it to be another vision; but it stayed before him, rigid, bare, and uncompromising. He left his horse and climbed up to it. At its base was piled a cairn of stones, and against this was a slab with an inscription:—

"Here 120 Men, Women, and Children Were Massacred in Cold Blood Early in September, 1857."

On the cross itself was carved in deep letters:—

"Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord."

He fell on his knees at the foot and prayed, not weeping nor in any fever of fear, but as one knowing his sin and the sin of his Church. The burden of his prayer was, "O God, my own sin cannot be forgiven—I know it well—but let me atone for the sins of this people and let me guide them aright. Let me die on this cross a hundred deaths for each life they put out, or as many more as shall be needed to save them."

He was strong in his faith again, conscious that he himself was lost, but burning to save others, and hopeful, too, for he believed that a miracle had been vouchsafed to him in the desert.

Nor would the good padre, at the head of his procession of penitents in his little mission out across the desert, have doubted less that it was a miracle than did this unhappy apostle of Joseph Smith, had he known the circumstance of its timeliness, albeit he had become familiar with such phenomena of light and air in the desert.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Sinner Chastens Himself.

How to offer the greatest sacrifice—how to do the greatest service—these had become his problems. He concerned himself no longer with his own exaltation either in this world or the world to come.

He resolved to stay south, fearing vaguely that in the north he would be in conflict with the priesthood. He knew not how; he felt that he was still sound in his faith, but he felt, too, some undefined antagonism between himself and those who preached in the tabernacle. For his home he chose the settlement of Amalon, set in a rich little valley betwen the shoulders of the Pine mountains.

Late in October there was finished for him on the outer edge of the town, near the bank of a little hill-born stream, a roomy log-house, mud-chinked, with a water-tight roof of spruce shakes and a floor of whipsawed plank,—a residence fit for one of the foremost teachers in the Church, an Elder after the Order of Melchisedek, an eloquent preacher and one true to the blessed Gods. At one end of the cabin, a small room was partitioned off and a bunk built in it. A chair and a water-basin on a block comprised its furniture. This room he reserved for himself.

As to the rest of the house, his ideas were at first cloudy. He knew only that he wished to serve. Gradually, however, as his mind worked over the problem, the answer came with considerable clearness. He thought about it much on his way north, for he was obliged to make a trip to Salt Lake City to secure supplies for the winter, some needed articles of furniture for the house, and his wagons and stock.

He was helped in his thinking on a day early in the journey. Near a squalid hut on the outskirts of Cedar City he noticed a woman staggering under an armful of wood. She was bareheaded, with hair disordered, her cheeks hollowed, and her skin yellow and bloodless. He remembered the tale he had heard when he came down. He thought she must be that wife of Bishop Snow who had been put away. He rode up to the cabin as the woman threw her wood inside. She was weak and wretched-looking in the extreme.

"Sam Elder Rae. I want to know if you would care to go to Amalon with me when I come back. If you do, you can have a home there as long as you like. It would be easier for you than here."

She had looked up quickly at him in much embarrassment. She smiled a little when he had finished.

"I'm not much good to work, but I think I'd get stronger if I had plenty to eat. I used to be right strong and well."

"I shall be along with my wagons in two weeks or a little more. If you will go with me then I would like to have you. Here, here is money to buy you food until I come."

"You've heard of me, have you—that I'm a divorced woman?"

"Yes, I know."

She looked down at the ground a moment, pondering, then up at him with sudden resolution.

"I can't work hard and—I'm not—pretty any longer—why do you want to marry me?"

Her question made him the more embarrassed of the two, and she saw as much, but she could not tell why it was.

"Why," he stammered, "why,—you see—but never mind. I must hurry on now. In about two weeks—" And he put the spurs so viciously to his horse that he was nearly unseated by the startled animal's leap.

Cuban Situation Grave.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—All concealment has been dropped by the administration regarding the imminence of trouble in Cuba. Grave apprehension is felt not only by high officials of the government, but by prominent members of the Senate and House of Representatives regarding the future of the island, and the statement was made yesterday by a very prominent member of the administration that "war was probably the only way out of the difficulty."

Mrs. Ida Randolph-Smalley and Miss Justine Roberts, of Brooklyn, who have been visiting relatives and friends in town, have returned home. Mrs. Smalley was the guest of her grandmother on East Second street.

City Treasurer William F. Arnold has been entertaining his brother, Charles Arnold, of Milwaukee, Wis., who came to Plainfield last week to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Varian. Mr. Arnold is at the head of one of the leading banks of Milwaukee.

PLAINFIELD DEFEATED IN ASSN. FOOTBALL

UNDEFEATED BROOKLYN F. C. SCORE 2 GOALS TO 0 IN FAST GAME WITH LOCALS

The Plainfield Football Club visited the Marquette grounds, Brooklyn, Saturday afternoon, where the team met the undefeated aggregation of the Brooklyn Field Club. The Plainfield eleven was defeated by a score of 2 to 0. The play was interesting, but the heavy condition of the ground prevented fast football. Plainfield was without some of the regular players, Tyler taking the place of Morgan in goal, where he fairly excelled himself, saving many difficult shots, noticeably a penalty kick, which received the plaudits of the spectators.

Brooklyn scored the first goal after forty-five minutes play. Plainfield tried hard to equalize but failed to find the net. At half time Brooklyn led by one goal on the commencement of play. Both teams played a brilliant game. The Brooklyn forwards were very noticeable laying off side during this half. Just before time Brooklyn added its second goal, which appealed to the spectators on the touch to be offside. No further points were added, Brooklyn winning by two goals, still retaining their unbeaten record. Next Saturday the Plainfield team will play the Critchley F. C., of New York, on the local grounds. Saturday's lineup:

Brooklyn (2)	Plainfield (0)
Tierney	Tyler

Milne	Martin
right back.
Kinnard	Donaldson

Owen	McGregor
right half.
Dunlop	Buckland

WEEK OF PRAYER TOPICS

Special Annual Services in Evangelical Churches Begin Next Sunday.

OBSERVED GENERALLY

Starting On January 6 Will Continue Nightly Until January 13—The Topics As Selected.

Commencing on Sunday, January 6, and continuing until Sunday, January 13, the evangelical churches of this city, in common with all throughout the United States, will observe what is known as "Week of Prayer," as suggested by the Evangelical Alliance, which has prepared special topics for the services.

The following is the list of topics for the coming Week of Prayer, as suggested by the Evangelical Alliance for the United States: Sunday, January 6, 1907, sermons, "The Call of God to His People," Isa. 48:18; Mal. 3:7; Monday, January 7, the Church of the Living God; Tuesday, January 8, the Gospel of God's Son; Wednesday, January 9, the Christian Ministry; Thursday, January 10, Missions, Home and Foreign; Friday, January 11, Christian Institutions; Saturday, January 12, the Coming of the Kingdom; Sunday, January 13, sermons, "The Attracting Power of Christ Crucified," John 12:32-33.

With the approach of the New Year the Evangelical Alliances of the world again appoint the Week of Universal and United Prayer, says The Intelligencer, and in their invitation say: "The sure promises of God still invite us to pray in faith. His answers to prayer move us to thanksgiving. Our great spiritual need is the turning of professed belief into actual life. When all things are made divinely new, the newness will largely consist in putting reality in place of mere profession. The call is for Christian consistency springing from living, loving conviction. The necessity is that the Christian realize in fact what he admits in theory. Not till the disciple of today can say with St Paul, 'The life which I now live in the flesh, I live by faith,' will men take knowledge of him that he has been with Jesus. The great and genuine revival which is needed is supremely for the saving of the unbelieving lost; but a revival which must accompany or precede that, is for the quickening and sanctifying of professing Christians. While, therefore, giving thanks, we pray for manifid specific objects, let us also pray ceaselessly for the revivifying of ourselves and of all believers, in both heart and life. A world sinful and suffering and dying waits for that prayer's fulfillment."

Use Up the Scraps.

"'I knew once a very covetous, sordid old fellow,' says Lord Chesterfield in his letters to his son, 'who used frequently to say: 'Take care of the pence, for the pounds will take care of themselves.' This was a just and sensible reflection in a miser. I recommend you to take care of the minutes, for the hours will take care of themselves. I am very sure that many people lose two or three hours every day by not taking care of the minutes. Never think any portion of time, whatsoever, too short to be employed; something or other may always be done in it."

Looking Too Prosperous.

"Here, my good man," said the kind-hearted woman, "is my husband's old overcoat. You will find it good and warm." "Tank you, ma'am, verry much, but I couldn't t'ink of it," replied the weary wayfarer. "I'd look so comfortable in dat it would ruin me business."—Philadelphia Record.

DR. WHITNEY A REPORTER

Venerable Clergyman Tells of His Experience in Newspaper Work.

AN EVENTFUL CAREER

The Former President of Centenary Institute Came in Contact With Many Great Men.

The unwritten memoirs of few men would make such entertaining reading as that of the Rev. George H. Whitney, D. D., who lives at 826 First place. To listen while Dr. Whitney talks about his busy life seems like hearing two voices recounting the incidents of as many centuries widely separated.

Dr. Whitney recalls important events in the development of the United States which most middle-aged men learned out of histories. He describes the customs and manners of the people with whom he lived when a lad, and these now seem as foreign as the fashions of the immigrants who land at Ellis Island. He talks of a political party once prominent in the affairs of the nation, but which does not exist today, and tells of seeing statesmen whose pictures have long adorned the walls of public buildings.

But Dr. Whitney follows closely the advances made of science, and watches the substitution of modern inventions for household arts and products—such as spinning and candles—with an optimistic eye. He reads the latest books and is, in fact, abreast of these times as well as conversant with the immediate past.

"But all this progress has been made in a short time," said Dr. Whitney by way of explanation. "It is a marvelous advance to be sure. I have studied by candle light and electrity; I have seen the horse, which I thought rapid transit when collecting news for a paper, displaced by the telegraph and cable; I have filled the presidency of three institutions—one for twenty-six years, and I have been the pastor of three churches, one of which I was instrumental in building at a cost of $75,000. Still, I am not an old man. However, the world has changed rapidly during that time. This country, especially, has made wonderful progress and the conditions of living today are so different from those of my boyhood that it is hard for me to convince myself that I am in the same world."

"One of the first jobs which I held when a lad," began Dr. Whitney, recalls memories of the early years of his life, "was that of reporter for the Daily National Whig, which was published in Washington, D. C., where I lived. My home was across the street from the residence of Senator Frank Benton, of Missouri, and I saw many of the prominent Congressmen of that time. My occupation brought me in contact with a majority of them. I don't know of any one word which will explain just what my position was, for the method of rankink employees of the editorial sanctum had changed since my time. Though I was only 17 years old, I was not called a 'cub.' I think the work I did corresponds to what is expected of the city editor of today, for I read copy and arranged for its location in the paper. But I did more than this. A great deal of my time was spent in collecting news items, and as I was at the head of the staff I think the others called me chief reporter.

"My duties on the Whig often corresponded to those of an office boy. I remember being sent after a pail of water one morning when the ground was so slippery that I could not stand up, much less walk. I got the water, however. But I had to get on my hands and knees and push the empty pail a whole block, and then repeat this for the same distance filled with water."

After filling his position on the Daily National Whig, Dr. Whitney resigned and came North in order to prepare for college. He taught in Newark and at the Wesleyan Institute before entering Wesleyan University, from which he graduated with the class of 1858. When an undergraduate Dr. Whitney was greatly interested in all college activities. He was one of the founders of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He also wears a Phi Beta Kappa key. He received his D. D. from Mount Union College in Ohio.

After graduating Dr. Whitney became interested in educational work. He has served as president of three seminaries. They are Macedon, near Rochester, N. Y.; Oneida, near Utica, and the Centenary at Hacketstown, in this State. He acted as the head of the latter institution for twenty-six successive years, being elected annually, and is now president emeritus.

Dr. Whitney has filled three pulpits. They are Trinity church, of Jersey City; the First Methodist church, of this city, and the First Methodist church, of Passaic. He was instrumental in building the latter edifice at a cost of $75,000. In addition to this, he is well known as an author of books on religious topics. Among the best known is "The Handbook of Bible Geography," which has been issued in many editions. Upon being requested by English preachers, Dr. Whitney gave his consent for the publication of the volume in England.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

The Presbyterian church in the United States of America has now 1,158,662 members, a gain of 43,000 for the year.

The Rev. Gifford Dorey, who has been in the active ministry for nearly 60 years, is the oldest minister of the Wesleyan church of Great Britain.

The George Sealy memorial window is being put in place in Trinity church at Galveston. The window is 20 feet high, 9 feet wide and cost $7,000.

A much loved Sunday school teacher, who had taught her class since 1853, not missing a single Sunday, passed to her reward from Astoria, L. I., a short time ago.

The Rev. F. B. Meyer of London, England, will be 60 next spring, at which time he purposes to sever his connection with Christ church of that city, of which he is now pastor.

The Rev. L. L. Conrady, the Belgian priest in whose arms Father Damien breathed his last at the Hawaiian leper colony on the island of Molokai, is on his way to China, where he will establish similar colonies and spend the rest of his life.

NOTES ABOUT BRIDGES.

The famous Niagara suspension bridge was begun in 1852 and completed in 1856. It is 245 feet above the water and 821 feet long.

The Forth bridge over the Firth of Forth, near Edinburgh, has two cantilever spans each 1,710 feet in length, the longest in the world. The total length of this structure is one and four-sevenths miles, and there was 51,000 tons of steel used in its construction.

One of the most peculiar bridges in the world is the tubular suspension bridge across Menai strait. This bridge consists of two lines of immense tubing, each 1,500 feet long, supported by three granite towers besides the shore abutments. This strange bridge is 100 feet above the sea, and weighs 11,000 tons.

There have been several London bridges. There was one at the end of the tenth century, and another in 1014 built of wood. In 1176 Colechurch began a stone bridge across the Thames, which was not finished until 1209. The new London bridge was begun in 1824 and completed in seven years at the cost of one and a half million dollars.

TIME FOR A TRANSFER.

When you have reached the place where you think that no one appreciates you.

When you get to where you can stop in your work to hear the latest indecent story.

When you have reached the corner of your mind where you can't see any good in the world.

When you will go in debt for something you don't have to have, but want it because some one else has it.

When you have reached the avenue where you want to walk down it to meet some good fellows just to take a drink.

When you come to the place where you are content to let things go half done because you're doing it for some one else.

When you find it too much trouble to do something for some one because you have arrived where you think that no one ever appreciates what you do for them.
